*RESIGNATION OF SPEAKER AND ELECTION OF NEW MINISTER

On Friday, 10 October 2003, the Honourable Speaker, Juliana O'Connor-Connolly, JP, gave verbal and written notice of her resignation as Speaker of the House.

Following her resignation, the Hon. Linford Pierson, OBE, JP, Minister of Planning, Communications, Works and Information Technology, read into the records of the House his resignation as a Minister of Cabinet, effective immediately.

Mr. Pierson was then elected Speaker of the House, whilst Mrs. O'Connor-Connolly was elected to be a Minister in his place. His Excellency the Governor subsequently allocated to her responsibility for Planning, Communications, District Administration and Information Technology.

(Information taken from 2003 Annual Report of the Cayman Islands)

OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT
STATE OPENING
FRIDAY
7 MARCH 2003
9.35 AM
First Sitting

The Speaker: Good morning. I shall now invite Pastor Lavonne Ryan to grace us with prayers.

PRAYERS

Pastor Lavonne Ryan: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy great Name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together:

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

Proceedings resumed at 9.38 am

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proclamation.

PROCLAMATION NO. 2
SUMMONING THE NEW SESSION
OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY

The Clerk: Proclamation No. 2 of 2003 by His Excellency, Bruce H. Dinwiddy, Governor of the Cayman Islands.

"WHEREAS section 46 (1) of the Constitution of the Cayman Islands provides that the sessions of the Legislative Assembly of the Cayman Islands shall be held at such places and begin at such times as the Governor may from time to time by Proclamation appoint:

"NOW THEREFORE, I, Bruce H. Dinwiddy, Governor of the Cayman Islands, by virtue of the powers conferred upon me by the said section 46 (1) of the Constitution of the Cayman Islands, HEREBY PROCLAIM that a session of the Legislative Assembly of the Cayman Islands shall be held at the Aston Ruddy Civic Centre on the Island of Cayman Brac beginning at 10.00 am on Friday, the 7th day of March, 2003.

"Given under my hand and the public seal of the Cayman Islands at George Town in the Island of Grand Cayman, on this 12th day of February in the year of our Lord, Two Thousand and Three, in the fifty second year of the reign of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II".

ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS
OR AFFIRMATIONS

Oath of Allegiance

By Mr. Samuel Bulgin, Solicitor General to be the Honourable Temporary Second Official Member responsible for the Portfolio of Legal Administration

The Speaker: I now call on Mr. Bulgin to come to the Clerk's desk. Please stand.

Mr. Samuel W. Bulgin: I, Samuel Bulgin, do swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, her heirs and successors, according to law, so help me God.

The Speaker: On behalf of this Honourable House, The Honourable Temporary Second Official Member, this House invites you to take your seat and welcome you to this Session. Please be seated.

READING BY THE HONOURABLE
SPEAKER OF MESSAGES
AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

Apologies

The Speaker: I have received apologies for the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town who is unavoidably off the Island with his spouse for medical reasons. I have also received apologies from the Fourth Elected Member from the district of West Bay who was unavoidably delayed due to technical problems overseas and sends his regrets this morning as well. I have received apologies also from the Honourable Second Official Member, the Attorney General, who is today on vacation.

MOTION TO SUSPEND PROCEEDINGS

The Speaker: I now recognise the Honourable Leader of Government to bring the Motion for the suspension of the House.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I move that this Honourable House do rise to await the arrival of His Excellency the Governor and reassemble on his arrival to receive a gracious message from the Throne.

The Speaker: The Question is that this House do rise to await the arrival of His Excellency The Governor and reassemble, on his arrival, to receive the gracious message from the Throne. All those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed: That the House do rise to await His Excellency the Governor and reassemble on his arrival to receive a gracious Message from the Throne.

Proceedings suspended at 9.50 am

ARRIVAL OF HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR

The Governor's Aide-de-Camp gave three knocks on the door at 10.36 am. Procession enters

The Serjeant-at-Arms: His Excellency The Governor.

Procession:

The Serjeant-at-Arms
The Honourable Speaker
His Excellency the Governor
Mrs. Dinwiddy
The Aide-de-Camp
The Clerk of the Legislative Assembly
The Acting Deputy Clerk

INVITATION BY THE SPEAKER

The Speaker: I now invite His Excellency, The Governor to graciously address this audience with Her Majesty's Throne Speech.

His Excellency, The Governor.

INTRODUCTION

His Excellency the Governor: Honourable Speaker, Honourable Members of the Legislative Assembly, I am greatly honoured to present to you my first Throne Speech, which is also the first such speech ever to be delivered in the Sister Islands.

How fitting it is, in this our Quincentennial year, that we should meet this morning in Cayman Brac. When my wife and I stood on the Bluff for the first time just four weeks ago, and marvelled at the frigate birds soaring above us, I reflected that except for the lighthouse the view around would have been virtually unchanged since that May day in 1503, when (perhaps we can imagine) a young sailor high up in the crow's nest of one of Christopher Columbus's ships spotted a shape on the distant horizon and cried out "Land, ahoy".

I am glad we are taking the opportunity this year to explore and remember Cayman's cultural and spiritual roots, to look back on our history and the heroic achievements of all those, right up to the present time, who have made these Islands what they are today. This examination of our past, and of traditional Cayman values, can strengthen and inspire us as we address the challenges now before us, and plan for the future.

For there are many new pages in our history book waiting to be written. I hope that this year will see further progress towards the introduction of a new Constitution, which will modernize our system of government and include a far-reaching statement of Fundamental Rights and Freedoms. These changes are both necessary and desirable, and they need to be worked out against a new mutual understanding of Cayman's relationship with the United Kingdom, which I firmly believe, while it continues to evolve, can continue to be to the benefit of us all.

Meanwhile, as we enjoy the succession of Quincentennial celebrations during this exciting year, a series of big economic, social, environmental, security and management issues await our collective attention. In a difficult international climate, how are we to maintain a satisfactory rate of economic growth, which provides enough jobs and otherwise meets the reasonable expectations of the people, in a manner, which preserves as far as we can our precious natural environment? What further measures should we take to protect ourselves against the spread of international crime (including the impact of drug trafficking) and terrorism? How will the new discipline imposed by the Public Management and Finance Law help to maintain the recent improvement in our budgetary situation? My speech today cannot provide all-encompassing answers to such questions. But I take this opportunity to renew my commitment to doing all I can to work with the government and other members of this house, with the public service, and with the private sector on which all our prosperity fundamentally depends, to help find the best route through the complicated and ever-changing maze, which confronts us.

In the spirit of Vision 2008, we need to keep one eye on the distant goals. But with the other eye we must constantly consider and reconsider how best to deploy our scarce resources in the near term. I therefore now turn to report on the activities and plans of the various Ministries, Portfolios and Departments.

JUDICIARY

Facilities

In order to fulfil its main objective of doing justice in a timely and efficient manner to all who come before the Courts, the Judiciary is actively pursuing the relocation of the operations of all divisions of the Summary Court. A Project Definition Document has been prepared, a suitable site has been identified and negotiations with the owners started. It is expected that work will start within the next 9 months.

Judicial Website

A study is being undertaken to consider the costs and revenue earning implications of a web site to house the law reports for online access, to allow online searches of the Registers, to allow the electronic filing of pleadings, and ultimately the electronic payment of fees, fines and other monetary payments into the court.

PORTFOLIO OF INTERNAL AND EXTERNAL AFFAIRS

---

During 2003 the Portfolio of Internal and External Affairs will focus attention on finalization and enactment of the much-needed Immigration reforms, and on personnel management reforms, including appropriate legislation.

PERSONNEL

- The Personnel Department will assist the office of the Honourable Chief Secretary with preparation of new legislative and administrative arrangements to replace the existing General Orders and Public Service Commission legislation and regulations.

- The two Masters degree programmes – in Public Policy and Management, London University (UK) and in Human Resource Management, Portsmouth University (UK) - will continue to build up management expertise throughout the Public Service.

ROYAL CAYMAN ISLANDS POLICE SERVICE

A review of the Royal Cayman Islands Police Service structure has been undertaken, following the inspection by Her Majesty's Inspector of Constabulary in January, 2002.

During 2003 greater emphasis will be placed on community policing and by the year-end, it is hoped that every district will have a community constable dedicated to problem solving in partnership with other agencies and the community itself. More authority will be devolved to District Commanders at George Town, West Bay, Bodden Town and Cayman Brac Police Stations and Central Police Station will be renamed George Town Police Station.

The responsive policing strategy will be implemented by district-based police vehicles. For example, the now centrally based Traffic Department will be divided and report to District Stations.

A new Specialist Support department will bring together the expertise in Drugs, Canine, CID, and Marine and be available to District Commanders as necessary.

The Commissioner of Police, David Thursfield, QPM, will retire during 2003. His successor will be Buel Braggs, RVM, CPM, currently Deputy Commissioner. Mr. Braggs will take up office in September 2003, after undertaking the Strategic Senior Command Course in the United Kingdom.

While Deputy Commissioner Braggs is away, the newly appointed Assistant Commissioner, Rudolph Dixon, CPM, will be acting Deputy and, on appointment of the new Commissioner, will be promoted to the substantive post of Deputy Commissioner.

Superintendent Anthony Ennis will be acting Assistant Commissioner for that time and, similarly, on appointment of the new Commissioner, will be promoted to the substantive post of Assistant Commissioner.

Mr. David Thursfield will continue for a period as Police Advisor.

IMMIGRATION

The central focus of the Immigration Department in 2003 will be the preparation of a new Immigration Law.

The Department will focus its enforcement efforts on detection of unwanted visitors to the Islands and illegal workers, through the use of intelligence and enhanced information systems developed "In house".

At the airport, the Department will extend expedited immigration clearance to frequent visitors, including those who own homes in the Islands, through the Caypass system successfully launched in late 2002.

CAYMAN ISLANDS GOVERNMENT OFFICE IN THE UNITED KINGDOM

The Office will continue to cement links with the United Kingdom Government, national agencies and organisations, Westminster, the United Kingdom and international business sector, to focus attention on the Cayman Islands, improve contacts and promote business.

GOVERNMENT INFORMATION SERVICES

In 2003, GIS will disseminate more government news by audio-video following the return in 2002 of a professionally qualified Caymanian videographer and video news reporter, after training in Europe.

There will be more emphasis this year on support for civil servants as they assume greater responsibility for media relations.

PORTFOLIO OF LEGAL AFFAIRS

---

There will be legislation to enhance the Criminal Justice system, including amendments to the Penal Code, the Evidence Law and the Police Law.

Legislation is also planned to clarify and establish further by statute the role and functions of the former Financial Reporting Unit.

The pursuit and confiscation of the proceeds of criminal conduct, including drug trafficking and money laundering, will remain a priority, in the interest of maintaining the reputation of the Cayman Islands and the probity of the financial services industry.

LAW SCHOOL

The main objectives for 2003 are:

- To begin a redesign of the Professional Practice Course with a view to developing course manuals for use in 2004-2005.
- To recruit a local part-time law lecturer/tutor, to allow a Caymanian to obtain undergraduate law teaching experience.
- To secure renewal of the triennial affiliation agreement with the University of Liverpool.

THE PORTFOLIO OF FINANCE AND ECONOMICS

PORTFOLIO

During 2003 the Financial Management Initiative (FMI) will bring a more strategic and coherent approach to government decision-making. The FMI will be implemented in three phases:

- firstly, the move to new budgeting and reporting arrangements to the Legislative Assembly and the public against the 2003 Half Annual Plan and Estimates;
- secondly, the move to accrual accounting; and
- thirdly, the delegation of greater input decision-making authority to chief officers of government ministries and portfolios.

Other notable projects for the Portfolio are to establish the Cayman Islands Shipping Registry as a statutory authority and to establish a Securities and Exchange Commission by the end of 2003.

Legislation was passed in December 2002 that enables Government to execute its first bond issue. The impact of this will be to:

- reduce annual debt service costs;
- change from a floating interest rate regime to a fixed rate regime; and
- consolidate numerous public debt loans into a single instrument.

The Portfolio intends to establish a Government Revenue and Debt Collection Unit. This will be modelled loosely on "Revenue Canada". Its primary duties will be collecting, forecasting and reporting of all government's coercive revenue.

BUDGET AND MANAGEMENT UNIT

The main focus of the Unit will remain the implementation of the new budgeting, reporting and monitoring system under the FMI.

The Unit will develop the risk management function to focus more on risk minimization and control.

FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT INITIATIVE / INTEGRATED RESOURCE INFORMATION SYSTEM

The Finance Project Office will strengthen the capability of civil servants to manage the delivery of outputs. This will include monitoring ownership performance requirements, budgeting and forecasting on the accrual basis, and preparation of performance agreements for the 2004/5 budget.

The Office also intends to introduce the Project costing module in the fourth quarter of 2003.

INTERNAL AUDIT UNIT

In 2003, for the first time, Internal Audit will conduct audits on the Output Management Systems developed by government agencies in accordance with the Public Management and Finance Law (2001).

CAYMAN ISLANDS STOCK EXCHANGE

The Exchange will continue to pursue further recognitions from overseas regulators and will enhance its efforts to attract more institutional business and to increase its listings, building on the relationships it has already forged in the market.

CAYMAN ISLANDS MONETARY AUTHORITY

The key issue for the Monetary Authority in early 2003 is taking forward its independence, following passage of the Monetary Authority (Amendment) Bill, 2002.

Another key area of activity, in cooperation with other relevant agencies and the private sector, will be the assessment of Cayman's financial services sector by the International Monetary Fund, now expected in May of 2003.

The Regulations under the Securities Investment Business Law ("SIBL") 2001 are expected to be Gazetted during this quarter. Applicants lawfully undertaking securities investment business in the Islands will have six months from the commencement date of SIBL to apply to the Authority for a licence.

ECONOMIC RESEARCH UNIT

In 2003, the Economic Research Unit will provide technical assistance to all major revenue-earning departments in revenue forecasting. It will assist departments in preparing project profiles and project reports and service the Public Sector Investment Committee (PSIC).

GENERAL REGISTRY

During the first quarter of this year the General Registry will launch a vastly improved online system, "Cayman Online Registry Information Service" (CORIS). This is a web-based system, which will make enhanced functionality readily accessible to authorized client-users. The functionality includes company searches, request tracking, payments on-line, and agent reports. The pricing structure for the service makes it viable for all sizes of corporate service providers and company managers. It is expected that clients and the Registry staff will both benefit from the efficiency of this new system.

SHIPPING REGISTRY

During 2003, it is proposed to submit six new Bills and forty-eight new regulations under the Merchant Shipping Law and the Merchant Shipping Marine Pollution Law. This new legislation will give local effect to a range of developments in international shipping conventions that apply in the Cayman Islands. One Key new development is the implementation of maritime security provisions to counter the threat of ships and ports being used for acts of terrorism.

A Bill will also be submitted to make the registry a Statutory Authority.

TREASURY

The new ORACLE accrual accounting financial package has been implemented and the migration of Ministries/Portfolios from the cash-basis financial system (SO) to the multi-organization (MO) system has begun.

Accrual Accounting Policies to be used by the Government have been drafted and reviewed and are expected to be implemented shortly.

The 2002 annual financial statements will be presented on the traditional cash basis and also on the modified accrual basis in order to introduce readers to the new accounting format of financial reporting on Outputs.

CUSTOMS

The opening of the newly constructed "Express Cargo" facility is scheduled for later this month. A scanning machine for detecting drug trafficking at our ports will also be introduced shortly.

MINISTRY OF EDUCATION, HUMAN RESOURCES & CULTURE

---

The Ministry recently held its second bi-annual retreat with its heads of departments. The Ministry reaffirmed its commitment to a set of shared guiding principles and its philosophy for policy development. Education and Human Resources are the building blocks to mould, develop, and nurture the people of the Cayman Islands. In the same vein, Culture is the central interface - the tool to inform and mould the life choices of our people, and the mirror for self-reflection.

The Investors in People Programme, which focuses on organizational development through people, will complement the human resource management changes in the next phase of the reforms.

EDUCATION

Education Law

In 2003, the Ministry will focus its efforts on the need for a revised Education Law. This was recommended in the Millet Report, tabled in the Legislative Assembly in 2001. The Revised Law will constitute the Schools' Inspectorate and its powers, address the issue of Home Schooling, establish an Appeals Tribunal and incorporate other recommendations from the Report.

Education Policy

The Ministry will also table a comprehensive new Education Policy. This will draw on the framework "Education for the 21st century", published in 2001, and convey a vision of Caymanian society, which is alert, responsive and proactive. It will acknowledge the importance of information technology in lifelong learning and the necessity to focus more on technical and vocational education.

It will emphasize the need for the Cayman Islands, as a learning society, to remain firmly in control of its own destiny by embracing change, multiculturalism, multi-nationalism, human rights and citizenship education without losing contact with the values which constitute the Caymanian identity.

Improving Teaching and Learning in Cayman (ITALIC)

Building on the development of the policy and the need for enhanced integration of information technology into the curriculum, the Ministry of Education has embarked on what is expected to be the biggest programme to transform education in the Cayman Islands in 20 years. This programme called "Improving Teaching and Learning in the Cayman Islands" (ITALIC) is the culmination of years of planning by educators, students, parents, the Ministry, the Education Department, the Schools Inspectorate, and private sector partners.

- Under ITALIC, the Ministry will focus on teaching and learning for a lifetime. They have begun several pilot projects aimed at using technology as a tool to assist in the teaching and learning process.

National Education Leadership Programme (NELP)

In line with the Minister's strategic goal of further teacher and educator professional development opportunities, the National Education Leadership Programme (NELP) is being launched in April 2003. This draws on the findings of Inspectors and is based on the Cayman Islands' national standards for principals.

Participants in the programme will earn credits toward a Master's Degree in Applied Leadership from the University of London.

CAYMAN ISLANDS CADET CORPS

The Cayman Islands Cadet Corps, building on the progress made during 2002, will be the subject of new legislation, and will be officially registered with the United Kingdom. It will expand its enrolment to John Gray High School, to allow the continued participation of the current cadet class and high school students.

The Cadet Corps' central curriculum will be enhanced by including 'Citizenship Training', to educate the cadets in Cayman's history, their rights and the rights of others within the country.

Most importantly the Cadet Corps will continue to inspire and remind young persons of their responsibilities to society.

HUMAN RESOURCES

Employment Legislation

In early January 2003 Executive Council approved drafting instructions for a revised Employment Law, a critical step in the development of a National Human Resource Policy. Integral to this Policy will be a revised Trade and Business License Law and Workmen's Compensation Law; both laws will be reviewed later this year.

Investors in People

The Employment Relations Department will concentrate on training and retraining the country's workforce through the Investors in People Programme (IIP), an internationally recognized human resource management standard. A Pilot IIP Programme will be launched in three government departments and seven to ten private companies and will run for twelve to eighteen months. Participants in the Pilot Programme will need to comply with specified best practices relating to recruitment, selection, training, succession planning, record keeping and employment relations. A group of independent facilitators will be available locally to assist companies with pursuit of the Standard and an independent assessor will evaluate their compliance with it.

International Obligations

In 2003 the Ministry will seek to establish the Cayman Islands as a Non Metropolitan Member Territory of the International Labour Organization, thus fulfilling the requirements placed on Overseas Territories to adhere to international conventions on human rights and employment relations.

Vocational & Technical Education

Emphasis will be placed on providing vocational technical training/education through a 'Votech' fair being planned for the last quarter of 2003 highlighting opportunities and training available.

PENSIONS

In 2003, the Office of the Superintendent of Pensions (OSP) will merge into the Department of Employment Relations. This will unite employment relations under one umbrella and enhance the one-stop shop at Paddington Place, when the office moves there at the end of the year.

CULTURE

The Ministry's overall goal for supporting cultural development is to focus efforts on bringing together the many distinct and disparate entities in Cayman, into a society that can live and work together in peace and harmony. In that sense, the policy will become a dynamic "metaphor for the way [Caymanian] people live, our values, beliefs and aspirations."

Initiatives in 2003 and beyond, with culture as the primary driver, yet appropriately linked to education and human resources, include:

- continued development of the National Cultural Policy framework by the Taskforce;
- re-introduction of the cultural scholarship;
- preparation for the introduction of an arts integrated curriculum;
- launch of the New History of the Cayman Islands;
- revision of relevant cultural legislation; and
- development of cultural facilities.

The National Archive serves two important functions: it runs a modern records management service for government departments; and it collects, preserves and gives public access to historical records of all kinds. Within the last decade, storage space in the Archive has reached a critical point. In 2003 preparations will be taken forward for building a much-needed Archive extension.

In 2003, work will begin on a 3-story extension to the George Town Public Library. In addition to tripling the usable floor space of the current facility, this will include internet-enabled computer labs. Students will finally have access to a library whose mandate is to be the "local centre of information, with all kinds of knowledge and information readily available." These additional facilities will allow the library to better complement other ministry initiatives such as ITALIC.

The National Museum is currently housed in three separate locations and its exhibit location is within 50 feet of the ocean. Alternative facilities will be investigated, with a view to providing a purpose built facility with adequate storage, exhibit and retail space.

The National Gallery currently operates out of its spacious, Harbour Place location, thanks to many generous local benefactors. Work continues to raise funds for its locally designed purpose-built facility, located off the Harquail Bypass.

Revision of Cultural legislation

The Ministry will vigorously pursue the revision of cultural legislation, particularly, the Abandoned Wreck Law, to provide better protection for Cayman's cultural and heritage assets.

Work will also begin on developing a law to legally constitute the National Archive and clearly define its functions.

MINISTRY OF COMMUNITY SERVICES, WOMEN'S AFFAIRS, YOUTH AND SPORTS

COMMUNITY SERVICES

It has been evident in the Caribbean Islands that as an economy grows social problems also increase. In Cayman, the enormous economic expansion has changed the society and the way people live. Change has been so rapid that not everyone or every district has adequately adjusted. In line with the government's Broad Outcome 2: a healthy and socially protected population, the Ministry of Community Services is targeting vulnerable children, adults, families, older persons and communities. This requires a coordinated partnership with the private sector and various agencies that are able and willing to help the Government achieve its goal.

SOCIAL SERVICES

In 2003, the restructuring of the Social Service Department will continue, with the youth residential services being moved under the new Children and Youth Services Foundation, set up in 2002, when the Government decided not to renew the contract with the Marine Institute.

Chaired by Mr Richard Arch, the Foundation will be responsible for the Bonaventure Home (formerly the Marine Institute), the Frances Bodden Children Home, the Hope Centre (formerly the Boys Home on Middle Road) and the Place of Safety.

As part of the restructuring process Social Services will be split between financial assistance and social services. The Community Development unit will be moved to the Department of Youth and Sport to ensure better teamwork. The Joyce Hilton Centre will remain under the Community Development Unit but will become a Family and Parenting Centre.

After much delay a revised Children's Law will be presented to the Legislative Assembly during the first half of 2003. This will replace the 1997 law, which proved administratively cumbersome. The review of the current Adoption Law will also be finalised. These legislative advances will allow Social Services to concentrate more clearly on children's services, the goal always being to solve the problem in a way that allows the child to remain with the parent(s) where possible.

With the introduction of various alternatives to sentencing, the work of the Probation Unit has trebled since its inception. The Probation Supervisor and Prison Director are jointly reviewing the Parole process at the request of the Honourable Minister for Community Services, Women's Affairs, Youth & Sports and myself.

PRISON SERVICES

Following a year of increasing stability and confidence, 2003 will see the completion of the first phase of the major development plan for the Prison Service.

The construction of the new enhanced accommodation allows conversion of the former female cellblock into a Young Offender wing. This includes a discrete Secure Juvenile Unit (Chapter House) with a capacity of 14 and its own classroom, association and sports area. Additional funds have been provided for specially selected and trained staff, including teacher/counsellors, to provide the education and activity.

The Prison Service's emphasis will be on positive regime development based on individual sentence plans. Successes in reducing positive drug tests will be reinforced through extension of drug counselling and increased opportunities for prisoners to train for employment on release.

THE NATIONAL DRUG COUNCIL

The NDC, in partnership with its many stakeholders, remains a vital agency in the Government's fight against substance abuse.

CANAAN LAND

The Canaan Land Home resident "student" programme is a one-year programme for men, seventeen years and older, who have "life dominating problems".

YOUTH and SPORTS

The Ministry will continue to work with the various youth, community and sporting organizations that provide pro-social activities, role models, youth development and after-school programmes. Additionally, partial scholarships to young people engaged in sports or interested in a sports career will be provided. In a public/private partnership, the Ministry will assist in provision of parks in the districts of East End and George Town. Work will also continue on the Hutland Park, and the Frank Sound Park will be formally opened on the 15th March.

WOMEN'S AFFAIRS

In 2003, the Ministry will present the final version of the National Policy on Gender Equity and Equality to Executive Council and the Legislative Assembly and develop an implementation plan for this.

Having purchased the Long Celia Memorial House, the Ministry will enter into a contract with the Board of Directors of the Cayman Islands Crisis Centre (CICC) to run a temporary shelter programme for battered women and their children. With the Ministry providing an annual grant and leasing the property on a peppercorn-lease, the Centre will be opened tomorrow to victims of domestic abuse.

WOMEN'S RESOURCE CENTRE

Following the addition of a counsellor to its staff, the services and programming of the Women's Resource Centre (WRC) will be greatly enhanced this year. The Centre will continue to work with the Royal Cayman Islands Police (RCIP)'s Family Support Unit, Department of Social Services, other agencies and individuals to provide support and advocacy for its clients. In addition, it will provide outreach-counselling services to clients of the new Cayman Islands Crisis Centre.

THE SUNRISE CENTRE

The Sunrise Adult Training Centre's focus on training and support for Adults with Disabilities throughout the Cayman Islands will be pursued with renewed enthusiasm in 2003. The increasing need in the community for residential options for the Adults themselves and support for families dealing with long term stresses make it imperative that new and more accessible facilities are made available in the near future.

EX-SERVICEMEN AND SEAMEN BENEFITS

The Ministry will continue to provide Ex-servicemen and Seamen Ex-Gratia benefits. The Government revised the criteria in 2002, in order for seamen or their surviving spouses with a total household income of $1,500 and below to be eligible for benefits.

WATER AUTHORITY

Piped Water Supply Infrastructure

The Authority will continue extending the water distribution system throughout the eastern districts in Grand Cayman and will review the feasibility of extending the Cayman Brac system up to the Faith Hospital.

In mid-2003, after completion of the work in East End to the Castaway's Cove Development, the extension of the water distribution system from Frank Sound to North Side will commence.

Grand Cayman Wastewater Infrastructure

With the expected completion in October 2004 of the first phase of the Grand Cayman Wastewater Treatment Works, the Authority will be well positioned to meet the island's needs for wastewater treatment over the next 15-20 years. The Authority's plans include extending public sewerage to areas such as Canal Point, Snug Harbour and the northern part of West Bay Road. These areas are highly developed and in close proximity to Seven-Mile Beach; public sewerage will alleviate the environmental impact of on-site wastewater treatment. The Authority will commence the study to provide sewerage infrastructure into George Town in early 2004.

HOUSING

Various studies have identified the lack of affordable housing as a contributory factor to social breakdown. In 2003, the Ministry will continue its Affordable Housing Initiative; phase one involving construction of two hundred homes in a number of communities. Additionally, the Government will establish a framework of housing entities that will, in partnership with Private Sector financial and construction institutions and companies, provide a continuum of housing tenure options. These will range from rental (assisted or otherwise) tenancy to outright purchase and will incorporate the Government Guaranteed Home Mortgage Scheme.

Physical infrastructure alone will not build sustainable communities and strong families without the necessary social support systems. Social intervention in the form of skills building and job training will, in conjunction with the Ministry of Education, be provided to ensure that people living in the improved residential areas have the requisite life skills to lead productive fulfilling lives.

MINISTRY OF PLANNING, COMMUNICATIONS, WORKS AND INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY

PETROLEUM STORAGE AND HANDLING

A Caymanian took up post as Chief Petroleum Inspector (CPI) in January. His main focus is to work with industry and other Government agencies to raise the level of health and safety within the industry. A quantitative risk assessment of the two Jackson Point terminals as well as the Liquefied Petroleum Gas plant is underway and the CPI will work with the consultant to complete this before June 2003.

CARIBBEAN UTILITIES COMPANY

The operational and financial review of Caribbean Utilities Company Ltd. under the auspices of the Auditor General is expected to be completed this month. Government has also established a multi-disciplinary committee to advise on matters relating to CUC's proposal for extension of their exclusive license for another 25 years while moving away from the permitted rate of return provided under the current license.

POSTAL SERVICES

The Post Office will conduct an internal review of its mail processing operations with a view to maximizing efficiency and capitalizing on new business opportunities. Training and development will continue to be a focus, with some staff pursuing local college degree programmes while others participate in local and international training workshops.

On the capital development side, the construction of a new post office in Savannah will be the next priority, in view of the high residential growth rate in that area.

A new service is expected to come on-line during the year -- the payment of CUC bills. Initially, this will be available at post offices in Bodden Town, North Side and East End, given that these districts are the furthest from George Town.

The Post Office expects to release local commemorative stamp issues celebrating the Quincentennial, the 50th Anniversary of the Coronation of Her Majesty The Queen, and the 21st Birthday of His Royal Highness Prince William. Development work on the Philatelic Website is nearing completion and a launch is expected in the near future.

The Post Office will work closely with the Ministry to host the 7th annual Caribbean Postal Union's Conference of Postmasters General and Ministers Responsible for Posts. This is a weeklong event, and many Postal Officials and Government Ministers from the region are expected to attend.

LANDS & SURVEY

The Lands & Survey Department will commission new aerial photography of all three Cayman Islands to allow preparation of a new set of orthorectified images for inclusion in the Land Information System (LIS). This information allows both government and private sector decision-makers to be confident that they can base their decisions on information that they know is as up-to-date and current as possible.

MOSQUITO RESEARCH AND CONTROL UNIT

During 2003 the Mosquito Research and Control Unit (MRCU) will complete and confirm the eradication of the Yellow Fever mosquito from the Cayman Islands, and reduce the threat of a Dengue Fever outbreak. The Department will launch a similar programme to rid the islands of the Asian Tiger mosquito, a primary carrier of both West Nile Virus and Dengue Fever.

During 2003, at the request of the Pan American Health Organization, MRCU will host a series of training seminars on mosquito control strategies for personnel from other Overseas Territories.

PLANNING DEPARTMENT

As the construction industry experiences an economic revival, the Central Planning Authority (CPA) and Development Control Board (DCB) are assuming a more pro-active and comprehensive approach to land use management. The proposed amendments to The Development Plan 1997 should be tabled at the September meeting. Simultaneously, the 1975 Guidelines for Development Control in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman will be replaced by policies and guidelines more reflective of current conditions. As in Grand Cayman, there will be extensive opportunities for public input and participation as the DCB and ad hoc Committee for Sustainable Development in Cayman Brac work on these important documents.

The Planning Department will recruit three new building inspectors including one for the Sister Islands.

ENVIRONMENTAL HEALTH

The Department of Environmental Health (DEH) will continue to facilitate the process for the selection of the most appropriate solid waste collection, treatment and disposal facility/system for the Cayman Islands.

On Cayman Brac, the new landfill site on the Bluff will be further prepared and developed to allow for early closure of the existing landfill site now situated on the south side of the Island as soon as possible.

The department will regularly review methods to more effectively recoup the costs of providing solid waste services on all three Islands.

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT

Roads Division

In view of the continued fiscal constraints, PWD Roads Division will look for innovative and more cost effective techniques for maintaining our road assets. In keeping with FMI, a programmed approach to asset management will be developed. The first step will be to prepare a detailed inventory of all roadways.

The Public Works Roads Division and the Long Range Unit of the Planning Department have recently formed a joint Transportation Planning Unit (TPU), which will shortly embark on a National Roads Plan for Grand Cayman. This will address ground transportation needs for the next 15-20 years, including roads and public transportation.

As part of the traffic improvement programme, an additional eastbound lane will be constructed in 2003 from the new roundabout at the Grand Harbour complex to near the Red Bay Primary School. This is urgently required to relieve traffic congestion in the evening peak hour.

Another significant traffic improvement project, the construction of a short connector road between Goring Avenue and Elgin Avenue in central George Town, is underway. This will provide an alternate route for traffic entering and exiting the Central Business District, and is particularly essential should plans proceed for pedestrianisation of the roads along the waterfront.

Other traffic projects for 2003 are improvements to the intersection of Hirst Road and Shamrock Road in Savannah and the widening and upgrading of McField Lane in George Town.

In the development roads programme, phased work will continue on the Anton Bodden Road (formerly known as the Bodden Town Relief Road) to provide an alternate route particularly for heavy vehicles travelling through central Bodden Town. It is hoped that by the end of 2003 the base of the road will be complete and a temporary riding surface installed.

Work will commence from the Walkers Road end, on phase 2 of the Linford Pierson Highway, a one-mile stretch from Bobby Thompson Way to Walkers Rd.

Planning and gazetting of the extension of the Esterley Tibbetts Highway through the Hyatt area will continue, as well as discussions with the Britannia/Hyatt group. It is hoped that by the end of 2003 the alternative for the road through that area will be selected, and the corridor planned and gazetted, so that construction can commence in early 2004. This extension is urgently needed, as growth in traffic volumes since 1998 has resulted in traffic congestion on the southern end of West Bay Road returning to the unacceptable pre-1997 levels.

Drainage improvement works will continue with the installation of new drainage wells in low-lying areas prone to flooding. The public has helped identify these areas and Public Works encourage them to continue to do so.

Capital Building Works:

The major capital building projects, in the first half of 2003 are:

- The new government office complex, which is to be sited, near the existing Government Administration Building. This comprises some 170,000 square feet of office accommodation and a multi-storey car park. Pre-qualification of contractors for this project is underway, to be followed by finalization of tender documents and invitation to tender.
- The new Prospect Primary School. Working drawings are complete and it is intended to invite tenders in the first half of the year.
- The proposed new secondary school in the Frank Sound area. The architectural brief will be finalized and working drawings progressed.

TELECOMMUNICATIONS OFFICE

In keeping with its responsibility for providing technical support for the various telecommunication systems of the emergency services and most other Government agencies, the Office of Telecommunications (OFTEL) has embarked on a major project to upgrade the 13-year-old radio communication system. This will provide the emergency services with enhanced in-building radio coverage and digital communication security without the need to replace their existing radio equipment.

New transmission sites will be established in George Town, East End, Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, all integrated with the primary tower site at Northward. These additional sites will also act as back-up facilities should an outage occur at the primary site.

COMPUTER SERVICES

The spotlight continues to be on advancement of Electronic Government or E-Government, thereby demonstrating the Government's commitment to promoting national E-business. The Department will also provide professional technical and business support services for implementation of two new modules of the Government Financial System (IRIS), Project Accounting and Order Management.

The project to ensure a high level of recovery for Government's most important IT data and systems, thus ensuring business continuity from most forms of natural and manmade disasters, is scheduled for completion by the end of 2003.

Provision of more cost effective, reliable, secure and high-speed network data communication services to Government offices in most outlying districts is expected to be completed by May 2004. This will enable entities like the Agriculture Department, Primary schools and Her Majesty's Prison to achieve some of the technology-driven productivity gains being realized by departments located in central George Town on the main government network.

INFORMATION & COMMUNICATION TECHNOLOGY AUTHORITY

The liberalization of telecommunications and the development of e-Business and Information and Communications Technology (ICT) remain a top priority for the Government. It is expected that additional telecommunications licences will be issued shortly by the ICT Authority, which should be fully operational when it moves soon into its new offices in Alissta Towers. Full competition should be in place by mid 2004. The ICT Authority is now administering the .ky Internet domain, and over the next six months will develop new policy guidelines for it, including possible introduction of registration fees to help defray the costs of running it. The radio-licensing regime will be simplified and streamlined, and a review of the current fee structure completed.

Government – in conjunction with the private sector – will implement a marketing campaign to promote the Cayman Islands as an offshore e-Business Centre with the aim of encouraging existing businesses to take advantage of the opportunities presented by e-business, and attracting new e-businesses to the Islands. An initiative will be launched to identify and develop niche e-business markets, possibly in the area of intellectual property rights. This could lead to proposals to amend our trade mark and copyright legislation. Consultation will commence on the need for, and content of, a stand-alone Data Protection Law.

MINISTRY OF HEALTH SERVICES, DISTRICT ADMINISTRATION AND AGRICULTURE

The Ministry will enhance its capability to provide strategic policy advice to the Minister and strengthen its monitoring and regulatory functions.

A Health Commission will be established to advise the Ministry on health policy matters as well as to certify and inspect health care facilities. The establishment of four councils will provide for registration and regulation of members of the health care professions.

The National Strategic Plan for Health will be updated during 2003.

The Chief Officer will continue to ensure staff are trained and equipped to meet the requirements of the Public Management and Finance Law, 2001.

It is expected that the revision of the Health Insurance, Pharmacy, Mental Health and Tobacco Products and Intoxicating Liquor Advertising Laws will be completed and submitted to the Legislative Assembly.

With support from Caribbean Epidemiology Centre, in Trinidad, the Cayman Islands will develop a National Strategic Plan for HIV/AIDS. The Caribbean AIDS Telecommunications Information Network will be established in the Public Health Department to enhance information dissemination. These projects are funded by the Department for International Development of the United Kingdom.

HEALTH SERVICES AUTHORITY

The Cayman Islands Health Services Authority (HSA) in partnership with the Government is committed to providing a high quality, cost effective health care service.

Having announced and implemented most of the necessary cost-cutting measures the Authority has expanded its focus and is now developing what it calls the 'second pillar' in its formula for success, viz. 'delivering quality health-care to its customers'.

A vibrant Public Relations Programme will be implemented with emphasis on Customer Service. Training has already started and there are changes slated for the patient relations department. I am glad to report that patients are now experiencing shorter waiting times.

A new computer system expected to be operational later this year at the Cayman Islands Hospital will enhance the Authority's ability to offer quality and efficient healthcare services.

The HSA intends where it is feasible and demand exists, to expand the scope of services it currently offers to the public.

The HSA will be implementing a Nurse Training Programme. This will help the Authority achieve the goal of having a cross-trained multi-skilled staff. This should result in a more efficient, responsive organization.

Under the new six-department structure (Medical, Surgical, Accident & Emergency, General Practice, Specialist Clinic and Support Services) the HSA Board has devolved more responsibility and decision-making authority to those employees who often have direct contact with customers. This type of structure is more inclusive, promotes teamwork and is reflective of a customer driven organization.

The HSA Board through the support of its senior management team and the hard work of its entire staff has begun to realize the fruits of its hard labour. Although much work remains to be done, the early signs are very encouraging.

Some contributing factors are:

1. An aggressive cost-cutting and containment restructuring exercise;
2. A Fees Law more reflective of the costs of providing the relevant services;
3. The adoption of more efficient work practices;
4. An improved collections process;
5. A supportive Government through the Ministry of Health Services.

DISTRICT ADMINISTRATION

Cayman Brac and Little Cayman Administration will continue to work with the recently established Brac Informatics Centre to encourage further expansion of e-business and e-commerce in Cayman Brac.

Plans are in place to further develop and market the natural environment and attractions of the Sister Islands.

Disaster preparedness and response plans will be revised in light of experience gained from the 2002 storms.

The first ever Agricultural Show on Cayman Brac was held last weekend and was a great success.

AGRICULTURE

The Department of Agriculture (DOA) will continue to promote economic prosperity via efficient, modern and sustainable agricultural production. Attention will be given to activities that take account of social, economic and environmental concerns and provide increased quantities of safe local food, better incomes for producers, and the enhancement and protection of the Islands' natural environment.

Following the completion of studies, consultations and final deliberations as to the establishment of a Pesticide Regulatory Authority, a new Pesticide Bill with its regulations will be presented in the Legislative Assembly. This should greatly enhance the health protection of persons, plants and animals and conservation of the natural environment.

Plans will be developed to reorganize and restructure agricultural services in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and to effect human resource enhancements appropriate to full and timely delivery of such services.

The department will support the efforts of the Quincentennial Committee (QC) particularly by providing technical expertise to raise the level of this year's agricultural show to a standard befitting the 500-year celebrations.

During 2003, with assistance from the Public Works Department, construction will start of an abattoir on Grand Cayman.

RADIO CAYMAN

Work will continue on empowering Radio Cayman staff through training and incentives, to enhance its ability to compete with other stations. To this end it is planned to convert Radio Cayman into a Statutory Authority.

CIVIL AVIATION AUTHORITY

The Civil Aviation Authority (CAA) has received the final report for the Master Plan Study undertaken last year by United Kingdom aviation consultants Jacobbs GIBB, which highlights required development to meet sustainable operational needs for the next 10-15 years. Among its recommendations, the study identified development expansion of the main passenger terminal at Owen Roberts International Airport and the relocation and upgrade of the General Aviation Terminal facilities in Grand Cayman as the first priorities.

Development will be phased over the next 10 - 15 years to address the needs of the aviation industry. The Civil Aviation Authority will in the next 12 months address this phased development plan and make provisions for the implementation of the recommendations.

In keeping with international requirements and recent developments in the United Kingdom Government regarding the regulation of aviation in the Overseas Territories, the structure for management of aviation throughout the Cayman Islands will be realized in two separate autonomous bodies/organizations. The Civil Aviation Authority will retain regulatory oversight functions to ensure compliance with international standards for the safety of aviation, and an Airport Authority will be established with responsibility for operating the airports throughout the three islands.

MINISTRY OF TOURISM, ENVIRONMENT, DEVELOPMENT AND COMMERCE

In 2003 the Ministry of Tourism, Environment, Development and Commerce will principally focus on:

- enabling the managed growth of the tourism industry;
- providing a solid framework for the preservation of the environment;
- The Quincentennial celebrations; and
- pursuing economic sustainability by encouraging inward investment via the Investment Bureau and related activity.

The Ministry is working with the Department of Tourism and industry stakeholders to investigate the feasibility and most desirable structure for establishment of a Tourism Authority. If this appears both beneficial and desirable for the people and economy of the Islands, it will proceed on a basis which correlates decision making to financial vesting. As the government pursues greater sharing of the policy and administrative functions of tourism, it will expect greater sharing in the financial obligations of promoting the Cayman Islands by privately owned properties and businesses which directly benefit from these promotional efforts.

The Ministry will also work closely with the Department of Tourism and other relevant parties to implement the recommendations of the new draft Tourism Management Policy 'Focus on the Future' which provides a five-year plan to address the major challenges facing this crucial sector of the economy. The draft policy will be tabled during this meeting. Following this, the Ministry will announce the membership of the Committee charged with overseeing implementation of the major recommendations contained in the Tourism Management Policy.

In the area of environmental protection, the Ministry will continue to pursue legislative remedies and safeguards to protect the Islands' fragile ecosystem, and in keeping with existing international treaties and commitments. The Ministry will pursue as a priority the acquisition of land identified to establish the Barkers National Park.

DEPARTMENT OF TOURISM

The tourism industry contributes significantly to the economy of the Cayman Islands, employing approximately seven thousand Caymanian and expatriate workers.

The industry continues to face some unique challenges. The focus in 2003 will be on establishing a tourism public sector framework based on the new tourism management policy. This will assist the Government to more effectively manage and market the destination for the long-term sustainability of Cayman Islands tourism.

The new tourism management policy has identified the following nine objectives for tourism development in the coming years, as the building blocks for the revitalization of the Cayman Islands tourism product:

- provide a high quality product for the visitor;
- present a distinctive Caymanian experience;
- adopt a sustainable approach to tourism development;
- protect and enhance the marine resource;
- attract a more discerning and higher spending visitor;
- develop a highly skilled Caymanian tourism workforce;
- develop eco-tourism on the Sister Islands;
- organize tourism in the Cayman Islands more effectively; and
- research and monitor tourism more effectively.

The implementation of the Tourism Policy is only one step towards the recovery of tourism in the Cayman Islands, but it requires the coming together of all stakeholders – the people of the Cayman Islands, the tourism industry, Cayman Airways and the Department and Ministry of Tourism. As was noted at the annual Tourism Conference in November, "Tourism is Everyone's Business."

The Department will also work on other key objectives such as developing a Cruise Conversion Programme, to encourage cruise ship visitors to return to the Cayman Islands. This will be designed to take advantage of a golden opportunity – the thousands of cruise ship guests who arrive at our shores monthly – and to convince an elite portion of them to return to the Cayman Islands as stay-over visitors.

THE CAYMAN ISLANDS INVESTMENT BUREAU

The Cayman Islands Investment Bureau is the platform from which Cayman will re-acquaint the international business community with the many benefits of doing business in Cayman while providing a consolidated office to respond to emerging trends and needs of potential investors. The Cayman Islands Investment Bureau Offices in London and New York are already operational and the Grand Cayman Office will open in the second quarter of this year.

In December 2002 the London based "Friends of Cayman" group was formed, comprising experienced individuals with knowledge of Cayman. The group will support and encourage commercial development in the Islands and help project them as an attractive and profitable location for business and investment. A similar group will be established in New York and will complement the efforts of the New York Bureau.

The executive arm of the Investment Bureau, the Growth Management Board, comprises representatives of Cayman's key industries and the government Departments such as Immigration, Environment, Planning and Customs, which facilitate the establishment of businesses.

The Government is pleased to be able to offer this "one stop shop" service to all potential investors in the Cayman Islands. The primary aim of the Bureau is to encourage and facilitate the creation of business in the three islands while ensuring that potential investors are given a first-rate experience when trying to relocate or expand international business to the Cayman Islands.

The Bureau's key areas of services are:

1. To provide a direct link and contact base between the potential investor and the agencies which support the development of business interests in the Cayman Islands;
2. To act as an informed source of feedback and resource for the potential investor in securing the necessary standards of operation, which the first-class professional services centres of the islands can provide; and

3. To act as a central contact point for all information related to developmental investment in the Cayman Islands.

The Bureau offices are also the central point for the development of a centralized brand for the Cayman Islands and its commercial products. This re-branding exercise which is underway will revitalize the images of our twin pillar industries of tourism and financial services while also paving the way for newer, emerging sectors such as e-business.

VEHICLE LICENSING AND TRANSPORT UNIT

In 2003, the Vehicle Licensing and Transport Unit will be proactive in seeking to collect outstanding revenue. This will include holding meetings with persons and companies whose licence fees are outstanding. Staff will be redeployed, to facilitate this objective.

Vehicle Licensing will continue to pursue decentralization of services in Grand Cayman, as has been done by the initial establishment of a satellite office in West Bay. Now that the administrative offices of the Unit have been successfully relocated to Walkers Road resulting in less congestion at the central George Town location, the unit will pursue plans to move the inspection office out of central George Town as well.

The Unit's other plans for 2003 include development of certain aspects of the Traffic Law such as:

- Provision of set times for moving Backhoes and other heavy equipment along major roads;
- Provision of regulations for the better enforcement of Revenue Collection;
- On-line services with appropriate legislation; and
- Further development of the Public Transport System and Laws.

DEPARTMENT OF ENVIRONMENT

The Department of Environment will continue to assist the Ministry in developing and implementing policies and legislation that afford protection to the environment, with particular reference to the recently prepared legislation to update the local law giving effect to the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Flora and Fauna (CITES) and the proposed new National Conservation Law.

In addition, the department will assist with implementation of the recommendations in the CH2M Hill Aggregate Study. In the coming year the Department will also complete project definition and design for a Wetlab facility and visiting scientist accommodation on Grand Cayman and construction of a building on Little Cayman to facilitate an office, workshop and storage facility for oil spill equipment.

FIRE SERVICE DEPARTMENT

During 2003, in order to maintain the level of competence and efficiency required to meet our International obligations, in particular the Airport Rescue and Firefighting section, seven officers will attend special courses for re-certification at a recognized institution in the UK. Managerial training will also be conducted locally for administrative staff and senior officers. The staff in Little Cayman and Cayman Brac will be brought to Grand Cayman for their yearly refresher training.

The Civil Aviation Authority has ordered a new airport crash tender for Cayman Brac to be delivered in late 2003 to early 2004.

The Department will also continue to conduct annual fire inspections of licensed tourist accommodations, premises with liquor licenses and new buildings as a requirement of certificates of occupancy. Nightclubs and other premises known for large concentrations of people will be monitored closely by the Department for overcrowding and other aspects of fire code compliance.

CAYMAN AIRWAYS LTD

The past year has been very difficult for the airline industry. No significant improvements are expected in 2003. Two major US carriers, United Airlines and US Air, are currently operating under bankruptcy protection.

The primary corporate objective for the National Carrier in 2003 is to improve revenue per flight. The average occupancy for Cayman Airways in 2002 was 42 percent. In 2003, the company's goal is to increase this load factor to 50 percent. This objective will be pursued through:

- Aggressive Price Discounting, particularly during off-peak travel times and on specific flights.
- Maximizing Synergies in cooperation with our local tourism industry partners and the Department of Tourism in programmes such as H2GO that will attract more visitors to the Islands. As our financial industry continues to face unprecedented challenges, more reliance will be placed on our tourism industry to support the same level of economic activity that we currently enjoy.

It is therefore imperative that a stronger and more integrated working relationship be established between Cayman Airways and the Department of Tourism. Cayman Airways must play a more significant role in building tourism for the Cayman Islands, as it did when it was first conceived.

- Schedule Improvements – the airline is decreasing flights to destinations where demand is low, while expanding frequency to lucrative markets such as Jamaica, including the addition of Montego Bay and Havana where demand has increased. In April, the National Carrier will expand service to include Fort Lauderdale, Florida. Following a thorough analysis, this route will lower our operating costs and provide our customers with better connections throughout North America.
- Improve Customer Relations – the airline has developed a Customer Service Commitment programme that will enable all employees to share the responsibility to meet these commitments and, wherever possible, exceed our customers' expectations. The company's goal is to become the number one choice when travelling to and from the Cayman Islands.

The Secondary objective is to reduce the cost of providing service. The key priority is to improve productivity throughout the organization. This will be accomplished by:

- Upgrading technology;
- Reviewing operations and identifying further savings;
- Working with suppliers to reduce costs; and
- Continuing to monitor expenditure across all departments.

THE CAYMAN ISLANDS DEVELOPMENT BANK

Following its first year of operations, the Cayman Islands Development Bank is better poised as an independent player in the financial sector to respond to the developmental needs of Caymanians by offering creative and relevant financial products.

In 2003, the Bank will continue to implement the 3-year rollover strategic plan that it formulated in 2002, by adhering to its overriding goal of becoming prudently managed and self-sustaining within the medium term.

In the 2nd quarter of this year, the Bank will launch its latest initiative entitled "Agri-Business Week" to better promote the advancement of the agricultural sector.

By the 3rd quarter, the Bank aims to become fully automated so that it will be readily able to deliver quality computerized service to its clients.

Throughout 2003, the CIDB will maintain its focus on three key areas: entrepreneurial business projects; low-to-lower middle income mortgages; and credit facilities for human resource development.

TOURISM ATTRACTIONS BOARD

In 2003, Pedro St James National Historic Site is progressing with the addition of historic elements including a "HOW CAYMAN WAS" exhibit, covering the 1930s to 1960s period, and a representative Cayman stamp collection. Both of these displays will be externally funded. In conjunction with the National Gallery, the Watler House will be renovated to create an exhibition space for art. Increasing revenue from facility and site rentals is a priority for 2003.

The Botanic Park has just presented an expanded Orchid Show, in conjunction with the Quincentennial Office. With irrigation as a major expense, there are continued efforts to bring piped water to the site.

Pirates Week will feature an enhanced Landing Pageant scenario and the possibility of a laser light show on the first weekend of the Festival.

CAYMAN TURTLE FARM LTD.

Master Redevelopment Plan

The Cayman Turtle Farm will continue to implement the Master Redevelopment Plan, commissioned by the Board of Directors after the devastating effects of Hurricane Michelle in 2001, for relocation of the farm to the landside and creation of additional attractions. The new breeding pond now housing the farm's breeding turtle population has already been completed.

The Turtle Farm intends to complete the relocation of the entire farm operation including visitor's centre, retail operation, parking facilities, display tanks, education centre, hatchery and labs. The commercial stocking tanks, hatchling tanks, processing plant, jewellery manufacturing plant and research accommodation will also be constructed during this phase.

The Government and the Board of Directors are seeking private sector participation in the other elements that will complete this unique tourism and conservation facility. Among the major components of this section of development will be the aquarium, zero entry pool complete with lazy river, and a restaurant.

The Cayman Turtle Farm will commemorate its 35th Anniversary with special events to complement the Quincentennial celebrations.

PORT AUTHORITY OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS

In the past year there were numerous significant changes for the Port Authority. With the number of cruise ship passengers reaching record levels, it was decided in the interest of safety, to separate the cargo and cruise operations. Therefore, in September 2002, daytime cargo operations were discontinued in favour of safer night-time operations at the dock.

Port statistics indicate that cargo volumes in 2002 totalling approximately 189,000 tons were roughly on par with the cargo volumes recorded in 2001. With the continued soft economy in 2003, the Authority forecasts cargo tonnage to remain around the same level.

As the number of cruise ship passengers stabilises it is planned to enhance the facilities by renovating the North and South Terminals, and constructing a third terminal – the Fort George Cruise Terminal, to the North of the existing dock. Construction of this is expected to begin in mid-2003. The cargo finger pier damaged by heavy seas in 1998 will be repaired and upgraded during the first quarter of 2003.

Honourable Speaker, Honourable Members, As I conclude my first Throne Speech, I wish to thank the many people who played a part in preparing it.

As you now embark on the First Meeting of the Quincentennial Session of the Legislative Assembly, I pray that Almighty God will bless and guide your deliberations. May He always in His wisdom continue to watch, protect and prosper these beautiful Islands and everyone who lives in them.

[The Throne Speech was laid on the Table]

Departure of His Excellency the Governor

[His Excellency the Governor, preceded by the Serjeant-at-Arms and the Honourable Speaker, followed by Mrs. Smith, the Aide-de-Camp, the Hon Chief Justice, Mrs. Sanderson, Kamaal Connolly, and the Minister depart from the Chamber.]

The Clerk: We would ask invited guests and members of the public to please remain in their seats at this time. Please be seated.

SPEAKER'S PROCESSION

[The Honourable Speaker returns to the Chamber.]

Proceedings resumed at 11.41 am

The Speaker: Please be seated. The House is now resumed. I now recognise the Honourable Leader of Government Business to move the appropriate Motion.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

Motion for the deferral of debate on the Throne Speech

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I beg to move:

“BE IT RESOLVED that this Honourable Legislative Assembly records its grateful thanks to His Excellency The Governor, for the address delivered at this meeting.

“BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that debate on the address delivered by His Excellency The Governor, be deferred until Wednesday, 12 March 2003”.

The Speaker: The question that this Honourable Legislative Assembly records its gratitude to His Excellency The Governor for the address delivered here this morning and that the debate on the address will be deferred until Wednesday, 12 March 2003. All those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed: That the Honourable Legislative Assembly records its grateful thanks to His Excellency the Governor for the Address delivered at the meeting and further that the debate on the Address delivered by His Excellency the Governor be deferred until Wednesday, 12 March 2003.

The Speaker: I again recognise the Leader of Government Business.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, before I move the adjournment of this Honourable House, allow me to say, we consider today an auspicious and historical day for Cayman Brac and the Cayman Islands.

This year is the anniversary of these Islands. 500 years of our history, 500 years since that first sighting of these Islands.

We thank Almighty God for the great things that he has done for us down through the ages. We have been a blessed people; we have been a fortunate people. We thank our forefathers for their vision and hard work to bring us from the Islands that time forgot to a modern, thriving, international business centre, the fifth largest in the world.

Many people have worked diligently over the past thirty-seven years to build our financial industry. It is of paramount importance today for us on this watch at this time to play our role to be the gatekeepers and to keep the predators at bay. We will not fail in doing our duty.

The people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman have most certainly been a partner in the development of these Cayman Islands. They have Cayman Brac and we as a Government must now do our part to ensure that Cayman Brac continues to prosper, for school children to graduate and find jobs here at home, for college graduates to come back and help to build here for the future here at home in Cayman Brac and for businesses here in Cayman Brac to be viable and to prosper. This is a main part of the task before us and we must all work diligently together to achieve this for our people.

Madam Speaker, we live in a world of uncertainty this is a time when we must be united as Caymanians when every man should be at his post, let us not fail the trust placed in us by our people.

Many people have worked hard to make today a success and we certainly want to thank District Administrator Mr. Kenny Ryan and all his staff for the work they have done in preparing for this day and certainly, Madam Speaker, we want to express our sincere gratitude to you and to the staff of this Honourable House for preparing for this auspicious and memorable occasion.

Before I move the adjournment I wish to invite all Honourable Members of this House to the reopening of the Cayman Brac Dock at 3 pm today and we extend the invitation to all members of the public also and at the same time we extend the same invitation to all Members and the public to the Government reception tonight at 6.30 at the Brac Reef.

Madam Speaker, I move that this Honourable House do adjourn until Wednesday, 12 March.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker: Thank you Honourable Leader. Before putting the question I would recognise the Leader of the Opposition, if he wishes to make brief comments in this regard. Thank you.

I would from the Chair wish to express my sincere gratitude firstly to all Honourable Ministers and Members of Government and to extend on behalf of the Legislative Assembly our sincere thanks to the listening public, the press and especially the Public Works Department who worked so diligently during the past few days to ensure that we had every comfort that they could afford here this morning. I wish also to thank Mr. Kenny Ryan the District Commissioner and his dedicated staff also for their auxiliary assistance.

We wish from the Chair to thank the Cayman Islands Royal Police for the splendid display they put on this morning again adding to the ambiance to the historical occasion here. It would be remiss of me not to thank, of course, the staff of the Legislative Assembly under the capable leadership of Madam Clerk and to also welcome our newly appointed Serjeant-at-Arms, Mr. Connolly, to the Cayman Brac jurisdiction and we hope that you had a very pleasant baptism. Thank you, Sir.

Indeed this is a historic day for Cayman Brac and on behalf of my constituents and my colleague we would wish in return to express our sincere gratitude and appreciation to all Honourable Members of this House and indeed to His Excellency the Governor and Mrs. Dinwiddy all of whom played a very pivotal part in ensuring that this day came off; one which we can long be appreciative of and one which we can long remember.

With those brief remarks I would also just like to do a bit of housekeeping and remind members of the public that there is a Speaker's reception which follows immediately thereafter and all are welcomed. I would encourage Members of Government and Opposition before going to our next engagement to share some time with the public and get to know your customer as it were, on the Brac sense and in the financial ambiance in which we now operate. I also wish to especially thank the Official Members of Government here today and I am going to do something out of protocol but I am known for that.

I am going to ask the Honourable First, Second and Third Official Members to stand because they are not allowed to get involved with politics and none of these gentlemen would not come up to you and introduce themselves but we depend on them very heavily in Cayman.

Thank you gentlemen.

[Applause]

The Speaker: You may be seated. Lastly, I wish to thank the pastor who graciously graced our presence this morning with the invocation of the presence of the Holy Spirit, and with that I now put the question that this Honourable be now adjourned until Wednesday, 12 March 2003 at 10.00 am. All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

At 11.50 am the House stood adjourned until Wednesday 12 March 2003 at 10.00 am.

OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT
WEDNESDAY
12 MARCH 2003
10.10 AM
Second Sitting

The Speaker: I now invite the Member for North Side to grace us with prayers.

[The Hon. Speaker called upon the Elected Member for North Side to read the Prayer. The Member indicated that the Prayer was not available to her. Honourable Third Official Member responsible for the Portfolio of Finance and Economics said prayers.]

PRAYERS

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Let us pray.

Eternal God we give you thanks for health and strength. We ask your blessings upon our country. Father God we ask your blessings upon the Members of the Legislative Assembly that are gathered here today. We pray that your Holy Spirit will grant wisdom and Father God guide the proceedings of this Honorable House. Father God we pray for our Governor, we pray for the Ministers and Members of Executive Council, the Members of the Legislative Assembly, the Royal Family, all peoples of the Cayman Islands. We pray Holy Father God that you will grant us wisdom and Father God we give you thanks.

Let us repeat together the Lord's Prayer: Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

Proceedings resumed at 10.13 am

The Speaker: Please be seated.

READING BY THE HONOURABLE
SPEAKER OF MESSAGES
AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

Commonwealth Day Message Partners in Development

The Speaker: "Among my cherished memories of my Jubilee celebrations last year were those connected with the Commonwealth — in particular the visits to Jamaica, New Zealand, Australia and Canada. There was also the undoubted success of the 2002 Commonwealth Games in Manchester — both as a great sporting and Commonwealth occasion, and as a tremendous expression of the host city's community spirit. Launching the Baton Relay from Buckingham Palace on Commonwealth Day last year was one of the many colourful events leading up to the Games.

"A few days before, I had opened the 2002 Commonwealth Heads of Government Meeting in Coolum, Australia. That summit charted a new course for the Commonwealth, confident of the important contribution the association can play as a force for good in the world.

"What we have in common makes the choice of this year's theme for Commonwealth Day, "Partners in Development", so fitting. We are reminded daily that we live in an interdependent world. And yet there exist great global inequalities, with millions living lives of deep poverty and deprivation, which present a great and constant challenge to the notion of commonwealth. Under these conditions, peace is often more difficult to sustain while precious natural resources and the environment are threatened, economic growth and activity may be impeded as well as the benefits of modern technology denied to many.

"Working in partnership is essential if the nations of the earth, whether they be developed or developing, are to build a better, more secure and more sustainable world. Only together can governments and peoples create just, open and democratic societies. And through a sense of partnership and mutual respect we should be able to recognise that we all share a common humanity, regardless of who we are or where we may be from.

"In all this, the Commonwealth has much to offer. It is a unique global grouping, spanning every region of the world and including in its membership countries of all sizes and stages of development. It is an association of peoples as well as governments and, as we particularly celebrated last year, it is a body which cherishes the richness of its diversity. The special role of the Commonwealth in development was spelt out once again in the Coolum Declaration and at the meeting of Commonwealth Finance Ministers in London last September.

"Two thousand and two was for me personally a special year — and it was also an opportunity to recall those elements of my life, notably the Commonwealth, which have been of enduring importance. Appreciating just how far the Commonwealth has developed in the last fifty years is surely a cause for great hope in the future."

Apologies

The Speaker: I have received apologies from the Honourable Second Official Member as well as from the Honourable Minister responsible for Health who is off the Island on official business.

STATEMENTS BY HONOURABLE MINISTERS/MEMBERS OF THE GOVERNMENT

Retirement of the Attorney-General

The Speaker: I now recognise the Honourable Leader of Government Business.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you very much Madam Speaker.

I wish to make the following statement on behalf of the Members of the Executive Council with respect to the retirement of the Attorney General, Mr. David Ballantyne.

Madam Speaker, following a recent meeting of the Executive Council to deal with this issue, His Excellency the Governor made a statement concerning the departure of Mr. Ballantyne which was not agreed to in its entirety by the Executive Council.

The agreement between the Cayman Islands Government and Mr. Ballantyne reads as follows:

“The Cayman Islands Government and the Hon. David Ballantyne mutually agree that the current employment contract of Mr. Ballantyne will be varied whereby he will leave office as Attorney General with effect from 15 March 2003. The Cayman Islands Government has proposed a financial settlement which is acceptable to Mr. Ballantyne.

“The Cayman Islands Government agree to pay to Mr. Ballantyne on or before 15 March 2003 a lump sum payment of CI$295,000 as an agreed entitlement upon the determination of his contract of employment. In addition, Mr. Ballantyne will receive end of contract entitlements regarding passage and freight.

“Once the other terms of this agreement have been fulfilled, it is further agreed that the Cayman Islands Government shall make no claim against Mr. Ballantyne and shall continue to indemnify him (including legal costs) from any claim arising from his official capacity; Mr. Ballantyne shall release the Cayman Islands Government from any further obligation provided for in his contract of employment.”

This latter provision is in accordance with the Civil Service Regulations for public officers.

Madam Speaker, I wish to put on record, that a motion was proposed in the Executive Council meeting which authorised that Mr. Ballantyne would be paid only what we were advised was due to him under his contract of employment which was one month’s salary, substantially less than what he received in the final agreement. Notwithstanding the proposal of this motion in the Executive Council, His Excellency the Governor exercised his veto power, refusing the motion and proposed the settlement which is set out in the agreement and which I made reference to earlier in this statement. I should point out, Madam Speaker, that I had spoken by telephone with Baroness Amos in regards to our proposal to be made in the Executive Council and she indicated that she would not support Mr. Ballantyne being paid any more than he was due under the remaining term of his contract of employment, which is the CI$295,000.

Madam Speaker, despite the proposal of this Motion in the Executive Council, it became apparent during our extensive discussions on this matter with His Excellency the Governor and the Baroness that if we wanted Mr. Ballantyne removed from office we would have to agree to the terms proposed by His Excellency the Governor and supported by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, and so we did, albeit under protest.

I will conclude by saying that unlike His Excellency the Governor, I do not believe that Mr. Ballantyne has shown a high standard of professional integrity nor has he, in my opinion, acted in the best interest of justice in the Cayman Islands.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Madam Clerk.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

Commencement of Debate on the Address delivered by His Excellency the Governor on Friday 7 March 2003

The Speaker: I recognise the Honourable Leader.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, the Government has presented a very comprehensive, ambitious and achievable plan, as presented in the 2003 Throne Speech. The programmes, which were outlined, tackle the myriad of challenges facing our Caymanian community over the next year. As the Leader of the Government, it is my duty and honour to lead the debate and to give an overview of my Government’s plan.

In particular, I would like to address key opportunities and challenges facing our twin sectors of tourism and financial services and to discuss a proposal for an economic plan to be formulated in consideration of the economic outlook for these Islands over a five to 10 year period. I will also address that which makes all of the programmes mentioned in the Throne Speech possible, namely the Government’s new Financial Management System.

Later, when the debate on the Throne Speech concludes, I will give, on behalf of Government, closing remarks, which will include a more detailed response on the individual areas of responsibility within my Ministry.

Before I speak to other matters in the Throne Speech, I believe it is most appropriate to take this opportunity on behalf of Government to acknowledge a considerable achievement, which, I believe, was a highlight of the Throne Speech.

I was very pleased that His Excellency the Governor made the very important announcement in the Throne Speech that Mr. Buel Braggs, RVM, CPM, would be appointed as the Commissioner of Police upon the retirement of Mr. David Thursfield later this year. Madam Speaker, this will be the first time in our history that a Caymanian is being appointed to this very important post. I am proud, as the Leader of Government Business, that this very significant appointment is being made during our watch and I wish to state publicly that we have full confidence in Mr. Braggs and I am sure that he will do us proud. Madam Speaker, I was also pleased to hear His Excellency the Governor announce that two other Caymanians, Assistant Commissioner Rudolph Dixon and Superintendent Anthony Ennis will be promoted to the posts of Deputy Commissioner of Police and Assistant Commissioner of Police respectively, upon Mr. Braggs' appointment as Commissioner of Police.

Madam Speaker, having three Caymanians appointed to the three top posts in the Royal Cayman Islands Police Service is certainly a very proud and historic occasion for our country and for this Government. It is an indication, Madam Speaker, that our country is maturing and a mature country requires mature thinking and modern instruments of Government such as a workable constitution. On behalf of my Government, I wish to confirm our support for these three senior officers and the Royal Cayman Islands Police Service and would likewise encourage the country to support them in their efforts in ensuring that the Cayman Islands remain a country of safety, security and serenity in which our main industries of tourism and financial services can flourish.

Now let me begin by focusing on some key programmes underway for the tourism industry.

Tourism Industry

The Ministry and the Department of Tourism are focused on developing sustainable tourism initiatives. As recently confirmed in the Tourism Management Policy, the tourism industry contributes significantly to the economy of the Cayman Islands: 30% of the workforce, or approximately 7,000 persons, are employed in the tourism industry. In 2001, this represented CI$ 475 million or CI$12,000 per resident.

In order to achieve more optimal management of this industry, the Ministry and Department of Tourism are working with industry stakeholders to investigate the feasibility of transitioning the Department of Tourism to a statutory authority.

To this end, Ernst & Young have completed Phase I of the 'due diligence' required. Some 500 surveys were sent to local stakeholders. Also, Ernst & Young conducted research on how similar authorities were established in Barbados, Bahamas, Singapore, Hawaii, Malta and Jersey. In the next stage, Phase II, the structure and functionality of the organization will be defined. Among the issues which will be addressed are the identification of revenue streams; measurements of success; level of public and private sector contributions for funding, policy making and administration; and legislative review, drafting and ratification.

The Tourism Management Policy has been approved by Executive Council and is due to be tabled in this Honourable House very shortly. Once approved, committees will be appointed to oversee the implementation of the policy. In addition to an overall steering committee, committees will be established on a range of issues including the environment and product and infrastructure enhancement. Committees will be tasked with priority action items, many of which are long-term objectives. In total, some 70 Action Points have been identified. Committees will have to identify adequate staffing and funding for the implementation of action items. However, I do hope, Madam Speaker that the private sector will be prepared to lend their support to the Committees. In fact, I have already talked to the Chamber of Commerce about membership.

Another important programme under development at the Department of Tourism, is the "Welcome Back" cruise conversion programme. Working closely with its industry partners, the Department of Tourism is developing an innovative loyalty program aimed at giving cruise ship passengers a reason to return to the Cayman Islands as a land-based stay over guest.

This programme is due to begin testing during the second quarter of this year, with in-cabin distribution by Carnival Cruise Lines ships that call on Grand Cayman. If only one to two per cent of the estimated 2.1 million cruise guests visiting the Cayman Islands in 2003 return as stay over guests, incremental revenue to the Islands could exceed $25 million dollars.

To stand out, the "Welcome Back" program will test two different pieces: a credit card sized CD ROM and a plastic, credit card style card. Both will have an image of the Cayman Islands on the front, including the words "Welcome Back", and instructions on how to access a special Uniform Resource Locator (URL).

The CD ROM will provide a multi-media presentation on the Cayman Islands and will allow guests to enter a free vacation sweepstake, and to access special vacation packages available exclusively for cruise guests.

The plastic card will direct cruise guests to a special URL to enter a sweepstake and access cruise only vacation specials. These specials will be available for cruise guests to book direct.

Methods of tracking the success of the programme will be integrated into the information capture systems. Dynamic offers will be listed on the website. The program will be supported with press releases, advertising in past guest magazines and on-board the vessels themselves with video footage to cross-sell the destination.

I would like to now look at Government's Financial Management System.

Government's Financial Management System

Madame Speaker, His Excellency the Governor posed the question in the Throne Speech: "How far will the new discipline imposed by the Public Management and Finance Law help to maintain the recent improvement in our budgetary situation?"

Madame Speaker, the new process has contributed a great deal to the improvement in the budgetary situation. The establishment of allocations as part of the Strategic Policy Phase has imposed a fiscal discipline on the Ministries and Portfolios. The basing of these allocations on more soundly based revenue projections means that Government is only spending what it can afford.

In May, the Legislative Assembly will be receiving the first quarterly report that will detail how well this Government is achieving its fiscal and policy targets. This level of transparency will focus every Civil Servant on the need to keep revenue on target and expenditure within budget.

The recent improvement in our budgetary position has not only resulted from the new budget process, but also from the United Democratic Party's policy of fiscal restraint. To illustrate the importance of this top-down strategic approach, I would draw members' attention to the fiscal strategy contained in the Strategic Policy Statement for the 2003 half year which was tabled in the Legislative Assembly in April last year. That strategy had five elements as follows:-

- First, no new revenue measures;
- Second, generating operating surpluses by controlling recurrent expenditure whilst allowing revenue to increase in line with economic growth;
- Third, no new borrowing;
- Fourth, limiting capital expenditure to levels that could be financed by operating surpluses; and
- Fifth, building reserves by leaving existing reserves untouched, and committing to allocate any unforecasted or unexpected revenue to reserves.

Underlying this fiscal strategy was a very important change in budgeting philosophy. The level of government expenditure is now determined by the level of revenue forecasted to be collected, rather than the other way around. In other words, we are moving to a more private sector approach where the budget is revenue driven rather than expenditure driven.

Madam Speaker, the 2003 budget was also prepared using conservative revenue estimates. A recent review by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office supported this approach and I quote from their report:

"In overall terms the use of a forecast revenue figure for 2003 that resembles the 2002 out-turn illustrates a much more prudent approach to government finance. Whilst the discussions we have had with the private sector suggest that even a standstill revenue forecast may be optimistic, we would still generally endorse this projection of revenue".

I understand the Financial Secretary will be tabling the Foreign and Commonwealth Office report shortly in this House.

The conservative revenue budget meant that aggregate expenditure for 2003 had to be reduced from the level of previous years. As a result, expenditure proposals were carefully prioritised and the civil service found new ways to do more with less.

Two important fiscal improvements have already resulted from this approach.

The first is a reduction in the planned level of government expenditure as a proportion of the economy. As a percentage of Gross Domestic Product (GDP), planned expenditure reduces from 24 per cent in 2001 to 20 per cent in 2004.

The second improvement is the Government moving from being a net borrower to becoming a net re-payer of public debt.

This five point fiscal strategy was not just a theoretical plan. It was the basis on which the 2003 Budget was prepared. As Members of this Honourable House are aware, the aggregate Budget amounts for 2003 half year were very similar to the Strategic Policy Statement targets. In other words, the Budget did indeed comply with the strategic parameters and fiscal policy objectives established for the 2003 half year. The result showed the benefit of setting financial parameters up-front and the pressure of transparency in budget decision-making. It also reflected the Government's determination to produce a budget that was fiscally responsible, and that complied with the principles of responsible financial management.

Madame Speaker, the Government takes very seriously the Principles of Responsible Management as established under the Public Management and Finance Law. Although the Law gives us an eight-year grace period to achieve compliance, my Government is actively pursuing compliance at this time. Prudent financial management is the only way we can safeguard the Islands' future. Tremendous borrowing, Madam Speaker, will send us into decline and destroy finances over a period; it will darken the future for our posterity.

The budget for the 2003 half year and the Strategic Policy Statement for 2003/4 are slated to comply with two out of the three relevant measures. These measures are running a surplus and complying with the 10 per cent borrowing guidelines. We still have some way to go on the third measure, which relates to reserves, but we are doing significantly better in that area than previous governments.

Madam Speaker, the Government is committed not just to preparing a responsible budget, but also to achieving it. That is what counts at the end of the day, and we are well on track to achieve this.

The Financial Secretary recently advised that the overall results for January are in line with budget expectations.

The operating surplus, which is the key indicator of the Government's financial performance, was $41.8 million for January. This is $7 million better than budget. Operating receipts are very close to the budget for the month, but operating expenditure for January was around $6.4 million less, or 27 per cent less, than the budget. Much of this expenditure variance is the result of timing differences that are expected to correct themselves over the financial year. Overall then, the January out-turn should be interpreted as being similar to the budget for the period.

Using the January results and projecting them through to the end of June, and taking into account the Government's decision to defer the increase in the garbage collection fee, as well as other policy decisions that affect expenditure, the forecasts show a small reduction in the forecast operating surplus and a compensating change in net balance sheet activity. This balance sheet activity includes the net proceeds of the new bond.

I will talk more about the benefits of the bond issue later in my speech.

The Government will continue to closely monitor revenue and expenditure trends. Executive Council will be receiving monthly reports on revenue and expenditure, so that if world events that affect our economy take place, for example war or increases in oil prices, then corrective action will be taken to ensure expenditure is maintained within budgetary levels or reduced in line with reducing revenues. If war breaks out and casts the problems that are expected upon us, then many things will have to be reprioritised and I would expect that Honourable Members on both sides would be sympathetic to the country in this time.

The closeness of the revenue forecasts to the budget numbers is very encouraging and supports the conservative approach to budget forecasting. Compared to January last year, a number of revenue categories have increased, including notably work permit fees, partnership fees, local company management fees, insurance licenses, and mutual fund administrator fees.

However, some others have decreased. Among these are bank and trust licenses, which reduced by 7 per cent, compared to the same period last year. Last year's increase in bank licensing fees has contributed to this reduction. However, another more important trend is evident. Throughout the world, businesses have been rationalising their activities with a view to minimising costs. As a result, a number of institutions have combined their operations and now require fewer licenses. This means that the reduction in license revenue does not necessarily indicate a reduction in financial sector activity.

The Government recognises that one of the most important things it can do to support the economy is to ensure that it operates in a fiscally responsible and well-managed manner. The Government is therefore committed to ensuring that the budget is achieved and, if for any reason actual revenue falls short of forecast, it will take action to adjust expenditure accordingly.

The Government also recognises that it needs to maintain fiscal discipline over a long period of time. The preparation of the 2003/4 Budget is currently underway and I would like to remind Members of this Honourable House of the fiscal strategy on which it will be based. I announced this in November 2002 as part of the Strategic Policy Statement. The strategy has eight components.

1. We propose to generate operating surpluses sufficient to cover all balance sheet activity that relates to current activity or that has short-term benefit;

2. We propose to allow revenue to increase in line with economic growth, but no new revenue measures;

3. We propose to continue tight control over aggregate operating expenditure by limiting its rate of growth;

4. We propose to fund new initiatives by reprioritising existing expenditure;

5. We propose to fund equity investments, capital acquisitions, loans made and borrowing repayments from operating surplus;

6. We propose to restrict capital development expenditure to essential projects with long term benefits;

7. We propose that the aggregate borrowing levels are within the 10 per cent debt servicing ratio required by the Public Management and Finance Law;

8. We propose to maintain reserves at existing levels and allocate any un-forecast or unexpected revenue/surplus to general reserves.

This strategy is once again conservative and fiscally responsible and will help provide economic growth.

Madam Speaker, now let me talk about the bond issue. All Honourable Members of the House will know that Government has been diligently pursuing the execution of a bond issue. On 6 March, last week Thursday, investors in Government's bond issue carried out their "due diligence" exercise in the presence of myself, the Deputy Leader of Government Business, the Honourable Financial Secretary, the Deputy Financial Secretary, the Solicitor General and other senior Civil Servants, including representatives from the Monetary Authority and Cayman Airways. I am very pleased to report to the House that the transaction is expected to be concluded by the end of this month. I should say also that the Director of Tourism made a presentation to the investors.

Madam Speaker, this will be another first for the Cayman Islands, again under the watch of the United Democratic Party. The execution of the bond issue is a sign of the Islands' growing maturity and sophistication.

Madam Speaker, it is very important to point out that the UK Government is well aware of the bond issue. On 25 June 2002, Baroness Amos wrote to me, as Leader of Government, and stated that she was content for Government to go ahead with a bond issue of CI$136 million, which is equivalent to US$163.2 million.

Madam Speaker, it is also very important to point out that the vast majority of the bond issue proceeds will be used to pay-off existing Public Debt loans. The Government, Madam Speaker, cannot be accused of being extravagant or of borrowing too much: we are essentially borrowing to repay our existing obligations.

The Government, in this Meeting, shall be bringing a motion seeking the Legislative Assembly's authorisation to draw down against the US$163.2 million bond issue.

Madam Speaker, the bond issue has a number of beneficial aspects for the Islands.

First, the interest payable on the bond will be fixed for 15 years; interest rate changes in the marketplace will not affect the interest that Government will pay on the bond. This is in direct contrast with the present situation in which interest payable by Government changes each time an interest variation is announced in the marketplace.

Secondly, the annual payments in respect of interest and principal arising from the bond will be substantially less than the present payment stream arising from the Islands' existing debt portfolio. As an example, in the year ended 31 December 2002, the Government paid CI$27 million in respect of interest and principal; in the year that will end on 30 June 2004, the bond's interest and principal payments will amount to only CI$16.2 million.

Thirdly, at 31 December 2002, the Government had 17 Public Debt loans. When the proceeds from the bond issue are used to pay off most of our existing loans, the Government will be left with two Public Debt loans plus the bond itself. This will be an administrative relief to the Treasury Department. Madam Speaker, I think we should thank the Honourable Financial Secretary and his staff, Mr. Ken Jefferson and others who have worked very diligently to get the bond to the point where money is coming in.

I mentioned Mr. Jefferson because he was the one working on the bond matters.

International Initiatives

The Cayman Islands has indicated to the International Monetary Fund (IMF) that the regulatory assessment deferred from December 2002 can be programmed for late May 2003. As the assessment will be primarily based on areas within the ambit of the Monetary Authority, preparation for the same will be the responsibility of the Authority, in consultation with government. It is expected that the international regulatory standards to be referenced by the IMF will comprise the Basle Committee standards for banking, the International Organisation of Securities Commissions (OSCO) standards for securities and the International Association of Insurance Supervisors (IAIS) standards for insurance. There will also be an anti-money laundering component to the assessment.

With regard to the OECD initiative, the Cayman Islands, along with other jurisdictions, have signalled to the OECD the serious inconsistency between that project, which enjoys participation from 31 non-OECD countries, and the level playing field commitment from the OECD directorate in respect of its 30 members states, and the draft EU savings directive, inasmuch as the latter creates a carve-out position for three EU/OECD members, as well as OECD member Switzerland. This factor puts the global progress of the OECD initiative in jeopardy, as recognised by both the OECD Secretary-General and the Commonwealth Secretary-General. Therefore, there is to be a meeting of the OECD Global Forum, likely in April of this year, to attempt to resolve the level playing field distortion created by the draft EU savings directive, as a prerequisite to any further forward movement on the OECD initiative. Cayman expects to participate actively, as normal, in that Global Forum meeting.

Turning now to the EU savings directive, the Caribbean Overseas Territories were required by the UK Paymaster-General to indicate by 7 March 2003 whether they would voluntarily implement the savings directive. It is assumed that this deadline was set with reference to the 21 March Council of Ministers' meeting, at which the European Commission proposes the directive to be formally adopted. It will be recalled that the terms of the draft directive contemplate that member states such as the UK will ensure compliance of the relevant associated and dependent territories, such as the Cayman Islands.

As I have previously stated to the Honourable House, the Government's position on the directive, supported by the private sector, is informed by the requirement to proceed in a way that secures the best economic interests of the Cayman Islands. It is fair to say that there was an impasse reached in this regard with the United Kingdom, the Labour Government. The Government therefore secured top, legal counsel in the United Kingdom to advise on legal recourse.

Based on this advice, the Government is still seeking to deploy the consultation process with the European Union available to associated or dependent territories of European member states in which representations from the Cayman Islands in relation to the proposed savings directive could be made.

It is recognised that even if the deployment of this mechanism is achieved, this does not guarantee a successful outcome from Cayman's perspective. It may be that the proposed savings directive is yet adopted in its current form, on or about 21 March. However, it will not do so with Cayman Islands support. Should this happen, the United Kingdom counsel have advised that it is strongly arguable that the European Union does not enjoy competence under the European Union Treaty to direct member states such as the UK to legislate for their associated or dependent territories, such as the Cayman Islands, in the manner contemplated by the draft directive. Consequently, if such a directive is adopted by the European Union's Council of Ministers, we can challenge the legality of it. I should say that was our advice.

Accordingly, on 6 March, we advised the Paymaster-General of the United Kingdom that the Cayman Islands would not provide a commitment to the UK regarding implementation of the savings directive as they requested for 7 March. We also advised that we were prepared to challenge the legality of the draft directive before the Court of First Instance in Luxembourg should it be adopted. Copies of this advice to the Paymaster-General were sent to ECOFIN (European Community Finance Council), the European Commission and the European Parliament and other relevant bodies in the United Kingdom. In addition, on 6 March we instituted legal proceedings in the Court of First Instance to challenge the decision of the European Commission not to grant the deployment of the consultation process requested by Cayman Islands in October 2002.

As to the status of the draft directive within the European Union, there was a 7 March meeting of ECOFIN at which final sign-off of the draft directive and onward transmission to the Council of Ministers meeting of 21 March for adoption was contemplated. In fact, evidently due to domestic issues raised by Italy and reported failure to reach final agreement with Switzerland, ECOFIN will re-convene in a special meeting on 19 March to resume discussions on the draft directive.

The Cayman Islands Government will maintain the approaches I have described, in order to secure the best economic interests of the Cayman Islands. As I have said so often, we will lose jobs and revenue if we have to put in place the taxation on savings directive. We are determined not to do so.

As we contemplate a brave and prosperous future for these our beloved Cayman Islands, we are forced to reflect upon our proud Caymanian heritage and history. Madam Speaker, in this our 500th year, we have all been reflecting on the past, honouring our heroes and celebrating our achievements. This recognition of our past has been very important for us. History gives us context: it reminds us of who we are, and it shows us the long journey we have already taken.

However, today, I want to talk about our future; about what we need to do now to ensure the years ahead will be safe and secure.

Madam Speaker, in the past, we have simply been managing situations; responding to events as they occurred; putting out fires here and there. All governments have done some good things, but there has been no real economic planning - no roadmap available to tell us where we are going. This, our Government feels, cannot continue in the future. We need a plan to give us direction and to provide us with security about the future.

Cayman has been extremely fortunate over the past 37 years. It has been benefiting from changes that took place in the Bahamas, the United States and other countries. However, times have changed. Other islands are now competing fiercely in the tourism and financial services sectors. We have to be ahead of the game and maintain our competitive edge.

Madam Speaker, in order to be competitive, we must have a constitution that is fit for a modern-day Cayman. It must allow us financial freedom and the ability to manage our affairs in our own interest.

Every one of us here has a stake in the future. This is regardless of economic status, social standing or political persuasion. If we are to maintain our standard of living, we cannot continue the way we have been going. Changes must be made. We have to move away from managing situations to planning for the future.

Madam Speaker, we need to formulate an Economic Development Plan. Before addressing specific issues on the Plan, I will take a few minutes to highlight features of our past. This will provide us with a good perspective on what is needed for the future, I hope.

Learning from History

Our Islands' development goes back to the days when men went out to sea, labouring long days and nights, putting themselves in danger. The incomes they brought back to the Cayman Islands were modest, but they sustained our families and communities. They went a long way in helping to build this country.

This earlier generation understood fully the meaning of the word "sacrifice." Sometimes our fathers, our brothers, our uncles, and our husbands went away from their families for years.

The choices our ancestors had to make were difficult, but they had one aim in mind: to ensure that their families enjoyed a decent standard of living. They worked hard to guarantee a safe and secure future for other generations, for this generation, which has been benefiting from their choices and hard work.

Madam Speaker, today I wish to salute the sterling contributions of our forefathers to the economic development of these Islands; and to honour all the women and families who held the fort while our men were away at sea. Not to say that we did not have some other industries over the years, but they were small in comparison to what I have mentioned meant to the people of our Islands.

Our women deserve special mention because of the many roles they performed. They mastered the principles of prudent financial management, making the scarce dollars stretch as far as possible. They also held families together under the most difficult circumstances, maintaining social cohesion in our society.

In the years ahead, we will have to follow their example and remember what is needed to secure our future: hard work, sacrifice and maintenance of strong family values. These are the core values that have helped to build this country. They will be needed again to carry us into the future.

An Era of Buoyant Growth

The Cayman Islands have undoubtedly come a long way in a relatively short period of time. Early pioneers who had vision and foresight laid the building blocks for the financial services industry during the 1960s. They put in place the necessary legal, regulatory and other structures for its development. These structures, coupled with a favourable external environment, allowed our financial services industry to flourish.

Tourism, which had modest beginnings mushroomed during the late 1970s and quickly became a major growth industry. Numerous hotels were constructed, the airport was expanded and tourist attraction facilities developed. We know that we have had dips in tourism numbers over the years. In recent times, since 1999 or thereabouts, tourism started to take a downward trend. In addition to all of that, our own airline, Cayman Airways, assumed a pivotal role in transporting visitors to these Islands. The boom in tourism and finance allowed other industries to expand - real estate, construction and utilities are key examples. Overall, rapid economic growth brought tangible benefits to the community. It allowed businesses to prosper and families to enjoy higher incomes.

Changing Economic Fortunes

Since 1999, Madam Speaker, economic conditions in the Cayman Islands has changed considerably. Growth of our financial services industry is being affected by the numerous policy changes taking place globally. In addition, the recent downturn in the United States economy and events of 11 September 2001, have dealt a serious blow to our tourist industry.

In the major capitals of the world, new rules are being drawn up to govern the global economy. These rules favour big, powerful countries - those with strong bargaining power to negotiate the most favourable deals for themselves, and small islands like the Cayman Islands are used as ponds, even spied upon and used for their own good. Little countries like the Cayman Islands are not seeing any tremendous benefit as yet on the OECD "harmful tax" initiative and the European Tax Savings Directive.

A preliminary economic impact study conducted by Professor Mirrlees showed that the European Union Tax Savings Directive will cost us about $50 to $70 million in its first year of implementation. It is clear that this, and other similar initiatives, will impact negatively on our financial industry. What do we do here in the Cayman Islands? We certainly cannot continue doing as we have done before because the road has been changed. Rules have been changed. As I said, we cannot fight to an extent the huge countries that we have to deal with now do, but that does not mean we should not stand up when we know we are right, and that we should not stand up to protect these Islands. This Member, Madam Speaker, does not back down easily. When I know I am right I stand up and I think that is the position of the Government as a whole.

Need for a Plan

The process of globalisation will continue in the future and the need for global rules will intensify. We need an economic development plan that is sensible. We cannot predict what form these rules will take nor what further changes will occur. What we can do is prepare ourselves to adjust to a changing world. We need a plan that will allow us to consider our resources and capabilities; assess all options available to us; and select the best options to secure our future. However, we have to plan to do that. What I am really saying, Madam Speaker, is that if we are to ensure our long-term sustainability, we need to formulate an economic development plan.

Planning is not an easy task in today's world. The future is uncertain and constantly changing, but if we are always thinking ahead and assessing our options, this will help us to make informed choices about the future.

Recent experiences have demonstrated how vulnerable we are to external disruptions. Planning will help us to respond effectively and quickly to changing circumstances. Planning will also help us to make better use of our resources. Over time, competition in the marketplace will become more intense. We will have to produce more with less to maintain our competitive edge. Planning will help us to evaluate different proposals for achieving our objectives.

High levels of investment are essential for economic growth. A country that has a well-defined plan will attract private investors, as it will give assurance about government policy. It will also allow us to access financing from regional and multilateral agencies more easily.

Finally, Madam Speaker, I must emphasise the importance of planning in helping us to make trade-offs for the future. What are these trade-offs all about? They simply mean that we have to make informed decisions which clearly spell out what is required to achieve the goals we have set as a country.

If we continue to expect economic growth, we must accept development. If we expect high quality, first world standards of living, we must accept that the small population base we presently have will not sustain the kind of economy we have grown accustomed to. Our economic model depends upon managed growth. This growth fuels our economy, supports government expenditure, and creates jobs and business ownership opportunities. Such economic growth is tied to people, investors and their capital, and accepting this basic truth is fundamental to our getting back on our way to sustainable and meaningful economic recovery.

The time has come when we have to make hard choices, so let us not "bury our heads in the sand" but face the challenges head-on. If we work together and plan well, we will be more confident about our country's future and benefit from the economic opportunities.

The Planning Exercise

In planning for the future, Madam Speaker, we have to take a medium to long-term perspective. Development projects often span long periods and their impacts can be wide-ranging and long-term. We therefore envision an Economic Development Plan with a five to 10 year horizon, (maybe even 15, as some plans already on the way show enhancement of various sectors).

The planning process is, of course, not new to any of us here in the Cayman Islands. Over the past years there have been numerous attempts at planning. This has involved many individuals and organisations in both the public and private sectors. Today, we want to place on record our gratitude of the Government to all those who have laboured on various planning initiatives such as:

- Vision 2008, an exercise that has had the most comprehensive coverage to date;
- The Draft Development Plan, which focuses on issues of land use; and
- The more in-depth, sectoral plans in areas such as education, health, agriculture, tourism and the environment.

The Economic Development Plan will consider the project ideas and proposals in existing planning documents. However, it will differ from previous planning efforts in several respects. It will:

- consider the emerging economic situation and future resource availability;
- include individual sector plans; and
- focus on selection of options.

The Plan will locate projects for each sector within a comprehensive framework of developmental goals and objectives. It will take account of resource constraints and prioritise programs and projects.

I emphasise here, Madam Speaker, that a distinction would be made between needs and wants. The Plan will ensure that the basic needs of the population are fully met. The planning exercise will embrace initiatives by both the public and private sectors.

Medium-term investment planning is already underway in the public sector. The Public Sector Investment Plan will therefore dovetail into the longer-term Economic Development Plan.

Private sector plans will form an important part of this exercise. The private sector accounts for almost 90 per cent of domestic output and is the engine of growth in the economy. Its investment plans will be central to the Government's Economic Development Plan.

There is one last point that I must make on the planning exercise. It is a very important one.

In recent times there have been numerous concerns about the lack of statistics and information for analysis. Planning is a data-intensive undertaking. The more data available to us, the better we can plan. I am therefore making a plea to all organisations and individuals to provide the best information available in a timely manner. Madam Speaker, in discussing this with the Honourable Financial Secretary we hope to have an economist here to start the process.

Key Considerations for the Plan

In formulating the Plan, the unique features of Cayman's economy and society would be taken into account. This is particularly as they relate to the Islands' small size and their vulnerability. I will mention just a few of these.

First of all, there is the issue of a small population size and limited human resource base. A country cannot grow unless it has a sufficient quantity of labour and a good skills base. I am not aware of any country that has been successful in the face of labour shortages and skill deficiencies. We need to look at how well Singapore has managed, what they have done and what they have created out of a small island.

There are two points the Plan will address:

- importing labour selectively and;
- developing our own human resource base.

Madam Speaker, a service-based economy like ours must have a highly skilled labour force. We do not have abundant natural resources like other countries. Therefore, we will have to concentrate on developing our own people. It has been said that people are the real wealth of nations. Yes, we are a "nation” and we intend to focus maximum effort on human resource development. That must be a priority and that is where funds will have to be spent.

On this point, I must emphasise that human resource development should not be seen simply from an economic point of view. It is true that human resources add to our productive capacity and allow more goods and services to be produced. However, human resource development is also central to human development. This is the process of enlarging choices in all areas of human endeavour - including economic, social, political and cultural.

Our Economic Development Plan will not be concerned just with the accumulation of goods and money. It will also be about enabling people to enjoy long, healthy, creative lives in this country.

The Speaker: Honourable Leader, you have one hour remaining.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Good, I am much more ahead than I thought. Thank you very much, Madam Speaker.

A second feature of the Cayman Islands economy is the central role of the private sector in stimulating economic growth. A country cannot grow without high levels of investment. This is why nations constantly seek to attract foreign investors to their shores. In these times, I submit to this Honourable House that once investments want to come here and these Islands have done our due diligence and we are satisfied with the type of investment, we should do everything to welcome them.

The Cayman Islands are fortunate to have a vibrant private sector that has maintained a competitive edge in the face of stiff competition. It is also constantly on the lookout for new opportunities. The Plan will focus attention in at least two areas:

- providing an enabling environment for the private sector and;
- exploring new opportunities for growth.

An enabling environment with sound policy and regulatory frameworks will help to keep transaction costs low for businesses. These, in turn, will allow them to maintain a competitive edge.

New growth possibilities could include:

- diversifying within existing industries e.g. e-commerce and niche markets in tourism;
- exploring completely new avenues;
- searching for new growth poles e.g. the Sister Islands; and
- encouraging development of small businesses.

I spoke earlier, Madam Speaker, about human development in the context of enhancing capabilities, but capabilities cannot be utilised unless opportunities exist to use them. One way to create economic opportunities for our people is by ensuring access to capital.

There is great potential for small business development in the Cayman Islands. The Cayman Islands Development Bank was set up to assist with providing capital for small businesses. However, there are numerous obstacles to their development. The Plan will seek to identify all constraints and take steps to remove them.

A third feature of the Cayman Islands economy is its small land mass and fragile environment. The implications of this are important, as there are physical limits to economic growth. We have all seen what uncontrolled growth has done to the environment in other countries. We must preserve the environment for use by future generations.

Madam Speaker, as you know, there is currently a fierce debate globally about how to ensure a proper balance between development and the environment. The Plan will address this issue head-on. At least two areas will be given attention:

- ensuring that physical planning laws and regulations are appropriate; and
- addressing the trade-offs between preserving the environment and pursuing further development.

A fourth feature of the Cayman Islands economy relates to the substantial leakage of incomes. Leakages out of the circular flow of income reduce opportunities for the local economy to grow. The Plan will encourage businesses and individuals to invest in the long-term development of these Islands.

On this point, it should be noted that having a sound Immigration Policy which protects Caymanians and long-standing residents and investors is critical to the economic prospects of these Islands. When long-term residents are given certain basic assurances, it facilitates their ability to invest in the country - to build homes and to spend money in local businesses. In this vein, Madam Speaker, we also have to look at whether the pensions plans are performing any better by being invested overseas or whether the time is not ripe to be bold and consider investing pension funds locally to build the Caymanian economy and attract better returns on a portion of these pension funds.

Overall, the local economy must be able to benefit fully from the fruits of development. If this is not achieved, we will continue to ask ourselves, who are we developing for?

Issues to Address in the Main Sectors

Each sector of the economy has its own contribution to make to development. The Economic Development Plan will aim to ensure there is balance across the various sectors. Sectoral plans will have to be considered collectively and against resource constraints.

Conflicts will obviously arise between sectors since each has its own goals and objectives, but there will also be opportunities to create positive linkages. The challenge will be to resolve the conflicts and build upon the positive linkages.

I will now briefly mention some projects that are under consideration for incorporation into the Plan.

Tourism

Tourism is a major economic sector. It is one of the largest employers and generates significant incomes. It also has linkages with several other sectors.

With the changes taking place globally, tourism is expected to become increasingly important in the future. The industry must remain viable and buoyant and create wealth for this country. Plans to facilitate this goal must include a marketing and public relations programme that is well targeted to ensure we are successfully reaching the desired audience.

Establishing a hospitality training institution is another priority to enable our people to develop and acquire the skills to take advantage of the many opportunities, which will arise in this sector in the future.

Planning within a medium to long-term perspective would require us to assess future tourist demand and establish optimum levels of visitors. These must take into account the carrying capacity of the Islands. Carrying capacity is important, given our small land mass and fragile environment, but it takes on added significance when we consider that the natural environment is our major tourist attraction.

On the supply side, we have to ensure that accommodation facilities are sufficient and they are of a superior quality. Our hotels would have to be five-star facilities in order to attract high-spending visitors. Further, given our image as an upscale destination, other facilities will have to be developed and maintained to a high standard.

There are numerous investors, Madam Speaker, who are ready, willing and able to develop our Islands. It is therefore important for us to formulate an Economic Development Plan, which would give them the assurance about Government's intentions and support.

Among the specific projects that are being considered is the construction of two to three luxurious tourist resorts.

One resort will be located in the western peninsular and another in the eastern end of the Island. A third is currently being considered for Cayman Brac by investors. These resorts will cater to international sporting events, such as golf tournaments, and will have spas and other facilities for wellness.

Madam Speaker, as you are aware and others may be as well, the Tourism Management Policy, which is yet to be tabled, has indicated that a moratorium should be placed on tourism accommodation development on Seven Mile Beach. However, as mentioned earlier, the contribution of each sector will have to be seen within the context of the wider economy.

The establishment of upscale hotel accommodations will not affect the occupancy rates of existing properties, as these properties attract a specific, brand-loyal clientele. Such properties would also be designed to attract and facilitate the convention business as we aim to come to an agreement with the United States on tax concessions.

Before I say that, Madam Speaker, I should say that there is a delegation that is going off to Washington next week consisting of Government and the private sector and that is to continue to build relations. One of the things we hope to discuss at those meetings will be the tax concessions with the United States. The resorts have the potential to create wealth, generate employment opportunities and raise incomes for the population.

Another project in the pipeline is the construction of new docks and cruise tourism facilities.

The plans here are for re-development of the George Town port and construction of a dock transshipment port and mega yacht facility in East End.

A cruise facility is also to be constructed in West Bay, which will help to ease congestion in George Town and create business opportunities for the people in West Bay. Overall, the cruise industry will have to be managed in a way so that Caymanians can benefit from it. Florida Caribbean Cruise Association, in our agreement with them, has increased their offer to us from $15 million to $26 million for the re-development of George Town and also for the West Bay facility and also for some work to be done on the Spott's jetty.

Other projects under consideration include:

- Expansion of tourist attractions; and
- Re-development of the turtle farm, both as a scientific farm and as a tourist attraction.

Financial Services

Given the increasing trend towards global rule making, the Cayman Islands will have to be aggressive in international negotiations on financial services. This will involve action on a number of fronts:

- monitoring closely all relevant global discussions;
- establishing common positions with the private sector;
- ensuring effective representation abroad; and
- establishing links with key decision-makers in developed countries.

Our limited human resource base constrains our ability to negotiate effectively abroad. It will therefore be important and cost-effective for us to develop strong, local expertise in conducting negotiations.

Such skills will be useful for negotiations in other areas over the years.

Given our small size, it will be critical to build strategic alliances with varying groups of countries. These alliances will have to be built on a case-by-case basis, dependent on common interests. This will increase our bargaining power in external negotiations.

In addition to the above, the Cayman Islands will explore the drawing up of Tax Information Exchange Agreements with a number of OECD countries. These agreements have the potential of creating new commercial opportunities since they will enhance market access for Cayman's financial service products.

Transport

Air Transport

The broad plans here are to expand airport facilities and ensure adequate airlift to the Cayman Islands. In terms of airport facilities, specific projects include:

- expansion of the Owen Roberts International Airport runway to accommodate aircraft operations to/from European and South American destinations; and
- construction of a parallel taxiway to facilitate safe and efficient movement of aircraft at Owen Roberts International Airport.

Ensuring adequate airlift will mean supporting Cayman Airways in order for it to remain a viable entity that could serve our needs.

We are blessed, Madam Speaker, to have many international carriers operating in Cayman. However, with world conditions being so uncertain, we cannot depend on other airlines to service our needs fully. We have seen how other islands are left stranded when foreign airlines discontinue their services. We simply cannot afford for this situation to arise - the impact on our tourist industry will be devastating. Therefore, we have to have a new mindset on Cayman Airways and I believe that the Board that I have put in place gives us that.

A Strategic Plan is being formulated for Cayman Airways, whereby the airline will be developed as an instrument of economic policy. Cayman Airways will strengthen its relationship with the Department of Tourism to achieve the maximum economic benefit for these Islands. Madam Speaker, the House will hear more about this, but this will have to be in this Economic Development Plan.

Roads

Cayman has an excellent road infrastructure, but expansions and improvements will be needed over time. Current plans are for:

- construction of the East-West Highway;
- continuing improvements in road safety; and
- reviews of storm water management practices and procedures.

Telecommunications and E-Commerce

The goal of the telecommunications sector is to promote a favorable telecoms environment, which would contribute to the economy and allow development of a new industry.

On-going negotiations between the Government and Cable and Wireless are due for completion soon. This will allow industries to enjoy relatively low prices and to compete favourably in both the local and international markets. Full competition should be in place by mid 2004.

One spin-off benefit of liberalisation would be the growth of e-business. This is expected to generate high-value activities and become the 'Third Pillar' of the economy.

Plans for the sector include licensing of new companies that will offer an expanded range of services at relatively low costs.

Cable and Wireless is currently preparing for a new competitive market. Last November, it signed a US$100 million deal with Nortel Networks to improve its wireless networks.

The Government intends to support all private companies by providing an appropriate enabling environment. This will include proper regulatory frameworks to facilitate competition and ensure equitable treatment for all providers.

Cayman Brac & Little Cayman

Over the past year, there have been innovative moves both by the private and public sectors—

The Speaker: Honourable Leader, if I could make a brief interruption.

Honourable Members, a matter has arisen in which I seek now to take a suspension for five minutes and I would ask for Members to meet in the committee room. Thank you.

Proceedings suspended at 11.40 am

Proceedings resumed at 11.55 pm

The Speaker: Honourable Leader of Government Business, continue your debate.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you very much, Madam Speaker.

As I said, over the past year, there have been innovative moves both by the private and public sectors to develop the Sister Islands. Public-private sector partnerships will be strengthened in the coming years to help stimulate the domestic economy.

Three areas that will be given attention include:

1. Further development of back office operations businesses on Grand Cayman that do not need to be located close to the offshore financial centre in George Town could 'set up shop' in Cayman Brac. Advantages of setting up in the Brac are lower property values and already-developed physical and communications infrastructure.
2. E-business to facilitate other businesses. The introduction of e-business is expected to spur the growth of businesses such as accounting and audit services, legal services, and courier services.
3. Frequent, safe and reliable air transport. It is expected that daily flights will operate between Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac. These will be done through the use of appropriate sized aircraft and jet service on weekends.

Cruise tourism is definitely a must for Cayman Brac. I re-open the Brac dock on Saturday. We are now looking at how we can expand the Brac dock to offer berthing facilities to cruise tourism. Efforts are paying off. Ever so often we have cruise ships visiting and we have made special efforts to get a smaller cruise ship to Cayman Brac. We do have a cruise sailing company that will come to Cayman Brac in April with about 172 passengers. Also, Madam Speaker, we have talked to the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac about that, and the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac has been meeting with us to expand cruise tourism in a more meaningful way to Cayman Brac, and we can do that. We are looking at tours through Cayman Airways, to pick up here and take to Cayman Brac via Cayman Airways. There needs to be some facilities there and some property needs to be purchased. I think it is a good way to enhance Cayman Brac through cruise tourism until we have facilities to offer docking or anchoring in Cayman Brac.

Health

A major goal of the health care sector is to ensure that the overall wellness of the population is promoted and sustained over time. As growth in the Cayman Islands proceeds, the health care demands of the population are likely to become more diverse. Every effort will be made to ensure that these demands are fulfilled and health care is at a comprehensive and superior level.

Recently, the Government has implemented two major changes in the institutional framework to help meet the objectives of the health sector. In the years ahead, attempts will be made to consolidate these changes which include:

- formation of the Health Services Authority, which is geared to provide a viable, high-quality, efficient and customer-friendly system to health care users;

- enforcement and monitoring of the Health Insurance Law to regulate the fair management of compulsory health coverage for civil servants and private sector employees.

The cost of health care is a major concern worldwide both for governments and patients. This will therefore be given the highest priority over the short to medium-term. The major areas for improvement include:

- computerization of the patient and financial services functions;
- strengthening of the accounts receivables systems especially collections from health insurance, and revision of hospital fees;
- a further strengthening of financial management and control functions.

Education

Madam Speaker, I emphasized the importance of human resource development earlier in my presentation. I will now mention the main goals of the education sector and key projects to be pursued and which will be included in the economic development plan.

First, in order to promote and support school improvement, two new schools are to be constructed. The schools are:

- Spotts Primary School and another primary school in West Bay;
- A secondary school at Frank Sound, to be open in 2005.

Secondly, in order to strengthen the opportunities and quality of provision for teacher training, local teacher education will be strengthened. Attempts will also be made to improve the matching of training courses to needs. Specific projects here include:

- Community College of the Cayman Islands to offer teaching qualification with the introduction of four year degrees; and
- better matching of training courses and opportunities as well as personal development and national needs.

Thirdly, in order to improve information, communication and technology skills, the Improved Teaching and Learning in the Cayman Islands (ITALIC) project will be implemented. This project will use technology to improve teaching and learning. At its maturity, it will culminate with each child in the public schools having access to a laptop computer. The project has three main components:

- Training of teachers,
- Adoption of software and other web-based solutions; and
- Improvements in hardware and access to the web.

Fourthly, in order to enhance the provision for technical and vocational education, the Human Resource Development Unit will:

- Reduce skill mismatches and improve access for the disadvantaged, particularly the young employed;
- Enhance the private sector's role, through programmes like Investors in People;
- Improve system-wide management and co-ordination; and
- Disseminate information on available training resources.

Fifthly, in order to establish citizenship education, Citizen Education will become an integral part of the curriculum at all levels of schooling.

Finally, plans are currently underway to expand facilities for tertiary education, which will include:

- converting the Community College of the Cayman Islands into the University College of the Cayman Islands in September 2004. This facility will offer four-year degrees in selected areas.
- supporting the International College of the Cayman Islands (ICCI). The Education Council has granted recognition to ICCI and is currently granting scholarships for study at the college.
- developing a University in Frank Sound, which will incorporate courses at St. Matthews University.

Environment

A draft Environmental Policy has recently been prepared, which states the goals and strategies of the environmental sector. One main goal is to manage the human use of the natural environment of the Cayman Islands so that it yields the greatest continuous benefit to present generations while maintaining its potential to meet the needs and aspirations of future generations.

Overall, the Government is committed to ensuring that there is a balance between development of the Cayman Islands and conservation of our natural environment and resources. More specific aims are to protect the wetlands and our marine life.

Two areas for priority action in the medium to long-term include:

- enactment of national conservation legislation to ensure that our statutory framework conforms to international standards; and
- establishment of a National System of Protected Areas, starting with the creation of the Barkers National Park, but not limited to that, because I have just had a presentation about another heritage park in the vicinity of the Community College and that is something that the Government will look at. It is more like an environmental park in the nature of Barkers. You do not have the Barkers wetland, but that also can be a national park and we are going to look at it. Government owns some land there, but the majority of the land is owned by the private sector.

Public Order & Safety

In today's world, our personal safety and security are extremely important. We need to make plans to protect our boundaries, to equip our police service and ensure it can respond effectively to circumstances.

The recent terrorist attacks and continuing threats worldwide have put a premium on safety for our population. Safety has an added dimension for us, since one of our selling points as a tourist destination is safety.

In recent months, a number of initiatives have been taken to protect our Islands. These will be increased in the coming years. They include:

- enhancing our intelligence gathering procedures through our worldwide network of agencies such as Interpol and the FBI.
- constant review and tighter co-ordination of security arrangements. The National Security Committee set up under the auspices of the Governor's Office is currently working in this area.
- increasing security at our ports of entry to ensure they meet international safety codes of practice. Cayman is surrounded by water and every effort must be taken to protect our boundaries.

On the internal security front, there will be a move towards increased community policing. This will involve more responsibility being delegated to District Commanders, and better sharing of police vehicles among the various District Stations.

Social Protection

Finally, Madam Speaker, the last sector I wish to speak on is social protection - a very important one for these Islands. We cannot enjoy the fruits of development unless there is progress in both economic and social development.

The Cayman Islands has always been a stable and harmonious society. It is the role of government to ensure that this continues in the future. A number of initiatives have been taken over the past year, aimed at protecting vulnerable groups in the society. These groups have included youth, women, the elderly and the poor.

Cayman's first Crisis Centre for battered victims was launched recently, which seeks to eradicate the problem of domestic abuse. It will therefore provide protection for women.

A US$3.7 million low-cost housing contract was recently signed to assist lower-income families. This agreement will ensure that safe and affordable homes are provided for eligible applicants, especially deserving families.

Specific plans that are being considered to provide social protection include:

- construction of residential group homes for elderly residents in North Side and Bodden Town; and
- establishment of day care programmes in the same facilities and at the Kirkconnell Community Care Centre in Cayman Brac. We are also looking at expanding the West Bay Golden Age Home facilities for day care and also to enable four more rooms or sleeping quarters.

- establishment of a coalition for parenting whose primary function will be to train parents in various groups;
- strengthening of communities through special initiatives undertaken by the Community Development Unit and district committees;
- provision of Probation/Aftercare Services to the Courts and the prison; and
- the enhancement of the anti-drug programme, including but not limited to, counselling and rehabilitation.

In closing this address, Madam Speaker, I must emphasise what this Economic Development Plan is expected to achieve. It will:

1. Enhance real and lasting prosperity for all;
2. Allow businesses to make money and Caymanian entrepreneurs to start new businesses;
3. Enable workers to pay their bills, raise their children, save for a vacation and for their retirement;
4. Ensure that the elderly are well taken care of. These are the people who built this country and who must be adequately provided for;
5. Allow civil servants, particularly those at the lower end of the scale, to earn decent salaries;
6. Ensure that we pay off our national debt and build national reserves.

The Speaker: Honourable Leader of Government Business, you have 27 minutes remaining.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, we have to approach the future positively but realistically. Trade-offs will obviously have to be made and I say that again so that all will understand what I have said. Trade-offs will obviously have to be made. We cannot continue to have a good standard of living without making sacrifices.

We have the opportunity to make the right choices to secure our future. I therefore invite all of us to participate fully in the creation of this Economic Development Plan of the Cayman Islands.

Madam Speaker, it is important to reiterate that times have changed. What we see facing us now in the world is not a good picture. In all of my years this is the most uncertain I have seen world conditions. Cayman has to rethink, it has to plan and it has to accept that there must be changes and that there are things that we are not going to like. I encourage Members of this House that when we go out and talk to our constituents, we let them understand that. Government is not a money tree; we are not printing our own money. We have to get business in this country so that Caymanian businesses can benefit, so that we can live the kind of standard of living that we are accustomed to. If we do not do this and we take a harsh stand and say, "This is something that the Government wants and we are going to stand against it", bad will be our end. This is for the good. This is not today. We are not talking about building resorts today, yesterday. If we plan for a hotel today, it is going to take three or four years before that hotel comes online. For instance, there has been talk about a moratorium. That moratorium is not in place. When I talk about hotels, I am talking about five to seven star hotels. We are talking about Four Seasons and other brands. We are not talking about another Holiday Inn; we are not talking about another Sleep Inn. I think we have enough of those on Seven Mile Beach and in these Islands my plan is for upscale tourism.

I would like to close, Madam Speaker, with these very pertinent words of inspiration – "Who will light the way?"

*Who will light the way for tomorrow's dreams ?
Who will be a beacon to those wandering in darkness?
Who will catch a vision and enjoy the godly call?
Who will stand firm?*

*Who will stay the course never wavering under pressure?
Who will reflect heaven's rays of promise to the hopeless traveler?*

*Who will be a shelter from the battering winds and waves?
Who will reach out to the lonely when no one else will?
Who will shine for Him?
If not us, then who?
If not now, then when?*

Madam Speaker, I have many miles to go before I sleep. We are changing, Madam Speaker, and Members might take laugh at this and I thought about whether I should be saying it but I will say it. Next year is an election year. I had thought that after 20 years I would call it a day. I find that we are not being kind to each other; we are battering one another; we are not trusting of each other; we have a rough role to play. I have two children and one grandchild. Both of my children want me to wrap it up and call it a day, but there is work yet to be done.

I love this place called the Legislative Assembly. When I get cursed, I take it in stride. I have learnt to do that and I find peace and solace in doing good. Even if it is only one letter I receive to say thanks. I had planned to call it a day after 20 years. Enough would be enough of taking licks, being cursed, being challenged and, at the end of the day, far too much bickering, but we cannot let it drop.

I love politics. I love doing the work I do and, when all is said and done, all of us are Caymanians, so I will continue and I will work with my party to make a stronger Cayman Islands.

I thank you very much.

The Speaker: At this time we will take the luncheon break.

Proceedings suspended at 12.22 pm

Proceedings resumed 2.11 pm

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed with the continuation of the debate on the Throne Speech. I recognise the Leader of the Opposition.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker, Perhaps we find ourselves at a slight disadvantage this afternoon because we prepared our official response to the Government's Throne Speech based on what we heard delivered by the Governor last Friday. Unfortunately, we find ourselves with the unusual experience of having two Throne Speeches and only being able to reply immediately to one. Nevertheless, we will make our attempts to deal with it.

In listening to the Throne Speech last Friday, Madam Speaker, and then preparing the official reply to that Throne Speech, not having had the benefit of this morning's delivery of the Leader of Government Business, we would be saying that in preparing the official reply of the People's Progressive Movement to the Throne Speech as presented last Friday, I felt somewhat compelled to share with the people of the Cayman Islands a few salient points concerning the background of the presentation of this very important policy statement.

Again, I would say first, the Throne Speech, although delivered by His Excellency, is considered the main policy document of the Cayman Islands' Government. It would almost by necessity set forth and reflect 100 per cent the policies, programmes and priorities of the Government of the day. Certainly what we heard last Friday, Madam Speaker, and what was contained in the Throne Speech, is what the Government wants said and what was omitted is what the Government prefers not to have said in the Throne Speech.

Listening last Friday, we had to take the position that an inspirational Throne Speech is normally the product of a visionary and a very enlightened Government. However, by the same token, a Throne Speech that is flat, unrealistic or perhaps even irrelevant, and which offers little hope or comfort to the residents, is by extension the product and handiwork of a Government that would seem to be out of touch, perhaps even having lost its way. It is in this context that the presentation of last Friday must be viewed. That is our view.

The speech obviously was researched and packaged and produced by the UDP administration and its impact or its lack thereof is a reflection of the thought processes at work within the administration. We would have said, Madam Speaker, not having had the benefit of this morning's delivery, that as I sat in the Aston Rutty Centre in Cayman Brac and listened to His Excellency deliver the Throne Speech for the first time, I truly experienced a very wide range of emotions. On the one hand, I was moved by the auspiciousness and the significance of this occasion, which everyone knows is my ancestral home, and the significance of this occasion to Cayman Brac. I certainly felt very proud of and I was really delighted to be a part of this historic occasion.

However, on the other hand, as the Speech proceeded, I grew increasingly concerned and even a bit distressed as it was apparent to me at that time that the Government, whose policies the Speech was suppose to reflect, must have prepared the Speech in an economic vacuum, with no regard to the harsh realities which now confront the Cayman Islands and the entire world. At that time, Madam Speaker, there was no mention of the very serious challenges which the Cayman Islands face and how the Government proposes to cope with them. Instead, a bit bewilderingly, the Throne Speech proceeded on the principle of business as usual: that is, in a global climate when nothing is as usual, in a world where there is great anxiety and uncertainty, and at a time when nothing can be taken for granted.

Even as we speak now, Madam Speaker, the prospect of war looms large on the near horizon and it might almost seem inevitable, although we all hope not that the United States, and perhaps other nations of the world, may well declare war on Iraq. Of course, if this happens, we all know it is bound to adversely affect business and particularly the tourism industry in the Cayman Islands, as was the case and the experience when there was the Gulf War in 1991. So, we ask the question, what provision is the Government making for that eventuality?

I hold the view, Madam Speaker, that much could have and should have been said about these matters in order to reassure the people of this country and those who do business here that the Government understood the risks that we face in the months to come and has made contingency plans to deal with the possibility of a further serious economic downturn. However, when the Throne Speech was delivered on Friday nothing was said about that, not a solitary word.

This morning, the Leader of Government Business did say in his delivery that, in the event of war, the Government would have to reprioritise its projects and restrict expenditure to correspond with revenue. However, even then, as he carefully explained what the Government would be doing in such an eventuality, he gave no indication of what would be done to bolster the economy and to protect the many businesses that would be even more vulnerable than they are in the present climate.

As the Throne Speech is the Government's policy document, it must be taken as reflecting what the Government's position is in relation to the various matters for which it has responsibility. The fact that the Throne Speech has not addressed the likelihood or possibility of a looming war and its potential impact on the economy of these Islands and the lives of its citizens and residents, in my view, speaks volumes about the Government's policy or the position that they take on this issue.

Maybe the Government has considered the matter and they have determined as they lay the odds that there will not be a war; or perhaps the Government has concluded that if there is a war it would have no effect on the Cayman Islands; or, Madam Speaker, it begs the question, is it that the Government might be clueless as to what to do in the case of a war and is simply hoping against hope that the threat goes away? Madam Speaker, we all hope that that threat goes away, but as of now we have no clear indication that it will.

Let me just say that, as the Opposition, the Government will appreciate that while there are consistencies at certain levels among the thought process and they are charged with their responsibilities, we also are charged with the responsibilities of raising questions and perhaps encouraging thought processes which would bring about solutions to such matters. Therefore, even when we raise the issues and it seems like we come with a bunch of questions but we have no solutions, the fact of the matter is that they have their role and we have ours. We will live up to our responsibilities and, at the same time, with the expectation that the Government will live up to theirs.

We know from bitter experience, Madam Speaker, of the devastating effects of global conflicts on the tourist trade and the stark and tragic circumstances of September 11, 2001, when there was this terrorist attack on the United States, still haunts us. I also know that the course of global events is not in our hands and to a large extent the consequences of these events are also outside our control. I do not seek to pretend otherwise, but equally by anticipating and preparing for what seems likely, we can, at least, mitigate the economic fall out and the adverse impact of these events on our local economy and our people. This is a responsibility of the Government and, to that extent, whatever the Government fails to do then we have to call into question the dereliction of duty.

In raising that issue, it is to ensure that in thinking of all of the various initiatives, in thinking of all of the aspects of how the Government operates, that it bears in mind the possibility and it is with a view to anticipate and not to wait until after the fact. This is not like September 11 when there was absolutely no warning. In fact those Members across, who were in Executive Council at the time, remember that that was a morning of Executive Council meeting. Most of us only knew about it after we arrived at the Glass House; no warning. This is not like that, Madam

Speaker. Thus, our job is to raise the flag. As the Leader of Government Business asked this morning, in the eventuality of such a situation, would we be sympathetic and act accordingly. Certainly we will, because there are many matters which have common threads to all of us and we must be able to divide the lines between what is sensible politically and thriving to the system of politics that we have. We certainly would intend to play our role should such an event occur. Naturally, we would have to be in the know, if we were to be able to do what we should do.

Given all that has transpired during and since the aborted Euro Bank trial, I would have expected the Government to state, as a matter of policy, what is its position in relation to the manner of appointment of the Attorney General and the role and functions of the holder of that office. I would also have expected that a clear statement would have been made by the Government as to the way in which it thinks the Financial Reporting Unit should be restructured, staffed and to whom it should be made accountable. Yet, Madam Speaker, despite the ranting and the raving and the charges that were laid, little or nothing of a concrete nature has been said by the Government to ensure the nation and the international business community that a similar debacle will not and could not occur again.

We know that it is not something that the Government can just sit and decide. We fully appreciate that. Further, I should add that the two lines devoted to this matter in the Throne Speech which merely confirms the earlier statement of the Governor that, and I quote with your permission: “Legislation is also planned to clarify and establish further by statute the role and functions of the former Financial Reporting Unit”.

Those two lines do not amount to the kind of concrete proposals for reform of this Unit that are of critical importance to rehabilitating the credibility and the entire reputation of our beleaguered financial industry.

It is our view that the country and those who do business here are entitled to expect from the Government a clear and unequivocal position on this fundamentally important matter.

As far as the financial industry of these Islands is concerned, there are very few issues that demand more urgent attention than this one. Yet the Government says nothing about this in its principle policy document, which was delivered last Friday for those of us who was there with the accompaniment of much pomp and circumstance. Equally, Madam Speaker, I would have expected to hear the Government articulate a position, or at least comment on, the continuing constitutional review process, now that we have received the draft Constitution and the draft interim order for the establishment of a boundaries commission. However, only a passing reference has been made to the issue of constitutional reform.

We know from previous utterings and actions of the Government that it holds dogmatic views about certain aspects of constitutional reform. We also know that the United Democratic Party have consistently maintained that a Chief Minister should be appointed prior to the next General Election. Now that the draft Constitution has been returned without the provision for this appointment, what is the Government's position? Will it support the draft Constitution in its current form? Or is there going to be another pitched battle over this issue?

As I listened to the Throne Speech being read by His Excellency, I was struck by its vagueness and its lack of coherence. I have to go further, because I have to express how I felt. I was struck by its irrationality and, as I go on further, I am going to explain why I was struck by its illogical setting of priorities.

It appeared as though the document had been prepared by five desperate governments; each intent on achieving its own particular objectives with no reference to or regard for any common plan, purpose or policy. Madam Speaker, of course the Government is not going to accept this statement; if I were them I would not accept it either. It is for the Government to not only simply refute it, but to stay with the issue and prove that what I felt is not correct. They have ample time to do so and, personally, I would wish for them to believe me saying that I would be greatly relieved if such is the case, but we are going to do our job.

I said earlier that the speech appeared to have been a draft in an economic vacuum. In my view, this is certainly the case, but in many instances it also appears to have been drafted without reference to earlier policy statements made by the Government. This is particularly true in relation to last year's Throne Speech. In other instances, confusingly it repeats what was said a year ago, with no explanation as to why a year has come and gone with no progress having been made or nothing having been achieved in respect to a particular project or the implementation of a particular policy.

Madam Speaker, I am in alright shape today and I hear about the reference to 2001. I cannot deal with that because I did not get an opportunity to deal with the one for 2002. When therefore we take the flowery language away and examine the presentation of last Friday purely on content, we see that there was fundamentally very little added to the already raging debate on how the Cayman Islands should and must emerge from its economic downturn. Madam Speaker, I will be fair, even regarding what we heard this morning about an economic development plan, I listen very carefully and, if what was said is followed, then I see where there can be many benefits. I have to be fair about that, but it was not apparent from the Throne Speech that the Government, as they have professed on countless occasions, possess the necessary vision, the will or the ability to address the myriad of social issues which the Cayman Islands face.

We were fed a large dose of generalities with the Throne Speech, the sum total of which has done little to allay the fears of residents of the Cayman Islands regarding their diminishing social and economic fortunes.

Now, Madam Speaker, we need to get it straight. We can prepare the nicest sounding and most logical of ideas in any area we choose, but, as has been said on many occasions by the Leader of Government Business and others, "the proof of the pudding is in the eating". If we are in the middle of the preparations for the wonderful utopia to come then we shall see but, Madam Speaker, not all of them but several of them who sit on the other side of the fence now, have sat on this side of the fence since my time and listened to those wonderful things being pontificated. Here we are in the year 2003 and we are starting over again, so it is not with a great track record that we can anticipate that everything is going to be fine as is projected. It is from that line that I come.

I speak purely from historical data, Madam Speaker. Whether or not it is not liked that it is said by me or whether anyone makes comparisons about "look who is talking", it cannot be refuted because history is proven that what I just said is absolutely correct and the Hansard will prove that.

Little was contained in the Throne Speech, Madam Speaker, but what I would term as superfluous policy submissions which would have been largely irrelevant to ordinary Cayman Islands residents and citizens alike. However, I have to presume that the speech said all that the administration of the United Democratic Party wanted to say. We heard some more stuff this morning and, if the plan was to have His Excellency deliver bland, flat and everything else and then the spokespersons get up and correct the situation, then that is a plan. However, I respond to the Throne Speech, so they will have every opportunity to deal with individual and collective items of policy as we proceed.

Against that backdrop, I have to say that we perhaps get a clear insight into the thinking of the administration. It begs the question, is there some type of disconnect from the people of the country? If we simply isolate the thought process to the Throne Speech and, regardless of whether it is deliberate or not deliberate, the fact of the matter is that what is known to be a Throne Speech is supposed to deliver the Government's policies 100 per cent. After the Throne Speech, I spoke to literally scores of persons in the lead up to this reply and, in every case, barring none, the reaction was similar.

Collectively speaking with regards to those reactions, the description of that would be that the Government is somewhere out in left field, removed from the day-to-day challenges and problems of the average person in this community and, perhaps, out of touch with reality.

Madam Speaker, this is how it should be. This Throne Speech, its proposals and its policies or lack thereof, cannot be considered in isolation. It must be viewed in the context of Government's fiscal position and condition. The latest statement which told the country about its fiscal health was delivered by the Honourable Third Official Member at a luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce held on 26 February 2003. That presentation, Madam Speaker, was that of - what I would term - a technocratic Member of the Executive Council. We know, because of what he does, that the Honourable Third Official Member is by nature attracted to dealing with figures - and perhaps by having had to deal with them for so long, I might even jokingly say that he might almost be addicted to dealing with figures. That Member has studied mathematics and accounting and, naturally, he speaks mathematics and accounting. I certainly have no difficulty with him or what he said.

What was proffered by him could and should have reasonably been expected of him. However, that independence of thought, focus and control is absolutely necessary to create the required balance that is so essential to the ultimate and overall attainment of our goals. His presentation begs the question, where is the voice of the social engineers in Executive Council and in the Government? We know clearly the agenda of the Honourable Third Official Member, but the goal and the intent of the Government is another matter and is a bit more difficult to discern. What about the issues now facing the masses of people in this country? What about the platform of issues that individual members of the United Democratic Party campaigned upon? What about the issues that the private sector, professional organizations and other interest groups in this country are concerned about? What about the seeming stagnation and, in some cases, deterioration in the quality of life of residents? What are the plans of the Government to halt the slide and to restore public confidence in the economy and the management thereof?

The Government must not hide behind the comfort of this fiscal jargon. It must begin seriously to address the social, moral, ethical and economic issues of concern to the people of the Cayman Islands. Now, they will say that they are doing so and they have ample opportunity to explain that. The policies that were articulated in the Throne Speech did nothing to do that.

Certainly, Madam Speaker, a demonstration that the Honourable Third Official Member is very good at arithmetic will not suffice. People wish to know whether the Government is aware of their plight and their concerns and, if it is, what it is doing to address their concerns.

I am going to hear more rumblings again, but I am going to use examples as they float across my life. Take, for example, the recent flooding in parts of George Town. The Government boasts of realising and even surpassing its budget target. The Honourable Third Official Member predicted an $8 million surplus at the end of this year, which he claimed had been verified by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. I get to understand that the two economists who were here might have looked through the projections and verified that. However, what use is all of that if the people of these various communities cannot get meaningful relief on a timely basis. Madam Speaker, we are not the Government; we raise the questions. The Government has access to the purse strings and the resources and everything else. It is their job to respond.

What is the point of our boasting of realising mathematical targets if the number of stay over visitors to our Islands continues to decline, thus jeopardising the welfare and wellbeing of so many of our workers? Lest it be convoluted and misconstrued, one is not advocating fiscal irresponsibility, certainly not. However, there must be a balance and once would have expected that the Government might have been a more sensitive and sympathetic to the plight of the ordinary worker in the Cayman Islands. It is clear to us that the strategy of the Government is to pursue policies perhaps similar to other parties in the region, other parties that we might want to term right of centre, where the population is starved of vital services and opportunities for the vast majority of a term, but come the last few months prior to an election the Government appears like Santa Claus to dispense goodies in order to secure its return to office.

One can expect that with the elections due in under two years perhaps the Government might shortly be dispensing a lot of things to a lot of people. The question is, why wait so long? Why allow such strain on individuals in our society? If we cannot do any better then at least show intent and say why we cannot. We shall see, with the timing, whether we are working towards sensible medium and long-term goals or whether we are with political manoeuvring.

We, the People's Progressive Movement, have with us as our overriding principle the need to involve the people that we would serve at all levels of decision making, at all times and, as a Government, we will take the people of the Cayman Islands in confidence and we will level with them along the way. We certainly will not subscribe to the theory of letting the people suffer for extended periods and then showering them with gold, frankincense and myrrh. We believe that that is wrong. Time will prove if that is or is not the case.

With that overview, I wish to turn now to deal with some specifics of the Throne Speech or, to be more accurate, perhaps the lack thereof. The introduction of the Throne Speech contains just a cursory reference to the ongoing constitutional review process. It acknowledges the importance and desirability of the modernisation of our system of Government and the introduction of a Bill of Rights. It does not, however, go on to discuss the draft Constitution which, as I alluded to earlier, has been sent to the Cayman Islands by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office for discussion by the people. Madam Speaker, I say with considerable pride this afternoon that we believe that the draft Constitution now reflects to a large degree the wishes and aspirations of the majority of the people of these Islands, while there still remain some important points of concern and perhaps even contention, not necessarily between us and the Government, but perhaps between the country and the United Kingdom Government.

The document in circulation appears to have a level of support which neither the draft prepared by the Constitutional Commissioners nor the proposals of the United Democratic Party Government, enjoyed.

This achievement has been no mean feat and, while there is still some work to be done, the current draft represents a hard fought victory for the People's Progressive Movement, for the People for Referendum and for the many solid citizens who stood with us as we opposed the attempts of the former Governor and the Government to rush to the adoption and the implementation of the new Constitution for the Cayman Islands.

I sincerely pay tribute to the sacrifices and efforts of the many selfless individuals who rallied behind the petition and who gave of their time, talents and their efforts to ensure that the voices of the people of this country were heard in moulding the new Constitution for these Islands. They can, and should, derive tremendous satisfaction from the knowledge that their efforts and their struggles were not in vain. While those efforts have thus far not resulted in a referendum being held, they have undoubtedly and irrefutably altered the course of events. I also pay tribute to the members of the People's Progressive Movement and to my fellow Members of the parliamentary Opposition who stood firm in the conviction that we could not and should not take part in the debate on the Constitutional Commissioner's report against the will of the people. That, Madam Speaker, in my view, required character and courage under fire, particularly after the Second Elected Member for George Town and myself had been suspended from service in this Honourable House because of public statements which we made following the rejection of the referendum motion brought by the Elected Member from North Side and myself. In the end, I believe that our actions and our position in relation to the issue of constitutional modernisation have been entirely vindicated. I have no doubt that the constitutional talks in London and the local summit between ourselves and the United Democratic Party Government would not have occurred if we had not launched such serious opposition to the manner and the speed with which the modernisation process was proceeding.

What is of great importance is that it appears at this point that almost all of the positions which we advanced on behalf of the people of these Islands have now been accepted, not only by the Government but also by the United Kingdom. Many of the positions were conceded by the Government at the summit and the remaining points of contention were, in the main, resolved at the meeting with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office at Lancaster House in London in December last year.

Madam Speaker, I am going to crave your indulgence to take a few minutes to remind this Honourable House and the people of this country, of what the principal points of contention were and what is now proposed in the draft Constitution. Also, briefly to identify what areas still remain of concern to the People's Progressive Movement. It will be remembered that we prepared a comprehensive position paper which set out our position on the areas of major difference from either the Constitutional Commissioner's proposals or those of the Government. This document was forwarded to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office well in advance of the talks in December last year. The main points of disagreement related to:

1. Single member constituencies. The Commissioners recommended the division of the Cayman Islands into 17 single member constituencies and we agree. The Government disagreed, claiming that the Cayman Islands was too politically immature for this proposal and that it should be phased in over a period of years. At the summit, the Government conceded this point and the draft Constitution contains the recommendations of the Commissioners; and

2. The Speaker should not be an elected Member. The Commissioners had recommended that both the Speaker and the Deputy Speaker should be chosen from outside the Legislative Assembly. The Government disagreed and proposed that both should be capable of being chosen from among the elected Members of the Legislative Assembly. The People's Progressive Movement proposed that the Speaker should be chosen from outside the membership of the Legislative Assembly, but that for practical reasons the Deputy Speaker should continue to be an elected Member. At the summit, the Government also conceded this point and the draft Constitution contains that proposal.

3. The definition of Caymanian. The definition proposed by the Commissioners was considered by many to be circular in nature and too restrictive. We proposed a simple straightforward definition that Caymanian should mean a person who possesses Caymanian status and British Overseas Territories citizenship by virtue of a connection with the Cayman Islands. This definition was accepted in principle by the Foreign and Commonwealth representatives and, by agreement with the Government and ourselves, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office added British citizenship by virtue of a connection with the Cayman Islands to that proposed definition in order to take into account the fact that all persons of Caymanian status now possess British citizenship.

4. Term limits on the holder of office of chief minister. We propose, Madam Speaker, that the holder of office of chief minister should be limited to two consecutive terms. At the summit, the Government also conceded this point and the draft Constitution contains this position.

5. Qualifications for electors and elected Members. The qualification for those who are entitled to vote and to stand for election to the Legislative Assembly proposed by the Commissioners were considered by many to be unduly restrictive and would exclude many persons born of Caymanian parents. The People's Progressive Movement proposed a more inclusive provision and this proposal was agreed by the Government at the talks in London. It has been accepted by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office as it is reflected in the draft Constitution.

6. Referendum. The draft Constitution unfortunately does not contain provisions which would permit a people-initiated referendum. This is a source of great disappointment to the People's Progressive Movement and the People for Referendum. Madam Speaker, we intend to pursue the issue with the FCO following the completion of the consultation process with our constituents. We were delighted, however, to note that the draft Constitution does contain a provision which makes it clear that a motion brought by the Opposition which seeks to have the Government bring a referendum law cannot be rejected by the Speaker on the ground that it will have the effect of incurring a charge on government revenue.

7. Attorney General. Long before the revelations in the Euro Bank trial, we had expressed concern about the manner of appointment of the Attorney General and the extensive and myriad functions of that office. In our position paper, we submitted that the role of the Attorney General should be limited to that of legal advisor to the government and that the prosecutorial functions of the office should be vested in the Solicitor General. We believe then, as we believe now, that the current arrangement whereby the Attorney General is a member of the Executive, the chief prosecutor, head of the Financial Reporting Unit, legal advisor to the Government and legal advisor to the Governor must be fraught with potential for conflicts of interest. We were pleased that the Government conceded this point at the summit and we are delighted that the FCO has recognised its validity as well, and that the draft Constitution reflects this by vesting sole responsibility for prosecutions in the office of the Solicitor General. I have to express a bit of disappointment, however, that our submission that the Government of the Cayman Islands should have the ability to choose its own legal advisor, has met with only limited success. The draft Constitution provides for the Attorney General to be appointed by His Excellency the Governor in consultation with the chief minister. While this is obviously an improvement over the current position, it does not go far enough, in our view, particularly in the light of recent events. The Euro Bank affair has demonstrated overwhelmingly the critical importance of this issue. We pressed this position with considerable force during the constitutional talks in London and, I dare say, perhaps if some Members of the Government had joined in this effort rather than sitting quietly throughout this segment of the talks, except for the statement of support and expression of confidence in the current Attorney General, we might have had more success on this point. Notwithstanding that however, given all that has transpired in and since the Euro Bank trial and the tremendous damage that has been caused to the reputation of the Cayman Islands as a result, we intend to renew our efforts, to persuade the United Kingdom Government of the necessity and appropriateness of this proposal. We firmly believe that one of the key elements necessary in the re-building of confidence in the Cayman Islands is the ability to appoint an attorney general who commands the trust of the community and the Government. To enable this to be done, particularly in light of the recent experience, the appointment of the Attorney General must be made with full confidence in his loyalty to the Cayman Islands and its Government. We will therefore continue to press this position and we hope that what I would have to term "belligerent diplomacy" employed by the Government in dealing with the United Kingdom following the Euro Bank matter, has not adversely affected our ability to obtain this necessary and critically important concession.

Madam Speaker, this leads me conveniently into the discussion of another very important issue arising from the Euro Bank affair, and to which I referred in my opening: that is the necessity to rationalise, restructure and formalise the agency that is currently known as the Financial Reporting Unit (FRU). The Members of the parliamentary Opposition had continuously expressed concern about the functions, structure and organisation of the FRU for more than a year before the news about impropriety on the part of Mr. Brian Gibbs, former director, became international headlines. There had been numerous attempts by the Honourable Second Official Member to justify the unconventional organisational structure of the agency, and there were obvious territorial battles between the office of the Attorney General and the Commissioner of Police regarding who should be in control of this agency. This ultimately resulted in the development of a protocol by His Excellency, the former Governor, by which an attempt was made to identify the lines of authority. The director of the FRU was made accountable to the Attorney General under this arrangement, but this did little to allay our concerns and our fears about the operations of this office. Indeed, it served to heighten them. As things have transpired, these concerns clearly were warranted. Plainly the status quo cannot continue and, indeed, the Government has stated that the agency would be placed on a statutory basis in the near future.

We support the concept of the FRU becoming a statutory authority with clearly stated objectives, authority and functions. We also believe that it would require a name change, given the stigma that has now become attached to it as a result of the Euro Bank trial and the importance of this particular issue should not be understated.

The functions performed by a properly operated FRU are of critical importance to the reputation of the Cayman Islands as a well-regulated jurisdiction that provides world class financial services to major international players.

The Speaker: Leader of the Opposition, you have one hour remaining.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. What must happen and happen quickly is a transformation of the FRU in order that it can shed its present disreputable image. Not only must it be renamed, but it must be restructured in a way that makes it accountable to the Government of the Cayman Islands and not an agency of the United Kingdom Government subject to the UK's control and influence. I am not speaking of a novel arrangement, but of an arrangement similar to that of the Monetary Authority in which the FRU would have operational independence but would ultimately be accountable to the Executive Council. Anything less and the FRU, by whatever name, is going to continue to be viewed as an extension of MI6 or the Secret Intelligence Service (SIS), whatever the name, and it will appear that it plays with its own set of rules and has no regard for the laws and judicial authorities in these Islands. If we permit the current perception of this important agency to continue, we firmly believe that we seriously undermine the continued viability of our financial industry.

By its very nature the FRU requires a multi-disciplinary work force. It requires investigative, compliance, legal and forensic accounting skills. This requirement has created tensions and confusion in the past, particularly in relation to police officers who were seconded to the Unit and who were required to report to both the Commissioner of Police and the Director of the FRU. The proposed legislation which will properly establish the FRU must address this issue and make plain that officers of the FRU are accountable to the head of that agency to the exclusion of other government departments from which they have been seconded. If there are not clear lines established then it is not going to be fair to expect that the unit is accountable to Executive Council. Therefore, we have to have it going in a straight line rather than the left, the right and divided loyalties and one side tearing against the other, as is the case now.

As I said earlier, Madam Speaker, we must resolve this matter with expedition, and I urge the Government to develop and demonstrate a sense of urgency in relation to this issue. Notwithstanding the fact that we know that the Government simply cannot go and create the legislation and make it happen. However, I believe that together we can press the issue forward and put it to the fore and get the matter resolved in a timely manner.

I come now to the latest in the long line of international initiatives which have been a constant companion over the course of the past four or five years: the EU Savings Directive. The parliamentary Opposition shares the concern of the financial community, and indeed the Government, about the potential impact of this Directive on the financial industry, and the economic fortunes of this country. We understand that the impact of the Directive will be very broad and that it will potentially affect any individual or entity which is or ultimately becomes a "paying agent" within the meaning of the Directive. This will include not only banks, but lawyers, company managers, accountants, trustees, insurance companies and trust companies and perhaps other individuals and entities. We also know that the United Kingdom committed us to this initiative by signing the Feira Accord in 2000 without our knowledge or input and then informed us about the matter almost a year later. The Feira Accord is a political compromise among EU member states by which they agreed to the automatic exchange of information. The Savings Directive requires that the Cayman Islands and a select group of other jurisdictions and overseas territories, impose on entities and individuals who may potentially deal with European residents, the obligation to identify, collect and remit identity and tax residence information in relation to interests earned by those European residents and paid to them through these entities and individuals. The requirement will not be applied evenly throughout Europe and its territories. Through a series of political compromises a number of nations, notably Switzerland, Austria, Luxemburg and Belgium have been permitted to opt out of this requirement and instead have agreed to impose a withholding tax on interest earned on accounts within their borders by nationals or entities of further European countries.

The UK reportedly opted for the exchange of information rather than withholding tax because of the adverse impact the withholding tax option would have had on the London bond market. Many jurisdictions, including the Bahamas, Barbados, Hong Kong and Singapore, as well as Bermuda, which is also a UK overseas territory, are not being required to adopt the Directive and these countries are all competitors of the Cayman Islands in the provision of financial services. Since those who avail themselves of international financial services naturally seek the least compliance burdens and prefer privacy, which is only natural, the imposition on the Cayman Islands of this requirement to report transactions to the home jurisdiction of European residents and entities while our competition is not so required, will obviously place us at a serious competitive disadvantage.

Additionally, there are bound to be significant costs associated with setting up and running the bureaucratic machinery which would be needed to comply with this reporting requirement. Therefore, we recognise and accept that this matter poses a great challenge to the entire country. We, on this side, have learned, and I think it is public knowledge, that the British Virgin Islands have agreed to the Directive, and despite not having been required to adopt it, Bermuda is considering adopting it. This obviously further complicates things, when we look at the competition. We also understand that the Cayman Islands Government is challenging the requirement in Europe and we are grateful to the Leader of Government Business for, this morning, apprising us of the current state of play. I should say that we are obviously very concerned about this matter and wish to do whatever we can to support the efforts of the Government and the private sector, to mitigate or avoid the impact of this Directive. I would appeal to the Government at this time not to exclude us from the information loop in relation to this important issue. This is another one of those matters that requires a coordinated approach from all entities in Cayman, and we wish to be able to do our part in this regard.

I wish to say, Madam Speaker, that when Baroness Amos visited recently and I had an opportunity to speak with her, I brought this matter to her attention and expressed concerns, as I am sure the Government would have done the same. While I understood what the Leader of Government Business said this morning regarding the time lines and everything else, I would hope that through constant dialogue we might be able to find ourselves in a position that is liveable, even though it is one of those issues that we wish would simply just go away.

I come now to the Judiciary. I must at the outset record my surprise that a scant 10 lines have been devoted to this important subject in the Throne Speech. Notable among the omissions is any reference to the establishment of the drug courts which was announced in last year's Throne Speech. In last year's address the Government stated that the legislation was being prepared to create drug courts to deal with those who committed offences because of their addiction and who are serious about overcoming their addiction. Government also promised that this would offer an alternative to imprisonment and, hopefully, deter the commission of further offences. This is most laudable, but as no legislation to establish drug courts was brought to the Legislative Assembly during the course of the past year and, as nothing is said in this year's Throne Speech, I am driven to ask what has become of this bold and innovative measure. Perhaps we will hear some more about it. Are we going to have drug courts or is this another initiative that is still-born?

There was also another announcement in last year's Throne Speech: that the progression of plans for a new court building to house the Summary Court in all its divisions: criminal, civil, family, youth, coroners, and drug court, remains an urgent need. Yet a full year later the Government still has not even acquired the necessary property and can only say that negotiations for the purchase of suitable land are underway and it is expected that work will start within the next nine months. Madam Speaker, that tells me that there is no real urgency on the part of the Government to satisfy what is, and has become, a crying need for many years. I am also surprised that nothing was said regarding the serious personnel issues within the judiciary which was raised by the Honourable Chief Justice during the opening of the Grand Court in January this year. I do understand, Madam Speaker, how the judges are appointed, but I still would have thought that in His Excellency's delivery it would have been considered important enough to address this issue.

The Honourable Chief Justice announced the resignation of puisne Judge, the Honourable Dale Sanderson who was leaving the Cayman Islands Judiciary because issues relating to his health insurance had not been satisfactorily dealt with by the Government. At the same time, the Honourable Chief Justice announced that Mrs. Justice Levers had been recruited to the Cayman Islands Bench, but that there were also some issues regarding the terms and conditions of her appointment which were causing difficulties with that appointment. Perhaps we might be able to hear some more about this. Have they been investigated and have the matters been resolved? What, if anything, has been done to ensure that the valuable members of our judiciary are encouraged to remain in the service and suitable replacements are attracted to the service when existing judges leave?

I wish to take this opportunity, Madam Speaker, to offer the congratulations of the People's Progressive Movement, and, in particular, the parliamentary Opposition, to Deputy Commissioner Braggs on his eminent ascension to the highest police post in the land, that of Commissioner of Police. He is the first Caymanian to hold that position and we, too, are justly proud of this achievement. We know that he has devoted virtually his entire working life to police work and we believe the promotion is richly deserved. We also wish to offer congratulations to Assistant Commissioner Rudolf Dixon and Chief Superintendent Anthony Ennis who will become Deputy Commissioner and Assistant Commissioner respectively on Deputy Commissioner Bragg's assumption to the office of Commissioner.

Madam Speaker, I now move on to discuss the troubling issue of health services, because it is a troubling issue. As we are all aware, just over a year ago this Legislative Assembly unanimously supported the creation of the Health Services Authority and the transfer of the responsibility for health care in these Islands from the Department of Health Services to this new Authority. We understood that there were serious questions regarding the cost of administering health care in these Islands and that steps needed to be taken to rein in expenditure.

The Speaker: Leader of the Opposition, is this a convenient time for the afternoon break?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: We will break for 10 minutes.

Proceedings suspended at 3.28 pm

Proceedings resumed at 3.44 pm

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. The Leader of Opposition with 43 minutes remaining and now continuing with his debate on the Throne Speech.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. We understand that there were very serious questions regarding the cost of administering health care in these Islands and that steps needed to be taken to rein in expenditure and collect outstanding accounts. We also understood that it would be a major challenge to achieve these objectives without compromising the provision of health care. Last year a number of health service staff at the George Town Hospital was laid off as part of the retrenchment exercise. I understand that this, coupled with other cost saving measures, has had the effect of significantly containing expenditure. While we welcome the apparent reduction in expenditure by the Health Services Authority, and we certainly wish to commend the Minister for this achievement, I must say that we are growing increasingly concerned at the number of complaints we are now receiving, almost on a daily basis, about the provision of health care of the George Town Hospital. It is felt by many users of the facility that the reduction of health service personnel has adversely impacted the provision of health care. We are told that it has increased waiting time and, in some instances, from the stories that we hear, that the safety of patients may be compromised. We are told also that staff morale is low and that there are serious concerns among medical personnel about business decisions taken by the Board and/or the non-medical senior management at the Authority. We urge the Minister to address these concerns because in the context of the provision of health care business decisions taken without proper regard to safety considerations can mean, quite literally, the difference between life and death.

We also have been alarmed at the apparent indifference of the Authority to encouraging young Caymanian medical personnel to return to the Cayman Islands and work and pursue careers at the Hospital. We are told that in some instances Caymanian doctors are paid less than they were earning in Jamaica, and that Caymanian doctors with specialist training and qualifications are being paid as practitioners. As a result, it is only natural that morale among this young Caymanian medical personnel, many of whom have spent a decade or more away training and gaining experience, is very low. Indeed, a number of them have left or are in the process of leaving. We would implore the Minister to investigate this matter and to halt the drain of some of the finest and brightest Caymanian doctors before we lose any more of them to the United States, England, Jamaica and Canada. I, personally, know some of them have gone or are seriously considering going.

The Throne Speech, Madam Speaker, has stated under the Ministry of Education, Human Resources and Culture that education and human resources are the building blocks to mould, develop and nurture the people of the Cayman Islands. How true. It goes on to say that the Ministry will also table a comprehensive new education policy which will acknowledge the importance of information technology in life-long learning and the necessity to focus more on technical and vocational education. Madam Speaker, we do not need a new comprehensive education policy to tell us what we already know. We need to hear what is being done to demonstrate focus in that area. As far as I am concerned, the words in the Throne Speech are but sweet sounding nothings. The review of the Cayman Islands Education Department which was conducted by Anthea Millet and completed in April 2000 was comprehensive, direct and factual to the point of being piercing. The consultant outlined her findings and delivered a clear set of recommendations. That report has been tabled in this Honourable House for some time now and we hear of all kinds of new ideas. The Minister has even done his own report card. However, can the Minister truly say that, having accepted the Millet report, a comprehensive plan of action has been put in place and that implementation of the recommendations contained in the report is taking place in a timely manner. Besides a few attempts at dealing with the obvious and the glaring, how many of the long lists of recommendations have really been addressed? That is my question. I have the list, as many of us do, and I would like to hear the Minister's response on the timely interventions to address these concerns. There are a myriad of problems with the physical facilities in our public education system. The Minister himself has attested to that fact. We who were here prior to 2000 will remember that the previous Minister brought to this Honourable House as far back as 1999, I believe, a list of needed capital projects for the education system, which totalled almost $60 million, at the time, if my memory serves me right. That did not include the major remedial work needed at our two existing high schools, especially the John Gray High School. I know that we have fiscal constraints, but we cannot keep on saying that education is our number one priority; we have to make it so. I have no doubt that the Minister has a full grasp of the situation. The difficulty which I suspect he has is in convincing his colleagues in Executive Council of the sacrifices that have to be made. We have to impress upon them that we must provide suitable accommodation for our students, otherwise all the other beautiful and modern buildings that the Government constructs will simply serve as monuments to a dying nation.

Education must be at the top of the list in our capital works programme. I think we all know that even if the Government were to act immediately, it would be a wonder if the new primary school to be located in Spotts is ready for September 2004. I hope that that is the case and perhaps as it continues to be brought to the fore, it might happen.

If our economy does not see an upswing in the near future, we are going to see more and more students being moved from private schools to public schools and we all know that we have been bursting at the seams for years now. What surprises me is that when the Minister and I were on the Back Bench between 1992 and 2000, we were on a crusade to get the then Minister of Education to address these same issues. I suppose the Government will blame me for the shortcomings, as they have blamed me for just about everything that they have not done since I was removed from Executive Council 16 months ago. However, I will not be distracted by that. As I remember hearing the same Minister of Education once say, "Not location, location, location; that is for business. For us it must be education, education, education".

I will conclude my contribution on education, Madam Speaker, by asking the Minister to outline to us what his plans are, if any, to convert the George Hicks High School and the John Gray High School to six-year high schools to correspond with the new high school to be built in the eastern districts.

The indictment is not on any one person. If I just wanted to be talking about the Opposition and the Government in this matter, I am not apologising. Perhaps I had best say, to end off, that in asking for the plans regarding the two high schools, we hope we will see that new high school shortly.

Madam Speaker, under human resources His Excellency the Governor referred to the Investors in People Programme. With your permission, I would like to quote the single paragraph that was in the Throne Speech. It reads: "The Employment Relations Department will concentrate on training and retaining the country's workforce through the Investors in People Programme (IIP), an internationally recognised human resource management standard. A pilot IIP Programme will be launched in three government departments and seven to ten private companies and will run for twelve to eighteen months. Participants in the Pilot Programme will need to comply with specified best practices relating to recruitment, selection, training, succession planning, record keeping and employment relations. A group of independent facilitators will be available locally to assist companies with the pursuit of the standard and an independent assessor will evaluate their compliance with it."

By now I am certain the Minister will have seen the paradigm shift in employment in several sectors. Companies are now making moves to avoid direct hiring and the supposed hassle that goes along with that and they are moving to contracting out certain sections of their human resource requirements. For example, American Airlines will make their staff redundant and contract out the tasks of front line staff and ticketing agents to a Caymanian company with work permit holders which the Caymanian staff that are being made redundant, are required to train. What is that going to do for the unemployment rate? Who will pay the mortgages and car loans for these people? I am absolutely certain that there is going to be more of this and in other areas. I really shudder to think what will happen when this trend hits the already stressed hospitality industry. I make that point to acknowledge the difficulties that we face. It is not an easy task and it is going to be very difficult to balance the act, but these are matters that have to be grappled with and sensible resolutions have to be found.

Under capital building works, I see that the new government office complex is to be started soon. It is my understanding that the Government's preferred method of financing its construction is a private finance initiative. I have no idea which variation of that initiative is going to be employed, as there are several, but it appears it has to cost the country more using this method than the traditional financing method. Obviously, it has the attraction to the Government of keeping this particular liability off the balance sheet and, perhaps, creating the impression that the country will not have that as a debt. However, if it is going to be "lease to own" and the Government is going to occupy the premises, then it cannot be hidden as a liability. Perhaps there are advantages, but clearly the proposal to adopt this "lease to own" method of financing needs to be explained to demonstrate the advantages of taking that route. I see that the Civil Aviation Authority has received the final report for the master plan study undertaken last year by the UK Aviation consultants which highlights required development to meet sustainable operational needs for the next 10 to 15 years. The development and the expansion of the main passenger terminal at the Owen Roberts International Airport appears to be one of the priorities and I think the Minister alluded to that this morning. I also understand that the consultants have recommended that the functions currently carried out by the Civil Aviation Authority should be divided in two and that another authority be created. I understand that it is proposed that the Civil Aviation Authority will deal directly and strictly with the regulatory side of things and that there will be a new airports authority which will deal with the management and administration of the airports within the Cayman Islands. Further, I understand that this is not a cumbersome exercise and that almost all of the required trained personnel is already in place at the Civil Aviation Department. I understand it is simply a matter of restructuring and establishing role clarity and the passing of the necessary legislation which can all be achieved in short order. However, I gather that, notwithstanding the recommendations of the consultants, there may be a move afoot to have the management of the airports privatised. This is not unheard of, but I dare say that like the Fire Service, the Civil Aviation Authority has enjoyed a very successful tenure and the staff is well trained. There are several Caymanians there who have chosen and pursued this line of work as a career and Civil Aviation Authority audits show very impressive results, proving their competence. I am certain any expertise to be hired by any private company to manage the airports would have to be foreign, so I flag this, sincerely hoping that we will not be hearing anything about staff at the Civil Aviation Authority being made redundant because functions which they once performed, have been farmed out to private company.

I wish to deal with the subject of tourism, Madam Speaker. There is no question that the regional tourism industry has still not fully recovered from the effects of the 9/11 terrorist attacks on the United States in 2001. The impact of those events on the tourist trade for the Cayman Islands and the region were devastating. The residual security concerns which have followed the incident have not entirely receded and the prospect and possibility of war with Iraq have caused them to be heightened again. What is known as "long-haul travel" has been particularly impacted and occupancy rates throughout the region have been adversely affected. In these Islands stop over tourist arrivals were on the decline prior to the event of 9/11. That has continued, unfortunately, to be the trend post 9/11. Recent statistics produced by the Caribbean Tourism Organisation demonstrate that in 2002 the number of stop over tourists in the Cayman Islands declined by 9.4 per cent, while the number of cruise ship passengers increased by a whopping 29.6 per cent. The actual number of stop over passengers was only approximately 303,000, while the number of cruise ship visitors for the same period was more than 1.5 million. Anecdotal reports from the local industry appear to confirm the continued downward trend in stop over tourists. While the two large luxury hotels on Seven Mile Beach and the resort at the east end of the Island appear to be enjoying good occupancy rates, most of the other properties on the Island are not faring as well. Indeed, one of the major hotels on Seven Mile Beach has just released about 23 or 24 housekeeping staff. Another hotel on the Seven Mile strip has closed one of its wings and is struggling not to close its doors altogether.

The harsh reality is that while cruise ship visitors do bolster the tourist arrival numbers and do make a significant contribution to the local economy, they do not stay in hotel rooms. I believe we need to look closely at our policy in relation to numbers of cruise ship arrivals. There is no doubt that cruise ship arrivals are important to the Cayman Islands, but increasingly it appears that the sheer numbers of them are both producing diminishing returns and making the Cayman Islands a less attractive destination for the stop over tourists. We have to look into that, Madam Speaker. There are a number of important factors impacting the consistent decline in stop over visitors. I believe that principal among them is the deterioration of the product we are able to offer stop over visitors. Cayman is simply becoming less and less attractive as a destination to visit and relax in. Stop over passengers pay good money for a relaxing week in the sun. They do not like to spend it among the hordes of cruise ship passengers here only for a day. Part of the problem is the increasing degradation of the natural environment as a result of poor planning, failure to carry out effective remedial action and, in many instances, over use. The erosion of the beach along parts of the Seven Mile Beach has significantly reduced the quality of the product. The volume of cruise ship passengers which is dumped at the sand bar in the North Sound five days a week continues to adversely affect what was once one of the most unique in-water tourist experiences in the world.

In his debate earlier, the Minister referred to a draft tourism policy. It made some interesting observations and recommendations regarding the rehabilitation of the Cayman Islands tourism product. These, as the Minister stated, include a moratorium on the building of hotel rooms on Seven Mile Beach, as well as a significant reduction in the number of cruise ship visitors. The Minister has indicated his lack of satisfaction in relation to both of these important matters. He has thus far not laid the draft policy on the Table of this Honourable House and so, at present, we are still left to wonder.

The Minister may not like the draft policy which was commissioned by the Government. However, one thing is certain: if a coherent, realistic and sustainable policy in relation to tourism is not developed, adopted and implemented shortly, the Cayman Islands is going to see an acceleration of the downward trend of stop over arrivals, with the attendant loss of income and the inevitable loss of jobs. After all, who will visit and spend money in a place that they consider no longer attractive?

Madam Speaker, permit a moment to turn to what I consider the most damning aspect of the administration's stewardship to date. It is what I refer to as a lack of a social conscience. Often we hear the Leader of Government Business and the Third Official Member speaking in glowing terms about the performance of the country's economy and the fact that the Cayman Islands remain the fifth largest financial centre in the world. These are all flattering statistics when taken on face value and in isolation. Anyone who might read this on the Internet or in the various publications produced by the Government would quite naturally assume that life in Cayman is synonymous with the proverbial "life in paradise". Anyone then going through the trouble of visiting these Islands and driving along West Bay Road by day or by night would get a true glimpse of paradise. We live in a country that is home to several of the large names in the global hotel and resorts industry and, in a matter of months, we will open one of the Rolls Royce of visitor accommodations, the Ritz Carlton. That is all well and good, but then there is the other side of the Cayman Islands. I speak of the plight of the scores of Caymanian families who are living below the poverty line, who at some points all of us have spoken about, depending on where we sit. I speak of the dozens of heads of households who cannot guarantee their families the very basic of life's requirements: adequate food, clothing and shelter.

Before I continue, when we talk about education and training and retraining and we try to attach importance to it, we know that not all of the answers are overnight answers. However, every time we think we are getting somewhere, something seems to stop us. Then there is another distraction, perhaps there is a boom in the economy, and we forget about what we were doing because we do not think it is so necessary any more because everyone has a job. We run through the cycle and whenever the bottom falls out again everyone is in trouble. It is easy to get that way, whichever side of the fence you are on. It is not something that I think anyone intends to happen. The Minister spoke earlier of an economic development plan and he referred to—I made a note here —“economic growth creating opportunities for businesses”. He spoke of the need to apply importance to the human resources side. I do not think, because I do not think this is the one to get into a fight over, that any of us does not want the right thing to happen, but we have to stay focused and make sure that it remains a priority. We have to create the financial resources to do what has to be done with it.

The Speaker: You have 14 minutes remaining.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Yes, Madam Speaker. Thank you. If I hesitate and sound frustrated it is only because I know of our desire to make this happen. There is benefit to all of us to have an educated population; to have our people well placed in jobs; not to have the dissent that we have now with some of our people about foreigners coming to take away their jobs. Businesses in such a competitive world need trained personnel because of the way life has evolved. We have these problems. The Minister spoke earlier about encouraging investments and that we must appreciate that we are going to have to import skilled labour, which is fine. However, in doing that, we must ensure that we have a skilled labour force of our own and that they are deployed, so that any other needs are only after our people find their niche. They cannot do that now, because there are so many of them who are not tooled. Whether we wish to lay the blame on them personally or otherwise, that is the fact and we have to do something about it. We have to see the tangible results of it.

Visitors to the Cayman Islands are introduced by this administration to West Bay Road and the communities along the Island main road, but what about the districts just outside and beyond of the chosen route? What about the communities in all of the districts that need uplifting? What about those communities in East End and North Side which still have no access to piped water? There is also a large section of the population in Cayman Brac that does not have access. I know there are fiscal constraints and that you have to try use the resources attached. I keep hearing the Minister, whenever it is his responsibility, trying to make it sound as if I am not supposed to say the things I am saying because I do not understand the job. The Minister understands his job well and I understand mine well, so the Minister can easily come back and say, “This is what we are going to do about this and this is how we are going to do it”. That is all I ask. That is what this whole exercise is about; this is not about the Minister or me.

Madam Speaker, this administration came to office on the premise of wanting to create a better way of life for the residents of these Islands. Eighteen months later we have not seen any great difference.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: We, the People's Progressive Movement, are of the view that lawmakers past and present are to blame for dealing our less fortunate in our midst, what I would call a rotten hand. Perhaps not intentionally, but that is the result. The truth is we have not been our brother's keeper. We did not use the glory days of the '80s and the '90s to better the living standards of those at the very bottom. For this we are all guilty. We are saying that, notwithstanding what has been the case, we must now begin to show our efforts in doing something about it. We say that in the year 2003 that this country, which boasts about being the fifth largest financial centre in the world, must have minimum living standards below which no one under its shelter must fall. We, the People's Progressive Movement, will adopt a zero tolerance for this unnecessary suffering. This is where they will have great fun because it is now that I am going to say what we will do. Besides adopting that zero tolerance for the unnecessary suffering, we will move, within six months of being elected, to make sure that pipe water is brought to every single home in the Cayman Islands. Where a means test shows that a family cannot afford to install or hook up to pipe water, then we will simply have to underwrite the cost of that. Let it be made very clear: this is not about creating a welfare state. This is simply about doing what should be done. Where it is determined that a family cannot afford in-door toilet and washroom facilities, then certainly we will have to do something about that also. We intend to develop a special programme of assistance for senior citizens, the indigents and the disabled. I heard mention of it this morning, when the Leader of Government Business was speaking about his Economic Development Plan. We will see what happens between now and then.

I think about the recent flooding in the George Town area and the fact that this country, with all its celebrated wealth and affluence, could not mount a more positive and meaningful response to the plight of scores of households, many of whom went without basic necessities for an inordinate length of time. As I hear the Minister for Community Services making sure that he tries to distract me - and he will not this afternoon - let me say that the fact those same people are represented by not one, but two persons, in Executive Council appeared not to have had the necessary weight in determining what further, if any, assistance could be given. One is forced to ask—and by the way there is a big difference because I am at a big disadvantage. I do not have a television show, so I can only choose my moments sparsely—

The Speaker: Order!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: One is forced to ask, “Why were these persons allowed to languish in a state of hopelessness and deprivation in a country that boasts of a $43 million surplus on its current account?” We, the PPM, are very concerned about the quality of health care that is afforded to less fortunate families in this country. In summary, Madam Speaker, the response of the public in general to the Throne Speech as scripted and delivered, ranges from disappointment to frustration. People were hoping that the Government would have offered hope to those reeling under the pressure of economic downturn. The Government has not articulated any new policies or approach to solving this problem. Madam Speaker, my colleagues will be responding to the Throne Speech and they will be dealing with their various topics. Let me say that, even when I say nothing, the same licks that the Leader of Government Business talks about keep coming. I said it once and I tried to avoid it, but there is no avoiding it now. They can understand that it is going to be lick for lick from here until then. They can do as they wish. I will stick with my positions and not be personal in my debate, but they cannot expect that they will not be put to task for their actions or lack thereof.

Thank you.

READING BY THE HONOURABLE SPEAKER OF MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

Expression of thanks to His Lordship, Honourable Chief Justice Anthony Smellie, QC,

The Speaker: Before I call for the motion of the adjournment for today, I wish to go on record to thank His Lordship, Honourable Chief Justice Anthony Smellie, QC, for allowing Parliament to meet in these premises (second floor of Kirk House, Albert Panton St) to allow necessary renovations to be undertaken at the Legislative Assembly.

I now recognise the Leader of Government Business to make a motion for the adjournment.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, we propose to adjourn this Honourable House until tomorrow, Thursday 13 March 2003 at 10 am.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House be adjourned until tomorrow, Thursday, 13 March 2003 at 10 am. All those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

At 4.29 pm the House stood adjourned until Thursday 13 March 2003 at 10 am.

OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT
THURSDAY
13 MARCH 2003
10.26 AM
Third Sitting

The Speaker: I invite the Honourable Member for North Side to grace us with prayers.

Business, the Honourable Minister for Education and the Honourable Third Official Member.

PRAYERS

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal Family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office. All this we ask for Thy great Name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

Proceedings resumed at 10.29 am

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed.

MINISTERS/MEMBERS
OF THE GOVERNMENT

The Speaker: I have not received any notice for statements for today's sitting.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

Debate on the Address delivered by His Excellency the Governor on Friday 7 March 2003

(Continuation of debate thereon)

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? Does any other Member wish to speak? The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, I would like to begin my contribution to this Throne Debate 2003, if you allow me, first by remembering a dear cousin of mine, Phyllis Alidia Morgan, nee Dixon, who passed away on 1 March 2003 at age 51, in order to include her memory in the Hansard of this Honourable House.

I would like to say publicly to my cousins, friends and relatives who have mourned and are mourning Phyllis' passing, that she was a very good example of a sharing, caring Caymanian who put family above self. With that, Madam Speaker, I would ask that the Almighty God continue to bless those that are closest to her, including her husband and her son, Joselyn Morgan, who we all know as "Coach".

Madam Speaker, the Leader of the Opposition—

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, before embarking upon it, please permit me, on behalf of myself and, I am sure, all other Honourable Members also to express and convey our deepest sympathy to you and your extended family and we trust that God's guidance will continually be yours. Please proceed.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, I appreciate those kind words.

The Leader of the Opposition, the First Elected Member for the district of George Town, in his delivery yesterday, reminded me of All-to-All in the Kingdom of Everything.

In the Kingdom of Everything, there is everything, and the Leader of the Opposition is All-to-All in that Kingdom because he has, in one two-hour debate, solved all the problems of all in this Kingdom by being All-to-All in that Kingdom, which he was unable to accomplish in 12 months of Government. In this Kingdom of Everything there is no taxation, but there is unequal possession of wealth. In that Kingdom, the Leader is able to redistribute wealth by waving the magic wand and water comes to people, toilet facilities come to people in six months when he could not do it in 12 months. Therefore, he had to retreat into fantasy in the Kingdom of Everything in order to accomplish in six months what he did not accomplish in 12 months.

It appears, Madam Speaker, the Leader of the Opposition has arisen from a depression and now everything can be righted six months after he is placed in the position of leader of this country. I remember, in November 2000, when this Member was given support by myself and other Members to be the Leader of Government and he decided that my social engineering was not what the Government and the people of the Cayman Islands wanted or needed, although I had worked and sacrificed for many years to be in the position to develop a social management strategy for this country that would finally make sense and would have cohesiveness.

That Member made the mistake of rejecting what he had put down on paper with my pen to form a Government for these Islands that would have given him the possibility to deliver water and housing and everything else. He made the decision to go to West Bay and, as a result, the country ended up with a Minister responsible for Social Services, his colleague from the district of North Side. She was there for one year. I will talk about what was done in that year and what has been done in the year since I have been there; what kind of social engineering has been going on; why his choices of a Minister to be responsible for the social management of this country is flawed and why I am a more capable, more involved, more connected Minister. That is what is eating him out.

He and his kind believe that they can still control people with turtle meat; that they can control people by giving them a little bit at a time and not allowing them to manage or redistribute the pie in a way that makes sense.

I am always surprised by the leader of the Kingdom of Everything. He is everything to everybody at all times. He even came to me and said, "Frank, I really did not mean that your housing strategy is going to be a national embarrassment," although that is what I thought I heard him say, "No, bubba I am with you, I am behind you, I am supporting you with your housing". He never mentioned housing in his Throne Speech. He mentioned our affordable housing initiative as it now stands. Before I came here this morning, I drove into the first site that we will have off July Street on Oakmill Street in Windsor Park, Templeton Pine where the first 30 houses will become available to people with very low income. He never mentioned that, he never mentioned the fact that in this Throne Speech we spoke about that and he is talking about a Throne Speech where it suggests that the Government is no longer in contact with the people. Well he must be no longer in contact with the Government.

He is no longer in contact with us because he is not listening to us. He is not listening to us because if he listened to us and knew exactly what it is that we are doing, it would create nightmares for him because his sole objective, Madam Speaker, is to ridicule and criticise so that he can have power again.

Now, he cannot have any good designs for the little black boy from George Town, Frank McField, because somehow I cannot fit in to his plans. He did not, in November 2000, when he had a chance when he walked away with me from the counting room at the primary school in Red Bay . . . and I told him then—and if he has a good memory he will remember the words I said (and I cannot say that in this Parliament) . . . but he knows that I am a McField. I am saying this to say that that gentleman has had opportunities, and so none of my family in George Town or elsewhere can believe that he means me any good because he had a chance to demonstrate to them what he thought of me and he went to West Bay. He went to West Bay. I did not go to West Bay, I stayed in George Town; I stayed central, I stayed put, I stayed resolved. And when the clock turned, when the chicken came home to roost, I was given the opportunity that I had been fighting for in this country since 1977. I have made good use of it and I intend to demonstrate in this speech what I have done in my Ministry to make people understand that I am serious now—just as I was serious in 1997 when I came back from Germany with my PhD.

I was a late starter in the educational system and, if my parents had not gone to New York, I would never have had the opportunity. I talk about my loving cousins and they had instinctively certain qualities that I might not even possess now. I might not be the same person who has the freedom and the ability to hang up in people's doors and talk to them on a particular level, but that does not mean that I do not love the people. It does not necessarily mean that I am not out there working hard for the people. It does not necessarily mean that I have forgotten how black I am and where I come from.

I am tired of people not being able to repeat on the microphone what they tell people and what they hear some people saying; some people that want to blackguard you saying that how they agree when they know better. I have come to the point now where I have to call a spade a spade, and I want all the people who know and trust me to see the spade as a spade. It is time that they are disallowed from going into people's kitchens and making these false promises and giving them this false information when they know different. When they know, when they had the country in 2000-2001 for 12 months that the country was in a worse state than it had been, that they had gone out to borrow to do things and yet they could not do enough and now in the Kingdom of Everything, when he takes over, he is going to do everything in six months by borrowing again? Or by making the people who are better off in this country contribute a little bit towards the social development and the economic progress of the poorer people.

He borrowed $50 million. Now, in the Kingdom of Everything, how much more is he going to borrow? However, he cannot borrow any more, Madam Speaker, because we have the budgetary and debt issues in the Cayman Islands Annual Report 2003 by Joe Bealey and Mark George that says that the Government of the Cayman Islands will be restrained from borrowing. So where is the Honourable Member going to get the money from in the first six months of 2004 when he comes into power? Where is he going to get the money from in 2004 to do what he could not do when he came into power in 2000? In 2005, thank you; for six months in 2005.

I do not want to get into their type of arithmetic. I know what I am saying and they know exactly what it is that I am saying. I am saying that they had a chance. If they did not have a record, it would be different, but they have a record that we can see. The people should know when they make their promises that they have no basis to prove that they can be any better than we are.

I have been in the Ministry of Community Services, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports for four months more than his Minister. The Elected Member for North Side was there 12 months. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, a Member of the Opposition, had Social Services since 1997. Therefore, on his Back Bench, are the people who controlled the social systems in this country since 1997. What have they done? Why are the youth, family and other social problems here because I have spent 14 months? There are not here because I have spent 14 months. They are there because for the longest of time, going back all the way into the 1970s, the Governments of this country refused to believe that social planning was necessary, was urgent, and was needed and people who tried to come in with new innovative ideas were pushed aside, called radicals, called black power advocates, called this and that and the other thing, but God works in strange ways.

It is incredible because I always continue to thank the people of George Town and the people of the Cayman Islands for the fact that I was able, after all other problems that I have experienced, to lift myself up with their help, into a position where I can now see what needs to be done and where I can now fight.

However, Madam Speaker, it cannot be done in six months. It cannot be done if I was only given three years because somebody else took away a year from me, because rather than him going according to what should have happened in November 2000 he went West Bay and took away one of the four years that I would have had to create and implement a social plan for this Island. That is what happened to these Islands.

I had three years and that is a short time. He has one Member on his Back Bench that had three years too with Social Services from 1997-2000 and let me discuss the difference.

I realise that the Social Services Department in this country is big and bureaucratic, meaning that there is plenty red tape; there are numerous procedures; there is a lack of people seeing the urgency of the client. There are times, I believe, that many people see their needs before they see the needs of the client. That is part of the problem that we have and we are looking into ways of trying to resolve that problem. When I took over the responsibility for Social Services I did not let the Director, Deputy Director, Permanent Secretary, Assistant Permanent Secretary or anybody else tell me what had to be done and what could be done in the restructuring of Social Services.

The reason why is because I realise that ultimately I am responsible to the people of these Islands and it is me that they will hold accountable, judge, and say that I have betrayed them and did not deliver. Therefore, regardless of what the constitutional arrangements are, I have to achieve my outputs in ways that are reasonable, but I have to achieve them, because my contract is up for scrutiny in 2004.

Madam Speaker, it was obvious to me that the Social Services Department was too big, that the focus gets lost because there are so many issues that are competing. You have one person in the department who decides what issues will come up to the ministerial level in order to be dealt with and to be supported financially or otherwise. There is a big problem there. If you have children, youth, senior citizens, probation, parole issues, a series of social issues, you need to do prevention, intervention and cure. It is therefore my argument that Social Services needed to be restructured and so I decided to hold meetings with the Department Head in order to convey to her, and the Deputy Director, the direction in which I felt that Social Services should be going.

First, we decided that we would not continue with the Cayman Islands Marine Institute (CIMI) contract. This is something that the previous Ministers on that side decided that they would continue with, because from 1997-2000, when the Member for North Side was there, they decided that they would continue. There was a conscious effort to continue that relationship with the Associated Marine Institute Inc. (AMI) in the United States.

What we found is not only did Social Services, in my opinion, cause many young well-trained Caymanians to leave the Social Services Department, but also those persons that did go to CIMI under AMI were not necessarily getting the kind of response that they should get because at the end of the day it appeared to me that AMI was interested in keeping its contract. It was not necessarily interested in giving Caymanians the feeling that they can run an institution for boys and girls with behavioural problems.

We believe that there have been Caymanians who could do this job among us for a long time. We therefore decided that we would try to Caymanise our children and youth services. It means that we have established, with the guidance and help of Ms. Mary Lawrence, whom we brought on as an advisor to my Ministry. It is interesting that although in 1997 the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town had Social Services, he did not bring on Ms. Mary Lawrence as an advisor. The Member for North Side had the Ministry for one year and she did not get her involved. However, I felt that Ms. Mary Lawrence, JP with her experiences in the juvenile courts and as a JP and her being an advocate for children for so long in this country... I remember back in 1978 she worked with the Northwester. She was one of the people who came to me and started talking to me about the poverty and the need for families to have assistance on the preschool level; that we could not wait for children to go into the primary schools; we needed preschool education.

I remember that she was an advocate for children. I said what we need is a good advocate; we need an organisation outside Government supported heavily by Government, but autonomous, independent enough to be able to advocate on behalf of the children. It led to the formation of the Children and Youth Services (CAYS) Foundation and, the Government supported that. The United Democratic Party Government that the Leader of the Opposition is criticizing and saying that there are five Governments supported it. They supported it, the Minister of Education supported it and expressed that he wanted to see something like this happen when the Member for North Side was there. That is what the Minister of Education said to me.

Now, Madam Speaker, all I can say is if we look at the CAYS Foundation chaired by Mr. Dick Arch, the deputy chairman, Reverend Crawford, is the minister at the United Church of Jamaica and Grand Cayman in Elmslie Church. The Minister of Education and I attended a meeting with them yesterday to clarify issues, but they are acting as an autonomous body that is advocating the rights of children to an education and a future. The Member for North Side, when she was Minister, did not set up an organisation that had that clout and autonomy and yet had Government financial support at the same time. What did it lead to? One of the things that it led to was the cleaning out of much mess that was being hidden, both by the Education and Social Service Departments, and warehousing these kids at Bonaventure and, at the end of the day, they were bound for Northward Prison.

We cleaned it up. We brought out some of the problems in the open. We started to encourage our people to openly discuss and debate the Education Department, if necessary, with regards to it. That does not mean that it is more than one Government. It means that the Government has different hands and the hands have different fingers. If I move this finger this time and I do not move this finger, it does not mean that they are separate and that they are working separately; they are working together although they have differences in the way they perceive or the speed at which they move. Sometimes it has to do with the speed at which they move rather than the way in which they perceive the problem.

Therefore, I am saying that Michael Myles, who is the manager at Bonaventure House, who is a Caymanian from the Shedden Road area, is back in this country not because of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town (who was the head of Social Services from 1997-2000) or the Member for North Side (who was in charge of Social Services from 2000 to late 2001—for 12 months), but because of me. I, Madam Speaker, started to change the system. He recognised it and wrote a letter and said that he would love to be of some support to his country and to his people, that he had left because of frustration with the Social Services, that he had left because he had gone to CIMI, and because of the AMI program, he had been frustrated also by the way in which he was paid. However, if he could contribute to a change in orientation towards the management of social problems, towards social engineering in this country, he would be the first one to get on the plane. We said, "Yes, we are ready for you because we are not going to let happen to you what happened to Frank McField because Frank McField is in the driver's seat and he is going to protect you all the way. You are not going to lose your job because you stand up for your people." We made sure that he had airline tickets to come back with his three daughters.

He gave notice and left without question to come back to take over here. He has turned the place around, Madam Speaker. We invite the Leader of Government Business to go down there and take a look to see what Michael Myles has done.

The Speaker: Do you mean the Leader of the Opposition?

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: The Leader of the Opposition. Thank you, Madam Speaker, you are more awake than I am.

However, people like Michael Myles do not get into the system. They do not get protected in the system without people like Dr. Frank McField who feel it and know what it is when you come from a group of people and you see them be disadvantaged every day in the system and you cannot speak about it because if you speak about it you are colour-prejudiced, and you this, and you that and the other thing. So I am happy that Michael is back in this country. We have made sure that he gets a salary that will allow him to exist, will allow him to do his job and make numerous sacrifices for his country. And his wife will soon be back.

Therefore, I am saying, Madam Speaker, that the creation of the CAYS Foundation was a very important move by the Government. How could the leader of the Opposition not refer to the fact that this was included in the Throne Speech? How could he not see what it says here?

“In 2003, the restructuring of the Social Service Department will continue, with the Youth Residential Services being moved under the new Children and Youth Services Foundation, set up in 2002, when the Government decided not to renew the contract with the Marine Institute”.

“Chaired by Mr. Richard Arch, the Foundation will be responsible for the Bonaventure Home (formerly the Marine Institute) the Frances Bodden Children’s Home, the Hope Centre (formerly the Boys Home on Middle Road) and the Place of Safety”.

How could he not have seen that and how could he not have been listening to the press release? How could he not have been listening to the Public Eye show that he accused me of having what he does not have, what he could have because he has more money than I do and he has had it longer? He could easily have a TV show if he felt that bringing the consciousness of the people to a different level rather than placating them in trying to somehow be so paternalistic—“Yeah, we know how you feel”—rather than doing that to try to encourage us to get to a level where we can all mutually support each other and not one have to depend upon dragging the other one down every time.

He needed to have listened to the talks that Mary Lawrence was doing at the Rotary Club. He needed to have known that she had persuaded people at the Rotary Club to become involved. Now we have Rotarians involved with the government children and youth services to a point that we did not have before. I am not saying they were not involved before, but they see new enthusiasm because we have taken it away from the bureaucracy that stifles it and now we have put it in a position where it can be focused on, where it can be developed and where it can be nurtured. How could he not have seen that as part of the restructuring process Social Services will be split between financial assistance and social services?

How come on page 12 of this Report he did not see that and he could not understand the significance of this? Does the man understand social language? Who is advising this man about what my Ministry is doing? It means that we have perceived and have been willing to deal with the problems that are caused by the fact that people think that Social Services are about welfare cheques and not about correcting the dysfunctional behaviour and values which exist in our families and our communities; to give people the possibility to be able to compete in the same society that the Leader of the Opposition competes in, and that his children will compete in, and that his children will not be dependant upon hand outs. It is the same thing that we are talking about; not give, give, give. It is about teaching people to fish and not giving them the fish. That is why we are restructuring the Social Services. That is why in 12 months, with all the difficulties of dealing with the government bureaucracy, in all the resistance that you get, I have continued on my path to restructure that Social Services because it is important that when I leave, and if that be in November 2004, at least I can look back and say I have created a foundation, now use it.

Social problems are the results of many causes. I must give the former Minister, the Elected Member for North Side a compliment. Her Government set up the Commission of Inquiry into social breakdown and youth violence and I was the chairman of that committee. I discovered so much—not just what the problems were, but what was compounding those problems, because they were not being dealt with. People were not serious enough about it. We need a system and a structure that will bring a missionary type of attitude towards assisting people in solving their problems rather than this mercenary type of attitude: “I am a worker, I get paid, that is all I am going to do. I am not going beyond a particular point”. We found out that if we do not deal with the restructuring, the rebuilding, the reconstruction of our families, we cannot deal with the reconstruction of our communities. If we do not reconstruct our communities, our country is in serious problems. Yes, we have a water problem and we know it, but we have many other problems too. Yes, we know we have needs, we have physical needs, but we have some moral and spiritual needs that need to be attended to.

There needs to be a focus on the family, on children, and, for this reason, we intend to create a unit specifically in Social Services that is called the Children and Family Services Unit Social engineering. They must really think that social engineering is the result of some legalistic conceptualisation of clerical nonsense. I did not expect anyone to understand that, Madam Speaker. That is basically a joke. The creation of a unit that deals specifically with children and families means that the young parent programme that was created to deal with pregnant teens will be a part of that, but it will only be a small part of it now. We intend to use that building, the Joyce Hylton Centre, and make a whole parenting place out of it. We are moving that away from the Place of Safety so that will no longer be the Place of Safety. We will close that down and use that building as the Children and Family Services Unit building and we will have different types of courses and treatment.

We are going to bring the Children's Law into this Sitting. It is mentioned in the Throne Speech that this will happen. It says:

"After much delay a revised Children's Law will be presented to the Legislative Assembly during the first half of 2003. This will replace the 1997 law, which proved administratively cumbersome. The review of the current Adoption Law will also be finalised. These legislative advances will allow Social Services to concentrate more clearly on children's services, the goal always being to solve the problem in a way that allows the child to remain with the parent(s) where possible."

The fact that this man did not see, and never mentioned it; is it just politics? I hope it is not personal; I hope it is just politics. I hope he is just trying to cloud the atmosphere so that the people in central George Town, in particular, will see me in a not too good a light, because being so dark there are not going to see me anyway if there is not enough light. I hope—because this is English here and it is so clear that I cannot understand why that Member could not have seen that children's services is going to be an emphasis for us. However, you cannot deal with children without dealing with their parents. Throwing that old stigma on people and saying, "Well, you know, look at her, she has five children, she is lazy and does not want to work" and all those kinds of things. No, Madam Speaker, that is not the attitude that we want to encourage. That woman who has five children is a very important producer because without reproduction we would not have any society.

My Ministry is responsible for gender affairs and women's affairs and we understand that the whole idea of casting someone out simply because they have children and saying they are no good because they are not contributing to society—that is not true because we understand how many problems we have when we do not regard their contributions to their children as a contribution to society. I prefer to work that way. I prefer to work to say that if children are so important, the parents are and if a parent is, a house is. A house is—and we talked about housing at the end of our contribution here in the Throne Speech. "Oh, it was so boring", says the Leader of the Opposition. It says here under Housing: "Various studies have identified the lack of affordable housing as a contributory factor to social breakdown. In 2003, the Ministry will continue its Affordable Housing Initiative, phase one involving construction of two hundred homes in a number of communities. Additionally, the Government will establish a framework of housing entities that will, in partnership with Private Sector financial and construction institutions and companies, provide a continuum of housing tenure options. These will range from rental (assisted or otherwise) tenancy to outright purchase and will incorporate the Government Guaranteed Home Mortgage Scheme."

"Physical infrastructure alone will not build sustainable communities and strong families without the necessary social support systems. [Social engineering lacking in this Government?] Social intervention in the form of skills building and job training will, in conjunction with the Ministry of Education, be provided to ensure that people living in the improved residential areas have the requisite life skills to lead productive fulfilling lives."

Social engineering! Do not tell me it is talk because we like to walk the walk, not just talk the talk. We are walking the walk, and if some of you would like to, I would like to suggest that we adjourn and take the Opposition to the first site that is being prepared so that they can see for themselves what is being done there. I bet not one Member of that Opposition has been to any of these sites. If they have been to these sites, as they are saying, how come they could not come here and give us some compliment for it? Madam Speaker, I know what the answer is.

The Speaker: Please pass comments to the Chair.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, I know what the answer is. They are Opposition. They oppose anything that I do and they will only try to find the bad things and they will never say anything good.

It is important for us to realise also that we have decided that the Probation Department needs to be looked after, because crime has emerged as one of the major social problems that we have in our society. Crime and deviance many of us have seen as one of the results of social disequilibrium caused by a rapidly changing society. We are now in the process of having a review of the Parole Board. This was mentioned in the Throne Speech and it is a very important fact. Again, we never had them mention anything about that. We also talked about our Chapter House at the facilities at Northward Prison. We said that: "The construction of the new enhanced accommodation allows conversion of the former female cell block into a Young Offender wing. This includes a discrete Secure Juvenile Unit (Chapter House) with a capacity for 14 and its own classroom association and sports area. Additional funds have been provided for specially selected and trained staff, including teacher/counsellors to provide the education and activity."

They have started hiring for Chapter House already, so, from the point of view of crime and deviance being one of the major social problems, I think that we have set out to deal with them.

I was on Rooster Radio, Madam Speaker and the host of the show was very surprised that my Ministry had accomplished so much. I have a long list of some of these accomplishments and I do not want to spend my time reading them out to the Opposition who know them. I certainly think that somehow the general public knows. Just another example is the crisis centre that was recently opened. The Opposition talked about this Government and it being out of touch with the people. Is he saying that because we are buying a building for the crisis centre and supporting the establishment of a crisis centre, it is out of connect? Does that represent disconnect—the fact that domestic violence in our society is affecting children and others? For a very long time, people have been talking about it, including the Minister that was responsible for Women's Affairs, who brought a private member's motion to have a crisis centre established, but was not able to accomplish that during her 12 months. I was able to have it open within 14 months of being there. Is this what the Leader of the Opposition is barking at the Government for? Is this what the Leader of Opposition is barking about? However, I think you were in Government at that particular time in 2002. Do not worry about that. Well, I must actually be getting to the fly now.

[Laughter]

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: I think that the crisis centre...money came from the crisis centre to purchase the crisis centre. It was money that was taken from the Orchid House. She had a capital project for the Orchid House which was to build near the Fairbanks Prison, a prison basically for young people and we decided to scrap that Orchid House programme. We took money from it from December 2002 to purchase a house that was identified for the crisis centre. We also took some of the money to try to boost up the performance of our national football team. We are aware of the fact that we needed a continuum of care for young people. We are aware of the fact that just one element will not do. Therefore, we wanted to have the Chapter House that would be there in case there were juveniles that were not responding to the other types of positive encouragement which the Government and its partners would be making available, in order that they might have the chance to modify their behaviour and gain the social and educational skills that would make them productive individuals. That is just one extreme of the programme.

We are bringing, Madam Speaker, two new counsellors to Substance Abuse Services who will deal with juvenile issues. How long has it been known that children were using drugs / marijuana at an early age? Why is it me who is making sure that we have two additional counsellors that have that orientation? Since we now have responsibility for Substance Abuse Services—and we, with a little encouragement, helped to point out that a Caymanian was needed in the position of director of Substance Abuse Services; that a Caymanian who also knew the juveniles' needs in this country would be someone who would be good for it. We have Ms. Judy Seymour, a very capable Caymanian who is now the acting director there and should, I believe, eventually be promoted to director of the Substance Abuse Services.

Two additional counsellors will be added to her regiment in order to deal specifically with juvenile issues which will give us a possibility to be able, at Bonaventure House, to have a specific programme for young people with these substance abuse issues as well. Also, we will have a counsellor who will be able to deal with the prison and will not just have to rely upon voluntary assistance. We will still appreciate that very much, but at least we will have someone there who will be able to coordinate that type of activity. There is no point in incarcerating people when 40 per cent of the people incarcerated have substance abuse problems and at the end of the day we are doing nothing to make sure that they are counselled so that when they do come out at least they will have a better chance of not going back to prison.

I think that one of the interesting things we mentioned in here was Canaan Land. We upped the grant for Canaan Land from $25,000 per year to $100,000 per year because we have nothing against faith based programmes. We are encouraging Canaan Land and its directors to play a more important role in providing facilities for people who are affected by substance abuse issues. Therefore, there is much that is going on in our Ministry. There are many changes and much focus from the point of view of dealing with these social problems.

Sports, Madam Speaker—one of the things that we have done is have the Caymanian coaches' salaries and positions re-evaluated so that they will have more opportunity to earn better wages. However, we are also saying to them that as you are earning more we expect more from you, which means you have to make yourself available to be trained. That does not necessarily mean that you have to go away. We have courses that we have been doing since I entered the Ministry. Mr. Winston Skinner has been coming here occasionally to do courses in development in terms of sports and coaching in community development.

We are moving the Community Development Unit to Sports and Youth so that it becomes the Community Development Youth and Sports Department. Since the Community Department before was in the wrong place, operating under the wrong assumptions and the wrong policies, we are restructuring it so it will be more with that particular Department. Overall in sports, we are seeing sports and physical activity as instruments to rebuild our community and to preserve the social capital in the community. We do not believe that we can develop youth without developing the community or develop the community without developing the youth so we are putting those together because they have to work together.

It is really unfortunate that the Leader of the Opposition could come here and make the remarks about social engineering. I think that he made them specifically because he wanted to pick on me because I come from George Town. I hear he comes here all the time, but I never hear him say that he comes from George Town. He comes from every place else, but he does not come from George Town, according to him. Sometimes it gets on my nerves as a George Townner that I have to fight off these people who come from elsewhere.

Sometimes I wonder what it is they care for. Is it really the Kingdom of Everything where you can be All-to-All? Madam Speaker, I know where my heart is and it really offended me yesterday when somebody was telling me that there was a flood in George Town and that people were displaced and basically the Government did not do anything about it because the Government is disconnected to the people and the Government has no social contract. I do not know where the Leader of the Opposition was the night of the last severe flooding that we had in the district of George Town. Perhaps they will get up and tell this Honourable House where they were. I know one thing, Madam Speaker, I was in the flood and I was in the areas that were most traumatically affected by the flood. As a matter of fact there was one picture on the television with my car going through the flood on School Road. Many people might not realise that it was my car, but it was my Legend and it was going through there. I am not saying that to brag because that was my job. I am saying that the Minister responsible for Public Works, Mr. Linford Pearson, was also out there because we spoke on the phone.

When I went to the Scranton area the people had come out to Rohelio's garage, I was there. I made sure Mr. Carson, my Permanent Secretary, was out that night. The Deputy Director of Social Services, Ms. Gwen Dixon, was out that night. I spoke to the Leader of Government Business on the telephone and he said, "Do whatever you have to do. Spend whatever money you have to spend to make sure that these people are well taken care of." Some of these people were my family members and then these—I do not even want to say the word—come to say what they said.

The Speaker: Please do not say it Honourable Minister.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: I was there and I was very concerned about the fact that we still have these kinds of problems in Cayman where rain comes and people have to run out. However, I did not create those problems, Madam Speaker. I come from one of the poorer families too. I have used an education to try to make it better for myself, but not if these boys feel that they still have to run the shop and I have to come there to get credit every time and I have to get credit from them.

The point was that I stayed out that night at Sammy's Inn to make sure that people were put in accommodation. I made sure that if it was full that they could go to the Holiday Inn or Sunset House. My Department had a plan, we executed it and we did it well and there was no crisis in George Town. There was heavy rain, but there was no crisis because there were people who cared who were out there capable of dealing with the issues.

Since that time, and as I—

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, you have one hour remaining. Would you care to take the morning break or would you wish to continue?

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, I would just like to do five more minutes and then I would take the morning break.

I would just like to say that we housed over 100 people—hotel accommodation for 33 families. Thirty-three families is a large number of families to deal with in that particular instance. I never saw the Second Elected Member for George Town who was saying that he was out there. I never saw him that night and he did not see me. Of course, he went around saying that I was not out and I went around saying that he was not out. That is because there is such a divide between the two of us that, God knows, it is best to probably keep us separated in certain circumstances.

We housed 33 people. I do not know how many they housed, but let me tell you one thing: we are the Government; we are the ones with the resources; we are the ones with the legitimacy to do it and we did it to the fullest extent. When people start doing things for other people because of their political parties, we do not know about the legitimacy of a political party to go around doing certain things. I questioned that too. We have charities in this country, but we have to be careful in regards to politics and the giving because it is enough when it happens during election time. I am just saying that to say that I believe that each Member and the Member for East End now who is going on—he is the first one to come to me when he needs something. He knows that they can come to the Government and say, "This person did not get something" or "This person is in this situation" but before they do that, Madam Speaker, they prefer to go out and make mischief, to make my family think that I do not want to help them and talk about the little house that I have that does not even look like the house that they have—creating resentment.

Let me tell you, Madam Speaker, each Member of the Opposition knows that they could have called me and said, "Dr. Frank, this person needs..."

Madam Speaker, we sent Public Works around and I have a list to assess. I am not saying that Public Works or Social Services or any government bureaucracy is perfect. We know that it all has problems and I am one of the greater critics of the government bureaucracy, but to make out as if the Social Services Department did not do anything ...

33 families were put up that night. So far the Government has expended more than $82000. $82000 has been committed. There are repairs on people's houses that have gone all the way up to $5000. This was not budgeted for; this is an extra expense that the Government has. Therefore, why is it that the Opposition is using the flood in George Town to try to pretend that the Social Services Department, led by me, has not reacted properly? I, first of all, Madam Speaker, would like to put on record that I got out there as a Minister, that I tried my best to coordinate to make sure that my people were doing, even after the event, what they were suppose to be doing. If there are instances where my Social Services Department did not do what they were supposed to do, I would like the Opposition Members to report this to me because the people would be better off if they have a Social Services Department that is doing what they are suppose to do.

We have a Member of this House who went and got a law degree and he thinks that because he became an important Colonial Clerk that he has the understanding of all issues. Madam Speaker, I think I would like to take a break at this time if it is possible.

The Speaker: We will now have the morning break and I would ask Members to try to reconvene within the fifteen minute allocated time.

Proceedings suspended at 11.36 am

Proceedings resumed at 12.01 pm

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Continuation of the debate on the Throne Speech by the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Services.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, before we took the short break I had been speaking with regard to my disappointment in how the Opposition Members, especially the two Opposition Members from the district of George Town, handled the situation with regards to the last flooding. I remember when the Leader of the Opposition, the First Elected Member for George Town took over in 2000, there was a big flood in George Town. I remember going with him into the swamp area of George Town, Washington Boulevard. I remember going into the Scranton area. I remember the fact that he had an opportunity at that particular time to make sure that more drains were placed in many of these areas and the question is:

how many new drains were provided? I am not saying necessarily that the drains themselves will do the job, but I remember that the question of flooding in George Town is one that has been ongoing.

It is interesting that when we had the flood that the flooding in the area of Randyke Estates was not as terrible, simply because the Government had developed some mechanism to relieve the water. What happened in the Washington Boulevard and the Scranton areas is that the water came down so fast and because the Scranton area has these places that are all built up around the communities, some of the houses that did not flood before were flooding at this time.

It leads us to believe that somehow it would be positive to think about alternative places for, at least, some of the younger people in the area to be able to afford to live. This is the reason why we have started to concentrate on the first affordable housing projects in the district of George Town and this is something that the Government has agreed.

We realise, Madam Speaker, how the problem of overcrowding and housing in the district of George Town, which houses more than half of the population of the Cayman Islands, is very serious. This is the reason why we are giving priority to the development of housing in George Town. There is some criticism that the Opposition has been throwing at us regarding the housing project: from the use of the material to the use of the company. However, I still say that there are good possibilities; that we have challenged the established order here sufficiently now to begin to deal more realistically with companies which are not seeking just to bleed us, but which will sit down and talk more reasonable contracts and terms with us.

The Italian company that we have employed, Vetromeccaniche Investments, to deliver these houses is in contact with several local companies and electricians in order to have more local Caymanians involved in this particular enterprise. However, as most people know, I said from the very beginning, it was a challenge to create the houses and not create the jobs in the first instance. We have tried to fix a price that we would like to stay with. Of course involving more local contractors will perhaps affect that price somewhat, but not much, and we would like to accommodate everybody as best as possible. We know that we cannot please everybody and we know that the people who are looking for affordable housing—and we have over 700 people that have listed their names for these houses—are to get information from us each day as to what to do.

We intend to bring to the Executive Council the Housing Trust concept so that the Government will create a Housing Trust that will own and operate these properties and make sure that they are physically and socially managed to the best of the ability so that they are not going to become slums. However, if you have the Opposition going around trying to discredit the Government's Affordable Housing Scheme, trying to throw labels on them, more or less trying to marginalise and discredit these houses, then people are going to think that it is not worthwhile and that they are getting something that is no good because the better off members of the society, who can afford the different kind of accommodations, are turning their nose down simply because they are trying to find something wrong with what the Government is doing. I do believe that I have made a good effort to try to deal with a very difficult problem and that this Government is totally behind that project.

I am not saying that there are not many different ways to reach the village, but rather that you have to choose one road to walk. Once you have chosen that road it gives other people the possibility to lay-wait you and try to ambush and discredit you when they never made the efforts themselves.

I am saying that, Madam Speaker, because I understand that the Opposition is, as the Leader has come in here and said, trying to take a credit for the process of constitutional revisions. One of the things that is in the Constitution that the Leader of the Opposition and his deputy, the Second Elected Member for George Town, are taking credit for, is the creation of the multi-constituencies. That would mean that the district of George Town would be divided up. They seem to have always felt that this is what they wanted to have happen to this country because they have two Members, one from the district of East End and one from North Side, who are in a constituency by themselves, but they only have one representative and they feel logically that should be the state of all the country—that the country should be divided into 17 constituencies.

The interesting thing that the Opposition is going to have to explain to the people in George Town, especially the people in central George Town, is why they have insisted on George Town being divided up into little parts. What are the politics behind the division of George Town and the fact that it must happen now? Why did they put so much pressure on the Government to concede to their particular demand if there was going to be any advancement in the constitutional debate? I did not go to England to discuss the Constitution with anybody. I decided that I did not want to go even if I was asked to by the party. I did not push myself and I decided that I was not going to talk about the Constitution because there were so many more things that were important here for me to try to achieve. I do believe that I am beginning to achieve some of these things even with the difficulties of the bureaucracies which surround me.

I would like to say that the Leader of the Opposition and his Deputy are creating politics for the central George Town area, particularly in central George Town where people believe it will be divided up. Perhaps they do not really have that much of an emotive relationship with people in central George Town to know how we think and what our roots are and the deep family connections between all the people in that area. Therefore, when they start introducing this type of garrison politics to the central George Town area, creating this deep divide there, like no place else, they should remember what it is that they are doing: cutting families and little areas up, because I wonder how they see it.

If we look at the voting tradition of the central George Town area—and I go back to the 50s when I first started to be conscious of politics and you had people running in this area—elections were a colour issue. The people in central George Town would be looked at as the "black people" and they would want to have a candidate and so forth and so on. The issue of how Caymanians regard colour and race is a little strange, but I am saying that there is, especially during election time, much talk about race and who the black people are going to vote for, and if the black people do not vote for you that means that you are not going to get in and so on.

Everybody knows that central George Town black people have been a very important element in the whole election question in the Cayman Islands. The whole idea of dividing or separating them from other areas in George Town so that those people do not have to rely on the people in central George Town, to me, tactically is not the best thing; but as I said, this is what everybody seems to be pushing for. The Leader of the Opposition and his Deputy seem to want to take much credit for the fact that they have achieved that type of division—to move central George Town away from impacting the overall election of candidates in this country. Without the central George Town votes I never would have been elected in the Cayman Islands in 1996 or 2000, but particularly in 1996, that central George Town family vote that I received was significant. Therefore I can see why people would look back on it and say what we have to do is remove central George Town from having that much of a say in who we elect in South Sound and in Red Bay and remove central George Town and case it off by itself.

The question is, once they do that, who are they going to run in central George Town? Why is it that their political party are concentrating so much on central George Town, when it will only be one of the many constituencies that George Town will have? The concentration on central George Town is because people in central George Town are poor and black. They think that they can continue to easily manipulate them and control them by taking advantage of their misfortunes. I have spoken about this with regards to funerals and different things: how they feel that they can get in there and take advantage of people and not get people to see the greater good. It takes a little bit of striving and a little bit of sacrifice, but they can get there if we give their children the opportunities, and this Government is willing to give their children the opportunities, to give their families the opportunities to have housing and to reconstruct.

The housing that we will be providing will provide for many people in these areas, like young women with children who could not afford high mortgages. This is what we are working on and they are trying to control people with their politics.

The question is, Madam Speaker, if they see central George Town as so important to control now, once the constituencies are divided, who are they going to run in central George Town? Is the Leader of the Opposition going to run in central George Town because his connections are so great there? Is his Deputy Leader, the lawyer, going to run in central George Town? Or do they have another candidate? If they have another candidate, what does that person have to look like for them to run for central George Town? What kind of politics is it that they are doing? It appears to me that there is a candidate that they seem to have decided on to run in central George Town—somebody that ran in the district of George Town overall in the last election and was not successful, but could have been if the Leader of the Opposition and his Deputy Leader had allowed that person to participate on their political platform.

This is extreme politics and manipulation. How is it that they did not run with that person? They did not hold that person up as a person that the people of the whole district of George Town should vote for and support in the last election. However, now they are going around with their garrison politics tactics trying to convince people that that is the person that they feel should control central George Town.

It would be interesting to find out once they have divided the district of George Town into all these constituencies, which constituencies the Leader and Deputy Leader of the Opposition would want to run in. It will be very interesting to find out about this whole division that the People's Progressive Movement have introduced into this country, simply because they could not find a way of controlling the power of this country without sharing it with people who were not of the same class background as themselves. They tried in 2000 to keep me out and now they have created a movement to try to keep me out again. All I can say is that after the turtle meat and breadfruit that they fed me in their nice homes, I do not think it is unreasonable to expect that I would have to at least try to get something that is half way decent, knowing what they have, because the only way I would have got to their house would be that way. I would not be invited to any social functions; that is for sure.

The point, Madam Speaker, is that when they go to that extent to control because they believe that they are the ones who have a monopoly on education, intelligence and morality, it is not true. This paternalistic, plantation, massa type of attitude has to cease because they are bad copies of massa in the first place. I am tired of people not willing to look beyond the fact that people in the George Town community are voters. They are more than voters; they are people and they need to be told the truth. We had enough of this when the Leader of the Opposition got up on many occasions and challenged Mr. Truman Bodden, who was the Leader of Government Business, on his shortcomings. When the Leader of the Opposition had the chance to make a change in this country in 2000, when he could have got a government together, he did not seem to know where to go.

I know that there are many people out there who are saying, "Thank God, the Leader of the Opposition is not the Leader of the Government. What state would this country be in if you had six of one and half a dozen of the other?". What would have happened if we had that kind of leadership who did not have the courage to bring in the revenue measures, to give us at least that little $8 million that I hear them talking about that they would like us to redistribute right away? They never even had the courage to vote for the revenue measures that we had to bring in regarding the financial community and there was no more possibility of borrowing. Where is this money going to come from? Are they telling me that they are now going to be the People's Progressive 'Mao Mao' Movement? Are they telling me now that they are going to take the money from the rich and give to the poor? Do the words Progressive People Movement equate to some Maoist type of movement? If the man is going to be able in six months in the colony of everything to have the funds to do all the things that he is going to do, with bringing water to everybody, what would the cost be and how would you cover the cost?

Possibly some of the speakers who will come after will be able to tell us exactly how they intend to institute the Kingdom of Everything, where you can do in six months what you could not do in 12 months. This is what is so ridiculous: that this man would have the courage to come up here and tell the people of these Islands what he would do in six months after being elected in 2004, when he had 12 months and he did absolutely nothing in George Town. What about the little park that we have now in Washington Boulevard in the Swamp? Within 12 months I did, at least, get a piece of land and get it filled. I got a little fence around it and got $38,000 to spend on it to get that little park in the Swamp going. We also got some more drains there and we are going to do more things there. What did he do in the 12 months?

We got a little place in Scranton where we are going to open a recording studio where children who have some kind of talent can put it on a tape; where we will have a projector where they can watch movies and discuss things they are being influenced by. It is taking a long time because of the bureaucracy, but the Government support has been there, the money has been there and it will happen. We gave the children the possibility to come; it is painted red. Many people do not like the fact that it is painted red, but it is what the kids decided. If, at the end of the day, the community objects to it, it is only paint they will have to change, but at least it is there. My goodness, he had 12 months and what did he bring to Scranton besides peppers and turtle meat? When I ride through that neighbourhood I feel for the people, believe it or not! I might not be jumping out there saying, "Hi, how are you doing blah, blah, blah" but I feel it and I see. I see problems there that need to be dealt with.

Unlike most of us who have toiled and struggled with prejudices and disadvantages in our society, the Second Elected Member for George Town has come to the Legislative Assembly as a privileged boy who intends to maintain that privilege and that superiority over people based on the fact that he has a law degree. However, Madam Speaker, I have always said that a law degree, unfortunately—with all due respect to you as a lawyer as well—does not necessarily mean, in all instances, that the person has a capability to have a vision, to have the capacity to hold the feelings, and to suffer when suffering needs to be done in order to maintain one's dreams. Once one has those dreams for one's people, it is not easy to be able to implement them because there are more questions than answers; there is more to it than just getting up there and making a boastful speech.

I want that Member to know today that I come to defend my turf, defend where my navel string is buried, and defend the experiences of my forefathers. I come to say that, at the end of the day, I see myself as being more capable of representing the families in Central George Town than he will ever be. However, Madam Speaker, it was not as if I could change the whole picture as soon as I got in Government. That is impossible because we saw that his friend, the Leader of the Opposition, could not do it in 12 months. All that I am asking the people of Central George Town and other areas to look at is what he did in 12 months and what I have done in 14. It is only two months more than he had and that is a good test. Even if I did bring a little park in here, we got the park fixed up in the Windsor Park area. We got a little bit done here and a little bit done there and we do not have millions of dollars any more. I have come in at a time that is not the same as when the money was flowing, but I am making sure that every little dollar counts, and every little thing goes towards helping to improve the general lot. I do not find it amusing that people think that I will talk and smile about politics and that is why they are doing this to me. It is because of politics. They are just taking over where some of their family people ended up.

This situation about the Seaman Ex Gratia benefits is a taxing one because the Government of November 2000/2001 and the Minister responsible for the portfolio at that time, the Elected Member for North Side, decided that because of the financial situation of the country, the criteria be changed from what they had been. Previously the Government that you were responsible to, Madam Speaker, provided for 600 recipients of the Seaman Ex Gratia benefits and a total of 596 applicants were processed and paid up to the end of December 2000. When the Member for North Side came in, the ex gratia benefits were cut and a total of 144 persons were taken off. This was the result of a reassessment. For them to now turn around and make it seem as if this is a result of this Government and of this Minister is not fair.

My Ministry revised the criteria again in February 2002. People with household incomes of under $1500 per month were reinstated for the surviving spouses. At this time there were 453 seamen or their surviving spouses receiving the benefits. Funds were approved to add 60 seamen in August 2002 and we went to Executive Council to get those funds that were not in the Budget. By the end of December 2002 a total of 504 seamen or surviving spouses were receiving Seamen Ex Gratia benefits on the new criteria. At the end of February 2003 there were 516 seamen or surviving spouses receiving benefits. There are four applications that meet with the revised criteria to be processed. There are an additional 81 applicants who have not submitted their current income. These persons have been contacted by telephone. Madam Speaker, I did not return this to the original position that existed when you had the Ministry, where there were more people, but we revised the criteria in order to allow as many people to benefit as the Government felt it could afford.

Therefore, Madam Speaker, it is incorrect to say that the Government does not have a social conscience, or that the Government is not doing anything to help the people. I could look at the poor relief. One thing that I must say is that the Leader of Government Business has been criticised for using it to get votes. My Ministry has done what we could to make the criteria as flexible as possible, but we have applied the criteria to the persons receiving poor relief. What the Leader of Government Business has encouraged is that we remove the necessity for children of parents to be examined in order for their parents to get poor relief money. Therefore, it is easier now for an elderly person to be able to qualify and to have more money in their bank account. One thing I can say about the Leader of Government Business is that he has more social conscience than anybody in this Honourable House. I am sorry; I just had to say that, and no bad feeling towards you. The Leader of Government Business is always on and on about this Ministry and what people are getting. The former Minister from North Side knows that as well as I. That is important for us to get.

The Ministry of Community Service, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports is a very big Ministry because we also have responsibility for the prison. We have done a substantial amount of work in improving it and making sure that it is a vital community service and that those persons who go to prison have an opportunity to improve themselves whilst they are there. We realise there are still a great deal of problems and we still need to be thinking about a halfway house for prisoners. We know that unless we ease those individuals back into the society with more support, the chances are they will re-offend. We need to look more at the characteristics of the offences and the people creating them, and give the probation department more encouragement and support in collecting empirical data, to make sure that the perpetrators and causes of those crimes are better known to us, so that we can not only create preventative measures, but also be able to assist those individuals in overcoming the many difficulties that they might have.

More money is needed for social programs. The Government needs to understand that without a social strategy that will improve social cohesiveness, our social capital will begin to impact negatively on our physical capital. All the work that we do to keep banks here will not suffice if we do not find ways of making our population more socially healthy. Madam Speaker, this needs a consolidated effort. This will not be done by sporadically trying to take political advantage of the Government; by working through political groups not the social agencies and charities; and political individuals becoming involved in handouts which could be construed as being done solely for political purposes to receive political favours later on—"Look what I did for you". The Government has a legitimate right to deal with these issues and has set up criteria to assess people. It is not right when the Government uses one criteria and a political group trying to win votes uses another criteria in order to destabilise the Government and the position of the Government. Social services and charitable work in this country have been done for many years by the churches and other groups in this society, but the mere fact that a political organisation, a Maoist group, thinks that it can control the people in this particular way is an intervention, is a change.

I used to hear people tell us about the time when the merchants used to hold a cow and put it there and say, "You get the cow when you vote". Now it looks like you get the cow before you vote.

[Laughter]

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: I am saying this, Madam Speaker, because I am disheartened at the fact that the Member for East End can call me to ask me, as the Minister responsible for Parks, for assistance with the building of the park which the Government agreed to with the Dart Foundation in East End. However, when he gets up to speak, he will say all sorts of things about this Government because he has to defend his Opposition colleagues. However, there are many Dixons in East End and plenty of those Dixons are my family and we went to East End and did some financial assessments which we felt were necessary. He was upset because I took Members of the United Democratic Party with me, or they called me, to visit these people and as a result of that we had Social Services assess and a few more people got on the social relief roll there. However, he could not call me about some other problems that his group wanted to take advantage of, so he knows how to nicely call me on the telephone to get things done. At the end of the day he knows, although he is the Elected Member for East End, he is not part of the Executive Council branch of Government. He is not part of the administrative branch of Government. He is not empowered to administrate anything directly with regards to Government resources. He is not legally and constitutionally entitled to do so. However, what the people are doing is setting up their own alternative welfare organisation, which I believe could create an issue.

If they are doing it for political gain or purpose then it is difficult. If he is involved in the parks for political purposes only and there are other people that want to be involved and they have to be pushed out, how am I suppose to go in there and deal with it? We already have that kind of divide there and we have to be careful that we do not have it also in Central George Town where people say, "Well I do not want Social Services because of blah, blah, blah". I think—

The Speaker: You have 15 minutes remaining Honourable Minister.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: The Peoples Progressive Movement (PPM) has embarked upon a course of action that is very delicate, although we understand we have a political party system here. You are supposed to impress people with your programmes when the change comes, with what your Government in waiting is going to do. You critique the policies of this Government, you suggest what your alternatives will be, you encourage people to vote for you, but if you start trying to upstage the Government's legitimate organs for social welfare and improvement by setting up your own systems, are you doing that for political reasons? Or are you doing that because people are so badly off that if you did not do so they would be much worse off? I put it to you that if you reported these instances to the Minister or the Department—and the two Elected Members for George Town have not been in contact with me in any case to tell me about any situation that they have discovered that needed to be dealt with. They have seized the time like Maoists and grabbed the opportunity to try to run with people in a different direction.

Why is it that they could not call me? I called them when they were in power and there were floods. I was out there talking with them when they were the big bosses. However, they did not want to be near me because they did not want people to see that I am now the person in the position because they would never want to accept that they are not king, especially not in those neighbourhoods. They could have called me. I insist that they could have called me and they could have said, "Dr. Frank, there is somebody down here. We talked to Social Services, blah, blah, blah. Try to do something about the situation"- but they did not.

I will sum up by saying: I thank the people for the possibility; that I have had the opportunity to fight a fight that has been a good fight, and to still land on my feet and still be able to challenge those deceitful wolves who harbour in the background waiting to snatch the prize for their own. I thank the people of this Island for having the confidence to vote for me. It is only fair that I say, that I believe that I understand many of the social problems in this country. I believe that it will take some time to be able to deal effectively with these problems. I believe that we have made a better start in the two additional months that I have had. I am sure that when the Member for North Side, who continues to talk and talk, gets up and has the opportunity to make the long speech that she always loves to make, that she will outline, in this long debate of two hours, some of the things that she did that she thought were unique and different; and why she thinks that if she is the next Minister responsible for Community Affairs that she will be able to take the problems head on the way that I have been able to.

I would like to invite all of the Members of the Legislative Assembly to a game at the Annex on 16 April 2003. If the Member for North Side would just listen I think she would be interested in this announcement, because she is interested in sports. We have tried to restore the Annex to its original grace where people can come and see domestic games being played. One of the attempts that we have made in Sports is to bring sports back to the community. There seems to have been too much focus on the regional competition and the national teams and not enough focus, perhaps, on the development of the domestic leagues.

One of the ways that we thought that we would be able to improve the domestic leagues is to bring sports back to the individual districts and into the areas where they had flourished first of all. Therefore, we have spent quite a bit of money on the Annex field to upgrade it. It looks great now and we would like to see the finals on 16 April 2003 played there. We would like to invite people because I did that too. It was not done by the 12 month Government that the Leader of the Opposition was in. I did that too for George Town. There is a little piece of land next to the T. McField Youth and Community Centre that this Government bought and we are going to make a little market there. We were thinking about putting a tennis court there but when the road is closed, McField Lane will be increased and we are going to put a little market in there. We are going to be doing little small things in George Town that really make the difference.

The Speaker: You have eight minutes remaining Minister.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: I am sorry, Madam Speaker, that I might not have, as a Minister, talked more about the overall situation that I should concentrate on, but I have concentrated very much on politics. I am not going to apologise about that, and talking about how I think the PPM is manipulating people, especially in the district of George Town because I do not think that they hold any meeting in West Bay or do anything in West Bay.

[Interruption].

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Oh, they are down there, too.

[Laughter]

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: They must be all over the place.

All-to-All in the Kingdom of Everything — in the Kingdom of Everything All-to-All promised the people that he could do more in six months than he could do in a year. All-to-All said that the reason he could do more in six months than he did in a year was that anybody knows that if you think about something you can get through the problem much faster than when you have to do it. All-to-All had all the time, 12 months to do it, to put water in every house, but All-to-All could not do it. However, in the Kingdom of Everything All-to-All will do it in six months. All-to-All will do all for everybody next time because All-to-All did not manage to do it in the first place.

Madam Speaker, this has probably been my most political debate. I am fired up. I am insulted by the fact that All-to-All could come here and tell me that . . .

The Speaker: Order!

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: . . . he can do more in six months than he could do in a year. Does he think that people do not have any sense? If he had not been given the opportunity or the encouragement, then it would have been different.

The Speaker: You have five minutes remaining.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: It always amazed me, Madam Speaker, from the time I read Don Quixote, the Lilliputians and all those fairy stories about how political wizards could create these systems and hypnotise people and get people to believe everything, that I never read a story where there was turtle meat food that caused people to be put into the situation where they believe all the things that were being said. I have to agree that I believed them one time too. I believed that All-to-All could be All-to-All in any kingdom not just in the Kingdom of Everything. However, I believe now that All-to-All should be banished forever to the Kingdom of Everything and leave this place alone because All-to-All already had a chance here. Let All-to-All therefore reign with all in the Kingdom of Everything. Thank you.

The Speaker: We will now take the luncheon break and reconvene at 2.30 pm.

Proceedings suspended at 12.51 pm

Proceedings resumed at 2.38 pm

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

Continuation of the debate on the Throne Speech. Does any other Member wish to speak? Does any other Member wish to speak? Last call, does any other Member wish to speak? I take it that no other Member wishes to speak and by implication passes up the opportunity to debate the Throne Speech.

The Elected Member for the district of East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, I would not have allowed the Throne Speech to be closed down because the Government did not see fit to speak any further. It is expected that since the United Democratic Party is made up of nine Members that more of them would have spoken before any of us continued. Nevertheless, Madam Speaker, I shall continue.

I have my notes to debate from, but before I get into the meat of my debate I consider it incumbent upon me to reply to some of the things that the Minister of Community Affairs addressed in his debate this morning. I was particularly amazed at how the Minister tried to distance himself from the social problems that the country is experiencing and rightfully so, from his perspective, blame them on everybody else whose wake he is continuing in.

If the Minister is right in his assessment that ministers prior to him are to be blamed for all of the social ills in this country, then I would draw his attention to September last year when he and other Members of the United Democratic Party (UDP) went on television, on his show, and blamed me for the social ills in East End. If he is going to distance himself as Minister from those affecting the country then, all the blame cannot be placed on me for what has transpired in East End over the past many years, because I was not a Member of this Honourable House. Therefore, Madam Speaker, if the Minister needs time to straighten those social ills out in this country, I would respectfully ask that he and the other Members of the UDP in the district of East End understand and respect that I need time too.

He has held the helm of this country's affairs in that respect for a little over a year. I have been the representative for the district of East End for a little over two. On that same show, the Minister said—and he repeated it again this morning—that the Executive Branch of Government is responsible for the distribution of wealth and he is correct. It is his responsibility to ensure that the wealth in this country that must be distributed by Government is distributed. He also holds the responsibility to ensure that it is distributed on an equitable basis. Madam Speaker, I think it is only fair to give him time, but he must stop the talk and do what he said this morning which was walk the walk.

This morning the Minister also spoke of how I was upset because he and Members of the UDP Party came to East End and did an assessment within that district. To say that I was upset is not entirely so—not about the assessments and the help. What concerns me is his way of upstaging me as the representative of East End. Why is he doing it in that manner?

He talked about the out staging that the PPM is doing of the Government legitimate machinery. Let me go back, Madam Speaker. Then he asked, "Why is the PPM doing it? Is it for political or personal reasons?" Now I pose the same question to him. Why is he trying to upstage my position as the representative of the people of East End? Is it personal? Let me remind the Minister of Community Affairs that when he speaks of his family in East End, I am very aware of who they are. However, he has no more family in East End than I do because all of his family in East End is my family too; it is that simple. If we are related then we are all the same one family. Therefore, I do not understand the basis for him bringing family into this. What is the personal agenda that the Minister has?

Then he talks about how I try to befriend him. Madam Speaker, the Minister has a responsibility to this country. He has the responsibility for the distribution of wealth. It is my responsibility to address the issues that affect, in particular, the people of East End. Who am I to go to when there is a need for Government's intervention? It is him, Madam Speaker. So, this political rhetoric has to stop. We have to stop trying to fool the people and ensure that we educate the people on how the process and the system works.

Like he, Madam Speaker, I do not have any money. He talked about the Kingdom of Everything. I do not know where that came from because I certainly did not grow up as a privileged boy. I also spent many days with baskets on my head going into the land. When I came out of there with my father at least I had provision in it. Yes, I, too, spent my time in the trenches. Therefore, my rise to this position did not come as a result of being a privileged child and the Minister must stop this. Madam Speaker, my family was so poor that we lived in a one-bedroom house. My parents had seven of us. I recall the number five bath pans that you had to fill with water and put out in the sun to warm to able to bathe in the evening. I did not have running water in my house. The Minister of Community Affairs, Madam Speaker, was more privileged than I was because he got the opportunity to go to America. The first time that I wore shoes to school was when my father sacrificed, from his little trucking business, to send me to prep school. I started my education in the Town Hall in East End barefoot and wearing short brown pants. That is probably why I do not have attractive feet today because of kicking out the toenails. Therefore, Madam Speaker, no one in this country must claim that I am privileged.

What I have I have worked for—and honestly. I take offence to the Minister making such remarks because he knows that it is not true – it is just political rhetoric. You must be honest with your people and he is not.

The Speaker: Honourable Member for East End is that your opinion?

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Of course, Madam Speaker, but thank you very much for elevating me to Minister's position.

The Speaker: It is short lived. I do not vote in East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: A bit premature but after 2004 perhaps. Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Please continue.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: The Minister spoke of how the First and Second Elected Members for George Town are trying to manipulate the people of George Town. Maybe he needs to tell the country how the UDP are trying to manipulate the people of East End also. I have my finger on what is going on, trust me. In September 2002, on that same television show that I referred to earlier, the Minister and his Members talked about the drug use in East End and that the Elected Member for East End was doing nothing about it. By Christmas time, Madam Speaker, they were up there giving out gifts in the form of liquor. Somebody needs to tell me what that meant.

Point of Order

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for the district of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, I rise on a point of order because the Member suggested by, "They were giving out liquor in the district of East End" that the United Democratic Party was and that is misleading the House. If he can support that suggestion I will gladly withdraw my point of order.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End, would you be so kind and repeat what you have said?

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, perhaps if the Member was listening he would understand what I said. I said that on the television the UDP was talking about how drugs are so prevalent in the district of East End and how I am doing nothing about it. I did not say the Minister, I said Members of the UDP, in East End during Christmas—which was within three months—were giving Christmas gifts in the form of alcohol.

The Speaker: Member for East End, can you say whether any of those UDP Members were the Elected Members present here today or any of the Elected Members not present?

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, I just made that straight. It was not the Minister or any Elected Member that I am aware of.

The Speaker: Thank you for the clarification. Please proceed.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you. It certainly says volumes for the policies or the objectives of anyone who does that.

I could confirm, Madam Speaker, my knowledge of where the Second Elected Member for George Town came from as well, but I am sure he will ably do that in his contribution. Suffice to say that my knowledge of the Second Elected Member for George Town is that his navel string is buried in East End as well. The Minister talked about his navel string. Well, mine is in East End too. I know the Second Elected Member for George Town spent most of his time in East End as a young boy and I saw his father push him very hard with cows and land baskets too. Like me I guess he would kill the parrots with slingshots to prevent them from eating provisions and crops in his father's land; and wore wampers as well, but perhaps the Minister does not know what wampers are. I do not recall ever seeing him taking parrots as pets, nor myself.

The Speaker: Member for East End, would you please rope your argument in and stop making innuendos.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, I shall move on. The intent really was not innuendo and I do apologise if that was your understanding of it.

I will get back to the Minister for Community Services when I reach his section of the Budget.

When I arose to make my contribution to the Throne Speech I was reminded of my thoughts when it was delivered by the Governor on 7 March 2003 in Cayman Brac. When it was being delivered the only thing that came to my mind was watching the monitors on a critically ill or dying patient, when all the organs being monitored have failed and there are no more bleeps and usually they call that a flat line.

On 8 November 2001 when the UDP came to power—and I might add under still questionable circumstances—their reasons for the coup were very clear, if not justified. They said that the country was not moving forward under the leadership of the First Elected Member—

Point of Order

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: Please state your point of order.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, the Member is misleading the House by suggesting that on 8 November 2001 there was a coup. A coup has a clear definition and what occurred on 8 November 2001 could in no way be defined as a coup. Therefore, I respectively ask for the Member to withdraw that statement.

The Speaker: Member for East End, I take the Member's point of order in that what transpired on 8 November 2001 was legal and there was no litigation emanating there from, or any objection during the time from the Parliament. I would ask you to withdraw that section of your statement as this House does not consider it to be a coup, and, in fact, had any Member present during that time considered it to be, then that was the most appropriate time to make an objection.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Certainly, Madam Speaker. While I shall have to bow to your ruling, I guess, a rose of any colour is a rose.

The Speaker: Member for East End, I have asked you to withdraw it. It was a request for an unconditional withdrawal and not for any remarks that are going to result tantamount to the same statement.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I respectfully withdraw the statement concerning a coup.

The Speaker: Thank you. Please proceed.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: The UDP Government of today said that the country was not moving forward under the leadership of the First Elected Member for George Town and they were going to stimulate the economy and be the saviours of the Caymanian people. After more than one year in power and the delivery of another Throne Speech, the UDP are yet to show their shining armour that was promised.

If this is the UDP's way of stimulating the economy then they have failed miserably. As if recognising that the 33 pages given to the Governor were planned and uninspiring, the Leader of Government Business came to this Honourable Chamber yesterday and, as is now the custom, delivered a second Throne Speech, which was equally long in length and short on substance. In his contribution, the First Elected Member for George Town spoke of the Government and the technocrats with their arithmetic that was amply demonstrated in the presentation of the Leader of Government Business because the Leader of Government Business spoke as one from on high who has no clue of what is happening on the ground in the Cayman Islands.

It appears that this Government has mastered the art of reciting the cliché statements of multilateral institutions. They are no longer speaking as representatives of the people of the Cayman Islands, but as representatives of the International Monetary Fund, the European Union and other technocratic agencies. As a result, we now find ourselves having to debate two Throne Speeches, the total sum of which provides no basis or hope or comfort to the working people of the Cayman Islands.

Throne Speech Number One, Madam Speaker, which was delivered in Cayman Brac by His Excellency The Governor, was merely repetition of all those which had gone before. I went and secured copies of the Throne Speeches dating back to 1997 and you would be amazed by the familiarity of the utterances made back then and of those given by the Governor on this occasion in Cayman Brac.

It is obvious that the macro-policies and plans of the Government are all the same; the distribution of resources is the same; the noble goals of developing our people and institutions are the same. Madam Speaker, what is clearly lacking is the will and the know-how in the UDP Government. It appears the Government cannot get beyond the rhetoric of the technocrats who pen their speeches. There is obviously a disconnection between those speechwriters and the politicians, for both of the Throne Speeches say one thing and the Government is doing another thing.

In November 2002 the Government proposed a six-month Budget and bragged of a $43 million surplus. Within weeks we saw the Government introduce an increase in garbage fees. This was after saying, in the introduction of that Budget, that they would not increase taxes, and I quote from the introduction: "For 2003 (half) no changes in cohesive revenue or new guarantees are being requested."

Within a few days that identical revenue measure was withdrawn because of gross public outcry. Let me thank the Minister responsible for withdrawing it because it was going to bring some hardships on our people. How many times in the last year have we seen the UDP making these draconian decisions, without any thought put into it of the consequences of their actions. There are many to be named: the fishing licence and the parking in George Town, to name a few. In this instance, it appears the Government decided that if you lived on the beach you could have your garbage fees drastically increased. If the Government was in tune with the people they would understand that this is not the case.

Let us look at a case in point, Madam Speaker. In East End, the district that I represent, many of the people who live on the beach have lived there all their lives. They have inherited these properties, which have been in their families for generations. How can this Government justify increasing garbage fees for some people to the tune of 380 per cent per annum with no increase in other districts? With all due respect to your good self and the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac, I do not mean to disrespect the people of Cayman Brac, but certainly I am looking for some equality for the people of East End. I question, is this the way that a country should be governed or run into the ground? There has to be some thought process. I also question if this will be the legacy of the UDP Government: no consultation on these issues—the same consultation that they accuse the First Elected Member for George Town of doing too much of. Perhaps they will now see that their claim to fame of being able to make decisions should be done with a little more finesse and at least a quarter teaspoon of logic.

The Minister responsible for Community Services amongst many other things—and I certainly do not envy him and I want him to know that—this morning spoke of the Government, of the things that they are doing, of putting people back on the financial aid list and of what my two colleagues did not do when they were Ministers. On my way into this Honourable Chamber this morning, I met two ladies downstairs who had just been laid off from their jobs. It would be interesting to hear what the Minister said to them—if he saw them.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Services.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, if the Member would like to know what I said, I can explain.

The Speaker: Would the Member give way?

Mr. V. Arden McLean: No, Madam Speaker, I am not.

The Speaker: Please continue, Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you. If he has a point of order I will gladly give way. I will have no alternative but to give way. Let him go out there and tell the people what he said to them. These are the things that the UDP have to keep their fingers on.

Many of our people are losing their jobs. If the economy is not vibrant, like the UDP promised in 2001, then Government is going to have to take care of these people, further putting this country in the financial constraints that the UDP Government likes talking about. We will get to the financial constraints in a little bit, Madam Speaker, because we need to address that one too.

Moving on to the items of Government policies that were articulated, as I said, with much flatness, I would like to turn to the judiciary. While the Government may say that we complain, we nevertheless have a right. I am very pleased to see that a site has been identified for the relocation of the operations of the Summary Courts, but I trust that this is not paying lip service to the judiciary in the past.

The need for a new court facility has been verbalised for too many years in this country. My question to the Government is, where will the monies come from? In this Honourable House we have heard replies to questions that the monies that were supposed to be earmarked for a new court house were being used on the Euro Bank trial. Some may well say that we are the recipients of some of that money right now because we are in the court that was built for the Euro Bank trial. We are conducting business in that same court house and many may say that that is it. Madam Speaker, if the monies that were earmarked for the court house and court facilities have been spent, and the Government is crying fiscal constraints, I wonder if this is another promise filled with air, because we do not need that. If we can get financing for the proposed Caymanian "Twin Towers", where is that coming from? Is that free? Do we have an unknown genie or benefactor? I do not think so. However, if the Government can find that then the time has come to build a new court facility. Since I have been in this Honourable House we have talked about a family court and a drug court. I hear the Chief Justice crying for these facilities in order for his department to be more effective in the administration of justice. Madam Speaker, I urge the Government to move ahead and let us get on with a new court facility.

As I turn to the Police Force I would like to congratulate the three young men who are poised to take over command of our Police Services. Personally, I believe that it will go a long way in restoring the morale among the many officers they will take command of, and I look forward to a change in the landscape in that service. We have seen the effectiveness of Mr. Kirkland Nixon in the Fire Service where his leadership has attracted many young Caymanians and they have made it a career choice. I hope that young Caymanians will now see the Force as a more attractive career choice. Unfortunately, I must question the continuing presence of the former Deputy Commissioner and the planned retention of the current Commissioner. Please allow me to explain. First, what are the expected benefits of these arrangements? Secondly, at what cost or benefit to these Islands? Thirdly, is this how we are going to Caymanise the country? Fourthly, but very importantly, will our three young career officers who are taking over ever be afforded the privilege of operating independently as has been afforded to the non-Caymanians who have headed up the Police Force?

I am concerned, Madam Speaker, that in the presence of the former Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner our young Caymanians will not be able to operate in an independent manner. The time has come when we must stop putting Caymanians in place to fail and putting the provisions in place where they are deemed to fail. If they are going to be Commissioner, Deputy Commissioner and Assistant Deputy Commissioner let them rule the roost: "Cockroach has no business in fowl fight". They had no business in the fight and the command of that Police Force when others were there. Now let them have their independence at the helm.

I know that was going out on the limb, but I love going out on the limb. Perhaps I am family to the Minister for Community Service.

Moving on. In the Throne Speech I noted, with much interest, the intentions of bringing legislation to this Honourable House to enhance the criminal justice system. Let me make it abundantly clear, if this includes amending the Evidence Law to allow the police and judges to infer guilt whenever an accused elects to remain silent, there will be no favourable reception from this side in the absence of protections, such as the Bill of Rights. I do not condone criminal behaviour and in particular the use, abuse and distribution of drugs or even white collar crimes, but an accused must be considered innocent until he is proven guilty.

Since I am on legal affairs, it may be prudent that I take time at this juncture to speak briefly on the issue of the Euro Bank trial and the Attorney General. Much has been said about the PPM's involvement, or the lack thereof, in this matter.

First, when the Opposition called for an inquiry into this issue it was not, and I repeat, it was not with the intent of inquiring into the conduct of the Attorney General or Mr. Gibbs. It was for an inquiry into the systemic reason for the failure of the overall investigative process and what could only be described as a defective organisational structure of the FRU (Financial Reporting Unit).

Additionally, it was hoped that the inquiry would further investigate how the reporting authority and investigating unit failed, remove any remaining moles and ensure that anyone missed in the first investigation would be held accountable.

As for the issue of how the Attorney General was handled: despite our attempts to extend the olive branch on this particular issue and come together with the UDP in a bipartisan approach to try and resolve the issue, the UDP forged ahead with much noise and ridicule of the PPM. Eventually the Government had to pay out the remainder of the Attorney General's contract, and under his terms. I am sure this was done to the dismay of the leadership of the Government. Obviously, the shouting did not pay off and the galvanising of the public and the sensitising of the issue had no effect. We still had to go back to the table. The PPM took a different approach to the UDP. We said that it should be resolved through dialogue. Nobody in the PPM was supporting the Attorney General or Mr. Brian Gibbs or anyone else for that matter. I stood in this Honourable House and said he must go. I said it then and I say it now. Whether the Attorney General did something wrong or not, he holds responsibility, but there are different ways of dealing with it.

We were accused of siding with England and disappointing our people. I have never heard more rubbish. I am sure those who made such remarks now realise there was no validity to them. Madam Speaker, I had no conversation with anyone from England except Ian Henry. When he visited, the Governor arranged a meeting with the Opposition Members and then with Baroness Amos and all the Members less the Executive Branch. That was during her little rest stop in the Cayman Islands—because it could not be considered anything else, as brief as it was, but I trust that she will be back. Having said all of that, I believe the PPM today are vindicated in the position we took, albeit unpopular at the time, because Government's only means of resolving the issue was to resort to the same dialogue we recommended. The bombastic approach of the Leader of Government Business proved to be an obstruction on this occasion again.

Continuing on the issue of the FRU, it appears as if there will be a review of the roles and functions of that Unit. I am positive the country will welcome such a review and I hope there will be opportunities for young Caymanians to be trained and given positions of responsibility and, very importantly, given the chance to progress within that Unit. As I said earlier, about the appointment of the three young Caymanians at the top of the Police Service, I must again remind this Honourable House of the need for close monitoring of the restructuring of this Unit, if only to ensure that any Caymanian placed in the position of authority will not be set up to fail.

Yesterday, Madam Speaker, the First Elected Member for George Town laid out our position on how we see the reporting authority of the FRU and who it should report to. Therefore, I do not think it is absolutely necessary for me to go into that area again today. However, I await the Government's review of this very important and vital Unit to the financial industry and the continued success of our country.

As I now turn to education, I must say, Madam Speaker, that there seem to be many programmes in place in the planning and implementation stages for education, such as the New Education Policy, Improving Teaching and Learning in the Cayman Islands (ITALIC) and the National Education Leadership Program (NLP). While their acronyms have a nice ring to them one must ask what is really being done to ensure our children are receiving a reasonably proper education.

Where is the policy that says that by year 2010 95 per cent of our children leaving primary school will be proficient in literacy and numeracy? The system has failed a large number of our children. It has failed them because we are not setting standards for them. We are allowing them to go through school then letting them out into the work force functionally illiterate and innumerate. Employers are using this as an excuse not to hire our people, our children. What are we going to do about it? I went to the East End School recently and in one of the classrooms—I believe Mr. Tibbetts'—there is a bumper sticker on the wall which says, "If you think education is expensive try ignorance". How appropriate. We can decide whether we pay now or delay payment. Like that bumper, I warn that there will be a far greater price to pay by society if we do not ensure the population of this country is educated and allowed equal partnerships in our society and equal privileges in their country.

Madam Speaker, we must prioritise.

The Speaker: Member for East End you have an hour remaining. Would you like to have an afternoon break or would you wish to continue?

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: We will take the afternoon break for 10 minutes. Please attempt to have a quorum in 10 minutes.

Proceedings suspended at 3.40 pm

Proceedings resumed at 4.01 pm

The Speaker: The continuation of the debate with the Member of East End continuing.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

When we took the break I was on the subject of education and I now turn to the section on education relating to the East End Primary School.

We have a situation at the East End Primary School which I have addressed on several occasions with the Ministry and which the Government seems not be taking very seriously. The school is in dire need of a cafeteria, staff office and other physical improvements, and may I just inject here again, these have been outstanding for a very long time. Suffice to say the Minister, in a reply to one of my requests for these issues to be addressed, reminded me of the fiscal constraints Government is experiencing at the moment. These issues have been outstanding from the school's inception and I just get this feeling that the UDP Government is carrying on the legacy of many previous Governments by apparently not attempting to address them.

I was recently invited to a PTA meeting at the East End Primary School to which the Minister was invited to address the parents on the needs of the school. I was somewhat surprised that shortly before the meeting I was called and informed that the Minister had an emergency and would be unable to attend. Be that as it may, to my knowledge that meeting has not been rescheduled. The parents in East End are getting restless and rightly so—we cannot blame them. Why should their children have to eat lunch outside in a passageway? That is what we have today in the 21st century. Why should the teachers have to operate from cramped quarters when other school populations do not? I stand firmly behind the parents in wanting more for their children.

I notice today that the Minister of Community Services is dressed differently and I suspect that was deliberate. I trust that he also has seen the designs on my tie, which was deliberate as well, because it says, "Save the children" and the Minister for Works, being the fashion type that he is, was very attracted to it.

[Laughter]

Mr. V. Arden McLean: There are times for lighter moments, Madam Speaker, but I want to go on record here saying to the Government that if they think that it is representation as usual for East End they are mistaken. East End is no longer without a voice in this Honourable Chamber and the fact that I am in the Opposition does not mean that I am without might. It does not mean that I am dead. The voice of the people of East End will be heard through me and the UDP will be reminded. My responsibility is to look at the needs of the people of the district of East End and bring it to the attention of the Government and that I have done. I trust the Minister understands that I am still awaiting his decisions on the outstanding issues that he described to me, through correspondence I might add, that he would be consulting his Permanent Secretary and Chief Education Officer on.

I just want to remind the Minister that these were the provisions for proper cafeteria with a modernised kitchen and staff accommodation. I do not understand the need for a consultation on the need for a cafeteria because it is obvious it is not there. There is a small multipurpose hall which, with some extension for the proper kitchen facilities, could also serve as a cafeteria where the kids could eat inside. Madam Speaker, in today's environment the East End school is too far behind. All I can promise the people of East End is that I will address the issues with the Government. I will write and I will continue to write to the Minister and bring them to his attention.

Please allow me to go on record here to thank the firm of Ernst and Young for providing the computers for the computer lab. Thanks also to Mr. Carlyle McLaughlin, whose ancestral roots are embedded in East End and who is a cousin to the Second Elected Member for George Town, for providing at least six of those computers. While my efforts have been successful, from begging I might add, in acquiring computers and a full computer lab for the school in East End, it has not been successful in the laptop goals and ideas that the Minister has been talking about—for every child to have a laptop. At least, since I have been elected, the school in East End now has a computer lab.

Therefore, when we talk about a party providing for people when there is a disaster, or there is a need in the community, that is the purpose of any party. Any political organisation in any country that does not recognise the needs of its people and try to help them should not be an organisation. That is the purpose of it. Use the resources you have to get what your people need. One of my resources is begging and I will utilise it until they stop giving. When I have an ideal and a belief, I am going to the end with it because it is going to help the people that I represent!

In the case of the computer lab in East End, Madam Speaker, the only thing missing is an information technology teacher. We get one for half a day once a week. It is my understanding from educators that introducing a new subject to students, which information technology is in this country—and I applaud the Minister for wanting to go in that direction, but evidently he is not getting the help from the Executive Branch that he needs so he needs to start putting some heat under them – my understanding is that it takes a minimum of two hours per week for each one of those children to have access and be taught information technology. Now, I may be wrong and there may be different positions taken on that. I do not know whether we need a full time information technology teacher in East End, but I know we need more. With about 120 students we need more than a half day to cover all of those students. It is probably about 80 who utilize that computer lab. This is what the Government needs to do and I am appealing to the Government to provide these basic necessities. The computer lab is there.

I did not do it for personal reasons, Madam Speaker, I did it so that the children could have full access to a computer while they are at school. The Government just needs to provide the teachers. Is that too much to ask? I do not think so. I do not think that is too much to ask. I can say that the parents in East End are awaiting the Minister's commitment to provide a full-time or additional time information technology teacher.

We must prioritise. We cannot expect our children to be successful if they are expected to learn in such an environment. These and other issues at our schools, and in particular at the East End school, must be addressed immediately, but there must be parity in relationships to equality and quantity. Parallel to the physical development of our schools and the school system, we must also institute a balanced curriculum that prepares our youth to achieve their full potential.

We have all advocated vocational and technical programmes in this country, but we have persistently only paid lip service to it. Very little is being done. In the Minister's report card 2000-2004, which was delivered in this Honourable House on 19 December 2002, he outlined five key goals, which he said he would concentrate on over the political term 2000-2004. Madam Speaker, they were, and this comes straight from the report card:

- a) To promote and support school improvement.
- b) To strengthen the opportunities and quality provision for teacher training.
- c) To improve information, communication and technology skills at all levels.
- d) To enhance the provision for technical and vocational education and
- e) To establish citizenship education as an integral part of the curriculum at all levels of schooling.

Madam Speaker, in that report card the Minister went on to say that he and the Ministers attending the 14th Commonwealth Education Minister's Conference agreed on these five goals and his hopes were that when he reported on his progress at the next meeting of the Minister's in December 2003 and: “... ultimately to the electorate in 2004 I will be judged as providing the level of stewardship which our education deserves to move boldly into the 21st century.”

As disappointing as this may be to the Minister, I must tell him he has much ground to cover and time is running out. He needs to light the fire under the executive branch of Government and ensure they prioritise even if it means taking some of the bond issue and getting the education programmes in place. He needs to at least achieve one of these five goals. He cannot report to the electorate in 2004 and not even one has been completed. He needs to have a little percentage. I do not know how he is going to get it, but he does not have much time and we all have to report and we all have to have our report cards ready for inspection in 2004. While time is running out on all of us, I trust he has not set himself up not to have at least a reasonable report card. I also hope that some of the issues at the East End school will be addressed and completed prior to 2004, when the Minister is going to report to the country.

The East End school has progressed much under the leadership of the current principal and deputy principal, but more can be done with improvements to the school: more provisions, more comfortable surroundings for the school. Madam Speaker, I must applaud the PTA which was elected some six or eight months ago. They have done extremely well. They have paid off past debts, have monies in their coffers, have bought equipment for the school, and they are going out there and doing their own drawings to try and get the cafeteria and kitchen equipment for the school. They are doing it themselves. I assist where I can, is that an indictment on me too? I should not? This is what my responsibilities are and I was going to deal with it a later but since I am on it now, let me set the record straight about this park in East End.

The Minister for Community Services talks about the park and it is mentioned in the Throne Speech. I have my notes as well, but in meeting with the Dart Foundation and Management I requested of them, that if it was possible, I would appreciate very much if they could put some play equipment into the school for the reception class and two other classes. Recently that was installed and I will talk about the generosity of the Dart Foundation and Dart Management a little later on about providing a park in East End. However, again I used my resources, which is the begging resource, to get these things for the school. One of my colleagues said charm, but I do not know if I have too much of that. I believe that is our responsibility as representatives of the people. This thing about if you are not a part of that party then your constituency is going to suffer just to ensure that you are not re-elected.

Madam Speaker, it is not affecting Arden McLean. It is affecting the people we so love (or we claim to) and they are the same ones, whether they are on the minimum wage or an executive wage, who pay the taxes for those services to be provided. When I hear us talk about not providing it, especially in the atmosphere and the complement of the current Legislative Assembly, I look around: three Members of the Government, three Members of the Executive Council have ancestral homes in East End. It is their family too and if they do not provide it, it is more than my family, it is their family too. It is unfair.

Three of those Members come from the district of East End so why it is that Arden McLean has to be punished because of his mouth? Well Arden McLean will always be punished because of that. Why should the people be punished because of my mouth? That is unfair to the people of East End. It is unfair to the people of this country. This rhetoric of the people of this country needs to stop. Let us go on with our politics, this is the house of politics, but let us draw the line and stop threatening people not to put anything in their constituency so they will not get re-elected. If it is not I, someone else is going to come and ask for the same things, because whoever comes in here would have to be Ray Charles not to see the same things lacking in East End, or anywhere else for that matter.

If they are going to ask for them, they have to be provided. The basic needs of the people of this country must be provided with the same wealth that the Minister talks about that he is responsible for distributing.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker: We have reached the hour of interruption. May I call on the Deputy Leader of Government Business to make the motion?

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until tomorrow Friday, 14 March 2003 at 10 am.

The Speaker: The question is that this House do now adjourn until tomorrow Friday, 14 March 2003 at 10 am. All those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

At 4.31 pm the House stood adjourned until Friday, 14 March 2003, at 10 am.

OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT
FRIDAY
14 MARCH 2003
10.14 AM
Fourth Sitting

The Speaker: I invite the Honourable Member responsible for the Portfolio of Internal and External Affairs, the First Official Member to grace us with prayers.

PRAYERS

Hon. James M. Ryan: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal Family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office. All this we ask for Thy great Name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

Proceedings resumed at 10.17 am

The Speaker: Please be seated.

READING BY THE HONOURABLE
SPEAKER OF MESSAGES
AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Speaker: I have not received any apologies for non-attendance or late attendance for today's sitting.

STATEMENTS BY HONOURABLE
MINISTERS/MEMBERS
OF THE GOVERNMENT

The Speaker: Neither have I received any notice of statements for today.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

Debate on the Address delivered by His Excellency the Governor on Friday 7 March 2003

(Continuation of debate thereon)

The Speaker: The Member for East End continuing his debate with a remaining time of 35 minutes.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

When we adjourned yesterday evening I was going to turn my attention to the Human Resources Department in the country and I will now go on to that area.

I think it should be a concern to all of us that in today's environment we hear of so many instances where employees are complaining of the lack of provisions for health insurance and pensions. By law, insurance and pension provisions must be in place for every employee in the Cayman Islands. Nevertheless, we hear of instances where deductions from salaries are being made and no record of investment of these funds is presented to employees.

Representations on these issues are made to me on a weekly basis and when I make enquiries, Madam Speaker, I come away as frustrated as the complainant. There do not seem to be any clear lines of enforcement. I noted that the Government is now proposing to merge the Pensions Office with the Department of Employment Relations. I trust that this will produce a greater degree of enforcement and prosecution where necessary.

I also noted the recent announcement of the appointment of a new acting head of insurance and that is welcome. However, I question whether the mere appointment is enough to stem this reckless disregard for the law? May I suggest the Government review the relevant legislation to ensure there are ample provisions to support enforcement and also to ascertain whether CIMA (Cayman Islands Monetary Authority) is the most effective umbrella under which to have the enforcement side of this important subject because there needs to be some enforcement done. Perhaps that side should go under the Ministry of Human Resources' Employment Relations Department. I respectfully suggest that the Government looks at this. Employees in this country are being taken advantage of and their future is in jeopardy if they do not have health insurance and pensions in place.

I now turn to Community Services. Even though I spent much time on that yesterday, there are a few things I would like to touch on.

I have noted with much interest that in the restructuring of the Social Services and Community Development Unit, the Community Development Unit will be moved to the Department of Youth and Sports and the reason given is to ensure better teamwork. Madam Speaker, contrary to what the Minister might believe, I do hope it produces the desired results. In East End I have had many complaints about the representation, or the lack thereof, of the Social Services Department which, I believe, may be due to it being so disjointed, but as we all know we have to take these complaints in stride. Therefore, I give encouragement to the Minister in his direction of this important service and I hope that he will get some results.

In saying that, I would also like to point out to the Minister that the Government recently acquired properties in East End for the cemetery. Homes occupy both pieces of the property and one of the homes is in fairly good condition. May I suggest to the Minister that he tries to coordinate with the Minister of Lands for the use of this property to accommodate permanent offices for community or social workers and for the sports and recreation needs in East End. I believe this would go a long way to regaining confidence in the community in this vital service.

I now turn to the Prison Service. I noted in the Throne Speech delivered in Cayman Brac that the Government is contemplating the construction of a young offender's wing at Northward Prison. I think the Minister announced that some time ago. It proposed including a discrete secure juvenile unit called a Chapter House. The Government, I think, would do well to explain how they are going to keep this facility discrete at Northward Prison. I am not complaining just for complaining sake and I will show that.

We recently witnessed the conflict that was aired in the news media between the two Ministries surrounding the four juveniles. If that conflict could not be kept secret I would like to know whether it is fair to expect that we can erase the stigma that is sure to accompany these young individuals associated with Northward Prison. I question whether or not the Government should be looking for lands elsewhere because, even if this facility is separated from the main population at Northward Prison, there are no guarantees that there will not be interaction between young adolescents and "criminals".

Regardless of the behaviour of these young individuals, is this the real environment we want to put them in? Even if it is separated, I have some concerns about it. I am extremely concerned. I believe the fact that you have gone to Northward, the fact that these kids are young adults, they still need to be given a chance. I cannot stress enough the importance of placing these young people in the proper environment that will give them every opportunity and chance to get their lives back on track.

My plea to the Government is not to abort the idea of providing the facilities, because we need to do that, but to abort the idea of putting it at Northward Prison. While one may say that it is not going to be in Northward Prison, it is going to be closely associated with, and somewhere in the same vicinity as, Northward Prison. I really believe the stigma attached to Northward Prison is going to discolour these young adults—young children, for they are not young adults really, they are much younger than that. So my plea to Government is to review that again and think of finding some other government property to place it on.

As I promised yesterday, I will now turn to Youth and Sports. On behalf of the people of East End, I wish to publicly thank the Dart Foundation and Dart Management for their generous donation of the park in East End. I know the Minister of Community Services will say that I am not genuine, but I must also thank him for providing the funds to construct the restroom facilities. The park is taking shape and is soon to be completed and I am sure it will bring a new sense of pride to the people of East End. I am extremely proud to have been a part of seeing it come to fruition. Having a park in East End, in that exact location, was one of the things I campaigned to work towards in 2000 and early in 2001 I started doing that. Under the former Minister, the Elected Member for North Side, I was introduced to the Dart Foundation and it began then. The current Minister has continued the commitment on behalf of Government.

Under the same administration of the former Minister of Community Services, two years ago I requested the then Minister to appoint a sports coordinator for East End and the eastern districts. Upon the current Minister's appointment, I renewed my request and was informed of the previous commitment that was made and was assured by him that the commitment would be honoured. Madam Speaker, to date the sports coordinator has not been appointed. We keep saying that sports are part of the development process in any country, so I again renew my request for a sports coordinator for the eastern districts.

As I turn to housing I noted that, according to the Government, the advent of affordable housing is here. I took note of the mention in the Throne Speech of the construction of 200 homes in a number of communities. Unfortunately, the Throne Speech made no mention of which communities they will be built in and I question if it was an innocent omission or a deliberate one.

Six months ago, the Minister and members of the UDP were saying that East End needs affordable housing. Today, that said Minister has total control over the funds made available for the purposes of providing affordable housing and yet no mention was made of the one district that six months ago the Minister was claiming needed homes. I, like the people of East End, await the Minister's announcement and I personally await the opportunity to discuss with the Minister the provisions of an affordable housing scheme for the people of East End.

Much land is available in the district of East End to have affordable homes built on. Many people will sell their properties to Government and these are lands that do not really need filling, so the expense will not be as great to have these homes built.

I also noted that Government has said, and I quote from the Throne Speech: "Additionally, the Government will establish a framework of housing entities that will, in partnership with private sector financial and construction institutions and companies, provide a continuum of housing tenure options. These will range from rental tenancy (assisted or otherwise) to outright purchase, and will incorporate the Government Guaranteed Home Mortgage Scheme."

The Government needs to state whether this statement means there will be other schemes parallel with that after or prior to the completion of these 200 homes, and if we will see a different type of affordable house being constructed. I await the Government on that issue.

On the issue of Public Works and Utilities, I am again expressing my concern at this sad state of affairs in relation to the failure of Government to complete the pipe-borne water to the residences of East End. Madam Speaker, I know that the Water Authority may be experiencing some difficulties with physical equipment, but I believe the time has come to review this and ensure that the physical equipment is available to effectively get water throughout the eastern districts.

The Leader of the Opposition spoke passionately on this matter, and I am sure that the Member for North Side will concur with me, that time is running out on the Government. Neither of the two Throne Speeches touched on this issue. I know that the Water Authority is rather close to its intended destination for water in East End, but they are being taken off to go elsewhere on so many different occasions that it appears as if their goals will not be reached this year. To go back and start cutting from the junction of Frank Sound Road and North Side Road to go to North Side will further lengthen the time it takes for water to be made available on all of the side roads in East End.

The Speaker: Member you have 13 minutes remaining.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I am also concerned about the deteriorating state of the roads in rural districts. As a representative of a rural community, I am compelled to register my concern on the lack of focus and priority given to the maintenance and upgrade of road surfaces in parts of Bodden Town, East End and North Side, but, in particular, East End. Madam Speaker, these roads are the paths of many tourists. The Leader of the Opposition spoke of the occupancy rate at the timeshare institutions in the district of East End. There are many tourists and residents in that area who use those roads. I know the Water Authority is there now, but Government needs to make a little more effort to have these roads properly paved.

Another issue I would like briefly to touch on is the Health Services Authority. Recently I was informed that the ambulance service for the eastern districts was not operational due to staff shortages. The Member for North Side and I wrote to the Minister. I know the Minister was absent from office for a while, but we await his reply on that issue.

In concluding my contribution to this Throne Speech, I would like to end by saying that the People's Progressive Movement is very concerned with the direction that the country is going in under the leadership of the UDP Government. We are committed to returning Caymanians to the centre of national decision-making and to the centre of economic activity and prosperity. Certainly we need foreign investment to assist, but not to totally control the country. We are committed to returning more Caymanians to the mainstream of economic activity in this country.

As it stands, we are being called upon to debate not one but two Throne Speeches. As I said earlier, neither of them attempts to address the issues of concern to the people of these Islands. I however—

Point of order

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Honourable Leader of Government Business.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: On a point of order.

The Speaker: Please state your point of order.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I have sat the last couple of days and heard some references drawn to my speech as two Throne Speeches and I think that is misleading the House.

The first Member to do that was the First Elected Member for George Town. Now the Member for East End is parroting his words, as usual. Everybody knows that there is only one Throne Speech in this country. That was done in Cayman Brac by His Excellency the Governor. I took the position as Leader of the Government—as my party and colleagues wanted me to—to speak first to outline our plans, but more specifically to lay the plans for an Economic Development Plan.

I said that I do not have any authority to read any Throne Speech—that is His Excellency the Governor's job. I would appreciate it if those Members withdraw that statement because it is not the truth.

The Speaker: Member for East End, I have listened to the Leader of Government's submission on the point of order. He is absolutely right in that there is one Throne Speech. I would ask you to withdraw that remark. I will not call on the First Elected Member for George Town as the point of order was not taken at that particular time and I will not make a retrospective ruling. Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I respectfully withdraw that there are not two Throne Speeches. Theoretically, there should never be.

The Speaker: Member for East End, I have asked you to withdraw that there are not two Throne Speeches. Let us make it very simple.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, I withdraw saying that there are two Throne Speeches because there is only one.

The Speaker: Thank you. Please proceed accordingly.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, when the UDP Government is replied to there is much stopping of everybody else, but we allow them to say as they feel.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: You have to tell the truth.

The Speaker: Order.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: The Minister of Tourism is saying that we need to tell the truth. Well, maybe he needs to direct his Ministers to tell the truth too, but Madam Speaker—

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Are you implying that we do not tell the truth?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: That is what he said.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Do not worry, Madam Speaker, and this country can rest assured that there is an emerging alternative to those who sell out ....

[Laughter]

The Speaker: Order!

Mr. V. Arden McLean: .... will be on the horizon for the country.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: That is where you are—on the horizon.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: I am satisfied that the people of this country will soon have an alternative to the powers that be; an alternative that is people-centred and people-driven; an alternative that is positive in its outlook and philosophy.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: An alternative that is dynamic and not static like the UDP Government.

The Speaker: Is that your opinion, Honourable Member?

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Yes, Madam Speaker.

An alternative that has a mission and not an agenda; an alternative that is a movement and not a party.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: We are not a party.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, I am convinced the alternative which currently offers hope and not despair is the People's Progressive Movement of which I have the honour of being a founding Member. Madam Speaker, I urge the people of this country to hold on for help is on its way. The People's Progressive Movement is the hope for the future of this country. I would again inform this Honourable House that my job here is not to personally attack anyone, but I will respond to any personal attacks made on me.

The Speaker: You have four minutes remaining, Honourable Member.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: You never say anything anyhow.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, I feel privileged to have been given the opportunity by the people of East End to serve in this Honourable House and again my voice will be heard. Their voice will be heard through me and I implore . . .

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: You are not doing anything for them anyhow.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: . . . the Members of this Honourable House to let us keep it political and to stop the personal attacks on each other. Let us keep it political—politics is politics, but when we start personally attacking each other we can expect nothing other than replies to those personal attacks.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: That is right.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: I promise everyone that I will reply to any personal attacks made on me. Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Thank you. Does any other Member wish to speak? The Member for the district of North Side.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I sat here yesterday and listened to the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Services, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports and I had nothing to say. The blame for nothing being done in the Ministry was placed at the feet of every past Minister responsible for Social Services, except the Honourable Minister who is now responsible for Tourism. However, we cannot live in the past any longer, we must move on to the future.

You know, Madam Speaker, I am not one who stands in this Parliament and speak for hours. I heard the late John Redman say about sitting in here and listening to people speaking for four hours, that "it is not the person that speaks the longest that says the most." The Honourable Minister did make a sarcastic remark about me yesterday in that regard. However, the most damning indictment of the contribution made by that Minister yesterday was uttered from his own lips. After he treated this Honourable House to two full hours of dire tripe, in which little or nothing was explained about his planned social programmes, he was forced to apologise to this Honourable House and the country for his failure to articulate a coherent, comprehensive social policy for these Islands. That, I would remind this House, is his solemn obligation.

Perhaps the Minister has still not made the transition from a vocal Opposition Member whose time in this House was devoted to political rhetoric and harsh criticism of the Government, whichever government was sitting on the opposite side at the time. He must now come to understand, sitting where he now sits, that he is now required to produce more than rhetoric and criticism of his fellow George Town representatives and former ministers, including myself.

I was totally shocked, Madam Speaker, because that is not the normal behaviour of that Honourable Minister. However, I concur with the First Elected Member for George Town. I call him First Elected Member for George Town because one minute in procedure in this House he is being called the First Elected Member for George Town and the next time he is being called the Leader of the Opposition. Therefore, I concur with the First Elected Member for George Town who proffered that the Throne Speech, as delivered, offered very little hope to the ordinary Caymanian.

Madam Speaker, I will ask you to ask the Government to do as the Opposition did when the Honourable Minister of Tourism was delivering his contribution to the Throne Speech—just listen. There is still a number of their persons who have not spoken yet who can deal with anything that any Member on this side brings forward.

The Speaker: Are you calling for a point of order under Standing Order 39 (c)?

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: No, Madam Speaker. I am sorry to interrupt you. I am not calling for a point of order; I am just asking you if you could ask them to desist while I make my contribution.

The Speaker: Member for North Side, there is provision under Standing Order 39 (c) for any Member to bring it to my attention. I will say it at this time, but I would ask Members to look at Standing Order 39 in its entirety where Members are asked to:

- "(a) enter and leave with decorum;
- "(b) not to read books, newspapers, letters or the documents unless they relate to the business before the House,
- "(c) maintain silence while other Members are speaking and not to interrupt except in accordance with Standing Orders; and
- "(d) in all other respects conduct themselves in a seemly manner."

All Members are mature and I expect them to behave accordingly. Please continue.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Nowhere in this country that I have visited since the delivery of the Throne Speech has anyone expressed any optimism about his or her lot in life changing for the better as a result of the social and economic plan outlined by the Government. I share the view that there appears to be a deliberate strategy to delay the start-up of vital social programmes until later in the year. This is normal. It has happened over the years and certainly until much closer to an election.

Members of this Honourable Chamber come in contact with working Caymanians at funerals, in the supermarkets or at social events. People in this country are complaining; they are fearful of the economic downturn and its likely impact on the well-being of their families. Madam Speaker, residents of the Cayman Islands have become accustomed to a particular standard of living and they do not wish to compromise or reverse that standard of living.

Persons, who in the 1980s and the 1990s were able to elevate themselves through application and hard work, wish for a brighter future for their children. During those years they were confident in the view that their retirement years would have been comfortable. Persons thought that their savings and pensions would have been able to afford them a comfortable and dignified quality of life in the evening of their years. Today they see a grave threat to that stability.

People in this country are genuinely worried about the escalating cost of living. This was a pet subject of the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Services when he was on the Back Bench. Many persons exist on a fixed income, but almost on a monthly basis their commitments are rising. They are being forced to pay for goods and services they formerly accessed freely or for inconsequential sums. The First Elected Member for George Town spoke of the necessary increase in the cost of health care and prescription drugs. He spoke of the virtual commercialisation of our Health Services and the fear of residents, seniors in particular, of getting ill and having to underwrite the cost associated therewith.

At this point, Madam Speaker, I ask the Honourable Minister responsible for Health to get it across somehow to the public that no one who is seeking medical attention will be turned away from the George Town Hospital. The reason I am asking the Honourable Minister is because I have had several calls and meetings with several members of the district of North Side who need medical attention, but are afraid because they have no medical insurance and they have no personal money for they have no jobs. I have assured these people that no one will be turned away from the George Town Hospital. However, I think if the Honourable Minister can get some publicity out there that these people can understand they will be given medical attention, it would be much appreciated.

While a few years ago the average parent in the Cayman Islands wished for their offspring to lead a better life than we all did, today we find ourselves in a situation where parents are hoping that their children can have as good a life as they did. That is why the presentation of this particular Throne Speech was so eagerly anticipated. Persons wanted to hear from the Government what plans it had in store for resuscitating the economy. Persons wanted to know what fundamental changes the United Democratic Party administration would have been proposing to enhance their lot in life.

In almost every social and economic sector persons are fearful of the apparent drift in the management of these Islands. No one seems to be concerned about the plight of the individual, particularly mothers who are at their wits' end to make ends meet. At this point, I would like to say the Seamen's Ex Gratia payment—and I will deal with it later because it seems as though there are certain people who are awfully economical with the truth as far as that situation exists. I congratulate the Government that they were able to raise this ex-gratia payment for those persons making $1,500 per month or less. However, Madam Speaker, having been the advocate for women in these Islands over the years—and you have supported when you were on the Back Bench and in the Ministry—I am disheartened that we are able to discriminate so blatantly against women. We feel that the poverty line for our men, the seamen, is $1,500 a month or less (and they are entitled; they did a lot for this country). However, there are women out there making $800 a month or less. Why have we not taken the same decision that those women will be assisted and brought up to the $1,500 per month or less?

Those are the reasons why it was hoped that this Throne Speech would have been responsive to their needs and anxieties. Spokespersons for the Government speak glowingly of the millions of dollars that are being invested in this economy. They point with pride to the many private sector projects underway and the record profits being realised by some investors. However, there appears to be an indifference to the plight of the indigenous businessperson and the impact that the downturn in business activity has had on the spending power of individuals. There is a growing number of families falling through the social cracks and this begs the question of the role of the Government in helping to ease the strain on vulnerable groups.

I know that when the next person gets up from the Government side there will be aspersions cast on me that, "You were the Minister for one year and you did not do anything to help these families from falling through the social cracks". Those problems were there for many years before I became a Minister of Executive Council and they were falling through at that time and they are still falling through, so we cannot lay the blame at the feet of one Minister.

[Interjection]

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, I am sure that the Minister of Tourism will have every right to reply because he has the right—not to deliver a Throne Speech—but he has the right to reply to it.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Are you saying I delivered that Throne Speech?

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: No. I said you do not have the right to deliver a Throne Speech, but you have the right to reply to it.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I will do that.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, I do not need teaching in procedure. When the Speaker has made a ruling that one cannot use certain phrases and terms I know quite well that I, as another Member getting up to speak, cannot overturn your rule.

Madam Speaker, this Honourable House and this country knows, as I have said before, that I have been a proponent of the rights and entitlement of women in this country. I must say, and I will stand and say it, far and wide I am not one to blow my own bugle. I am humble and I like to do what I have to do for my people. I want no praise. We look around the district of North Side: there have been many buildings and facilities built in that district since I became the representative. You do not see my name on that building because when history is written I hope I will be remembered without having my name on a building that I founded as a representative for the district of North Side.

Before I came to this Parliament, one of the first things I was courageous enough to do — and I am one to give praise where praise is due — was to bring the motion to set up a Women's Affairs Office. I must say that the Government and the Back Benchers at that time unanimously accepted the motion.

However, I speak of the plight of women not in sexist terms, but in relation to historical facts to do with exploitation, physical and mental abuse and discrimination purely on account of gender. Our women have endured much in this country. We all know of their added responsibilities during the period of the 50s to the 80s. I know quite well, for I happen to have been one of those mothers when fathers and several of our men went off to sea. We know of the pattern of single parenting and the fact that many of our women have had to endure major sacrifices in order to secure the advancement of their children. These women today find it very difficult to make ends meet. New technologies have made it very difficult for them to compete and one must ask questions about what plans the Government has for the training and retraining of these individuals.

We need to bring the new technology to them. It is useless if we provide these services in George Town to assist women in the other districts (West Bay, Bodden Town, East End and North Side) because when they get home after work it is impossible for them to deal with what they have to deal with at home and then come back to George Town to have access to these services. We must not forget the women in your districts — the districts of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

We need to effectively retool these women for the dynamic environment in which they now operate. Women in these Islands are in the lower category of pay scales and many of them, I am sure, could move up if they were given the opportunities to be retooled. Had I remained in the Ministry, I would have hoped that many of our women who are now receiving $400 a month, could have been retooled and put back into the work force. We need to look at this and give them a fair opportunity.

This country is at the stage where, if its indigenous population is to thrive, measures will have to be taken to train persons of all levels of activity no matter their age, sex or academic status. We need to carry such programmes into the communities. The Community Development Services that are being offered must now move beyond "the Christmas card at Christmas" or "the meal on Christmas Day". We must now carry programmes with a qualified person as the Community Development Head who can instruct our Community Development Officers. Our Community Development Officers must get training so that they can perform and deal with the problems of the communities.

We can no longer depend on established institutions of learning. There are many civic centres and school buildings around these Islands that are woefully under-utilised. The Minister of Community Services, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports is now talking around the problems. As a matter of fact, I did like the title in the Ministry: Community Development rather than Services, because when we speak of community development it means that we intend to empower the communities, get them involved in doing things for themselves and not just offer them services. From all reports, the Minister and his close advisors, in my opinion, do not have a clue as to what is required to turn the situation around, particularly in my district. The Department of Social Services is in a mess where the so-called rationalisation of Children's Services is breeding horror story after horror story. Take, for example, the plight of the four young boys.

[Interjection]

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, you know I would like to answer the Minister of Tourism.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Not me.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: I am getting a little bit fed up.

Point of Order

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: What is your point of order?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I am also tired of this woman calling my name here this morning when I am sitting down writing. Other Members might be talking and she is listening and reading her speech, but it is not me and I am tired of it. If I have something to say, I will say it loud enough so that you can call me to order or so she can hear or anyone else can hear.

The Speaker: Member for North Side, please continue your debate.

Once again, I will ask Members to please refrain from speaking while another Member is speaking because it is quite distracting. All it does is delay the proceedings of the House because I have been allocating extra time for interruptions.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

We take, for example, the plight of the four young boys (whom the Member for East End mentioned before) who cannot find a resting place to pursue their education. I do not remember the name of this foundation that is chaired by Mr. Richard Arch, CAYS (Child and Youth Services), I think . . . the Minister of Education said that this is what he wanted me to start when I was Minister. Madam Speaker, if that was said it must have been said in a dream. However, what the Honourable Minister of Education should have told the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Services about when we met on numerous occasions, is that we cannot take our young children and put them into facilities like CIMI (Cayman Islands Marine Institute) and different facilities, and not get them back into the mainstream education system in these Islands. Until today I am sure the Minister of Community Services is still experiencing that same situation where these children are not being readily accepted back into the mainstream system.

In that same example of the four young boys separate Ministers are pointing fingers and passing the buck because the system is not currently structured or geared to provide a sound education to the so-called "bad children". We call them that, I do not. I call them children who have been left behind by a system that has not catered to them. I have to congratulate the new social worker, Mr. Michael Myles. He stood by his guns until he got some solution for these young boys. I am now told that the so-called solution rests in the four boys turning up at the Hope Centre every morning to have a chit-chat with the designated teacher. We are getting one step closer.

If we isolate young people like this and place them in a non-functional environment, as we have been doing, we can never expect them to function properly. Neither can we expect them to function effectively in any society.

The problem is symptomatic of the wider element of drift and morass that has come over the Social Services Department since its restructuring. The great stroke of genius is to put children drawn from the various centres with varying behavioural and other conditions under one umbrella agency with the same therapeutic regime. In other words, the assumption is that because these children may happen to go to school together or play together that they can live together and not be affected by the others' influence or shortcomings.

Thus, today in our country we have a situation where children with behavioural problems, children in need of care and protection and children bordering . . .

Point of Order

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: Please state your point of order.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, I would like to bring a point of order to this House on rules of debate 32 (4) which says: "32(4) A Member shall not read his speech but may refresh his memory by reference to notes and may read extracts of reasonable length from books or papers in support of his argument."

Although the Member, in my opinion, is delivering a speech with reasonable content that Member is not refreshing her memory, but is reading directly from the speech and has been doing so for quite some time. I would just like to bring that to the attention of the House.

The Speaker: Thank you, Honourable Minister. Standing Order 32 (4) does say that: "A Member shall not read his speech but may refresh his [her] memory by reference to notes and may read extracts of reasonable length from books or papers in support of his [her] argument."

I have taken note of it. It is a point of order and I would ask the Member to continue her deliberation by refreshing her memory only.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I bow to your ruling, but if you will allow me: having watched the delivery in this Parliament of the numerous Members on that side who have read speeches word for word when I have not got up to speak. It happened in the presentation. I will stop.

The Speaker: Member for North Side, the Standing Order has been there and continues to be there and whenever any Member brings it to my attention I will rule accordingly. The mere fact that no Member brings it means, by implication, that they have consented to the reading thereof. Please continue.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The lack of coherent policy has resulted, in my opinion, in the virtual collapse of our communities, our outreach programmes. Emphasis is now being placed on abrogating these responsibilities to worthwhile charities such as the churches.

Do you have another point of order?

[Pause]

As a result of the overall loss of focus, we are now putting in place and broadening the curriculum at Northward Prison.

The Speaker: Sorry to interrupt you. Is this a convenient time for the morning break – for a 10 minute break?

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: We will now break for 10 minutes.

Proceedings suspended at 11.20 am

Proceedings resumed at 11.37 am

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Member for North Side continuing with one hour and 32 minutes remaining.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: When we took the suspension, Madam Speaker, I was speaking of the break-up of the traditional family. Parents are concerned about the drift and anti-social behaviour, particularly in our young men.

Any country should wish for all of its people to become more purposeful. However, we see in the Throne Speech plans being made to incarcerate, whether this be in a separate unit well removed from the Northward Prison or not. We know that the stigma and ridicule of these young people going to this particular unit at Northward Prison will remain with them for their lives. It is as though we are now taking the Northward Prison facility as a finishing school for our young people.

This country needs a clear and coherent programme of social reform and engineering. We must nip anti-social behaviour in the bud and this must start at the primary school level. Under education I will mention the anti-social behaviour that exists in the primary school system. This is why I am totally shocked that there are no programmes in the Throne Speech between the Ministry of Community Development and the Ministry of Education. For us to solve this problem, these two Ministries particularly must work together. We must turn around the attitude of our young people. We must, in particular, turn around the attitude of our young boys.

Some years ago, I asked a question in this House and it may have been when I was put back on the Back Bench of the present Minister of Education. Now that I am in Opposition, I ask that question again. It is a proven fact in these Islands that our young girls graduating from high school are taking advantages to advance their education, but our young boys are not. We must look into this problem before we lose them all.

As I said before, the Honourable Minister, I am sure, will take note of everything I have said today because I am not, as a woman, able to conceptualise and deliver. However, he conceptualised yesterday and dealt with none of these problems. He dealt with racism and I have no time for that. All my people are equal, no matter the colour of their skin or their sex.

I was informed just yesterday that approximately 75 per cent of our offenders at Northward Prison—and I hope the Honourable Minister will correct me if I am incorrect—are there either for drug use or some other connection with drugs. It is my understanding that there is not constant counselling. I must say the Minister has said that provision is being made for two additional counsellors so that there can be an extension. I appreciate this because we cannot lose any more of our young people to drugs without giving them the opportunity to be rehabilitated, whether inside or outside of prison.

Madam Speaker, we, as a country, must do everything in our power to curb the anti-social behaviour of our young people and give them the opportunity to develop to their full potential. When I was removed from Executive Council, being the person that I am, I went to the Honourable Minister of Community Development who got up a while ago and spoke, and I said, "Whatever I can do to assist you I would be more than happy to do". That stands today. I am not in this House to do things to be re-elected, whether the Members of this House want to believe that or not. I am here to do the right things for my country and if the people of North Side feel that the right things that I have chosen are not so, they have the power of the 'X' in the next election. However, I will always stand and assist wherever I can for the betterment of my people.

If a nation does not provide adequate educational facilities we are doomed before we get started. We heard the First Elected Member for George Town, when he presented his contribution on the debate on the Throne Speech, talk of the physical plants and the lack of classrooms. These must be addressed and addressed now.

Too many of our young children are doomed and abandoned from the system during the ages of 15 to 16. They are made to feel unwanted, unloved and uncared for too early in life. I am not here to say that the Government must take on the responsibility of the parents. The parents in these Islands must take on their responsibilities and instil values and discipline in their children. They are the future leaders of this country.

Many of us in here have reached that age of 55. I am quite beyond that and it is my dream to find a young North Sider to take over my position and what I have started in here. I have been looking for that young North Sider for eight years, but unless we give our children the proper opportunity of proper education we are not going to find those young people that are interested in coming in here to follow a political career. We send them to be accountants, we send them to be lawyers, but there are so many other jobs that we could train our young people for. Who is going to go to university and get a degree in accounting and come back to these hallowed halls when they can make $500 an hour outside?

The Throne Speech was well scripted but there was not a single initiative on combating HIV and AIDS. If we do not pay attention and stop turning a blind eye on this, the survival of future generations will be at risk. Madam Speaker, I think there was one line that said HIV, but there is an organisation that I think the past Speaker of this Honourable House and our National Hero, the Honourable Sybil McLaughlin is involved in that is trying to bring this to the forefront.

HIV can destroy a small country like ours. Once it gets into the mainstream of our society and our young people and older people—I was reading, I think it was when I was in Trinidad, of the number of elderly men that have now been diagnosed with HIV and AIDS. The people of these Islands need to know. It needs to start in the schools. When we read newspapers almost every country has responded to this threat by formulating policies, establishing institutions and developing programmes to ensure that the spread of HIV/AIDS is contained, to ensure that every child, adolescent, youth and adult learns of the threat of HIV.

The Throne Speech, for this country and for the needs of its people, leaves a lot to be desired.

Madam Speaker, I thank you for bringing to my attention the mention of HIV/AIDS on page 22 of the Throne Speech. It says: “With support from Caribbean Epidemiology Centre, in Trinidad, the Cayman Islands will develop a National Strategic Plan for HIV/AIDS. The Caribbean AIDS Telecommunications Information Network will be established in the Public Health Department to enhance information dissemination. These projects are funded by the Department for International Development of the United Kingdom.”

I apologise for saying that there was no mention. However, if we take as long to get this National Strategic Plan as we have taken to get a 21st Century Education Policy we will all be doomed.

One of the best youth policies in the region, Madam Speaker, and that was under your time in the Ministry, was written by the young people of these Islands. I think it has been sent to other Islands in the area. However, we hear very little of the implementation of the National Youth Policy.

I was accused of doing nothing in the Ministry, but one of my priorities was to lay that on the Table of this Honourable House and to leave funds for its implementation. When we try to make someone look as though they wasted their time in a Ministry, it always comes back to haunt us. I had less than one year because I think the election was on the 8 November and swearing was on the 15 November. I was removed on the 8 November—less than one year. However, that Honourable Minister who has the vision in social problems, accused the First Elected Member for George Town of taking one year from him because he needed four years to put a proper social policy in place, but I was supposed to have done it in less than one year? Let us be realistic. A social policy had been discussed at the Ministry before I left there because we cannot continue piecemeal with our social problems. We must get a document that can tell us facts and guide us in the right direction.

The Government seems to think, as I just said, that more of the same solution is the answer; not in the 21st century.

I am sure that a telephone call has now been made to the Minister of Education to come to these hallowed Chambers because I said a while ago I would deal with education. We heard in the Throne Speech that we are going to get a 21st Century Education Policy. In my opinion, not only the Honourable Minister of Education's term, but also the century, will be expired before we get that. I hope that we are operating on an education policy, but it is my understanding that we are not, so how can the Education Department carry out the policy decisions of the people without having proper information as to what the Ministry hopes to achieve?

The Millet Report that the Honourable Minister laid upon the Table of this House is a well-written document and a factual report. I think it has been around from your time on Executive Council when the past Minister Truman was Minister of Education. However, I think one of the first decisions made in Executive Council after the 2000 swearing in, was that the Minister of Education would lay the Report. I beg the question: how much of the recommendations in the Millet Report have been put in place? How much has been sent from the Ministry to the Education Department for them to implement working together?

We are in the 21st century with an education system that provides no statistics. How can we continue and hope to improve the education system being offered to our young people? I hope that that Minister of Education in his contribution will be able to give me facts and contradict me when I say we have children in this country graduating from high school reading at the level of an age seven child, when we boast to be the fifth largest financial centre in the world. We are crying out daily to “Caymanise” the Civil Service and to see that Caymanians are given fair opportunities in the private sector. How can we do this if we are not giving our children a fair chance with a proper education system?

We have children graduating from John Gray High School with a certificate that is not recognised by the private sector in this country. I do not know if it is recognised by the public sector. These children are not able to write a resumé to get a job. It is frightening and unless we do something about it and do it now we cannot wait to write a 21st Century Education Policy while our children are being doomed for the future in their own country.

We offer the CAT (California Achievement Test) to our children that, it is my understanding, is null and void outside the State of California. What are we doing to our children? The parents on these Islands are not going to sit back and take the lack of proper education for their young boys and girls any more.

I have a number of questions here and I hope that no one rises and says I am reading these questions. I have no choice. Do we have a completed curriculum for our schools? I have never seen it being laid upon the Table of this House. Madam Speaker, is our curriculum being written for the majority of our children to be able to achieve or is it, as I understand, being written for the top 20 per cent? What is more important? The top 20 per cent will achieve no matter what, but the 80 per cent that is being left behind can no longer be left behind. The curriculum must be based and catered to the needs of our children.

I supported the present Minister of Education when he was in Opposition on the Back Bench. He is an educator and I felt certain that by now the course of our education system in this country would have been changed drastically to cater to the needs of the Caymanian children. We tend to blame everything on the Education Department, but I do not. Some smart person will probably get up and say, "You are blaming it on the Minister and not the Education Department ... nepotism because your daughter works there". Not so. The Education Department in these Islands can only carry out the policy statement decision from the Ministry, so I have to lay my blame at the foot of the Ministry.

Madam Speaker, the time has come in the development of these Islands that no child should be left behind or not be able to read properly. As I said before, we boast of being the fifth largest financial centre in the world yet we have so many children that cannot read. It is a shame. They are leaving school without the basics. Why? Since I have been here, I have never heard one single Member say "no" to whatever request comes to the Legislative Assembly to be spent on education. We have always said "education, education, education". It is the future of these Islands.

It is time for the parents of these Islands who have children in our school system to adopt a zero tolerance for illiteracy and innumeracy in our children. It is my hope that the 21st Century Education Policy will ensure that by 2010 no primary school child enters the secondary system unless he or she is an 80-90 per cent functional reader. In saying that, the child must be able to reason and comprehend objectively. We need to put this in place right now so that we do not lose our young boys. Many of them will be graduating in September and we must put in place immediately some incentive somehow.

It is not my job to tell the Minister what to do; my job is to tell him what is not there. That is what the role of the Opposition is and I learned that quite well from you, Madam Speaker, when I spent one year on Executive Council because whenever you got up to speak you made it very clear in what you said.

Those male students must take advantage of advancing their education. I am aware of serious anti-social problems in our primary schools. When I was the Minister, even though I did nothing, mark you now I am a woman, I did nothing . . . I was supposed to solve every problem in this country in less than 12 months. I sat with the Minister, the Permanent Secretary or the Assistant Secretary in the Ministry that I was given responsibility for. The Minister's Permanent Secretary, the Chief Education Officer, the Director of Social Services and the Minister of Education and I discussed the behaviour that I had become aware of in a primary school. I said we need education social workers in the primary schools. There is no way the social workers at the Department of Social Services can be available at all times when there is a problem in order to assist. It is too late when these children do not reach the Social Services Department until 11 plus.

[Inaudible Interjection]

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: I agree with my colleague at the back: that is why we are having so much trouble now at the George Hicks High School with behavioural problems. I have searched the Throne Speech and I see no policy decision taken that we are going to provide our primary schools with social workers so that we can nip these problems in the bud. It is urgent, Madam Speaker.

I said before that the only way we are going to solve our problems is for the two Ministries to work together—The Ministry of Education and the Ministry of Community Services. I say this without fear of contradiction: if today I had children in the primary and George Hicks and John Gray High School system, I probably would have to go to classes to be able to assist them with homework. What are we doing in the communities to assist these parents, so that they can assist their children, so that they can develop to their full potential?

Why are there not resource centres in the districts? There are libraries. In my district there is an old clinic that is staying there and falling down. I learnt a couple of months ago that someone was living in it and using the electricity. The bill was going to the Government and no one knew who it was. That is a building that could be used as a resource centre. There are not many parents and the parent that really pays attention to the children to get the homework done is like you and me—the mothers. No, no I will give credit where credit is due, but the mothers are the ones . . .

[Inaudible Interjection]

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Well, that is good, I am glad you do not go fishing, but you tend to your children's homework first. However, Madam Speaker, can you tell me in your district, how many parents have access to computers to assist their children with projects? I know in my district there are not many. So why can we not provide a facility, a resource centre where these parents can take their children and get the information needed so that they can produce the same type of work as their colleagues?

In this age of technology much has been said about putting computers on the desks of every child in our primary school system. A laudable idea. It should be done. But I am going to relate a story of my nine-year-old granddaughter. She is going to be awfully upset at me because she is not a public person. When she heard the news item on the radio that every primary school student in these Islands would be given a laptop computer at their desks, she got out of the car, went inside and said, "Mom, could I have Mr. Roy Bodden's telephone number?" and her mother said, "Why Chelsea?". She said, "Mom what is the use of giving us a computer on each desk with no computer teachers?"

Do we now have the qualified computer teachers to assist these children? Madam Speaker, we hear of stories where pornography is being taken into our primary schools. We must have control. We cannot leave these children without supervision. We cannot. I have a 13-year-old granddaughter and, if she comes up to see me on a Sunday to use my computer, I sit and make sure that what she is doing is what she should be doing.

My next question is—and this is for my primary school in the district of North Side because I think you had the same thing in Cayman Brac—why are there still two classes of children, particularly in the North Side Primary School? I am not aware that it exists anywhere else except, I think, it was during a question of finance that the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac asked the Minister of Education the same question I did. Why are they still being taught by one teacher? Not even a partition. Can you imagine what that teacher is going through even if it is only ten children she is trying to teach? Are our children being given a fair opportunity?

Long before I entered these hallowed halls, I wanted a survey done, particularly of the North Side Primary School. They graduated from primary school many years ago with a high in English and a high in mathematics. When it came time for graduation I could only find one North Side child. Why are they getting lost in the system? It needs to be answered and it needs to be answered now before it is too late. I am being told by the First Elected Member for George Town that it extends itself beyond my district. I am only asking the Minister of Education to give every child in these Islands a fair chance.

When I learned that our primary schools—and I think it might even extend to the George Hicks High School, I am not sure because being Opposition you do not get too many questions answered. Sorry, I do get carried away when it comes to my children. The question I asked is why are the primary schools of these Islands (and maybe George Hicks) on an English Caribbean based curriculum, but are using American system textbooks and the American reading programme? Then we send them on to John Gray where they sit a Caribbean English exam based on what they learned in primary school using American textbooks.

Can you believe that, Madam Speaker? We have in this country, it is my understanding, other primary schools (and I will stress this is my understanding, but that it extends to the George Hicks but I could not confirm that) where the children are on an English Caribbean based curriculum, but are using an American system textbook and are on the American reading programme and then the final exam is a Caribbean English exam. When the Minister of Education replies, I hope for the future of these Islands that these questions can be answered. I would like to be told how often testing is carried out at the George Hicks High School. It would be interesting to know.

The next section of the Throne Speech that I would like to touch on, Madam Speaker, is the Sunrise Adult Centre. Any Member of this Parliament that has never visited the Sunrise Adult Centre must make it their business to visit that facility. I am sure that the Third Elected Member for the district of West Bay will totally agree with me. The physical plant is a disgrace to have our physically and mentally challenged people in. It is a total disgrace. It should be a shame on us in these Islands. I am even concerned that the Fire Department has not condemned the building where we have these people. I see the Third Elected Member for West Bay shaking his head and he is saying, "Yes, they have condemned it". We stand here and boast, we want investors, we are the fifth largest financial centre in the world and our physically and mentally challenged people are being treated like nothing. We should cry shame on all of us.

The one thing that was not said when I was being attacked for doing nothing: I left $250,000 in the Budget to find a place to rent that was suitable for our people. This was done—we talked about it here in this Throne Speech. We want to do a purpose built facility. This is why we were renting until the government was in a position to find property to do a purpose built facility for our people. My question now is, "What has happened to the $250,000 that I left, or are we hiding that so the country will think that I did not do anything?"

I was involved in the Sunrise Adult Centre—the facility where it is now—when "Hands Across Cayman" was arranged by Jackie Balls and myself to raise funds to provide that facility. It was so long ago that I cannot remember what year, but it was when we were running the Miss Cayman contest because the Miss Cayman world insisted that the contestant who won at the end of the day should be involved with projects dealing with the handicapped. We raised $15,000 to start that facility.

We have added on since then, but we have not given these people a fair chance to develop. I am going to say it here, that this facility, I am sure the people of the district of West Bay will understand, has to be more centralised. We have children in East End, we have children in North Side and we have children in Bodden Town that are not getting the benefit of this service because they cannot get there. We need a similar facility for your district. This is one of the things I was considering when I was there, but I did not do anything. However, the country will learn when history is written.

Madam Speaker, the subject that I did not want to touch was the Seaman's Ex Gratia payment, but it seems as though it is being used as a political football for mileage. However, it is not going to be used at the expense of Edna Moyle with people who are so economical with the truth that they cannot tell it. Tell the truth on me, I have no problem, none whatsoever. I can deal with a thief because I can hide what I have, but I cannot deal with a liar. Sorry, Madam

Speaker, perhaps that was un-parliamentary. Is there anyone who is economical with the truth?

The Seaman's Ex Gratia payment—let us give a little history. When I took over the Ministry after the last general election it was felt that the Auditor General should look at the ex-gratia payments because it had been discovered—and it is quite possible that it can happen—that persons who were not seamen in these Islands, but were shrimping in other places, came here, married after they finished shrimping, never went to sea and were getting the money. We found that they had the wife that they had divorced 12 or 15 years ago, but the present wife was getting the money. Therefore, we decided to ask the Auditor General to look into this matter.

Faced with the Auditor General's report recommendations, if you will allow me to read those —

The Speaker: Member for North Side, was that a report specific to the Ministry or was it to report to the Public Accounts Committee, and if so, has it been tabled?

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, it was reported directly to the Ministry, but Executive Council accepted it and it was brought here on the Business Paper to be laid upon the Table of this Honourable House. However, I went to London and the House concluded its business before my return and the report was not laid.

The Speaker: I beg your indulgence one moment so I can confirm with the Deputy Clerk.

[Pause]

The Speaker: Thank you. Member for North Side I am verily informed by my Deputy Clerk that it has not yet been tabled and, as far as she is aware, it has not yet been scheduled to be tabled, so I would ask you to so tailor your remarks so as not to infringe with that traditional standing provision. Please proceed.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Madam Speaker, I bow to your ruling. However, are you saying that if I am going to read from it I can table it now?

The Speaker: As I understand it, Member for North Side, it should go through the procedure where it is tabled by the person responsible in the existing provisions. It does not prevent you from using knowledge that you acquired in the Ministry that was not specifically contained. Once it is tabled there will be provision to deal with it accordingly. Obviously, you also have the provision to make personal statements if you see the desire to do so.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I will not get into the Auditor General's report and I can assure the country that it will never be tabled because I heard the present Minister say this shortly after I was removed from the Ministry.

However, based on the Auditor General's findings and his recommendations the decision was taken by the Ministry that I held responsibility for to take a paper to Executive Council to change the criteria and, if my memory serves me correctly, that was also discussed in this Legislative Assembly on a question that was asked. I could not take a paper to Council and change the criteria by myself—it was a unanimous decision. Executive Council at that time consisted of the Minister of Tourism, the Minister of Works, the Minister of Education, the First Elected Member for George Town, and me, and the decision was unanimous; there was no argument. The only argument was that the names in the Auditor General's report should not be published and I agreed. I am sure the minutes of Executive Council would bear me out if the Governor were to release them.

Therefore, when I hear at public meetings in Cayman Brac (and I hope my ears heard correctly) that the Minister said that I personally thought the men in Cayman Brac were getting too much money so I took it away ... You see, this is an example of being economical with the truth that I talked about. Speak the truth, speak it ever, cost it what it will, and I can deal with it, but he got the figures. I was in the passageway when I heard the telephone call being made, "Get the numbers when Julie was there and the numbers when Ms. Edna Moyle was there". What did it prove? The same criteria are being followed except you make $1,500 or less. Therefore, let us stop playing politics and let us deal with the country. Tell them the truth. Let them know the facts. I have no time for that.

Many names that came off were recommendations from within here. It is not in my policy, nor my personality to disclose things like that because they know who they are. I was told, "Don't tell so-and-so". Be that as it may, they must live with their consciences.

The Speaker: Member for North Side, you have made a very wide and encompassing statement which could impute the reputation and motives of Members in here. I wish you either to clarify or withdraw.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, what I am saying is the truth, but I will withdraw the words "persons in this Chamber came to me with names to be removed but don't tell so-and-so". I withdraw those words from the Hansard, but I am telling the truth.

The Speaker: Thank you.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Before I conclude my debate, in response to a question (I will tell you in 2004 who it was!), I listened with interest to the Minister of Tourism's contribution, particularly where it dealt with three hotels—I think he said one for Cayman Brac, one for the eastern districts and one for the western peninsula. I only asked the Minister with the hotel for the eastern districts particularly if that is going, I would say, into North Side or into the district of East End or Bodden Town ....

The Speaker: Member for North Side, you have 41 minutes remaining.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Madam Speaker, but I will not need that amount of time. Thank you very much.

... particularly for the district of East End and North Side because I have had so many tourists who have spent their time in the Cayman Kai areas, Rum Point and in the Morritt's Tortuga and Reef Point, comment that they find in those two particular districts more of the old Caymanian style of life. I am only asking the Minister to give the people the opportunity to have some say in the type or the size of the hotel that they would like to see in their districts. Let them have some input so that we do not spoil the ambience of those districts and the same in the district of East End.

I conclude my debate by congratulating the Deputy Commissioner of Police, Mr. Buel Braggs (or is it Chief Superintendent Braggs or Chief Inspector?) Inspector Rudolf Dixon . . . we will get the names right, everyone knows who I am talking about—all those who were promoted. However, in all the congratulations that have been offered—and these three gentlemen deserve it for they are young Caymanians and they have their country at heart—I believe deep in my heart that the First Official Member of this House, the Honourable James Ryan, had some input to make sure that these young Caymanians got the opportunity that they deserve. I will continue to ask that Honourable Member who has responsibility for the Civil Service of the Cayman Islands—

[Inaudible Interjection]

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, may I conclude? I never said a word when the Minister was making his presentation.

I would implore the Honourable First Official Member that, as he has acted in this case with these three bright young Caymanians to allow them to have their rightful place in the Police Department of these Islands, he let us look to doing the same thing within the civil service: that all Caymanians get the opportunity to move on. I am sure that as a concerned Caymanian you will assist wherever possible.

My final thought—I heard the argument in here yesterday to the Member for the district of East End that if he does not behave himself and he does not stop being such a strong opposition, the district of East End will not get anything.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: On a point of order, Madam Speaker.

Point of Order

The Speaker: Please state your point of order, Member for Cayman Brac.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: I was present throughout the afternoon yesterday and my recollection is that that statement is not accurate, so I am simply asking for the Member . . .

[Inaudible interjection]

The Speaker: Order, order.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: . . . for the Member to support that statement or to withdraw the statement.

The Speaker: Member for Cayman Brac, would you be so . . .

[Inaudible interjection]

The Speaker: Members, Leader of the Opposition and Leader of Government, at this time we will take the luncheon break and we will reconvene at 2.30 pm.

Proceedings suspended at 12.32 pm

Proceedings resumed at 2.35 pm

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Member for the district of North Side, before doing so, I should wish to say that I have requested the Hansard office to do a search and they have not been able to ascertain that those remarks were made in this Chamber. In that regard, it would be a point of order and the Member may wish to go on from there.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I bow to your ruling and I shall continue with my contribution.

When I sat and had lunch there were several things that came across my mind regarding women and I have one or two questions. Why has the Government chosen to only assist national footballers with a monthly stipend? My question is, why are the same benefits not offered to women in sports? I know we have two ambassadors for sports in the Cayman Islands, Mr. Street and Ms. Mothersill, and if my memory serves me correctly, it was announced that Ms. Mothersill would be receiving an ambassador's payment. I recall that the amount was much less than that for Mr. Street.

These are the questions that we need to answer in a day and age when women need to become equal with their counterparts. We want nothing more. I think you will recall, Madam Speaker, when I debated the motion to set up a Women's Affairs Office that I wanted to work in partnership with the men. I am only asking for the women in sports to be treated the same as our counterparts, the men.

The national netball team represents these Islands overseas, but I have never heard that they receive a monthly stipend to assist them—and if I am wrong I apologise. I understand that the national ladies football team goes overseas. I was not able to ascertain whether this was through the football association or on their own, but I understand (and I hope that I am wrong) that the Cayman Islands ladies football team are not even given proper uniforms—they are given hand-me-downs. We, as women in these Islands, can no longer accept this difference.

I would like to clarify on the Seaman's Ex Gratia payment. I need to make it extremely clear that as a Minister when a policy decision was taken by taking a paper to Executive Council which it accepted, I did not interfere with how the technocrats in the civil service dealt with that. If I was wrong, I was wrong, but I believe that the Minister must stay one step above getting personally involved when a policy decision is taken and is being carried out. That is my personal feeling.

Sitting over lunch and recalling the story the young Cayman Brac journalist Olivia Scott wrote in the Caymanian Compass about the drug problem in your district, I would have thought that there would have been much more in the Throne Speech as to how the Government was going to deal with that problem, as it is quite frightening for a population the size of Cayman Brac. In her story, she said she interviewed those young people who told her the problems with the drug situation. I am so committed to trying to help our young people. I think the challenge today to the United Democratic Party is to get into the district of Cayman Brac pronto and let us deal with the drug problem. Do not let it grow. Nip it now while we have a bit of time before it is too late.

I would love to have seen in the Throne Speech, Madam Speaker, a list of legislation affecting women and children, not only the Adoption Law (I left that with the Legislative Council when I left there) and not only the Children's Law that started when the Third Elected Member for the district of Bodden Town was there. However, because we had people involved that took a law straight out of the United Kingdom and brought it and put in the hands of our children, it has had to have been re-written and re-written and I thank God that it is finally going to be debated in this Legislative Assembly with a view to acceptance.

For some time now, Madam Speaker, I have debated in this House the removal of the word "illegitimate" in any legislation in the laws of these Islands. When I look upon a child, I see a child—I do not see an illegitimate child or a child from a marriage. I see a child—a blossom. I stress today the need for removing these sorts of things, all such references in any legislation; these stigmas from our children.

I thought I would have seen legislation to put in place that it is a crime to stalk young girls and women and if it is the other way around, men—I have no problem with that—my colleagues are telling me that men get stalked. You are going to hear . . . When I sat down at lunch and thought when my friend (and I thought he was), the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Services used such words that I did not have the ability to conceptualise the speech I was delivering, it makes me wonder, and I must wonder because the men in this House read their speeches word for word and not one soul rose on a point of order. Is it because I am a woman that I must not have that ability because . . .

Point of Order

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: Please state your point of order.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: I believe that the Member speaking is imputing improper motives on my part. Further, I believe that to discriminate against anyone because of gender or because of any other characteristic that is natural, is improper and against human right conventions and against the code of conduct of this House. Madam Speaker, that would be Standing Order 35(4).

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, could you please go on to state your motives so that I will be in a better position to make a ruling.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, 35 (4) states: "No Members shall impute improper motives to another Member".

For the Member to say that I objected or rose on a point of order with regards to her reading her speech—she keeps referring to the point of order although you, Madam Speaker, ruled that I had a point of order. She is now imputing that I rose on a point of order because she is a woman, which is not the truth.

The Speaker: Member for North Side, the Honourable Minister has stated his motive for raising the point of order. I have taken it to be in the literal meaning and I would ask that you continue.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I listened on that particular point of order and I am very happy with your ruling, but I, as the only Lady Member debating on the Floor of this House, because you no longer have that opportunity seeing where you sit as the Speaker . . .

The Speaker: Member for the district of North Side, I do not believe that you are correct in saying that I no longer have that opportunity because there are precedents for the Speakers to have made remarks, including yourself, on the Throne Speech and that is still open.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, thank you. That is not what I am talking about. What I am talking about is for you to come down here and stand in the position that I am in. I know there are precedents that exist throughout the Commonwealth.

So, Madam Speaker, I had no choice but to assume that the only reason that happened was because I was a woman. I will die with that belief and it is my opinion . . .

Point of Order

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: Yes, Honourable Minister, please state your point of order.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, I continue to insist that the Member is imputing improper motives to me as the Minister who is responsible for Women's Affairs at this time. I think that the Member knows that I could use Standing Orders because she stood and she read her speech. I brought it up as a point of order and it could be because she is of a different political disposition to me. It does not have to be because she is a woman. For her to say that I did because she is a woman is to impute improper motives on my part.

The Speaker: I made my ruling at the time that the objection was made in respect to Standing Order 32 (4) where a Member should not read his or her speech. It is not my intention to continue debate on that Standing Order. I would ask for all Members to refrain imputing wrong motives as the motive has been clarified and the Member obviously has the reservation to believe what she wishes provided it is not expressed herein.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Madam Speaker, it is my belief.

I will close my debate and contribution to the Throne Speech delivered by His Excellency the Governor, Mr. Bruce Dinwiddy, in Cayman Brac, which I have said to you on two or three occasions was an excellent function. I totally enjoyed the Parliament held in Cayman Brac and the historical occasion of the Throne Speech being delivered in Cayman Brac for the first time.

I did not get to partake of your yam cakes, Madam Speaker, but I understand they were excellent and I would like to pass on my thanks to the people of your district for their Cayman Brac hospitality.

I close my contribution by thanking the Minister of Community Services on completing the Frank Sound Park with the funds that I left in the budget that was started in 1995 when the Minister was the Minister of Tourism. It is a facility that I am sure will be well used by the young families in the Frank Sound area of North Side. I look forward to a meeting tomorrow with the Honourable Minister in my district to open a park that I must take the praise for.

Therefore, Madam Speaker, when the point of order came before . . .

The Speaker: You have 21 minutes remaining, Honourable Member.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: I was saying that I hope the district of North Side will not be left out because I am now an Opposition Member. The people of North Side and any other district, whether their representative be a Member of the Government or a Member of the Opposition, we must remember that any services that are being offered are being paid for by the people's money. The people's money is not just from the people that support us—it is from the people of the Cayman Islands.

I have to pause here, Madam Speaker, and thank the Honourable Minister responsible for Public Works because even though I am on this side and he is on that side, I have never picked up the phone when a concern has been brought to my attention by anyone in my district. I do not know if it happens in your district, but it happens in mine, where the majority of people that come to me with concerns are not people that voted for me in an election. However, because they did not vote for me, I do not believe that their concerns are not genuine and that I do not have the responsibility to deal with them. I have to thank that Honourable Minister because every time I have called he has given me results.

I have gone as far in other districts where people have said they have called their representatives, or someone, because they need the road fixed, but no one is coming. I have said, "Here is Mr. Pierson's cellular number". Of course, if it is George Town, I would pass it on to Mr. Kurt or Alden, or in East End I would pass it on to him—I am sorry, Madam Speaker, for using their first names—the First Elected Member for George Town and the Second Elected Member for George Town and the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town. However, no one has come back and said that this Minister did not take care of the problem and I feel this is how all Ministers must be. This is about the country. It is the country's money. We have just had the occasion to write to the Minister of Health to deal with the ambulance situation in North Side where there were four calls and an ambulance had to come from West Bay. The Minister has undertaken to look into the matter and this must be the attitude of all. We represent the same people that pay the same taxes and if anyone is controlling the purses of the government, we cannot discriminate when it comes to providing services to people because their representative is on the other side.

Madam Speaker, I now sit down and await the attack.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Second Elected Member for the district of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I just beg your indulgence until I get the podium.

The Speaker: Certainly.

[Pause]

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, it is with great delight that I have the opportunity once more to address this Honourable House and this great country as a Member of the Legislative Assembly representing the sixth electoral district of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Before I get into the meat of my contribution, I will take this opportunity to make a statement that I think directly impacts all of the plans that we are talking about in this Honourable House. In listening to the Members that have contributed so far, I have heard each Member make statements of their personal hardships. I heard the Member for East End talk of not being a privileged individual. I heard the Member for North Side talk of a need to draw young people into politics as she hopes to pass on the reins of her district to someone else. I heard the Minister of Community Affairs talk of his road to where he is today.

I think it is very important that we all understand where we come from to better understand what we all represent. It is my belief that we, as legislators, form a fraternity, form a group of individuals who have an elite responsibility, and together that fraternity should work in solidarity for the country.

I am a young man. In fact, I am the second youngest Member of the Legislative Assembly (the title of the youngest goes to my colleague from West Bay, the Second Elected Member). I graduated from Cayman Brac High School where my navel string is buried. In 1987 I was valedictorian with nine GCSE passes, then I came over to Grand Cayman to do A levels, as we have to do because we do not have that opportunity in Cayman Brac; completed my A levels at the Community College; was granted a scholarship to go overseas; studied; graduated with honours with a Bachelor of Science and Economics, Business Management and a minor in Finance; went on to do my Masters and MBA with focus on Economic Forecasting, once more graduating with honours; joined the Civil Service where I had the privilege of working under the tutelage of a very good friend of mine, the Honourable Third Official Member and I greatly respect him; gained rewards and recognition, even lump sum payments for great efforts, and evaluations that are second to none as a civil servant.

In 1996 I made the bold decision to enter the political arena and from that day on the Caymanian that was deemed as being poised for great things became the subject of great attack. The 1996 General Election was focused around attacking Lyndon Martin. Various allegations were brought against me and these were personal, not political. As the First Elected Member for George Town likes to say that his debate would never get personal, would never attack individuals, but would be political and factual. However, in 1996 and onwards the attacks were not just political they were personal; they were aimed at not only keeping me out of the Legislative Assembly, but also at discrediting me and making it impossible for me to gain employment within my field in my country.

To date, from 1996 to now, all the claims, all the flair that they were going on with, are still unsubstantiated and have proven, by default, to be inaccurate. Madam Speaker, the days, months and years that have followed have always been characterised by blatant attacks at me. I have been deemed by some as being the first cousin to Saddam Hussein or Bin Laden, the worst person in the world. However, Madam Speaker, I only strive to represent the interests of my people, your people, the people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. The backroom chatter, the states of trying to put me under a system of duress; a state where they are going to launch more attacks at my character, but I would like the country to know that everything that can be said about this Member has been said. There is nothing more; there are no more names they can call me. They have called me them all. They have called me a thief, a crook, an abuser, a liar. They have called them all; they cannot call any more.

I am an open book and I answer to three individuals principally. I am not a born-again Christian, but I believe and pray in the Lord Almighty as much as anyone else or more than most, so I answer to the Lord Almighty; to my mother who is very special to me; and to my wife. The Members of the Opposition or the political individuals in the public who want to say something about me can go ahead, but they had better know how to substantiate it because I am no longer going to sit back, relax and take the blows. I have a family to defend and I have a character to defend. Therefore, do not make the remarks when we go in the lunchrooms and backrooms. If you can make the remarks, come forward and say them, say them to the country, show that your motives are not personal, but make sure that you can substantiate them.

I use this opportunity, Madam Speaker, to say this in Spanish because it does not have a direct English translation that sounds good: I am a man "con pelo blanco en mi pecho". That means I am a man with white hairs all over my body that are not caused by age, but are caused by the mileage and the stress that has been put under me since I have opted to do what I think all advanced thinkers in this country should do. That is: step forward and represent his people in these hallowed Chambers. However, I would like, especially the Members of the Opposition to understand this, that as long as the blood flows through my veins and the people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman choose to elect me, they will hear my voice. I will be here. I am saddened that the First Elected Member for the district of George Town is absent from the Chamber because I would like him to understand this because his big bullying tactics will not work with me.

The Speaker: Member for Cayman Brac, I take it that you are going to tie this line of argument into the Human Resources section of the Throne Speech?

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Yes, Madam Speaker, I certainly will.

As the Member for North Side rightly pointed out, we need to encourage Caymanians to take up leadership positions in the Parliament, churches, and social sector. As was pointed out earlier, it is necessary to get Caymanians into the civil service and private sector. However, as long as we adopt this attitude that has been plaguing the Caymanian community for years of always crying down each other, always fighting within our own nationality when there are so many others out there ready and willing to take over our turf...

We need solidarity and support, Madam Speaker. When Members get up and attack young Caymanians such as myself, not only on the floor but also out on the streets as they mostly like to do, they must understand that their action is going a long way—because many young Caymanians look at the United Democratic Party as a two-level organisation—our current Executive Council and the Executive Council in waiting. The younger Members who are looking to our senior, seasoned politicians, our seasoned representatives and we are sitting here. You can look at it, you can examine it and you will see that we are five on five. Look at it as a great organisation—one that encourages young people to get into politics and representation.

The United Democratic Party Constitution even calls for a Youth Parliamentary Group to have individuals trained before they are of age to come into Parliament. I only make this plea to this nation: it must be compulsory for us to start to support each other and work together, rather than always try to drag down our fellow Caymanians.

I entered politics because my good colleague, the Honourable Minister of Health, introduced me to politics in 1996 as a suitable replacement because he was opting to run in his home district of Bodden Town rather than Cayman Brac. That is how we should be. We should be encouraging and looking for individuals and we should not feel threatened by younger individuals who are coming in. Younger individuals with different mindsets and different ways of thinking are healthy for a nation. I see too many occasions where energy and focus is put on tearing down Caymanians. We must cross that bridge! I thank this Honourable House for allowing me to get that particular statement off my chest.

We had the privilege of witnessing an auspicious occasion of the Throne Speech of the Cayman Islands being read within our district of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. It was a very emotional event. It was very taxing because I watched you and the staff of the Legislative Assembly work diligently in organising the Aston Ruddy Centre to ensure that it went off smoothly.

I would like to thank the staff of the Legislative Assembly, the Members of Executive Council, and the Members of the United Democratic Party who made it possible, who supported going to the Brac. As I stated at a public meeting in the Brac the day before the Throne Speech, I would like to personally thank the Minister of Education who supported you and me in our quest to have the Throne Speech read in Cayman Brac. I also would like to thank the Public Works Department and District Administration for the work that they put in to make sure that we were great hosts in Cayman Brac for the reading of the Throne Speech. I would like to thank all who participated, the public who came out and those who catered the food because it was a fantastic occasion.

Not only was the Throne Speech read in Cayman Brac, but it was an opportunity for the whole of the nation's media to be present in the Brac, to capture and get a new understanding of the people of the Island and of our capacity. All of the Members of Government were there to touch the ground and to shake the hands of the people. The Members of the Opposition were there to mingle and interact. So, everyone left with a better feel and with a better understanding of the country.

I would like to thank Radio Cayman for hosting the Talk Today show from the Brac and for centralising its focus on issues of Cayman Brac. Madam Speaker, I listened carefully as His Excellency read his first Throne Speech and I have to congratulate His Excellency on a fantastic delivery and on a Throne Speech that was well put together and composed.

The Opposition issued its formal reply, as it was termed by the First Elected Member for the district of George Town. He prefaced his reply by acknowledging that the official response was written prior to and without knowledge of the contribution from the Leader of Government Business. Thus, he acknowledged, prior to his contribution, that many components of his contribution would not be relevant because they were covered in greater depth. However, I can talk confidently about my Leader—the Leader of Government Business—and if that were the situation he would be able to adapt his presentation to the knowledge that he got that day because during a sitting of this Parliament we can sit down and take notes of what is being said.

I am deeply disappointed by the inability of the Leader of the Opposition and his admitting openly to the nation that he was not able to respond to what had come earlier that day because his official response was already prepared. I have to say in listening to his detailed lengthy presentation that from the onset I was disappointed. I only have one thing to term the response from the Opposition so far and I borrow it from a bumper sticker. It is quite simple: "Lead, follow or get out of the way".

The Opposition had their opportunity to lead and they did not do it. Now that the country has a definitive plan that is inspirational and is full of hope they must follow, irrespective of what they say. They must come on board with the Government and deliver to this country what this country needs. Alternatively, they can get out of the way.

The Elected Member for the District of East End stated that the PPM was a positive alternative, was not a party, by the way, was a movement that was a positive alternative; one with a positive outlook; one that is dynamic and not stagnant. I have to wonder who he is describing because it is not the PPM that I know. In listening to their response I did not hear anything positive; it was just doom; it was all negative. I have not heard one positive word come out or a positive plan for this country come forward—all negative. Dynamic not stagnant? You were very stagnant in the one year that you had the leadership of this country. I do not find it logical in any way to associate the word dynamic with what I know of the PPM.

Madam Speaker, there is not a whole lot that you can say from the delivery of the Leader of the Opposition because his delivery was certainly long in content but short in substance—as he termed the Leader of Government Business. He advocated at the end of his delivery the very attitude that is most unhealthy for this country. He said: "It is going to be lick for lick from here until then."

The Speaker: Could you please quote the reference?

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: I am reading from the Unedited Hansard of 12 March 2003.

Madam Speaker, this Member (as I termed earlier) likes to use such bullish terminology, such bullish action. It is time for us to be able to debate in this House on the merits of our argument; put our facts forward; contradict the facts, but let us not get into this aggressive adversarial type of politics where we are going to talk about "lick for lick". It is unhealthy, unwise and unproductive to advocate that, especially coming from a position of a Leader of the Opposition.

I once more refer to the same unedited Hansard of 12 March 2003 where the Leader of the Opposition defined the Throne Speech as being: "100 per cent the policies, programmes and priorities of the Government of the day and certainly what we heard last Friday, Madam Speaker, and what was contained in the Throne Speech, is what the Gov- ernment wants said and what was omitted is what the Government prefers not to have said in the Throne Speech."

I agree a Throne Speech is an important policy document. What I expected from what has been advocated as being a positive alternative to the United Democratic Party — and for the sake of my party I would like the Opposition to understand it is not appropriate to say the UDP Party. The P stands for Party, so it is either the United Democratic Party or UDP and not UDP Party. I do not want to stress that fact any more, but I find it my obligation to correct them on that.

The Throne Speech is very important. It is a policy document, but the alternative PPM should have come forward with their alternative policies with some direction for the country. We were told by their Leader that is what they were going to do. In his normal format where he is going to always put some precursor before he makes a remark, he said and I read from the Hansard 12 March 2003: "And this is where they will have great fun now because now is when I am going to say what we will do."

That was his precursor. "Besides adopting that zero tolerance for the unnecessary suffering we will move within six months of being elected to make sure that the pipe water is brought to every single home in the Cayman Islands. Where a means test shows that a family cannot afford to install or hook up with the pipe water then we will simply have to underwrite the cost of that. And let it be made very clear, this is not about creating a welfare state. Where it is determined that a family cannot afford in-door toilet and wash room facilities then certainly we will have to do something about that also."

You hear the generality he likes to talk about in his contribution, "Something about that". What are you going to do? Madam Speaker, I challenge the Opposition and the nation to search the remainder of the contribution from the Leader of the Opposition and find what else he plans to do. Given his definition of what a Throne Speech is—the 100 per cent encompassing document with the policies of the Government—can we conclude that the official response from the Opposition, which only listed three things that they intend to do, is 100 per cent encompassing? I think that is a fair assumption.

I ask the Leader of the Opposition and the PPM and all of its Members, what about education? I did not hear you mention anything about education when you listed what you were going to do. What about health care? What about improving tourism? What do you plan to do? You criticise, but in listening to what you planned to do you did not make any suggestions at all—I cannot even say constructive or not constructive. What about the economic stimulus package? What about the effort to revive the Cayman Islands economy? What about things for my district? I did not hear you list any of those.

So, am I to assume that if the PPM is successful in the 2004 General Election that we can only hope for three things? We have already stated in the Throne Speech that we plan to look at piped water for Cayman Brac up to Faith Hospital. However, Madam Speaker, you and I know we want it to go to the high school in the first case, but then eventually throughout the Island. I did not hear them list that under the things that they plan to do if they are successful.

Our people do not only want toilets hooked up, wash pans put in and water; they want jobs; they want education. They want houses to put those wash-rooms and toilets into. They want scholarships. Madam Speaker, judge the United Democratic Party by our delivery of all of those things.

It amazes me that people that I assume have a degree of reasonable intelligence (I will not stretch it to go beyond reasonable) could listen and read this Throne Speech, could hear the delivery of the Leader of Government Business, and then get up and say that it is not inspirational and does not provide hope. Are they telling me that when the Throne Speech and the Leader of Government Business talked of providing 200 homes for low-income individuals, that is not providing hope? Are they telling me that putting piped water in Cayman Brac is not providing hope? Madam Speaker, it amazes me that they could come to such a conclusion, but they disappoint me so often that I must not be surprised any longer.

The Member for East End made a delivery spanning from yesterday to this morning and I took a few notes, but I will allow the respective Ministers to respond to most of what he has said. However, this Member has once more amazed me. To get up in this Honourable House and to make a statement that because he is not a part of the United Democratic Party that we should not be punishing East End. Madam Speaker, in the same address, within minutes, he was talking about the Dart Foundation Cayman Islands Government joint agreement to put a park in East End with bathroom facilities sponsored by the Cayman Islands Government.

Madam Speaker, you and I would have welcomed the United Democratic Party to refocus the Dart Foundation to put a park within our district of Cayman Brac. However, the United Democratic Party is all encompassing—we represent all of the Islands, not only those that are members of our Party—so the Members of this Party continue to support the Dart Foundation Cayman Islands Government Park in the district of East End.

We do not have a Member for North Side that is an Elected Member that is part of the United Democratic Party, but the party has active District Councils within all districts. We have active memberships within all districts and we represent all of the Cayman Islands—be it who support us and who not support us. We are here to represent the Cayman Islands people.

This Saturday we are going to open the Frank Sound Park. I have to admit something to this Honourable House and to this Nation—I tried my hardest to undermine the efforts of the park going to East End. I called the Dart Foundation; I called the Minister and suggested that we needed the park in Cayman Brac. I apologise to the people of East End, but my first loyalty lies with the people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

In my quest to find out more about this park and how we could reroute it, one of the revelations that amazed me is how rude—and that is how it was termed to me—the Leader of Government Business at that time, who is now the First Elected Member for George Town, was to these developers who were coming in to give a park to the people in the district of East End. I understand that in the early days—

Point of Order

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: Please state your point of order.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Member could state when this took place and if he has proof in the absence of the First Elected Member for George Town?

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac, could you please respond accordingly.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, I would appreciate if she is referring to proof of the incident being rude?

Madam Speaker, I cannot give dates. I can only state that in my inquiry with members of the Dart Foundation and other people who were present in the organisation, that that suggestion was made. I have said that it was something that I heard and was third hand, but if the Member is not happy with that I would be happy to simply say that it is my opinion that in interpreting what was said to the Members of the Dart Foundation, I consider it rude.

The Speaker: Member for North Side, do you have another point of order?

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Yes Madam Speaker.

Based on the reply, I think the Honourable Member should withdraw his words.

[Inaudible comments]

The Speaker: Please direct the comments through the Chair, Members.

Member for Cayman Brac could you please restate what you actually said?

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, as a normal practice I do not speak from any written prepared speech, so I cannot say exactly what I said. However, in dialogue held between the Government and members of the Dart Foundation, the Leader of Government Business at that time, who is now the First Elected Member for George Town, was deemed as being rude.

The Speaker: Were you saying that was what was conveyed from the Dart Foundation or is that what you have actually assimilated from your own opinion?

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: That is something that I assimilated from my own opinion. I have clarified that to say that I am willing to say that, in my opinion, the statements made were rude.

The Speaker: The Chair accepts that he has qualified it to be his opinion and that it is not a statement of fact.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, I thank you for your ruling, but I would appreciate if this Honourable House could suspend and actually get the Hansard of the exact words that that Honourable Member used.

The Speaker: We can suspend, but I would ask that all Members stay in the Chamber and I would ask the Clerk to get the Hansard.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, if it suits you I will certainly withdraw the statement to allow for the flow to go on.

The Speaker: Sorry, I was conversing with the Clerk. Could you please repeat what you said?

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: In the interest and productivity of time, I would be happy to just withdraw the statement because it bears no weight on the argument I am putting forward.

The Speaker: Accepted. Member for North Side do you find that acceptable?

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Yes, Madam Speaker, once he repeats the words he said and withdraws them—not just says "I withdraw".

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, I am happy to withdraw the statement that the First Elected Member for George Town, in his capacity as Leader of Government Business at the time, was rude to the private individuals contributing the park to the district of East End.

The Speaker: Thank you. Please proceed with your contribution.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, we live and we learn. I have to comment that I hope it is not just because I am a young man that the Member wants to interrupt me.

The Member for East End, as I was suggesting, made allegations that because the East End representative was not part of the United Democratic Party that an attempt would be made to punish them. Both the Government and I have demonstrated through our actions that that is false.

In his contribution, the Member for East End also spoke of the Chapter House and the negative impact of having the troubled youth—youth with behavioural problems—located on a separate facility at Northward Prison—separate, but on the same compound, with no interaction between the prisoners and the residents at Chapter House—simply utilising government-owned property and various synergies that could be capitalised upon by having it there. He suggested there would be a stigma. Whenever a government has to decide to locate a facility for the incarceration of young people with behavioural problems, one of the common complaints is the location because no one wants it near them. The people of East End would not want it to come into their district. Therefore, the Minister opted to exercise what is financially prudent, what is community oriented, by putting it at Northward Prison and not paying some $60,000 per year to care for the child, which was the alternative.

It is important to understand the programme that the Minister of Community Affairs has. It is a whole continuum of care. The Chapter House residents are not simply your bad boys or your troubled youth. These are people who are sentenced by the Courts. These are not situations such as the four individuals at Bonaventure. Bonaventure serves a programme within this continuum. It is important, for these youths are put there by the Courts and must have a facility that can safely house them.

Madam Speaker, the social engineer for the Opposition had advocated the Orchid House which was going to be at Fairbanks Prison. They get up and talk about the stigma of having it at Northward. What about the stigma of having it at Fairbanks Prison? It is evidence of simple political opposition for the sake of opposing.

In his contribution, the Member for East End commented on the computer lab at East End Primary School and I am happy about the provision of this. However, the Member went on to say that he did not put this computer room there for personal reasons but for the children. Madam Speaker, I, too, was involved in negotiations with Ernst and Young; I, too, appeared in the Caymanian Compass like he did with the hand-over of computers (my particular instance was with Creek Primary School in Cayman Brac), but I am fully cognisant that it was not me who put the computers there—it was Ernst and Young in an ongoing programme that they have had for many years of providing computers for our schools. Further, it was our Government who built the computer room, who equipped the computer room, who supplemented what was donated and who augmented what was there.

Therefore, Madam Speaker, I urge that Member not to attempt to mislead his people by saying he put it there. Give credit where credit is due. It was the Government who put it there in conjunction with a generous donation from Ernst and Young. I thank the firm of Ernst and Young for their continuous effort in providing IT equipment to the schools. I understand they have recently given some computers to West End Primary in Cayman Brac and more will be coming and I look forward to it. Madam Speaker, I hope that you and I are there to shake their hands and say thanks, but we are not going to get up there and say that we did it. The Government built the computer room at West End Primary School and I thank the Minister of Education for building the computer room under our watch in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

There is much more that can be said on the Member for East End but, as I said, the Minister of Education will be responding to much of it, so I do not want to be repetitious.

I would now like to turn to various programmes localised in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and make a few comments and give a few statements of appreciation, suggestions and requests to the Government on behalf of the people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

First, I turn to the Customs Department. Madam Speaker, in dealing with Customs, I am obligated to comment on the point brought by the Member for North Side of the article written recently by a fine journalist from Cayman Brac, Ms. Olivia Scott. The article outlines comments from various young people, from the Chief Inspector of Police and other concerned citizens over the drugs on Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. At the same time as the articles were coming out, you and I held meetings, in particular one grand meeting at the District Administration Building with all involved in drug prevention, interdiction and counselling, including the District Commissioner, the Deputy District Commissioner, the Social Work Department, the High School Counsellor, the Police, the Community Officer and the Community Development Officer. All were present to outline and detail the problem for us to get a better understanding.

Madam Speaker, this meeting was initiated by you and it was very productive as we were able to assess the situation. One of the things that came out of this meeting and the subsequent discussions between you and me and the various parties involved, is that the drug issue on Cayman Brac is worse than we would like. However, it is not a situation that is out of control. Cayman Brac still remains, in my opinion and I am sure in yours, the jewel of the Cayman Islands. It is still safe and a great place to raise your family.

At the meeting, we outlined various initiatives that were necessary in assisting us to combat the drug issue. I humbly put forward to the Government that Cayman Brac Customs Department needs a second K9 Unit—that is an officer and a dog. Madam Speaker, we concluded that whilst the existing dog is passively trained, meaning trained to interact with the common public, we need an aggressively trained dog—one suited for field operations. This dog could also be used during the vacation time of the existing dog and handler, but would have to be placed on the outside of the conveyor belt rather than on the inside because he would be more aggressively trained. I have gone further in putting forward a Parliamentary question, which I am sure will be answered during this sitting of the House, requesting a commitment or details of progress on securing that K9 Unit.

At the meeting we recognised the diligence and commitment from the Police, Customs, Immigration, the District Commissioner and the Social Services Department and I commend all involved in the fight against drugs in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. I have held meetings with the National Drug Council and one of their employees, Mr. Simon Miller who has committed to carrying out various programmes in Cayman Brac. Madam Speaker, I see Mr. Simon Miller is listed as one of the candidates for the Young Caymanian Leadership Award. I wish him great luck for he is a fine young man.

I also put forward a request to the Government for a larger boat for canoe intervention to be located in Cayman Brac so that we can go beyond the regular 6 mile/ 12 mile limit of the existing small boats. The Drug Task Force could come over and use this boat, while our existing enforcement officers could do regular patrol. I am cognisant of the financial restraints. Madam Speaker, I wait patiently, but I encourage the Government to move in this direction. I assure them that I will continue to raise this issue as you and I will keep noting the progress that is being made.

For many years it has been noted that there is a need for extra space. District Administration employees are walking over each other. Property has been acquired for the expansion of the District Administration Building and many of the exercises and programmes that we talk about require this extra space. When we talk of putting office work from government to the Brac, we need space because in the Brac there is not enough private rental property space that could be easily and cost effectively acquired.

We need, Madam Speaker, to assimilate more young people into District Administration. From a human resources perspective, I am concerned that the continuity of the great service from District Administration is in question because we do not have enough young people coming in. However, we need space to be able to do this. I use this opportunity to recognise the addition of Mr. Delroy Bodden and Mr. Carey Christian as two young computer technicians who have been recently hired, but they are crammed into little closet-like areas to work from. Madam Speaker, we need to look at the space issue at District Administration on Cayman Brac.

I have made a written request for renovations that are needed at the District Officer Administration Building and residence in Little Cayman and I hope, from seeing the submissions of the upcoming Budget, that it will be included in the final document. The roof is in desperate need of change because it is sagging, shingles are missing, there are woodlice, and other problems. Furniture also needs to be improved upon. I take this opportunity to thank the Government on the work that has been done to that particular office in the form of new tiling and other minor renovations.

Lands and Survey Department's main employee, Mr. Jerry Banks was awarded the Civil Servant of the Year Award last year. He is a dedicated civil servant who is seen on the road before 6.30 in the morning, setting up his equipment to survey. He works long and hard hours, mixing his own cement to put down his markers. Madam Speaker, the Department needs to be allowed to carry out surveys in excess of the existing threshold of $3,000 per job. We do not have private surveyors on Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. I have been pressing this issue and I ask for the Honourable Minister to give some more consideration to allowing this officer to continue beyond the $3,000 threshold to doing survey work.

The issue of Immigration in Cayman Brac is one of key concern and needs to be elaborated on. We have continually noted the decline in the population of Cayman Brac. Recently, it has been highlighted through the population of the elementary schools on Cayman Brac, so now various initiatives have been proposed. I advocate that we may need to look at our Immigration Law regarding the 409 work permits that are issued in Cayman Brac and the foreign nationals employed in Public Service, as to whether we should now permit those who can show through financial assessment their ability to maintain their children in Cayman Brac to bring their children. There is an economic argument. The dollars that are generated in Cayman Brac are sent to foreign locations to maintain their children. Therefore, why not have these children in our schools paying the fees to go to school, have groceries bought at our grocery stores to feed the children and then the money would stay in the local economy?

I am a member of the Immigration Law Review and at the next meeting I will make representations to that effect. In the past I have made recommendations and I hope to see it come forward in the form of the new Immigration Law expected to come out later this year (I think in the June sitting) where the requirements for permanent residence for the Cayman Islands should be amended to make it more attractive for Cayman Brac because we need a population.

When we talk about health services in Cayman Brac, all of our problems can be attributed to the lack of a population. When we talk about air service, we can bring it back to the need for more people on Cayman Brac.

I believe that it is feasible and viable for the permanent residence requirements for Cayman Brac to be reduced. The independent source of income could be reduced to say US$70,000 because US$70,000 is more than adequate to maintain an individual family on Cayman Brac. I believe that the requirement for investment in non-movable property could be reduced to $150,000 because the current requirement of $750,000 is a lot of property in Cayman Brac. It may not be much on Seven Mile Beach, but it is a tremendous amount of property on Cayman Brac. Therefore, I believe it can be reduced to $150,000 because $150,000 can provide a nice home on Cayman Brac.

I strongly advocate an increase in the population through non-natural methods such as the issuance of permanent residence, but I also would like to see more Caymanians given the opportunity to come back to Cayman Brac.

This Government and the Minister of Information Technology were responsible for the issuance of a license that has made it possible for Brac Informatics to operate on Cayman Brac. Madam Speaker, it was a momentous occasion when we witnessed the opening of this very high-tech, highly sophisticated white collar employment generating facility and I thank the Honourable Minister and the United Democratic Party for its vision in making this licence possible to allow this operation to go forward.

I must put forward a challenge to the proprietors of this operation of Brac Informatics—I would like to see some Caymanians employed. Madam Speaker, I am very good friends with all at Brac Informatics and I will ask them for a scholarship for a Caymanian. We want something in order to train a Caymanian who can come back there and work. It takes two hands to clap—the Government made it possible, now we must ask Brac Informatics to come forward. I speak with great hope because I know the developer and I know that he will eagerly accept my challenge. A scholarship will go a long way, but Caymanian faces in the operation will go even further.

The Postal Department received a great enhancement under the watch of the United Democratic Party. We were there with the Minister of Information Technology when we opened the West End Post Office, which also has high-speed ADSL Internet access now. It is a great facility and has offered a facelift to that particular area. For those who say that nothing has been achieved by the United Democratic Party, Madam Speaker, I ask for them to rethink that statement.

I want to talk now about the Public Works Department of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. Madam Speaker, for some time now you and I have been advocating the need of converting the many group employees—not all, as it is unreasonable to expect that all will be converted. Due to the sporadic nature of work, Public Works will need to have some flexibility where some group employees are maintained. However, at Public Works on Cayman Brac there are too many hard-working long-serving (some as many as 25 years) and senior supervisors who are still group employees. There are many shortcomings from being a group employee versus being permanent and pensionable: the notice that your employer must give you for your termination is only a week or maybe two weeks so it is not as stable; when that individual goes to the bank to get a loan and he is listed as a group employee who is on a contract by contract basis, he is given difficulty versus if he was a permanent and pensionable employee.

Madam Speaker, you and I have on many occasions recognised the importance of the hard working individuals in the Public Works Department who are willing at any time. We recently saw, as we prepared for the Agriculture Show, that they will go beyond the call of duty to come out, work hard, work in the rain, as the Minister of Agriculture can attest to. We were out there working side-by-side in the rain with the Public Works guys, heavy equipment operators, people with heavy rakes, and machete men. I have great confidence in the Public Works Department.

Many have launched attacks and criticisms on the Public Works Department of Cayman Brac. Many have said their jobs could be done more economically by using private sector individuals. I do not say that is not true. However, most, if not all, of our Public Works guys are Caymanians, are Cayman Brackers, and we must keep them employed. One of the facts that you and I can boast about is that, during these two years that we have been the representatives, there have been no lay offs. That is very important for that community. Public Works is a major employer and when we use the Public Works Department to build a building, we know that money is staying there because it is going to Caymanians. If we give it out to the private sector, which sometimes we have to, that money is paid to foreign labour. There has to be a balance. We must understand that there is a need to be prudent, but there is also a need to ensure that the financial resources of this country remain within this country.

The Speaker: You have 1 hour remaining.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I am not sure if you would indulge to an afternoon break at this time?

The Speaker: Certainly. We will take the afternoon break, but I would ask Members to reconvene within a ten minute period so that we could continue today's business.

House suspended at 3.58 pm

Housed resumed at 4.15 pm

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Continuing the debate by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman with one hour remaining.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you, Madam Speaker and thank you for that welcomed afternoon break.

At the time of the break I was speaking on the Public Works Department. I would like to reiterate that I have the greatest of confidence and we give the Public Works Department and its work crew our full support.

One of the great challenges of getting development on Cayman Brac, in the form of roads or other public work construction, is the fact that the group employees are always paid from projects. Therefore, when we put in a submission — and I hope that the Honourable Member for East End pays careful attention because he critiqued a submission in the Budget for roads for Cayman Brac. In fact, he objected to say that where each district in the Cayman Islands had $200,000 allocated for road work, Cayman Brac had $475,000 in that particular budget and asked the question as to why. Madam Speaker, there is one major difference right up front. We use the money allocated for road works on Cayman Brac to pay the employees against that particular vote. Therefore, where the road work is allocated for each other district, the payroll would not be charged against that particular road vote. For specific example, that particular year where there was $475,000 some $300,000 was devoted to payroll. That does not leave much to buy the material, to buy the asphalt. Thus, that particular issue of group employees has far-reaching consequences because it limits our ability in this Parliament to get the type of funds that we need to get the type of development on Cayman Brac.

The other reason that we need roads in Cayman Brac is because we still have much landlocked property and un-surfaced roads. Therefore, when the First Elected Member for George Town speaks of piped water—and I agree that is very important; it is for that reason we have it in the Throne Speech for Cayman Brac — it is also important to understand that we still have citizens in this country who drive to and from work on roads that are not paved. However, under our watch, under the United Democratic Party, we are aggressively addressing the issue of paving roads. We paved a substantial portion of Major Donald Road leading up to the lighthouse, which is a major tourist attraction, and through effective negotiation with the power company we have had them install power along that same road going up to the area that we call Green Land.

We have already seen the direct impact because people are starting to buy property and build their homes on that road because it is now paved, has electricity and streetlights.

Madam Speaker, we have also paved a substantial portion along Songbird Road going west on the Bluff. We have spent much energy, time, and money taking down some of the cliffs and removing some of the hills to get roads paved. These are some of the projects that are undertaken and sponsored by the UDP administration. Therefore, when the Opposition say that we are not doing anything to stimulate the economy, many of the Cayman Brackers that I interact with say what a great idea it is to open up these roads on the Bluff and create development. It is happening, but it does not happen overnight.

People are building and are starting to buy property, but you have to give time for the development to happen. What we are doing is creating the foundation and the atmosphere for it to happen within our district and that is the same thing happening in Grand Cayman.

While we are talking on roads, the Spot Bay Road (previously called Sky Blue Road), which is the most frequented road in Little Cayman because it links the two sides of the Island together and is the road where the Police Station, Public Works, the school and the designated health centre are—that is a road that we need to give urgent attention to. The road needs to be straightened, widened and surfaced. Again, I urge the people of Little Cayman to be patient because much is being done, although we do not see it. The first part of this process is to acquire land, to gazette it, to get owners permission for its straightening because we are not prepared to pave the road until we can straighten it, as there is a requirement under the Roads Law for a certain amount of visual clearance when you pave roads.

Again, on this issue, I have a parliamentary question put forward as to the progress being made in acquiring owners' permission and acquiring land and the gazetting process for the Spot Bay Road in Little Cayman.

I must also mention health care facilities and the need for regular dental visits to Little Cayman. I know that the Minister of Health is committed to providing an appropriate facility and an appropriate schedule for dental visits to the residents of Little Cayman. However, one of their challenges is the facility because the existing Health Centre is so small, there is a great problem with dust, and we need to relocate, improve or pave the area in front. Madam Speaker, it is a challenge that the Minister is currently looking at and I have the greatest confidence that relief will be given.

There is still only one healthcare provider in Little Cayman—one nurse. I have spoken to you on this and I know that you concur. I believe that every healthcare professional who enters into a contract with the Cayman Islands Government should have a provision in their contract that they may be rotated to the Sister Islands—only a provision, as it is not necessarily going to be done. However, you can expect it because it is becoming more difficult for the health-care providers in Cayman Brac to keep providing the nurse for Little Cayman. We need to get a relief nurse rotated from George Town Hospital occasionally to give the lady a day off or to give her vacation time.

I must take this opportunity to commend the appointment of Dr. Jefferson as Medical Officer in charge of Faith Hospital. I witnessed Dr. Jefferson taking his day off when his family—his daughter and his wife—was visiting to go over to Little Cayman to give the nurse a day off. I thought that was so notable and noble. I thought it was so courageous for the man to lead by example. I hope there can be some relief for the healthcare provider in Little Cayman within the near future.

I now turn to the Port Authority. Last Friday we were privileged to be at a ceremony for the re-opening of the dock in Cayman Brac. It is a dock that you and I know quite well—as youngsters we have all swum around it; as boaters we have driven under it; and we have all been around the dock. We walked over the dock and saw the condition of it prior to the work being done. We saw the amount of rebar exposed and the amount of cement that has fallen to the bottom of the ocean. Cayman Brac now has a new modern dock with proper lights which it did not have before, and the capacity of providing a good service for Cayman Brac for many years to come. It makes me proud of this achievement.

This was made possible through an insurance settlement that the Government received for damages sustained by the dock. However, Madam Speaker, it is not always the case where insurance pays and the work is carried out. We have had other such situations in the past where insurance has settled, but the items have not been replaced—the dock in Little Cayman at Point of Sand being one. I am greatly appreciative to the Minister of Tourism, the Leader of Government Business, for the interest that he has shown in the port facility for Cayman Brac. I remember during negotiating time for the commencement of that job that he would not take no for an answer; it had to go forward. The Board was also supportive of it, Madam Speaker. Time was of the essence because the dock brings food to the people of Cayman Brac.

The Leader of Government Business took it upon himself and the Board to contract Misener Marine, the original contractors who performed the duties expeditiously within the contracted period, with the exception of delays caused by weather. Madam Speaker, the Opposition also opposed that appointment. I thank the Leader of Government Business for standing firm and ensuring...

Point of Order

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: Please state your point of order, Member.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: The Member is misleading the House. The Opposition never opposed the appointment of anyone to perform the functions necessary to repair the dock in Cayman Brac. Unless the Member can clearly articulate such opposition he must withdraw the statement.

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, could you expound as to why you made that statement?

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, I think it would be easier for me to rephrase the statement so that it may be less offensive. I think the Members of the Opposition opposed the method under which the contract was entered. Does that make everyone happy?

The Speaker: Please direct comments through the Chair.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, I am happy to just oblige the Member and withdraw the statement that, "the Opposition opposed the construction of the dock in Cayman Brac". I would like to say the Members of the Opposition opposed the method under which the Board appointed Misener Marine to carry out the work in Cayman Brac. I hope that makes the Opposition happy.

The Speaker: Please continue Member.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, I say that the method used in appointing the company for Cayman Brac was the only method to get the job done in the time needed. Therefore, by opposing the method of appointing, it was opposing the timely completion of the job. The port on Cayman Brac is now up and running and we are quite happy.

I also take this opportunity to point out that during the construction phase of the port an alternative port had to be designated. Through the Board, the Leader of Government Business allowed for the designation of Cemetery Pier as a temporary port with proper fee collection by the Port Authority, in order to receive the cement and concrete that was needed to build the port. Through that action a small industry has been created: the export of aggregate. Cemetery Pier was proven to be an effective port.

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, we have reached the hour of interruption. May I now call on the Leader of Government Business to move the appropriate motion?

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Monday, 17 March 2003 at 10 am.

The Speaker: Thank you. The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until Monday 17 March 2003 at 10 am. All those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

At 4.30 pm the House stood adjourned until Monday, 17 March 2003, at 10 am.

OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT
MONDAY
17 MARCH 2003
10.35 AM
Fifth Sitting

The Speaker: I will invite the Third Elected Member for the district of Bodden Town to grace us with prayers.

PRAYERS

Mr. Anthony S. Eden: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal Family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office. All this we ask for Thy great Name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

Proceedings resumed at 10.38 am

The Speaker: Please be seated.

ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS OR AFFIRMATIONS

The Speaker: Madam Clerk, perhaps we could expedite the process by calling Mr. Walton at the same time.

Oath of Allegiance

By Mr. Samuel Bulgin Temporary Second Official Member

Mr. Samuel W. Bulgin: I, Samuel Bulgin, do swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth, II, her heirs and successors according to law, so help me God.

Oath of Allegiance

By Mr. A. J. Walton, JP Temporary Third Official Member

Mr. A. Joel Walton: I, Joel Walton, do swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth, II, her heirs and successors according to law, so help me God.

The Speaker: On behalf of this House we wish to welcome both of these Honourable Members and I now invite them to take their seats.

Please be seated.

READING BY THE HONOURABLE
SPEAKER OF MESSAGES
AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Speaker: There are no messages or announcements for this morning.

STATEMENTS BY THE HONOURABLE MINISTERS/MEMBERS OF THE GOVERNMENT

The Speaker: I have not received any notice for statements for this morning.

I now recognise the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman with 45 minutes remaining.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

Debate on the Address delivered by His Excellency the Governor on Friday 7 March 2003

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Before I continue my address I want to express my condolences to the family of Dale Hugh George Gordon, a young man of 19 years from our district of Cayman Brac, who was buried yesterday. I took the opportunity yesterday, as per your request, to express condolences on behalf of yourself and your family, and took the liberty to express the condolences of the entire Cayman Islands' Government and the Legislative Assembly. The hearts of the entire Cayman Brac community went out to the family yesterday and once more I express my condolences.

The Speaker: Accepted and on behalf of the Honourable House I am sure that I, too, can take the liberty of expressing our sincere and deep condolences to Nurse Campbell and her immediate family. It was shocking news that came through Pedro initially and then on to Cayman Brac. It is another reminder that we have a great creator and that time waits on no man and that we should take every opportunity to make sure that the most important element in our life is to serve God and to do good while there is time and opportunity.

Please continue Member for Cayman Brac.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

When the House adjourned on Friday I was speaking on the Public Works Department, in particular the Public Works Department of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. This morning I was at the airport in the Brac and watched the Public Works guys as they boarded Island Air to go over to Little Cayman for a week of work. The appreciation that I expressed on Friday was compounded as I looked at these men and women leaving their homes, parting with their families to carry out the work of the Government in Little Cayman. I discovered another hardship that these men go through - the difficulty of getting their food supplies transported over to Little Cayman so that the cook at the Public Works Department could prepare their food. However, happily this morning it was transported over by Island Air. I hope that the airline adopts the practice that they had this morning of dedicating a flight to Little Cayman for the Public Works guys to allow them to get all their stuff.

One of the other great challenges faced by the Public Works Department in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman is the age of the equipment that they are asked to work with: trucks as old as 30 years that have worked in the hard terrain of the Bluff, bulldozers as old as 25 years. Under this Government we have seen much needed improvements. We have seen a new paving machine for Little Cayman; a new water truck purchased for Cayman Brac; the purchase of a pickup truck for the Public Works Department; and we have seen a continuous effort made by this Government (including the new upcoming Budget) for other replacements to some of this aged equipment. Therefore, when individuals in this Chamber get up and talk of there being no hope, no inspiration in the Throne Speech in the policies of this Government, I am at a loss to find words that amply describe their motives.

Throughout the contribution of the various Members of the Opposition we have heard suggestions of political motives by the United Democratic Party (UDP). We have even heard suggestions that the UDP and its administration may be delaying much needed social programmes closer to election. Madam Speaker, what can be further from the truth? What the UDP administration has done is taken the reins of the country when the coffers of the country could not afford to do social programmes to the magnitude that we needed. We have taken action to redistribute income, as they like to talk about; we have taken action to improve the Government's financial position so that we can now go out and embark on the much-needed social programmes.

I was very disappointed, as I normally find myself when I listen to the Opposition, that they can get up and talk about the delaying of much-needed social programmes, but were not able to identify these social programmes. As I stated on Friday, it is time for us to draw together and work in unity and in solidarity. When the social programmes are being examined, rather than just getting up and criticising for the sake of criticising, make positive suggestions. When no other positive alternatives are suggested, we can only assume that they cannot come up with anything better than what the UDP's administration is doing through our very qualified and experienced social engineer in the form of the Elected Member for George Town, the Minister of Community Services, Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField.

Madam Speaker, so much has been said about the Sister Islands. In the contribution of one of the Opposition Members it was suggested that the Throne Speech did not address the issue surrounding drugs in Cayman Brac. The Throne Speech outlines the Government's broad policies, but more than simply addressing it in Throne Speech, this Administration is out on the streets doing things. This Administration has made it possible for the largest complement of the Royal Cayman Islands Police Service to be in Cayman Brac. I give gratitude to the Executive Council and special mention to the First Official Member who has made it possible for us to have the largest number of police officers in the history of Cayman Brac to be present under this Administration.

This Government has also funded the acquisition of a four-wheel rough topography motorbike to allow the custom officers and police officers to more effectively search and patrol the shorelines of Cayman Brac. There is a request for a second one to be purchased for Little Cayman. As we know, the supplier of the drugs is the ocean - they are just simply drifting in. It is this Administration that is taking effective action. We can see from the many reports in the paper that the actions are paying off. The custom officers and the police officers in Cayman Brac are working diligently in their efforts of interdiction.

Madam Speaker, I would now like to turn to the Planning Department. For many years we have noted the need for a much-needed building inspector for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman because it is always ironic that we inspect the electrical and plumbing, but we never inspect the building. I am happy to learn that efforts are being made as we speak to recruit a building inspector who will be stationed for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. These are actions that are being done under this Administration and the role of a building inspector is important to ensure security of one's home. So I beg to differ with anyone who suggests that the UDP administration is not doing things effectively for my district.

The Royal Cayman Islands Police service for Cayman Brac now stands at some 14 Constables. There are plans in place and action being taken to increase that number further. As we heard recently from a question asked in this very hall that there be a position of a second inspector in Cayman Brac and an increased number of policemen for Little Cayman because currently we only have one police officer on Little Cayman. There has been the introduction of a Community Police Officer, Constable Dave Ashurst, who has been adjusting greatly to his position and has certainly proven to be a great addition to the Cayman Brac community. Madam Speaker, you and I have had the opportunity of meeting with this particular community officer and have seen the effectiveness of the many programmes that he has undertaken, planned and is engaged in. I congratulate and thank the Community Police Officer, the Chief Inspector who supervises him, and the entire Government for making it possible for Cayman Brac.

There are plans underway to have a uniformed support group for Cayman Brac. We have also recognised the need for a four-wheel drive truck for the towing and moving of the police boat. I hope that in the upcoming Budget we could have some relief to get a truck in order to be able to launch the boat. Ironically, the boat is situated and parked just minutes away from the best docking facility in the former Panama Canal. However, it can take hours to launch the boat because they have to bring trucks from elsewhere. We have noted the need for increased space, and an improved facility for the police officers of Cayman Brac. The Police Station is very old, space is limited and there is no room for expansion because all property around it is occupied. I urge the Government to look at the proposals that have been made for the relocation and expansion of Cayman Brac's Police Station.

This morning, upon leaving the Brac, I noted the rough weather on the south side of Cayman Brac and how the tourists aboard the dive vessels had to venture through the channel in this rough weather. It is for that reason that this Government has continued to put money and support behind Cemetery Pier and its improvements on the north side of the Island. If this dock was operational the boats could launch through the channel, but guests could board the boat on the north coast where the weather better.

The Civil Aviation Authority has requested, and has been granted, planning permission for the expansion of the arrival hall on Cayman Brac. This is a much-needed and greatly awaited development and we look forward to the commencement of work. I understand from the Authority that they are now at the stage of receiving bids on this particular job. These are developments that are being made under this Administration for the improvement of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. Civil Aviation Authority has increased their staff complement by three new employees on Cayman Brac to improve safety for our indigenous populace and visiting guests who use the civil aviation facility and the airways. They have sent their entire staff, including those on Cayman Brac, on refresher training courses. We have seen the repaving of the airstrip in Cayman Brac and we have the development of a master plan for a new airstrip for Little Cayman. We look forward to the new airstrip going ahead and continuing along.

I would now like to turn briefly, Madam Speaker, to the issue of tourism. Tourism is our only industry in the Sister Islands of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. We do not have the twin pillars. We must respect, cherish and nourish tourism. The Tourism Policy Document has recognised the need for "Caymanising" our tourism product. That policy can best be implemented by better utilisation of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman in the full tourism mix. The Honourable Leader of Government Business has provided a commitment and I look forward to it being executed in the near future. I know he has gone even further with the commitment by identifying an individual to act as a Tourism Promotion Officer for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

These are great developments that we see happening under the UDP administration. There has been a commencement of a beautification exercise and appointment of a National Beautification Committee including a committee for Cayman Brac. We need an estimated $75,000 to be allocated in the upcoming budget for beautification activities. I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate the Brac Reef Hotel for commencing beautification in front of their facility as they have undercut the trees adjacent to the pond and intend to put some benches there. I encourage that entire hotel strip on Cayman Brac to follow suit to make it more attractive, to utilise the resources that we have, to capitalise on the beauty of the West End pond.

I hope to see that entire stretch with the pond side undercut with benches, walkways and bird-watch areas. Much has been done in that area, especially under our Administration, as we have seen many improvements to the facilities allowed for bird-watching and nature observation. I would like to see that entire road straightened, widened and elevated so that we do not have flooding along our main hotel stretch of Cayman Brac.

I would like to thank this Administration, the District Administration and the Public Works Department for the efforts that have been made for drainage on the West End pond in order to prevent flooding as we have had in the past. However, more is needed. We have seen an increase in the number of drains going into the ocean from the pond to prevent flooding and we have seen pipes put in to connect the two ponds to prevent flooding - all under this Administration.

Our tourism product is dependent on reliable, timely, efficient and cost effective air service to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. It is under the United Democratic Party administration, as announced by the Leader of Government Business, that the new Cayman Airways Board has decided to acquire appropriately sized aircraft to provide an hourly "bus service" to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. I look forward to the introduction of such a schedule. Madam Speaker, you and I who travel to Cayman Brac on a regular basis, sometimes two or three times a week, can attest to the difficulties that we have getting to and from the Sister Islands. The residents of Little Cayman and Cayman Brac have cried out that they need better and improved service. Madam Speaker, irrespective of what aircraft is selected there will always be a need for jet service into Cayman Brac. Last Friday I flew and it was sold out; this Saturday the flight was sold out. In fact, on Friday it was over-sold. A jet service will always be needed, but it can be complemented and augmented with a smaller, more efficient aircraft.

I would now like to turn briefly to health services. Health services is an economic instrument, a foundation from which an economy can be built, a community can be built. I would like to thank the Honourable Minister of Health for the much-needed renovations and repairs that have been carried out to the ceiling and the air-conditioning unit in Faith Hospital. We have seen the reopening of the female ward. I would also like to thank the Honourable Minister and his Ministry for the acquisition of a new ultra-sound machine. This diagnostic tool is much needed and we welcome its arrival. I understand that negotiations are currently underway for its purchase and it will be on the Island shortly.

The Minister and the Health Services Authority have now made it possible to contract a new surgeon in Cayman Brac. We have for some time articulated the need to replace the surgeon and the gynaecologist. I have listened to the reasoning expressed by the Health Services Authority and by the Ministry of the difficulties in recruiting a properly qualified gynaecologist for Cayman Brac. I understand the difficulties when we only have eight, 10, maybe 12 deliveries per year, but we need that position filled. I know the Health Services Authority is making efforts, but 15 months is long enough. The position needs to be filled.

Health services in Little Cayman need to be addressed. The facility is not adequate. The Minister has made effort and, at the time of the creation of the Health Services Authority, property was vested for a new health clinic, but notable objection has been made to the location. Therefore, I look forward to actions and negotiations between the Minister of Health and the Minister of Education to remedy the ongoing difficulties in the selection of a new site for health services for Little Cayman.

Madam Speaker, I am pleased to note that on the 2 April of this year the Dental Department will be visiting Little Cayman to do an assessment of the populace, to categorise them, as well as an assessment of the facility so that they can provide regular ongoing service to the residents of Little Cayman. This is welcome and it is a positive development, once more, under the UDP administration.

I must emphasise, before I leave the topic of health services, that the people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman require good health services. We have great doctors on Cayman Brac in the form of Dr. Jefferson and Dr. Wallace. We currently have one surgeon who has been recently appointed, and the vacancies—and I correct myself when I said earlier that we need to replace the surgeon and gynaecologist—there are currently no gynaecologists on Cayman Brac, we need to fill that vacancy. We hope to be able to encourage the surgeon who is there to stay on, however, his contract is of a short nature of three months. I am informed by the Health Services Authority that efforts are on the way to locate another individual in the event that the current surgeon decides not to stay on.

The Community College of the Cayman Islands can and should be offering courses in Cayman Brac. They currently offer some night classes, but I am talking of college credit classes that can be offered through remote classes. I have asked the Honourable Minister to give an undertaking to look into the viability of offering classes in this format. This should be possible with the technology available in this day and age. Education on Cayman Brac is something that is on the minds of every Bracker and every resident of Little Cayman. I am pleased to learn that the Honourable Minister of Education has recognised and acknowledged that the school service in Little Cayman that was created under your administration, Madam Speaker, is a viable and much-needed service and must continue. The ongoing debate of education services can now be put to rest. That school needs to remain—some nine students. Madam Speaker, under this Administration we were able last year to put a fence around the school to provide better safety for the children. Much has been done.

Education in Cayman Brac has also been a controversial issue. The proposed amalgamation of Spot Bay Primary and Creek Primary School that has come forward from the parents of Cayman Brac through the PTA and through the Education Department is now being considered and reviewed by the Ministry. I act in the capacity of Chairman of the Education Board of Cayman Brac and we have also reviewed the proposal to amalgamate. The issue of double classes is the issue at hand. We can all agree—and I am so happy that I find one topic that I can agree on with the Member for North Side—that double classes is not acceptable. It is much better to provide $30,000 a year for a teacher to teach that student (even if it is one student) than to allow that student to slip through the system to then pay $48,000 a year later to incarcerate him. Madam Speaker, I look forward to a remedy. Amalgamation is one proposal that is being reviewed, but double classes on Cayman Brac must stop.

The education of our children in this new world order, this new day of globalisation, where we are no longer talking of domestic and international affairs because it is all one; we are no longer talking of a domestic labour market and an international foreign labour market because we are all one; we are asked to provide equal rights to foreign labour as we are asked to provide to our own indigenous workers under international obligations. If our people are expected to compete head-to-head with foreign labour we must continue to put focus on education.

It has angered me to hear the Opposition challenge what the Minister of Education is doing, to suggest that words like "italic" are only good sounding things, but there are no fixed programmes. There is one un-contestable fact that cannot be challenged: that under this Administration there has been a record number of Caymanians receiving funding for tertiary education. Madam Speaker, the Minister who chairs the Education Council can wear this proudly on his shoulders because I sit on the Council with the Minister and I see his commitment to training our people. The Minister created the Employment Services Centre and put the Education Council into that Centre so that in one location we can see who the Caymanians are who are looking for work and we can see the training that can be made available to equip them.

The same Minister that the Opposition said is doing nothing has authorised and created a committee for the development of what he terms the Cayman Islands General Education Diploma (GED). Many of our students are out there trying to get work, but do not have a high school diploma. The GED programme, which provided them an opportunity in the past to get a high school equivalent diploma, is no longer available in the Cayman Islands for testing; they must go to Miami. Many of these students go through the training at ICCI to prepare them for the GED, but do not go on to get the piece of paper. Therefore, the Minister has created a committee with a timeline of having a Cayman Islands GED programme in place for September 2003. Madam Speaker, if this is not delivering then I ask the Opposition to tell me what is.

Madam Speaker, much has been said on the draft Constitution and much credit has been taken for the format of the end results of the draft Constitution by the Opposition. They have got most of what they wanted and asked for; most of what they went out in the streets with wheelbarrows and everything for. However, I borrow the phrase, "all to all in the kingdom of everything". When the Opposition was in Cayman Brac and saw that the people did not want single-member constituencies and did not want to divide the Island, they recognised it and published in their report that the people of Cayman Brac may be an exception. The fact is that the new draft Constitution calls for there to be 17 single-member constituencies, calls for the splitting of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. Are they also taking credit for that, for the people of Cayman Brac? Are they also going to take credit and say that it is there because they asked for it? I can only conclude that is the case.

Madam Speaker, the draft Constitution and its likely impact on our people is something that you and I have talked about and looked at. I would like it to be known here, because it was suggested to me recently that the reason that you and I do not support single-member constituencies is because we fear our own seats. Nothing could be further from the truth. Strategically it works in our favour. However, the people of Cayman Brac opted not to support it, through their show of hands as we polled them in the Aston Rutty Centre. It is for that reason and that reason only that we articulated our opposition to it. However, it is here in the draft and it is going to come and we are ready for it because you and I have devoted our time and effort to only one thing: representing every citizen of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman to the fullest of our ability. It does not matter if they are on the east, middle, west, south side or on the Bluff - I am sure the people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman recognise the efforts and energy that we have put in.

Madam Speaker, if I could beg your indulgence to give me an indication of time remaining?

The Speaker: You have five minutes remaining.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, I would like to devote my final five minutes to the issue of the seamen's ex gratia payment. This is a key issue in our community simply because at the time when Caymanians went to sea, Cayman Brackers represented, per capita, a significant district. Madam Speaker, when you saw fit under your time as Minister to introduce this scheme to reward the seamen for their diligence and their contribution to our development, I too supported it. It was recognised early that the number of seamen applying far exceeded the country's ability. It was recognised early that we needed to ensure that all who were receiving were those who were appropriately qualified to receive - meaning they were Caymanians.

I am ashamed that politics has been brought into this. It has been suggested privately in this Parliament, and publicly, that when the Honourable Minister (now the Member for North Side) in October 2000 requested reassessment in order to stop some 144 individuals—144 individuals were stopped under that Minister. It was suggested that this Member suggested names from Cayman Brac. Madam Speaker, the facts are . . .

Point of Order

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: Please state your point of order, Honourable Member.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, the Honourable Member is misleading this House in saying that I said that he suggested names. I said he came to me and said he would assist me because there were people in Cayman Brac who should not be receiving it, but he had to do it in the first year of his four-year term.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, are you also indicating that he did assist you?

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: No, Madam Speaker, I am not indicating that he gave me names and I have never said that he gave me names.

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, the statement that I just made was that it was suggested, I said, privately in this Chamber and publicly, that I played a role. I would like it to be clear—and the only point I want to make, and I am happy to bow to any ruling, Madam Speaker, that I did not suggest any names to be removed from the list of recipients. No one individual was removed because of my suggestion. To suggest otherwise would be misleading. Madam Speaker . . .

Point of Order

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: Please proceed.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Would the Honourable Member say if I, Edna Moyle, said that he suggested names?

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, I never said the Member for North Side suggested any names. I can, however, make it clear that at the time of her contribution, in making her statement, there were other Members of the Opposition, not her, who were making that statement. Madam Speaker, those are the facts.

The Speaker: In those circumstances, Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac, would you withdraw your indication that the Member for North Side was the person who made those statements?

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, I do not recall actually suggesting the Member for North Side, but if that was what. . .

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Indicating, indicating . . .

The Speaker: Order!

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, if any reference was made that the Member for North Side was the one who suggested that I removed names I am happy to withdraw because it was not the Member for North Side who made that suggestion; it was Members of the Opposition.

Point of Order

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: Please state your point of order.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: The Member is now making a blanket accusation of Members of the Opposition. Would he please say which Member of the Opposition made statements suggesting that he recommended names be removed?

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, I am not prepared to give any names of the Opposition. I can only state that at the time of the contribution by the Member for North Side there were individuals on that side of the Chamber making references, not through the microphone that it was. That is all I am about to say.

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for the district of Cayman Brac, it is the Chair's view that once a blanket statement is made and an objection is taken thereto, in order for it to fall outside the ambit of Standing Order 35(4) where Members "impute improper motives", it is my view that it would be an improper motive if a Member is not guilty of the allegation. I would therefore ask you to withdraw that or specify the Member that made the allegation.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, as this bears no relevance on the point, I am happy to withdraw any suggestion that any individual made that remark.

All I want to be clear is that I, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac, made no suggestion of any individual to be removed from the recipient's list for the seamen's ex gratia payment, the veteran's payment or permanent financial assistance. However, as noted by the Minister of Community Services, there were individuals who were receiving who should not have. They were either fishermen or turtlers, or were not Caymanian at the time of their seamen experience. Madam Speaker, any logical thinker would come to the conclusion that there were particular individuals. Therefore, I did make that statement and I wish the Minister had taken me up on my offer to consult with me before removing my people from the list because rather than getting a community development officer to do a financial assessment that resulted in more members . . .

Point of Order

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, if I may, on a point of order.

The Speaker: Please state your point of order.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, the Member is misleading the House and the country because I made no recommendation to remove any person from the seamen's ex-gratia payment. We made a policy decision based on the Auditor General's recommendations and the public service technocrats dealt with it based on the policy decision. Therefore, I would ask the Honourable Member please to withdraw any indication that he is saying that I personally removed . . .

Madam Speaker, would you ask the Minister of Community Services to shut-up until I am finished?

The Speaker: Honourable Member, I am sure you are quite aware of the Standing Order and I would ask you to make the request without getting on the same level.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, if I may continue with my point of order, I would ask the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman to withdraw his statement and indication that I, as the Minister, removed seamen from the district of Cayman Brac, or any district in the Cayman Islands, from the list of seamen receiving this ex-gratia payment. I took a policy decision in Council based on the Auditor General's recommendations and the technocrats in the Ministry, not I, dealt with those based upon the means test

The Speaker: Member for North Side, are you saying that the technocrats undertook that without policy direction or without your knowledge? Is that what you are ascertaining?

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, I am saying the policy decision was taken by Executive Council based on the Auditor General's report on the seamen's ex-gratia. They based their removal or addition based on that criteria —not me.

The Speaker: Member for Cayman Brac, it is your assertion that the Minister did it in her personal capacity or did she do it in her political capacity as a Member of Executive Council? Which is it?

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: In her capacity as a Minister in the Executive Council with the responsibility for this particular subject. Madam Speaker, during the contribution of that particular Member on Education, she illustrated that she could not blame the technocrats at the Education Department she had to put the blame at the foot of the Minister.

The Speaker: Thank you Member. The Chair rules and accepts your explanation that it is not a personal statement on the attack of the previous Minister, but it is one directed at the base of policy being a ministerial responsibility. Please continue.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you Madam Speaker.

All of my Ministers of Executive Council on the United Democratic Party accept their responsibility for their subject matters. The facts are that during the time that the Member for North Side was a Minister, 144 individuals were removed.

The other fact that cannot be challenged is that I, the Member for Cayman Brac, played no role in their removal. It is also a fact that community development officers who are not equipped to do financial assessments were doing financial assessments. It is also a fact that the Minister who now is responsible for that particular Ministry has recognised the need of separating community development from social work and financial assessment. Thus, it is recognised that the UDP has seen the error of those ways and have changed those ways.

During the watch of the UDP, during the year that we have been here, approval was sought and 60 or 64 individuals reassessed and re-established to receive seamen's ex-gratia payments. It is a fact.

The Speaker: You have two minutes remaining Member.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, so when we say that we are delivering to the people of this country that is a fact. When we are accused of holding back things until it gets closer to the election, what can be further from the truth when we are delivering? Many of our people in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman have been reassessed and re-established on the list of recipients for the seamen's ex-gratia payment. That is the case in every district including North Side and East End. Therefore, when our social engineers are going out there and taking things in hand and delivering to the people what they want and need, do not come and accuse this Government of doing nothing.

It is the same situation with the permanent financial assistance. I challenge that anyone... You want to see interesting facts; compare district by district to see which district had the highest percentage removed during the administration of which the Member for North Side was the Minister responsible. See which district had the highest and it will not surprise you, Madam Speaker, and it certainly has not surprised me. Go and contest that fact and you will see that Cayman Brac and Little Cayman had the highest percentage removal.

Point of Order

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, if I may on a point of order.

The Speaker: Please state your point of order.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: It seems as though this Honourable Member has some documentation to this fact. I wonder if he would lay it on the Table of this Honourable House?

The Speaker: Member for North Side, could you be specific in the facts that you wish to have attestation thereto?

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: That is his saying that when I was the Minister the greater number of persons removed from financial assistance were from the district that you and he represent—the district of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

The Speaker: Member for Cayman Brac, the statement that you made . . . is it your opinion or did you make it in the capacity of a statement of fact?

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, the Hansard of this Honourable House will show that during a question and answer and supplementary, that question was answered and provided some time ago. I am not the Minister responsible for Community Services and not in a position to table any such document. However, as any Member of this House is privy to all Hansard, they can certainly research it because it was answered in this Honourable House as district by district.

I did not quote from any particular document, but rather simply from memory of transactions within this Honourable Chamber. I do not feel it fit to challenge myself to look for this document and table it because I did not quote from any particular document. Every Member of this House has the privilege of researching the Hansard. I simply from memory because it was a fact that bore heavily on my shoulder that our district had the highest percentage removed.

The Speaker: Member for Cayman Brac, I have asked the Clerk to request a review of the Hansard and once we come back from the afternoon break I will make a ruling in that regard. Please continue, and you have approximately 15 seconds remaining.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, in my final 15 seconds I simply would like to congratulate the United Democratic Party administration on their first 14 months. I would also like to thank the Members of the Opposition because for the first time they have delivered a very healthy, constructive debate.

Madam Speaker, thank you very much.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? Would Members wish to take the morning break at this time? We will accordingly suspend for 10 minutes for the morning break.

Proceedings suspended at 11.33 am

Proceedings resumed at 12 noon

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Does any other Member wish to speak? Does any other Member wish to speak? Last call. Does any other Member wish to speak? If no other Member wishes to speak I will call on the Leader of Government Business to exercise his right of reply.

[Pause.]

The Speaker: Is it the wish of the House to continue or is it the wish to have an early lunch?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: No, I think I would like to begin since I have risen.

The Speaker: Please proceed.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I want to thank my colleagues who so ably discussed the Government's plans for the year in the various Ministries.

As I said in the opening debate, I have never seen the world in such a condition of uncertainty. These Islands are now seeing a drop in business activity as all countries in the region are. Tourism is also reeling from the effects of world conditions, but tourism and business were in decline starting around 1998. The various figures in business tell us that. As Leader of the Government and the Minister of Tourism, I promised the country to be truthful and forthright at all times about what we are facing as a country. I will always do whatever is in my power, as other Ministers will, to fix the problems we face.

Madam Speaker, it seems the Opposition have taken as their hobbyhorse to beat up on two areas specifically, not that they have not beat up on all other areas. I want to deal with the interim Leader of the Opposition (I will deal with tourism a little further on). I just want to say to him, and I am sorry that he has left the room, as is their usual way when they know they can be contradicted, I want to say to him (and anyone else for that matter) that I too could have been dishonest to the country and jacked up the visitor arrivals by a 100,000, as was done by the previous Minister, but that would have been dishonest and I am not a dishonest person. Rather, I identified the problem and put in place a new and good statistics programme where the numbers do not come to me before they go to anyone else, as was the case before, but they are published on the Web for all to see before I see them. In fact, I am the last to get the figures.

I wish that the Leader of the Opposition was in this room and I am going to ask his colleague, the only one who is sitting here, to go and fetch him, because I would like him to be present for the next few remarks.

Madam Speaker, it does not look like that is going to happen.

The Speaker: Honourable Leader, are you requesting a quorum?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I would like them to be here, and I think the Opposition should come in since they have made their speeches and made all sorts of accusations.

The Speaker: In that event, I call upon Madam Clerk to request the Serjeant for a quorum to be present. Under the existing Standing Orders the Chair will allow five minutes for a quorum to be present after which time, if not, the House will suspend.

[Pause.]

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, we have a quorum, but the Opposition will still not come in. I want to address the actions of the Leader of the Opposition who seemed to have lost his way in his speech. Whether this was by his own accord; or because of his frustration with himself with the plight he finds himself in; or whether this was because he came to the House with a speech written by his new handlers, one he seems rather uncomfortable with. However, I consider that there is no reason whatsoever for him to behave in the manner he has in the last couple of days.

Madam Speaker, first, the behaviour of the Leader of the Opposition on Friday, when you had to suspend the House rather quickly, leaves much to be desired. In building the party system we have to prove that we can find able and willing leaders from all over these Islands - willing to accept responsibility and willing to work together in unity for each party. We, the two party leaders, must prove ourselves: we have to prove that we are capable in understanding our problems; we have to prove that we are efficient in dealing with those problems, and we are capable of dealing honestly and fairly with our people and can assist in giving our people a better quality of life. However, we have other responsibilities too, one of which is to treat Honourable Members of this Honourable House with due respect, even in the cut and thrust of debate.

Let the Leader of the Opposition understand something: the UDP has four young Members with us – the Second Elected Member for West Bay, the Third Elected Member for West Bay, the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay and the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. These Members have demonstrated in their time here that they are capable and understand the problems we face. I think they are doing a fair job in representing the people who put them here.

I think it is uncalled for and unbecoming of the Leader of the People's Progressive Movement (PPM) to curse either one of them in the manner he did here on Friday and during the debate by the Member for North Side. I can tell him that I will not allow him or any other Member to bamboozle them the way in which it was carried on here on Friday. There is no reason whatsoever for any Member to sit in their seat and use indecent language in this House. Madam Speaker, I am going into my twentieth year in this House and I have never heard it done. Members have been heated; there have been arguments; we do not like what goes on; we are in Opposition; we are in Government and we are debating accordingly, but we never treat Members that way. If this is what we are going to have from a leader of the Opposition party, then God help us in trying to build this two-party system. In wanting to lead, Madam Speaker, one must be ready and I do not think that the People's Progressive Movement is ready for leadership in this country. I do not think so.

The PPM is taking credit for the new draft Constitution. The Leader says we should have said something about it. We have. We started in Cayman Brac just two weeks ago which is before they did last week. It is funny how they were so quick to jump on the bandwagon before, but were not ready this time. I want to say to this Honourable House and to the people of this country that much time has been spent on this matter. We on this side have a lot more to do than just talk about the Constitution. There are many more issues that are urgent that are facing us. However, we have given a commitment to the country that once the draft had come back from London we would go public with it and we would debate it in this House. We are going to keep that commitment to the people of these Islands.

I do hope that we will not have to spend time correcting the deliberate attempts by the PPM to mislead the people of this country. I hope that when we bring the draft here we can get a unanimous debate and a unanimous decision on it - unlike the Motion with the Commissioner's Report when the PPM boycotted the debate in this House, yet today have the temerity to take credit for the results of our efforts. If we had not brought the Motion here, I wonder how they thought they would have got to London. Yet, they are going to have the audacity to stand here and say that it is through their efforts that we have the draft Constitution.

Had it been left to the People's Progressive Movement in this House and their satellites outside, we would not have gone to London. We would not have had the summit between ourselves because all those proposals did not come from the People's Progressive Movement - they came from the United Democratic Party. What the Opposition was busy doing was misleading the people when they should have been educating the people. When I and other Members in the UDP were saying, "let us get a bit more autonomy, let us get some changes by January 2003". When we were doing that, those benighted souls over there were running around the country with wheelbarrows and straw hats telling the people that McKeever is a dictator and wants to be the Chief Minister. I wonder if I want to be Chief Minister any more than he wants to be.

Had we had the changes that we were asking for in January of this year, we might have been able to deal with the Attorney-General rather than have to pay him the kind of money he did not deserve, but our hands were tied. That is the kind of situation that this country is going to continue to get in with those people around. God help us if the People's Progressive Movement, as irresponsible as they are, gets the majority to form a government in this country.

They played some very dirty politics with the constitutional debate and with the issue of the Attorney-General. It seemed to have paid off for them, seeing that they now say and brag in the bar rooms that London has done what they want, and is on their side. Is that because they were better than us? Or because the Second Elected Member for George Town went to see the Attorney-General in his professional capacity .

Point of Order

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: Member for East End, do you have a point of order?

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Please state it.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, the Minister is saying that Members of the Opposition bragged in the bar that they got what they wanted. I believe that the Minister needs to identify those Members who bragged in the bar...

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Are you saying it was not you?

Mr. V. Arden McLean: . . . that they got what they wanted out of the constitutional review.

The Speaker: Order!

Member for East End, in order for me to rule whether or not it is misleading on the Standing Order that you brought, you would need to identify from my perspective whether or not it was you. Otherwise, I would not know what I am ruling on as it related to you.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, I know I did not brag in any bar, so I want to know if he is naming me because he said "the Opposition".

The Speaker: Honourable Leader of Government Business, as it related to the Member for East End he has stated for the record that it was not him. Could I ask you to withdraw it as it related to him and state, if you are in a position to do so, which Members you are aware made the statement.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I am glad to hear that the Elected Member for East End was not the one. I said they bragged in the bar room. I did not say it was him and so, Madam Speaker, I did not hear it was him.

The Speaker: I believe the record has been cleared and that it has been categorically stated that it was not the Member for East End making the statement.

Please proceed.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, what the Opposition has done, if anything, was to allow the Labour Party Government in the United Kingdom to divide us here in the Cayman Islands.

Let me say most emphatically, since the Leader of the Opposition has asked, the United Democratic Party is supporting the draft from London, but it does not stop there. We fought, without the help of the Opposition, to have a provision included to protect our financial industry. During that time the Opposition was silent in protecting the financial sovereignty of these Islands. In the draft Constitution sent to us by London (which the Opposition said that London supported) there is nothing to do as we have asked. If there is anything needed, or let me say while political development is needed and we support it, it will not do us any good if the Labour Party Government still controls us to the extent of being able to spend our money without our agreement.

Madam Speaker, in this 500th year of our history we must be able to have more say in this aspect of our affairs. The interim Order in Council is before us and sets out the path to enable the country to get a new electoral system. We are going along with it to an extent in the hope that we can have a better Cayman Islands. However, we would not expect to be able to support the fact that they have included in the draft interim order that the Governor must appoint the Leader of Government Business who is actually the leader of the majority party in the House, while they have sent an Order in Council with the Leader of Opposition being appointed because he is the leader of the minority party. What is the difference? I wonder too if this is what they are talking about: that they got some help from London, how London is supporting them and how the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) is supporting them.

We are going along with the interim Order in the hope that we can have a better Cayman Islands, but we are concerned that they have that provision written the way it is. Madam Speaker, I was going to deal further with that interim Order, but I wonder whether you would take the break at this time.

The Speaker: Certainly. We will now suspend for the luncheon break and reconvene at 2.15 pm.

Proceedings suspended at 12.26 pm

Proceedings resumed at 2.22 pm

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. The Leader of Government Business continuing his reply to the debate on the Throne Speech with 1 hour 40 minutes remaining.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I find it appalling that an Opposition who had so much to say and so many accusations to make in their debate refuses to come and take their seats when their questions could be answered and are being replied to. Before we took the break I dealt with the behaviour of the Leader of the Opposition last Friday when he was using indecent language while another Member was talking against one of the younger Members in the House. I had also talked about the Constitution and our support for the draft except that there are areas which have not been included which we asked for in London, such as the protection of our financial sovereignty and the interim Order.

The interim Order in Council before us sets out the path to enable the country to get a new electoral system. As I said, we are going along with it in the hope that we can have a better Cayman Islands. However, we will not accept that the UK has placed provision for the appointment of the Leader of the Opposition (which is the nomenclature that will be used in whichever Constitution we get) and for that Leader of the Opposition to be elected as the Leader of the Minority Members in the House, while they expect that we should accept the Governor appointing the Leader of Government Business while not recognising the majority party.

What kind of democracy is that? What kind of democracy is the FCO expecting us to have and what kind of democracy is the People's Progressive Movement wanting? What will they support? We have not heard anything from them. As I said, they have said that the FCO is supporting them. Maybe that is so. Maybe that is why the Order in Council is framed in the language it is. However, I am not scared of that. I am already concerned when you have the Opposition saying that London supported them and saying to me that they are going to draw the lines of the constituencies to keep me out. Now, that statement has given me much concern. I will be writing to the Governor (I have already spoken to him about it) and I will be writing to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office about that threat of the Opposition. The new system of boundaries must be fair to everyone. Really, I am so busy with other governmental matters . . .

Point of Order

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: Please state your point of order, Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The Minister knows quite well that neither the Opposition nor the Government will be capable of drawing any constituencies.

The Speaker: Member, can you please state your point of order then go on to expound it.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, the Minister is misleading the House and country.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: No, no, Madam Speaker . . .

The Speaker: On what basis, Member?

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, the Minister is saying that the Opposition is going to draw the lines in order to keep him out of this Legislative Assembly, I presume he meant. We all know that neither the Opposition nor the UDP Government can draw those lines. There will be a Boundaries Commission set up with Commissioners to do that, and to make recommendations on the 17 constituencies as provided for in the interim Order. Therefore, I feel that the Minister should withdraw that statement.

The Speaker: Member for East End, I have listened to your explanation and if I was correct in hearing what the Leader of Government Business said, I do not think he was questioning the legality or the capability of the Opposition to draw the lines, but was merely making a statement that his understanding was the Opposition had said that they would draw the line. Is that your understanding as well?

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Yes, Madam Speaker, but the Opposition cannot draw the lines of the constituencies.

The Speaker: Thank you for confirming my assessment of the facts as stated. The Chair rules that it is not a point of order because the Leader of Government Business was not questioning the capacity or even the tenacity of the Opposition to so do, but merely making an expression that it has been stated by the Opposition that they would do that. That is my understanding.

Please continue, Leader of Government Business.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you very much, Madam Speaker. As I said, I am concerned about this because I do not know who else is watching things in this country. However, I am watching, and I have seen what the FCO has done with that Order in Council. I have good reason to believe that there has been collusion between the FCO and the parliamentary Opposition.

As I pointed out earlier, why are they appointing one leader and then going off in another direction with the other one? Let me say that I call it a threat. I was told in this Chamber the other day that the Opposition was going to draw the boundary lines to keep me out of the Legislative Assembly. That is a serious threat by the Opposition because in a commission of two members and a chairman, the only way that the People's Progressive Movement could succeed in that kind of skulduggery is to have the chairman with them. His Excellency, the Governor appoints the chairman; the People's Progressive Movement would appoint one Member; and the United Democratic Party would appoint one; or we would recommend to the Governor the appointment of one member each. The Opposition says that they have got most of what they wanted in the constitutional discussion.

I am concerned, but I am concerned for more than one reason. I am concerned because I know that the PPM will go to any length and sink to any depth to get rid of me and other Members of the UDP, as the Member has declared. However, I will carefully observe their actions, and I will expose any attempts by the People's Progressive Movement to tamper with the due process of the Boundaries Commission or any attempt to undermine its membership.

My concern goes even further because I know they have a man from one of the eastern Caribbean islands running around this country advising them on political organisation. It really gets to me when that group...it is no wonder that the Benches are empty except for the Member for East End, and he truthfully was the one who made the threat. It really concerns me to know that they are spending, as I understand it, hundreds of thousands of dollars in the development of their party; when they are running around George Town asking people to give them second-hand mattresses for their people of this country. Why in the world are they spending thousands of dollars on someone to come here to do that anyway? Every one of them grew up in the country; every one of them knows full well what the make up of this country is all about, so why do they have someone going from West Bay to George Town to Bodden Town, East End, North Side, Cayman Brac, advising them on political development?

Then they have the audacity to say that the United Democratic Party is following some other government in the region "right of centre". What kind of accusation is that? If the United Democratic Party is right of centre then where is the People's Progressive Movement? The only Opposition Member in the House should be able to tell us. If they accuse my party of being right of centre then their's must be left. That is the only explanation that I can give. Truthfully, they do not fool me. I do not know who else they are fooling with their talk about how much they are going to do in the first six months when they have done nothing for a year. I recognise that they do not love the people the way they say they do.

In saying that, Madam Speaker, I had hoped that the Member for North Side would be here. You know why they are not here: because when I refute them they know that they do not have an answer. No one in this House or outside can accuse me, and other Members in the UDP, of not being good to the poor people in this country. When I started in government people were getting $25. I moved motion after motion to get it raised to what it is, and the Deputy Leader who got elected the same time I did can attest to that and the Hansard is there. Other Members who came behind us know how much we struggled to raise benefits for the people of this country. I had an opportunity for just over five years to put certain things in motion to make it better, to enhance our social development, to enhance sports. I can say from day one that neither the Elected Member for North Side nor the First Elected Member for George Town (who is now the interim Leader of the PPM) supported us in giving benefits. Every day there were complaints from them about who was and who was not getting it. When the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac took over it was the same thing: they were constantly complaining about people getting benefits.

The Elected Member for North Side's excuse the other day was that when she took over she had to change the rules. They changed the rules because that is what they had planned to do from the beginning. I had my say on it whilst in Executive Council and I told them if there were problems then change those problems; if there were people who were not seamen, but were getting benefits then stop them; if there were some women who had been divorced from their husbands and were getting - these things happen, they fall through the crack in a new system. So, did she change it? She went whole scale because I can tell you they were calling up people in my district to find out who is who and what kind of house they had, rather than doing a proper system as my colleague, the Minister of Community Services, has done. They do not love the people the way they say and they had ample opportunity to prove it, but what did they do? They sat back and lazed around.

Madam Speaker, it galled me the other day, sitting here as a Member, knowing what I went through in Government to get benefits for the seamen, and to get assistance to the level that it is now of $400, knowing full-well that it is not enough. I did not pick out man, woman or child - it was across the board. I think, honestly saying so, the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac did the same thing. What did they do but come in and wreck the system, take a lot of people off who really needed it? That is what they have done. The People's Progressive Movement are nothing but wolves in sheep's clothing.

They come here making all kinds of promises about going for social development. If the people of the Cayman Islands trust them they might get a development, but it will not be social - it will be a boot in their seat. That is the development that they will get from the People's Progressive Movement. I know about them. I worked with them on the Back Bench. When we were seeking the last increase and other benefits for the elderly of this country, I asked the Leader of the PPM to second the motion and he refused. I remember him going to the west end of the Legislative Assembly and refusing to second that amendment. How did I get it done, Madam Speaker? I asked the First Elected Member for Bodden Town to second the resolution and he did. Yet, that is the group that comes here saying that they are going to do this and going to do that, and they are going to give people water in the first six months. Why in the world did they not do all that in the one year when they were in the Glass House? We had to open every window or else we would have suffocated - doing nothing but sitting smoking cigarettes, locking their legs like Rip van Winkle and going to sleep, and having meetings. Madam Speaker, the record will show that there is no deliberate attempt to delay any vital projects until election year. As I go through my speech we will see that it is not so.

The Elected Member for North Side went to great lengths talking about the cost of living; nothing being done to resuscitate the economy; and that people fear the lack of management. If the people are scared about the lack of management and decisiveness today, can you imagine what it was like in 2001 when nothing was being done? What did they do about the cost of living when they were there? I know that the PPM has been running around the country saying these things, but what did he do? He put $15 million duties on various items when he was there. That is what he did. What did he think would happen with that? Had he had the leadership ability and had they cared enough for the people of the country they would not have done that in 2001. Mind you, I have my feelings about certain things when it comes to duties because I recognise that sometimes it is not getting to where it should be for the people. Therefore, I do not necessarily agree with taking off all the duties. However, the fact is that they were taken off and he put them back on - $15 million worth.

Families in need, she says. The Elected Member for North Side admits that needs have been around a long time even when she was there. However, while accusing the UDP of doing nothing, she did not show what she did in her year of office. Why? What did she do for women then? What did she do for children then? She says if she had remained in office . . . Madam Speaker, that Member had the opportunity, but she would not stay, and I do not know if her staying would have made a difference, because for one year there was nothing done. That is their record: dismally nothing.

They got up here and went on about the parks system, and the Member for East End complained about people keeping him from getting any benefits. What nonsense. When the two of them were in office the people who are building the parks went to them and they ran them away with their indecent language. They got the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac a little bit boiled up the other day, but they will not get me. If they were here I would be saying the same thing. They used the same indecent language on them that they used here last week Friday. They did nothing about it. When the Elected Member for North Side was the Minister she would not meet with the group who was doing the parks, so we had to beg the Permanent Secretary to meet with the people - people who are spending millions of dollars on the park system. Then they come here and try to make the people of this country believe that they are such angels and butter cannot melt in their mouths. Oh yeah? Well, I know them and they are no angels. If the people of this country believe that that group is going to do them any good just let them get some authority.

They say that they are going to return Caymanians to the mainstream of running the country and getting the benefits of the country. I wonder how they are going to do it and I wonder where Caymanians are being left out now - they were not left out before or in 2001. We recognise the problem we have and it cannot be done overnight, but there are no outsiders running this country. The people outside of the FCO, the UDP and the Ministers in Government now are doing the best we can, but we are not taking any advice. We do not have anyone from Barbados, St. Vincent or anywhere else advising us or doing any work for us as the People's Progressive Movement have. Thus, while they are accusing us of these things they are the ones doing them. The Member for East End cannot answer because he knows what I am saying are the facts. He knows that.

Madam Speaker, the park projects were started in spite of the Elected Member for North Side and the then Leader of Government Business, the First Elected Member for George Town.

The Leader of the Opposition spoke boldly, asking me to state what I was going to do to bolster business in the case of war in the East. He made much of that. Nevertheless, as is usual with the PPM, he did not say what his plans are, and he should have. You mean to tell me that it took the threat of war to make that Member realise that businesses and people need help. What was he doing when he was there? I keep asking this question and he knows that I was going to ask it of him - that is why he is not here; that is why he left his briefcase because the briefcase cannot talk. He should be here this afternoon to answer what his plans are, and if he cannot do it then the Elected Member for East End should be doing it. Somebody from the PPM should be saying what their plans are.

Madam Speaker, we have gone past the day when Opposition is just for opposition sake in a two party system, which they now boast, "that we have and we are a part of it." The Leader of the Opposition must put forward his plans, if he has any credibility whatsoever. I now challenge the Leader of the Opposition to say what his plans are. If he were here I would sit down and allow him to elaborate since he raised it, but that is why they are not here because they know that I would give them that kind of challenge.

Madam Speaker, if a war breaks out, what can these little Islands do? A plan is being formulated for shipping, Cayman Airways and tourism to ensure that the country is able to carry on, that our gates are open, safe and secure. We do have committees for terrorist threats. The truth is that because the economy was in such a poor condition when we got the reins of responsibility, when I took over as Leader of Government Business, I had to push hard to make the economy work. Today the economy is in a better condition than when he was there and we would be able to withstand some shocks.

There is ongoing development. Statistics show that planning permits have increased in 2002 - January this year shows a large increase over January 2002, especially in the residential area. This means that Caymanians are getting the benefits, although the PPM says they are not. Furthermore, the statistics in planning will tell us there is a huge drop in permits. I am not saying that every one of those permits was a job that was filled, but I am saying that there were more people at work today than when he was there. He did nothing to get the economy going. Whatever they accuse me of, they cannot say that I have not been hard at every task, trying to get the economy to turn around although, as soon as we offer a plan they get on the radio (either themselves or their political operatives) blaspheming any kind of plan. How else do they believe that we are going to get the economy going?

What was he going to do when he was there? During his ministry in 2001, he talked in the Throne Speech about the construction of the new Government office accommodation, but he did not go anywhere with that; he talked about growth management, but he did not go anywhere with that; he talked about Cayman Airways and we know he did not go anywhere with that; he talked about the agricultural sector, but we know he did not go anywhere with that; he talked about solid waste issues, but we know he did not go anywhere with that. What did he do? That is a dismal report card. If your child came home with that many wrongs in their report card, you would spank them. Madam Speaker, it is easy to talk, but it is a difficult thing when you have to perform because you have to make a decision and that group over there cannot do that; they cannot make a decision.

No one is prepared for the eventuality of war. Which leaders do you really hear saying, "This is our economic plan in case the world is at war"? No, Madam Speaker, you make a plan and you change it to fit world conditions. That is what I said we would do: we would prioritise if war broke out to try to handle the impacts. The important thing is that you do have a plan for economic prosperity and stability that can be adjusted for those types of eventualities. We know that this would come as a shock to the PPM because under their leadership the country was in such an economic mess that they were borrowing $50 million just to keep the country going during "good times" when there was no war. So, I could understand their concern if we were still under that type of leadership, but this is different. This is the Government that produced a balanced budget with no borrowing and no new revenue measures and paid off some of Government's debts. In the possibility of war, we are not as cash strapped just trying to keep the country going; we have options available to us for emergency use.

I do hope that one of the reporters will carry this because this is a direct answer to their speech which was carried on the radio and in at least one of the newspapers. Leadership is really not an option for the PPM because, as I said earlier, in order to create a report card on the Leader of the Opposition during his one year one only has to look at his record. They complained about the Government's budget and that we were preparing a better budget, a balanced budget, but were not spending money. However, I will deal more fully with it a little later.

Madam Speaker, in addressing the point made by the Member for North Side who said that we had given glowing reports about the millions of dollars and record profits earned by some investors, I really cannot understand these people because the truth is no one spoke. I certainly did not and I did not hear anyone else on our side talk about profits of investors. We would not know anything about that since people are just now beginning to invest again, but yet the Caymanian Compass carries the Member for North Side saying that. We did not talk about anyone. She was asleep. Just let me say that at the beginning of 2001 the General Reserve Fund stood at $10.2 million — this is their record — and by year-end the balance was approximately $4.2 million.

They asked us where the social engineers in the Government are, and the Honourable Minister of Community Services showed us that there are more social programmes and financial support being given by his Ministry now than there ever has been. It keeps rising. More money is being spent on sports and there were 33 families housed by the Government during the George Town flooding. You must give credit where credit is due. Those two Members, the Minister of Telecommunications and the Minister of Community Services, were out there that night, I believe, with all the people trying to get them into various places of safety until about 3 or 4 o'clock in the morning. Where were the other ones? I do not know.

More is being spent on education, Madam Speaker. The most scholarships that were ever given were given this year. That is why when the Leader of Opposition was leading the country, it floundered. The Member's only concern was with domestic politics and he could sit there and aggravate and carry on and twist things with Truman Bodden. He was good at that, but he was not good at fixing the affairs when he took over; not good at leading the country. They talked about me dealing with international affairs, Madam Speaker. I say the day that I have to face the FCO I will be ready. If they are nice to us we will be nice to them, but they must understand that we know how to deal with them too. I do not know that they could do it. He had that opportunity. I will come to that later on.

In his reply to the Throne Speech the Leader of the Opposition accused the United Democratic Party of being too concerned about the fiscal position and paying too little attention to the economic and social development of this country. In his words he accused the Government of having a lack of social conscience. The records speak for themselves and nothing could be further from the truth.

The Member ought to look at the facts: 37 per cent of the 2003 half-year operating expenditure has been allocated to building and supporting the community, providing educational and health services and looking after the welfare of our resident population. This is nearly twice as much as is being spent on any other outcome areas. The fact is that a further 20 per cent of 2003 half-year operating expenditure has been allocated to supporting a strong economy that generates employment, income and a high standard of living. They need to check the budget. The fact is that another 19 per cent of 2003 half-year operating expenditure has been allocated to ensuring that the Cayman Islands is safe and secure. The fact is that over three-quarters of all government expenditure is devoted to the economic and social development of this country. The fact is that the Government has already agreed in principle to the building of two new primary schools and a new secondary school, and initial scoping work on these very important capital development projects is underway. Perhaps they do not have any more the information that they used to get out of the Glass House, but they should go back and check.

The Leader of the Opposition said (I listened to him carefully) that the Minister of Education needs to convince his colleagues in Executive Council to spend on education. Madam Speaker, the budget is the proof of the pudding. We do not need to be convinced of expenditure for education. When the Minister needs it he gets it. We do have a bureaucracy to contend with though, and we cannot get moving as fast as we should. That is a fact of life that we have to contend with. I am, however, convinced that the Minister is moving in the right direction, as he is with many other projects, in giving all the school children lap top computers for the technological age that they will grow up in.

We are moving in the right direction and we had to do it under serious fiscal circumstances. We did not have money; we had to make money. He did not seem to understand that. The fact is that the Government is addressing the traffic congestion problems that are so frustrating for residents and visitors alike, including completing the Linford Pierson Highway and constructing the new Galleria roundabout which he could not get done while he was there for a whole year. The fact is that Government is deregulating the telecommunication sector so that the cost of living for residents is reduced. The benefits have already been seen and are resulting in cash in people's pockets and we plan to go further to ensure that the savings are in the pockets of our people and not Cable and Wireless.

The Speaker: Honourable Leader, you have approximately 55 minutes remaining.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you.

The Speaker: Is this a convenient time for the afternoon break?

We will now take the afternoon break and we would wish to reconvene at 3.15 pm.

Proceedings suspend at 3.05 pm

Proceedings resumed at 3.24 pm

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Serjeant-at-Arms, could you please ensure that we have a quorum. I believe he has been endeavouring to do likewise. [Pause.]

The House is in quorum.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you very much, Madam Speaker.

Contrary to what the Leader of the Opposition would have people think, the United Democratic Party is very concerned about the welfare of our residents. Unlike the Opposition, the UDP knows that you cannot spend what you do not earn. You cannot spend on anything and everything you like without thinking about how that expenditure will be funded. The Government is no different than ourselves: we can only spend what we have. We know that we cannot go to the shop with an empty purse or wallet, and we know that we cannot buy everything our eyes see because there is a consequence. We also know that we cannot over borrow because there is a consequence. The Opposition needs to understand that and, unlike the Opposition, the Government knows that the fiscal performance of the public sector has a direct impact on the overall performance of the economy.

Good economic performance is dependent in no small way on the financial performance of the Government and, in particular, on ensuring that the rates established for duties and other revenue are in line with other economies in the region. If ever-increasing levels of government expenditure are funded by a continuous increase in rates of duty or government borrowing (as the Leader of the Opposition did when he was there for a year) the Cayman Islands will quickly become an uncompetitive place to do business. The economic consequences of that would be disastrous.

Investors and businesses invest in countries that can manage their finances, not those that have high levels of debt, raise revenue all the time and raise taxation. Good economic performance is therefore essential for social development. Without it there would be no social development because you would not have the money to pay for it. We have only to look to our neighbours in the rest of the region, as well as Latin and South America, to see what happens to economies and social conditions when governments do not manage their finances properly. I cannot understand why the Leader of the Opposition is now preaching otherwise. There is no pot of gold to fund everything. We, as a country, would like many things, but we have to live within budget. Nor can we just keep on borrowing to finance our desires. Sooner or later that borrowing will be more than we, as a country, can afford to repay, and it will become a problem for our children and their children; and the FCO will take over our budget and run it for us. If we believe we had trouble with the Attorney-General, let that happen.

The solution, Madam Speaker, is to prioritise expenditure so that it best achieves the economic and social outcomes we desire, and this is exactly what the Government is doing. None of us would have a problem finding new things to spend more money on. It is easy for the Leader of the Opposition to sit there and toss up new spending ideas, but how would he repay them? Unlike the People's Progressive Movement, the United Democratic Party Government is committed to both fiscal responsibility and social development, but we will achieve those objectives in a responsible and balanced way. That is why I have laid plans to use, as the Caymanian Compass calls it, a "forward plan" for economic development. Had I been able to do that from 2001 we would be well ahead today, and our people would be in much better positions. You cannot develop a hotel overnight - investors are not going to just plunk money down into buildings which are long-lasting economic revenue drivers. We are not going to get that overnight. I thank God that I did push in 2002 the way I did, and even in 2001, although every time I tried to push I was taking some licks for it.

I have said on numerous occasions that the United Democratic Party Government is committed to building a secure prosperous Cayman Islands that can be a proud legacy for our children and grandchildren. Make no mistake, we will achieve this goal, but we will achieve it in a responsible manner so that at the end of the day the coffers are not empty. We took over a bankrupt government; in 2001 nothing was there.

Madam Speaker, the Opposition knows that the Government is on the right track. That is why they went to such a drastic extent the other day. The Opposition says they share the concerns of the financial community, and the Government, about the potential impact of this Directive on the financial industry and the economic fortunes of this country. They said that they would do whatever they can to support the efforts of the Government and the private sector. It is a pity that when the Leader of the Opposition was in power, he did not do what he had to do, then perhaps I would not have to enter a suit in the Court of First Instance in Luxemburg. They now jump on the bandwagon because they know that I am determined, and the Government is backing me, to deal effectively with the United Kingdom Labour Party Treasury on this matter. They say that we should be consulting them. Madam Speaker, I am going to be very careful what I say to them because they have connections with the Attorney-General and I believe that the Attorney-General is an agent of the Labour Party Treasury in the United Kingdom. Enough said.

Madam Speaker, I launched a debate in this Honourable House on Wednesday last week by providing an update on both the Government's and the country's economic outlook for 2003. As I explained, the Government has imposed certain fiscal discipline by way of its new Public Management and Finance Law which better facilitates and safeguards the long-term economic sustainability and growth prospects for these Islands. The factors include, but are not limited to, numerous international initiatives that impact our financial services sector, including the European Taxation of Savings Directive and the constant threat of war in Iraq, which threatens to depress tourism and travel levels. We are still praying that hostilities will cease, but it looks as though it is heating up. It is more imminent every hour. We hope not.

for why this country needs to be developed and needs to implement and adhere to a comprehensive and bold economic plan to set a course over the next five to ten years. This economic blueprint is critical if this country's objectives, including its many non-financial objectives, are to be met. If we are to continue to have the high standard of living which has been so pervasive in our community, we need to chart a course for achieving the financial targets necessary to support our many national needs. I am very proud of the programmes and the initiatives which this Government has brought forward this year. This Government has inherited many challenges which have been long-standing, but given the scale of the challenge, or the unpopular nature of the problem, they have been largely ignored or have been superficially tackled over the years. In the face of much and typically unfounded criticisms from the Opposition, this Government has set out to tackle those things which threaten our existence as we know it. We have been focused and determined to do all that was necessary to once again empower a positive outlook for our future generations. We have done this in a responsible manner; we have candidly addressed the need for us to realise that there is an element of trade-off which is part and parcel of any process and which will allow this country of nation builders to achieve its stated goals.

I am often criticised, Madam Speaker, for being decisive, but I have watched first-hand as this country's competitiveness has been eroded over time by a lack of decisiveness. We have suffered too long by thinking that those things we most cherish, our Caymanian way of life, could be protected or enhanced by doing nothing and by simply hoping for the best. That way of thinking has been like poison to our system: making us slow, making us fearful, making us reactive rather than being the resourceful self-confident people we have historically been. I am referring to a people who have trusted that with God's help they will have the innate ability, with hard work and sacrifice, to solve any problem that may come their way. I look forward with bold expectations because I have a firm knowledge of who we are and how far we have come, and a good understanding of how far we have yet to travel.

The Opposition talks with many flowery words and promises high heaven, but we know they do not have the ability to accomplish those promises which they claim the Government is not attending to. As I said earlier, they wasted their opportunities when they not only had the power, but also the goodwill of the people to get things done at that time. We will only have three years when a government is normally afforded four or five years. As I look around at our competitors, I know that we cannot afford to delay the call for action or we face having to adjust our lives to accepting the crumbs others have left behind. We need to get back to our core strengths of innovation, resourcefulness, flexibility, friendliness and responsiveness, of being cautious but being open-minded, not constantly criticising without offering alternatives, not constantly criticising without doing our own work. That is the way we have come and these have served us well in the past. It is time that we, as a people and as a country, get on the move again and stop allowing ourselves and our future to be derailed by those who use fear tactics to divide and control, as the Opposition have been doing.

Whatever our internal differences, Madam Speaker, let us unite as a people and elevate our discussions and our problem-solving and let us give credit where credit is due, so that those of us who toil on behalf of the preservation of our Caymanian way of life are supported as we do battle against factors which threaten this very existence. I believe that I am a forward thinker with a healthy appreciation of the past and those efforts that made possible our present realities. It is time for this generation to secure an equally bright future for successive generations. In spite of what the Opposition is doing and saying, this is what the United Democratic Party is all about.

Madam Speaker, on Wednesday I spoke about a plan for tourism, and that plan is to turn cruise visitors into long-stay visitors. The Opposition sat there, looked at me, listened, opened their mouths, but when they got up they said I had not said anything. However, I certainly spoke of specific programmes underway at the Department of Tourism and the Ministry which are designed to stimulate that sector's economic performance and provide long-term sustainability for the industry.

It amazes me that people who sat there for over a year doing nothing all of a sudden have repackaged themselves and have decided to work in the last year before election. Based on what I heard last week, we can expect that he is going to have all sorts of great ideas and feedback to give me now. It figures that he can talk a lot now for he is well rested while the rest of us have been working all out, day and night, for the past two years. Members of the Opposition have made a number of comments about tourism which is not surprising to me: tourism is everybody's business and the political pundit's favourite topic. Yet again, Members of this House will stand here and misrepresent the truth over and over again to mislead the people of the Cayman Islands.

First of all, I want to clarify what our competition is. Market research shows that in the largest market, the United States, the competitive set for the Cayman Islands is not the Dominican Republic or Cancun. In the United States, our primary competitors are Bermuda, the Bahamas, Turks and Caicos, and even Jamaica. The Opposition said that I must do something about the deterioration of the product. I do not have time to go into all the details of the market research at this time but, as I said in my debate, we can make great strides in our product if the country is prepared to make sacrifices.

They have complained about the deterioration of the product. Take the issue of traffic congestion—

Bermuda does not have that problem and do you know why? Since the 1940s Bermuda took a policy decision to allow only one car per family. Would the Opposition want such a move in the Cayman Islands? I ask the Leader of the Opposition to comment on this and to give me any other suggestion he may have that may be effective, and at the same time palatable, but that would help to resuscitate the product he says is suffering.

He talks about too many cruise passengers in George Town. We can have fewer cruise tourists if that is what this world wants. However, are we prepared to explain to the George Town merchants, the tour and transportation sector, the water sports sector and retail shops, and all the other Caymanian businesses and families who are benefiting from the business now, and who are trying to get into the business, that they will have to accept a fraction of their income today? If they earn less then they pay their employees less; if they pay their employees less that means less money in the economy; less money for families - the same families that the Member for North Side talks about. It means less money for families, for women, for children. Keep this up for a few months and this will mean hardship for business owners and employees, loss of jobs and eventually undue hardship for families.

What we must do is use the cruise volumes to develop an effective cruise conversion programme to entice the right type of cruise passengers to come back for stay-over tourism at a future date. That is what my Government is doing. I asked the Department and the private sector for a cruise conversion programme over a year ago. I provided details of this programme last week Wednesday when I informed Members of this Honourable House about it. Did the Opposition listen? Everything is a trade-off and we have to make the best of this short-term situation with the cruise passengers by identifying which ones are the right target for our cruise conversion goals. In the meantime, if the Leader of the Opposition would find another injection into the economy to make up for the daily injection of cash the cruise industry provides to water sports, merchants and retailers, the transportation sector and to all Caymanians as it passes down, I hope he would share it with me and the business owners in those groups. He needs to come forward and say what his plans are.

The Member commented on the extensive deterioration of our tourism product, especially along Seven Mile Beach, Stingray City and the negative effects of cruise tourism. He is correct that there is product deterioration, but it has been deteriorating for years - even before I took the reins of office. The former Government administration, as I said earlier, allowed the Tourism Management Policy to become a document on a shelf without any relevance to the Department of Tourism's priorities, actions and decision-making. The last five-year plan (1995-1999) lapsed in 1999 and when I took over in November 2000 there was no bridge or obvious intent to get a new Tourism Management Policy and plan in place. On top of that, there was no television advertising; it had all been cut

Having a comprehensive guiding document was a priority of mine; and I called on the Department to initiate a process to get a new Tourism Management Policy and plan in place within my first few weeks. Madam Speaker, the Member went on to say, that I may not like the plan. I wanted him to be here because I wanted to tell him that that is a blatant lie! I called for the policy; I insisted it be done; I was even the person who recommended the tourism company be put on the short list for consideration. Not only that, but I was the one who wanted the wide public review, so much so that it is on the Internet for everyone to see and read. Does that sound like I do not like the plan? The man took leave of his senses.

The fact is that the problems that we are experiencing today have been years in the making. We, in the country, ignored the product in the 1990s and it let our marketing get off the tracks; we lost the sense of direction. Millions of dollars were being spent, yet the Cayman Islands were not in the top ten Caribbean destinations in the minds of US consumers. Many US consumers only thought of the Cayman Islands as a location for the movie The Firm, or for scuba diving, or, more recently, where Enron executives hid their money. The impressions were wrong and were left to grow and fester in the absence of an effective marketing policy. While all of that was happening, what were they doing? Padding the tourism visitors number—that was what the previous Minister was doing between 1996 and 2000.

Madam Speaker, our profile customer is an affluent, educated, sophisticated traveller. It makes no sense for us to continue to have dozens of marketing agencies for the Cayman Islands and still have people think so narrowly and inaccurately about our country. We have to take responsibility for our image and our public relations. It is for this reason that I initiated a comprehensive brand assessment for the Cayman Islands. We have to develop a brand for the entire Cayman Islands - not just an individual sector like tourism or finance. From that over-arching brand we address the image and product issues, then cascade into the individual marketing programme for each sector in the economy. This is what I have been doing and we have now put ourselves back on television. There is effective marketing, but it will take time. Had the work been done before, while this downturn is going on and while the war is imminent, we would have been better placed. So, I have to struggle with these things, but I am doing it. I am addressing the problems, but it will take time to come into place. We have critics, but we have very few problem solvers and even less help.

Are we to be a country of all chiefs and no Indians? The re-branding exercise is being carried out by a Caymanian company, Brac Informatics Centre Ltd., and encompasses a cross-section of the public sector from each of the financial services, e-business and tourism areas. I am pleased that my colleagues in Executive Council share my commitment to getting this right and each of their respective areas are fully on-board to find efficiencies, improve management, the marketing agencies, and ensure that the face and voice of the Cayman Islands, both at home and overseas, is positive, proactive and credible. For far too long - and I have a good relationship with the association - there have been people (I am not saying they are from the association) criticising the voice of our television marketing programme, which belongs to a young Caymanian. They carry it too far.

It is easy for the Opposition to talk because they are not performers. I have been working day and night, off Island and on Island, to straighten out the mess I found and now have to deal with. Given the global environment, we are having a hard time, but I know my work will pay dividends. When things are more settled in the world arena the Cayman Islands will be poised to do well. Madam Speaker, I may not be the Minister, or this Government might not even be the government that will take benefit at that time, but thank God, what we are putting in place will be serving the Cayman Islands for many, many good years.

I consider that we have done well in the Department of Environment and the legislation and plans that we are putting forward, I believe, will serve the country well in the protection and enhancement of our natural environment. Later this year in May when the Duke . . .

The Speaker: Honourable Leader, you have 25 minutes remaining.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Alright ... when the Duke and the Countess of Wessex are here they will open the Barkers National Park. This is a big step to save the environment, and this is the kind of trade-off that I have said we have to make. While we are pushing for development that will be long lasting, we are protecting the environment by saving our wetlands.

There are a number of pieces of legislation that should be here in June: the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species, the Flora and Fauna legislation. Madam Speaker, I intend to raise the matter at Executive Council to get an environmental park in George Town which, I believe, is in the area of the Community College; we are putting in a workshop and storage facilities in Little Cayman - the DoT office. In all areas we are moving in the right direction. At the upcoming budget in May or June I have asked the Permanent Secretary to include four officers to work in the Marine Department. These are things that are needed and now that we have some funds moving along we are putting the funds in the right place. We are not throwing it away but also, we are not doing as the Opposition said; we are doing something for the people of the Islands.

Madam Speaker, the existing Fire Prevention Code, the SBCCI (Southern Building Code Congress International) 1994 Revision will be replaced by the 1999 Revision. This is to coincide with the recently implemented 1999 Building Code, which addresses the requirement for high-rise structures, that is, dealing with the various liquefied petroleum gas.

The Vehicle Licensing unit will continue its programme of decentralisation of services in Grand Cayman by setting up an office in Bodden Town similar to that which has successfully operated in West Bay. The formal architectural plans and the budgeting of the first phase of the Bodden Town office are on track for 2004. The Department plans for 2003 include the development of certain aspects of the Traffic Law. These include the following areas:

1. The provision of set times for movement of backhoes and other slow moving heavy equipment along major roads. The changes to the Law will prohibit such activity during peak traffic hours and, if at all possible, will facilitate the re-routing of those heavy vehicles to minor roads or alternate routes;

2. The provision of regulation for the better enforcement of revenue collection measures. The public is now being advised of their obligations under the Traffic Law to have their vehicles licensed, and if suspended or terminated the procedure which is to be followed to prevent them from allowing oneself to become liable for significant past fees. This is a sustained media plan informing the public;

3. Online services with appropriate legislation, due to budgetary restraints, are expected to be fully implemented in 2004. However, the necessary proprietary work will commence this year;

4. A draft Traffic Amendment Bill 2003 covering further development of the public transport system and laws is in the works to be tabled at the next Sitting of the Legislative Assembly. This will give more extensive enforcement powers to public transport inspectors, in terms of reporting offenders for public transport violations. There will also be a traffic authority that sets out the full extent of the parameters for the Vehicle Licensing Department to operate under. With the advent of this new Traffic Amendment Law public transport operators will have an avenue of appeal through the new Traffic Appeals Tribunal system. The Public Transport Tribunal will primarily be responsible for all matters relating to public passenger vehicles and drivers including misconduct and compliance with the relevant legislation. The Public Transport Board will continue to function in establishing policy guidelines, issuing of permits for the operation of public passenger vehicles, and the continued development and implementation of public transport systems throughout the Islands. The Department will also play an essential role in the development of plans for public transportation in line with the Vision 2008 Plan. To this end, funds are sought in the 2003/2004 Budget for the creation of a project definition document.

Madam Speaker, I have recently had a complaint about the Department and I have talked to the Ministry about it: that is, passenger carriers were not allowed to operate as 14-seaters but they were asking the owners to take out five seats to make them nine-seaters. Well, this is not, and I repeat, this is not a Ministry directive because I knew nothing about it. I do not think it makes sense at all. I have informed the Permanent Secretary about it.

There are several other areas under my purview, including the Cayman Turtle Farm and other attractions, which are undergoing re-development. Madam Speaker, I have been saying for a long time that Pedro St. James Castle and the Botanic Park are so far away that, to an extent, in the short time for cruise visitors they are not successful. We have talked to them, we have marketed, and we have had an increase, but it is not going the way it was expected when they were building that project. I said that from the beginning. It is in the records, so it is not new to me. However, we have to continue to work with it and we are doing that.

We have one of the best botanic parks in the region. In fact, I believe you could go beyond the region and Cayman would compare well. I have given the Board many plans, but there are things that we are looking at: the Castle has property that we could develop into high-end tourist accommodation. The two coupled together could work well. We are talking about offering a service where you are collected from the airport and chauffeur driven to your accommodation where you have a butler. It will probably hold 12 or 15 rooms, maybe a little more, but be very high-end - like Strawberry Hill in Jamaica. We are looking at that because we are going to have to do something to enhance the property, and that will help, but we still need more people. I believe that it could work because of the location and the kind of property that it is. Madam Speaker, we are not short of ideas and are constantly dreaming. I have handed this one over to the architects to look at it and to see if we can find an investor for it.

We have worked hard on the Turtle Farm and are well on track. Within two weeks of the passing of Hurricane Michelle the Farm was opened for limited tours; by the third week the Farm had expanded the tour to include its landside operation and I thank the Manager, Mr. Hydes. In 2002 over 409,000 people visited the Farm, an increase of 70,000 over the previous year, in spite of the damage that we had from the hurricane. I wish again to express my sincere thanks to the staff for achieving this considerable objective in spite of the problems we faced. The production of edible turtle products resumed on the 9 November 2002, and a production schedule was developed which would allow the remaining turtles at the Farm to be a sustainable supply of product until the Farm could re-establish their breeding programme. The Farm redeployed employees. We could have turned them away, or fired them and told them that we did not have any work. We have been accused of not doing anything for Caymanians, but the Farm redeployed employees who would have lost their jobs as a result of the damage sustained by Hurricane Michelle. Some of these individuals were used in the processing of tour groups arriving at the Farm in order to provide a more customer-friendly environment. All of these individuals are Caymanians. Therefore, do not say we are not working at the problems we face in these hard times.

During 2001 we completed the master Development Plan. As outlined in the Throne Speech, the new breeding pond, now housing the Farm's breeding turtle population, has been completed using a consortium of small local contractors. For the record, it was completed ahead of schedule and under budget. The Opposition opposed this work and once again we proved them wrong. This is no exaggeration; this is no election promise. We are not waiting until election as they say we are doing; we are delivering what I promised because I knew it was possible. The funding programme for this phase of the massive redevelopment plan is currently in the planning stages with a number of options under consideration.

We are moving ahead with the Port and, as I understand it, the Finger Pier will move ahead, hopefully by next week, if weather allows. We will then continue with the north and south terminals. Madam Speaker, the Florida Cruise Association has increased their offer to $26 million instead of $15 million. This will include $18 million for George Town and $8 million for the West Bay project.

The Speaker: Sorry for the interruption. You have 10 minutes remaining.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, as we observe what is happening at the Port and what is happening in the climatic conditions and changes in the weather patterns, I do not believe that this country can continue to attract good cruise visitors if we do not get piers with berthing facilities. We must go in that direction and that is going to be the next phase. I am going to look at it in the Economic Development Plan. I believe that is the way to help Cayman Brac. Now that we have re-opened the Cayman Brac dock, we will see, since the deep water is so close, if we can place dolphins there for berthing facilities. We are again going to look at it in the Economic Development Plan in the aspect for Cayman Brac. We must plan and we must be forward thinkers or we are going to wither up and die.

The Port Authority will continue to introduce international security standards as mandated by the United Kingdom and the United States of America. The Port Authority must be in compliance with these security standards by 2004. However, through all the security measures we are taking, we are still on the watch. There is a group working on the security policy and putting measures in place for the present. As I have outlined, there is a broad range of challenges that we face and while some prefer to deal with the obvious fruits of these issues, we have gone beyond the superficial to address the very roots of those challenges.

In the Throne Speech the Government lays out a plan for tackling core issues face-on in every Ministry - not one has been left out; no problem has been tucked under the covers. We are open and addressing them and letting people know what we face.

One thing I might have missed out, but I want to say, in talking to the Minister of Health, we are determined that we are going to stop wrestling with the insurance problem and deal with it head-on. If there is any one thing that is causing people hardship it is the insurance scheme. Hundreds of dollars are paid out by people every month who cannot afford it, and we have to address that issue head-on. That is what the Minister of Health is doing and he will soon make his statements on these things. I do not blame him for not coming out before he is ready, but this is not something that we are going to allow to lay because it is one of the things that is causing more hardship than anything else, to individual families and to companies.

Small businesses are also hard-hit by the pensions issue. Perhaps when we look at this whole issue —if we are hit very hard by the war, to see whether suspension is necessary for a time to help boost companies. I am not saying that is what will happen; I am saying that is what we may need to do. I am not going to jump ahead of the group I am putting together in case of serious effects.

Thus, we have laid out a plan for tackling major issues which are facing us and that will enable positive outcomes which can be shared across our Caymanian population. We are creating an environment inclusive of the necessary physical infrastructure and Caymanian human capital which will encourage and facilitate positive economic outcomes.

Madam Speaker, I want to close by saying that I listened to the Member for East End the other day and I have checked his statement in regards to liquor being given out by the UDP in East End and it is completely untrue. The UDP Members in the East End district did give some sparkling non-alcoholic grape wine to some of our members there during their Christmas drive and one or two people, I think, had some bottles of wine as a gift to members of the Party, but not the general public. There were over 40 families that benefited from the UDP Christmas drive in East End. However, it is untrue to say that liquor was handed out. The Member made it sound like there was across-the-board liquor being handed out for just a big drunk party. I am not really paying any attention to the Member because he has really been a lone soul over there all day long.

The Government has done what it could, Madam Speaker, considering the situation we found when we took office in 2000, and then when we took control of the Government fully in 2001. This is no easy time. All of us were looking at the news, and we know that war could be announced today or tomorrow. These are perilous and worrisome times for us and I am concerned. This is a time that I believe the churches need to be praying for the nation and I believe some of them are. However, as a Government, we will deal with the problems that we have and we will try to prepare for any other areas that might jump up in front of us. So, we have to be careful in our expenditure because we are not out of the woods yet. While we have a good system and are well on the road to some recovery, do not let anyone get the impression that the Government has millions of dollars that we can just spend on every item. That is not so.

Madam Speaker, I would like to make a correction. I believe I might have said that it was the Duke and the Countess of Wessex, but I think it is the Earl and Countess of Wessex that will be here for our Quincentennial Celebrations beginning on the 11, 12 and 13 May, throughout all the districts, including Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Madam Speaker—

The Speaker: Honourable Leader, you have 30 seconds remaining.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: I believe we have done well as a Government and I thank almighty God for health and strength and allowing us to carry on.

The Speaker: That concludes the debate on the Throne Speech. May I now have a motion, Honourable Leader for the adjournment?

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, we adjourn this Honourable House until Wednesday, 19 March 2003 at 10 am.

The Speaker: Thank you. The question is that this House do now adjourn until Wednesday, 19 March 2003 at 10 am.

All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

At 4.20 pm the House stood adjourned until Wednesday, 19 March 2003, at 10 am.

OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT
WEDNESDAY
19 MARCH 2003
10.41 AM
Sixth Sitting

The Speaker: I will invite the Third Elected Member for the district of West Bay to grace us with prayers

PRAYERS

Capt. A. Eugene Ebanks: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady, Queen Elizabeth II; Philip, Duke of Edinburgh; Charles, Prince of Wales; and all the Royal Family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Cabinet and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office. All this we ask for Thy great Name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together:

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Proceedings resumed at 10.44 am

READING BY THE HONOURABLE
SPEAKER OF MESSAGES
AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Speaker: There are no messages or announcements for this morning.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS
AND OF REPORTS

Community College of the Cayman Islands
Annual Report 2001/02

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Health Services, District Administration and Agriculture.

Motion to defer Paper

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I beg to move the deferment of the report on the Community College due to be laid upon the Table by the Honourable Minister of Education until later today or to a future sitting. He is not present at this time.

The Speaker: Thank you. The question is that the paper as it relates to the Community College of the Cayman Islands Annual Report 2001/02 be hereby deferred until the Honourable Minister of Education is present.

All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed: That the Paper be deferred later in the sitting or to a future sitting until the Honourable Minister was next present.

Ruling from the Chair on Point of Order Raised Monday 17 March 2003

The Speaker: The Member for the district of North Side.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, thank you for recognising me. I am wondering if you have been able to do your ruling on the 17 March. We suspended for the afternoon break on a point of order by myself based on something that the Second Elected Member for the district of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman said. You said that after the afternoon break you would make a ruling in that regard. I am wondering if you are in a position to make that ruling.

The Speaker: Thank you, Honourable Member for North Side. I refrained from making that ruling in the afternoon because I was informed that an opportunity had arisen between yourself and the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac where facts had been produced and you had conceded to the point. Hence I did not make my ruling.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, I am totally shocked this morning that that Honourable Member would say that he and I had come to some agreement. I have no authority, and neither does he, to come to an agreement on a ruling outstanding by the Honourable Speaker, and we came to no such agreement. So, Madam Speaker, if you would permit the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac to tell this House what agreement he and I came to based on a ruling that was outstanding by the Honourable Speaker.

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac, are you in a position to confirm or deny whether or not a conversation ensued between your and the Member for North Side which was communicated to me on Monday last?

Point of Order

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: Minister of Community Services, please state your point of order.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: I am trying to find out, from a point of clarification, if it is being said that the statement which you just made from the Chair that you were under the impression the two Members had come to a conclusion of an agreement – is it being suggested that the Chair is wrong in making that statement? If it is then to ask the Honourable Member here about this situation would be . . .

The Speaker: Honourable . . .

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker . . .

The Speaker: One minute, Member for North Side.

Honourable Minister responsible for Community Services, the position of the Chair is that I refrained from making a statement on Monday last because I was given the distinct impression that it was no longer necessary because the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac had presented a fax to the Member for North Side which contained the information therein and there was no longer a dispute.

In addition, the Member for North Side for whatever reason (justifiably, I am sure) was not within the Chamber to make an objection or say otherwise. That cemented the impression I was given that matters had been taken care of, hence I did not make a ruling. If that is not the position, then I am ready, able and willing to make a ruling accordingly.

The Elected Member for North Side.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I would ask that you tell this Honourable House if that impression was given to you by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and myself together or solely by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

The Speaker: I said that it was the Second Elected Member for the district of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, on Monday of this week a point of order was expressed by the Member for North Side. Following the luncheon break, the Member and I spoke in the lunchroom of this building, and she shared with me that she had expressed to the Speaker that she had an opportunity to call me on contempt because I had stated that (and I read from the unedited Hansard of the 17 March the statement that I made): “Permanent financial assistance is the same situation, and I challenge that anyone—you want to see interesting facts, compare district by district to see which district had the highest percentage removed during the administration of which the Member for North Side was the Minister responsible. See which district had the highest and it will not surprise you and it certainly has not surprised me. Go and contest the fact and you will see that Cayman Brac and Little Cayman had the highest percentage removal”.

I discussed this matter and shared the unedited Hansard with the Member and pointed out that I was referring to financial assistance and not seamen’s. She concurred on that fact—

[Interjections]

The Speaker: Order, order!
Member for North Side, please contain yourself.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, it was agreed that we were talking on financial assistance and I will actually quote from the Hansard when the Honourable Member for North Side said —

The Speaker: Could you please state the date so that I can follow.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: The Hansard of 17 March 2003. It says that: “He is saying when I was the Minister the greater number of persons removed from financial assistance ...”.

I am only stating this to clarify that what we are talking about is permanent financial assistance and not seamen’s ex gratia payment. So, are we all in agreement that what we are talking about is permanent financial assistance?

Madam Speaker, I would like to re-emphasise that in my statement I stated: “ ... the permanent financial assistance is the same situation, and I challenge that anyone—you want to see interesting facts, compare district by district to see which district had the highest percentage removed during the administration of which the Member for North Side was the Minister responsible. See which district had the highest and I will not surprise you, Madam Speaker, and it certainly has not surprised me. Go and contest that fact and you will see that Cayman Brac and Little Cayman had the highest percentage removed”.

In the same Hansard, the Member acknowledges that we are talking about financial assistance, and in dialogue that we had in the lunchroom and outside in the corridor of this Chamber, she also acknowledged this. Therefore, I do not understand where this morning she is suggesting that I am not accurate that we were talking about permanent financial assistance. Furthermore, in my opinion, the Member has not provided anything to this House to say that that fact is not accurate.

Madam Speaker, I would like to share the facts as I have them and to see whether that statement is not accurate. Of the first 30 people removed from permanent financial assistance —

The Speaker: Member could you state your source please?

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: I am stating from a report provided by the Honourable Minister of Community Services, dated 11 April 2002. “District by district: the district of Bodden Town 3 of the 30; the district of Cayman Brac 11 of the 30; the district of East End 0 of the 30; the district of George Town 10 of the 30; the district of West Bay 4 of the 30; and the district of North Side 2 of the 30.” The district of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman represented 36 percent. Second to that was the district of George Town with 33 percent. Thus bearing the fact that the highest percentage removed was from the district that we represent.

Madam Speaker, furthermore —

The Speaker: Before you go on Elected Member, would you please table that document so that the Sergeant can make a copy for my perusal and other Honourable Members? seeing that it substantiates your evidential submission.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: No problem, Madam Speaker. I only apologise that the percentages are written in pencil and I hope they can be photocopied. I would also like to share and I read from the —

The Speaker: Can you lay it and then you can continue, Honourable Member.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, I would like to say that the same information is also provided on another supplementary that is in a clearer format. One has a lot of pencil writing on it, but I would like to be able to share both with you so I will table both at the same time and the information is the same.

The Speaker: Certainly.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, to support my point, in answering to the point of order, I will read from the same Hansard of 17 March 2003. “Madam Speaker, I did not quote from any particular document, simply from memory of transactions within this Honourable Chamber”. Madam Speaker, the Hansard . . . I sit alongside the Honourable Minister who answered the question on December 2002 (and I have a copy of the information that he brought to Parliament and shared with me on that particular day) and has clearly broken down the same information district by district.

The two sets of information differ slightly because one has 30 members who were removed from the financial assistance and the other one is 36. I can only assume there is a difference in the numbers because it was a continual process. But it also broke it down district by district and confirms the fact that Cayman Brac had 11 removed, as I stated earlier, out of the 36.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, can you also, for the record, state the question number so that the Clerk can record accordingly?

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: No. 79, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Thank you.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, the interesting fact is that 11 were removed from Cayman Brac and Little Cayman where we only had 86 recipients - that is 12.79 percent. On that particular date which I said there were 6 more removed the George Town number had increased to 12, but that is 12 of 212 so that is only 5.6 percent. So, even in these facts with the additional numbers it still shows that the highest impacted district was Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

In rising to this point of order I think it is important that we look at the point that was originally being made. All I was doing in my debate was to show that, under the PPM social engineer, Cayman Brac and Little Cayman had the highest percentage removed.

Point of Order

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, on a point of order please.

The Speaker: Please state your point of order.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: I do not think the whole idea of this point of order is to open a debate that has just completed on the Throne Speech. If he wants to continue in that stream I have no problem, I can sit here and listen to it but I really do not think there is a call for this debate to go back to the Throne Speech.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, that is not a point of order. I believe that an allegation has been laid which could, in the final analysis, lead to a charge of contempt which is a very serious allegation. I believe that the Member has to be afforded an opportunity to put forward his defence and we are so now hearing.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you very much, Madam Speaker.

To suggest that my statement that the highest percentage of those removed under the Minister of Community Services, who is now the Member for North Side, was from Cayman Brac and Little Cayman ...

No one can come forward and show any evidence to contradict that; and to suggest that that is not accurate would be misleading in itself, for those are the cold, hard facts. There may be an opportunity for the Member to get up, even in this forum or in some other forum, and justify why. However, the cold, hard facts are that the highest percentage removed was from Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, and those are the facts that I stated and I stand firmly by, and I think I have ably provided documents and I am prepared to give them to the Serjeant-at-Arms to be tabled.

Madam Speaker, the first copy is the page out of a full document, I do not have the full document here but I would be willing . . . I am humbly asking this Chair to recognise the fact that you have put forward that the allegation that has been made through this point of order calls into question my character. I would humbly ask, since the point of order has been raised, is for either through a ruling to be made affirmatively or for the Member to withdraw her point of order.

The Speaker: Thank you, Member for Cayman Brac.

Serjeant, perhaps I could have sight of the document that was laid before you make the relevant photocopies thereof.

Members of the House, based on what has been tabled and I have now had a cursory opportunity to peruse, it is the Chair's ruling that the evidence to substantiate the fact that the electoral district of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, in that specific time-frame under which the Minister was responsible for financial assistance, did in fact receive the lesser amount of financial assistance thereby having received the most cuts. I am not in a position to make a conclusion as to the reason why, neither am I prepared to venture into the politics of the reason why. The ruling is that the Member was not misleading the House and I would ask for the Clerk of the House to continue with Question Time.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, if I may.

The Speaker: Member for North Side.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Certainly I am entitled to see the document that has been laid on the Table particularly if it is the same document that the Second Elected Member showed me in the Common Room on Monday. If I am allowed... unfortunately, Madam Speaker this is not—

The Speaker: Member for North Side, perhaps it would be prudent if all Members could have sight of the same document. To put it in better perspective I would ask the Serjeant to photocopy it and we will have an in-house suspension of five minutes.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, if I may, the particular document that the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac showed me in the Common Room is not laid on the Table of the House.

The Speaker: Serjeant, please collect the documents and have them photocopied. Member for North Side, once we have reconvened I will give you an opportunity to explain the last statement that you made.

In-House suspension at 11.05 am

House resumed at 11.16 am

The Speaker: The Member for North Side, had caught my attention just before we took the suspension.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Madam Speaker. When I rose on this matter it was merely to have it straightened out and that a ruling had been made, but now it has gotten into a complete debate. In the answer to the question (I do not know what number the question is, it is not on the paper) ...

The Speaker: No. 79 he said, Honourable Member.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: It says “Between October 2001 and May 2002” —

The Speaker: I beg your indulgence for one moment Honourable Member. [Pause.]

Please continue, Member for North Side.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The question actually reads: “How many people have been taken off the Poor Relief System over the past twelve months, broken down by month and stating the reason for each person being taken off, how they were notified and what time-frame to adjust their financial affairs?”

The answer: “Between October 2001 and May 2002 a total of 36 persons were taken off the poor relief” —

The Speaker: Honourable Member, I am sorry for the interruption, but are you coming to a new point that was not considered prior to my ruling?

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Absolutely, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Alright. Please continue.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle:

“In October 2001 there were three terminations; in November 2001 there were five terminations; in January 2002 there were 17 terminations; in March 2002 there were five terminations; in April 2002 there were three terminations; in May 2002 there were three terminations.”

I fail to see how I can be accused when I was removed on the 8 November 2001 and I think it was in March that the Honourable Minister said in his debate — that was on seamen’s — so I apologise. However, I do not see how I can be accused of removing 11 persons from the district of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman when the majority of these removals/terminations happened after I left. There were three in October while I was there; accepted. There were five in November; whether they were before 8 November I do not know, so I really do not see how it can be ruled that I was in place at the time when all these persons were removed from the financial assistance.

The Speaker: Member for North Side, there was a statement to the fact that all cases which were terminated up to the 21 May 2002 had been reassessed under the old criteria. The revised criterion was received on the 29 May 2002 and all subsequent reassessments and new assessments are currently being done under the new guidelines. Are you saying that the assessment under the old criteria amounted to the fact that the old criteria was subsequent to November 2001?

Ms Edna M. Moyle: Certainly.

The Speaker: If I could have some order, the Member for North Side would have a better opportunity to communicate what I have said.

I am saying that the answer supplied to the House by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman says as follows: “All cases which were terminated up to the 21 May 2002 had been reassessed under the old criteria. The revised criteria was received on 29 May 2002 and all subsequent reassessments and new assessments are currently being done under the new guidelines”.

Is it the position of the Member for North Side that the old criteria, as referred herein, would fall within the time line subsequent to November 2001 concluding 29 May 2002. Is that your position?

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: If I may, I am basing my concern on what the Second Elected Member for the district of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman said in the Hansard of 17 March. That is what I raised my original point of order under, and it reads:

“It is the same situation with the permanent financial assistance. [I assume he was referring to the seamen’s] I challenge that anyone ... you want to see interesting facts; compare district by district to see which district had the highest percentage removed during the administration of which the Member for North Side was the Minister responsible. See which district had the highest and it will not surprise you ... ”.

Madam Speaker, I am saying that they accepted the old criteria until 29 May. So, it is not proven that I was responsible for 11 members being removed from financial assistance in the district of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker —

The Speaker: Just one moment, I will come to you Minister of Community Services.

Member for North Side what I am endeavouring to ascertain, is it your position that the old criteria which assessment was carried out was not the criteria that you had endorsed and left in the Ministry?

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, that is by no means what I am saying because it is clear in this question that it was changed on 29 May 2002. I am saying that they accepted the old criteria and there is no proof that I was responsible for any number being removed from any particular district as the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac has stated on the Floor of this House.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac?

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, as a Member of this Honourable Chamber I reported the facts as I knew them. The facts are that during the administration, for which the Member for North Side was responsible for the Ministry that supervises, manages and assesses permanent and financial assistance, a policy was put in place and during her administration. It was as a result of her policy that was put in place by her that the 11 people of Cayman Brac, which is the highest percentage, were removed.

Madam Speaker, the Minister currently responsible can defend himself and I will not attempt to do so because those are the facts from the page of the report that the current Minister provided to me that I tabled in this Honourable Chamber. Those are the facts, as I know them.

The Speaker: Minister of Community Services.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, since we seem to have gotten into a legal, technical debate here I would just like to say in my own defence, since the former Minister of Community Services does not seem to want to accept responsibility for the outcome of her policies, I can accept the outcome of my policies. In May I changed her policies, the criteria, and reassessed those people who had been taken off and many of them have been added again to the Poor Relief. What the Member said was quite clear. The Member was implying, if he had not stated outwardly, that the consequences of her policy had resulted in the larger number being taken off from Cayman Brac. I do not think that we need to debate that any further.

The Speaker: Thank you, Honourable Minister. I think that each party has had ample opportunity to put forward their respective submissions. The Chair has ruled and I now call on the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman to move forward with question No. 1.

Question No. 1

No. 1: Mr. Lyndon L. Martin asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Health Services, District Administration and Agriculture what are the plans of the Civil Aviation Authority in regard to the Little Cayman Airstrip.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Health Services, District Administration and Agriculture.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: The need for development of airport facilities in Little Cayman has been closely considered by the Civil Aviation Authority (CAA), and discussions are underway between the CAA and Government.

The Speaker: Minister, could perhaps give the Serjeant time to distribute your answer.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Yes, Madam Speaker

The Speaker: I am obliged.

[Pause]

The Speaker: Please proceed, Honourable Minister.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, it is a short answer so perhaps I should just start again: The need for development of airport facilities in Little Cay-man has been closely considered by the Civil Aviation Authority (CAA), and discussions are underway between the CAA and Government. No concrete plans have yet been made.

The Speaker: Are there any Supplementaries?

Honourable Leader of Government, we have passed the hour of 11 am. Is there a motion to suspend Standing Order 23(7) and (8)?

Suspension of Standing Order 23(7) and (8)

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I beg to suspend 23(7) and (8) in order for questions to be taken after the time.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 23(7) and (8) be suspended to allow Question Time to continue beyond 11.00 am.

All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed: That Standing Order 23(7) and (8) be suspended to allow Question Time to continue beyond 11:00 am.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Supplementaries

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Could the Honourable Minister indicate the new alternative site previously selected by a new Minister for the airstrip and terminal in Little Cayman, and whether his Ministry has developed any formal policy as to their intentions to go ahead with that site or to look for alternative sites?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister responsible for District Administration.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, there has been a major study done in Little Cayman to determine the most suitable location for a runway. There has been a Master Plan Commission and they have made a report. This report recommends that there should be a 4000x100 ft runway with taxiway, apron, terminal building, fire station and other ancillary facilities. A decision has not yet been taken in regards to this master plan but it will be going forward to Executive Council in the immediate future. Depending on the decision there, the Civil Aviation Authority will then proceed to take steps to find the necessary funds to start this.

The location for the runway is on the north side of the Island and it will be at an angle, which the engineers have determined will be more suitable depending on the winds, and it would pass far enough away from the red foot booby birds and would not cause any problem for the rams or site there.

The Speaker: Are there any further Supplementaries? The Leader of the Opposition.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Just to clarify the location, is it the same site that was previously being filled? I think that is perhaps what the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac was trying to determine. I am not quite sure from the answer and I just want to get it clear.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister responsible for District Administration.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, it is not the exact direction that that cleared area . . . it is the same property on which that was and it is government land. The angle of it has changed slightly as recommended by the engineers.

The Speaker: Any further Supplementaries? Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, I was hoping the Minister could provide an undertaking to expend some funds on the site to prevent any loss of the funds that have been spent to date in clearing the property; funds are needed now to maintain it. I think some drilling is needed in order to dynamite the cliff.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister responsible for District Administration.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, it is a matter which has to be determined by the Civil Aviation Authority. There is now a plan and, as I have stated, the angle of the runway will not run exactly as the cleared area. It cuts across a part of it but it will be on Crown land and there are some funds available. I would certainly hope and expect that within another few weeks work could be started in clearing the site as it has been determined to be the best location.

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, I would like to point out to the Honourable Minister that immediately to the west, adjacent to that particular site is a piece of property . . .

The Speaker: Please turn it into a question Member.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: I certainly will Madam Speaker, . . . a piece of property that is flat in nature. I was hoping the Minister could indicate whether the Civil Aviation Authority has looked into the possibility of acquiring this piece of property in order to reduce the likelihood of having to dig into what has proven to be very deep swamp area?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister responsible for District Administration.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I really cannot confirm that the area for the proposed runway does run across a major area of swamp, it is more cliff, to my understanding of it. I am not aware of any offer for sale of property and, to the best of my knowledge, no attempt has been made until now to acquire any additional land.

The Speaker: Are there any further Supplementaries? If not we will move on to the next question. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Question No. 2

No.2: Mr. Lyndon L. Martin asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Health Services, District Administration and Agriculture what is the ambit of the Cayman Brac Development Fund vote and what is currently being paid from this vote.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister responsible for District Administration.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Initially this vote was created for special use for development projects during Mr. Aftab Noorani's tenure as Project Manager for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. The intention was that this Vote would be used for projects that would encourage tourists and business people to visit/invest in these Islands.

To date funds from this vote have been used to develop the Islands' natural attractions thereby creating eco/nature-type tourist attractions to broaden their visitor pool.

So far, funds expended have paid for the clearing of old bluff trails, purchasing and erecting appropriate signage and descriptive information for various sites. Also, the funds are used to cover fees of the Naturalist Consultant, create a website and do joint advertisements with the Sister Islands Tourism Association and the Department of Tourism in order to bring more people to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Currently funds for the 2003 half-year Budget have been used to expand the website, pay for additional interpretative signs, and with part funding by the sister Islands Tourism Association, also pay for advertisements in the Natural History and Audubon magazines.

The Speaker: Are there are any Supplementaries? Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Supplementaries

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I am hoping the Minister is in a position to inform the House whether investments from this fund put into advertisements and funding of tourism promotions are coordinated through the Department of Tourism in Grand Cayman?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister responsible for District Administration.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, it is my understanding that the District Commissioner makes most of the decisions in regards to the expenditure from this fund and I think it is done in consultation with the Department of Tourism.

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you Madam Speaker. I thank the Minister for that answer also. Could the Minister indicate that once such expenditure for promotion and websites and other advertisements are done, is there any mechanism within District Administration to handle any inquiries or hits on the website, or to monitor the on-going maintenance of these websites, or are they being created and left as a stand-alone?

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I cannot tell the Member at this time who actually handles the website. I do understand that it is an interactive website and that persons can and do receive certain information from and using it.

The Speaker: Are there any further Supplementaries? If not we will move on to the next question.

Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Question No. 3

No.3:Mr. Lyndon L. Martin asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Health Services, District Administration and Agriculture what is the time line and scope of the expansion of the Gerard Smith Airport terminal.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister responsible for District Administration.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: It is proposed to expand the Gerrard Smith International Airport terminal arrival hall by about 520 square feet, which will also include a new baggage conveyor system with more linear room for baggage collection.

In addition, the project will include:

1. extension of the roof to provide cover for the baggage drop-off area; and

2. development of an undeveloped area on the upper floor to provide spaces for private rental and offices for Civil Aviation Authority staff.

It is anticipated that the works will be completed by October 2003.

The Speaker: Are there any Supplementaries? The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Supplementaries

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, I was hoping the Minister could indicate when the project is expected to commence?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister of District Administration.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: The public tendering process for the project was initiated in late January 2003 and a number of submissions of interests are currently being reviewed. This process was completed on Monday and we will then await the next stage; that of seeking qualified contractors.

The Speaker: Are there any further Supplementaries. Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, the answer stated that the development of an underdeveloped area on the upper floor to provide spaces for private rental and offices for Civil Aviation Authority staff. Could the Minister suggest that the hope of getting a restaurant to occupy that space has now been removed from the desirability of Civil Aviation Authority and the entire space will be used for offices?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister responsible for District Administration.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, the present position is that the upper floor will be used for office space and not restaurant space. The only restaurant that is there is the one that is run by Mr. Elmer Ebanks. As best as we can understand and discern, this is serving the purpose within the terminal, so there is no plan to include another restaurant on the second floor.

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, I thank the Minister for outlining the full scope. Just for extreme clarity I was hoping he could confirm or indicate as to whether any storage facility would be part of this development plan in the form of warehousing? I know currently they are using private warehouses near the airport in Cayman Brac.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of District Administration.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, there are no plans at this time for a storage area within this particular project. There is a future looking situation where we would expect to have some storage space but not in this particular area or within this project.

The Speaker: Are there any other Supplementaries? If not we will move on to the next question.

Question No. 4
(deferred)

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for the district of George Town.

No. 4: Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr. asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Tourism, Environment Development and Commerce what was the total cost to Government of the relocation of the Tourism Office from Miami to New York?

The Speaker: The Honourable Leader of Government.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I believe that the staff had a message from the Permanent Secretary to give to you in regards to the question. I believe he was not quite ready – it was ready but then he had to make some changes. If it does not come before the House adjourns then we will deal with at the next sitting. I thought that had been relayed to the Chair?

The Speaker: Honourable Leader, perhaps you may deem it necessary to move a motion for it to be deferred until the next sitting because we only have one short matter left for today's business.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: The message that I received from the Deputy Clerk was that the Permanent Secretary thought he would be here soon but that does not seem to be point. That is why I was saying if he came before then we would take it, but it did not so we would hold it over for the next sitting. And I so move.

The Speaker: The question is that Question No. 4 as it appears on today's Order Paper be set down for a response prior to the adjournment of today's sitting, and failure that to be taken at the next available sitting.

All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed: Question No. 4 deferred until the next Sitting.

The Speaker: Thank you, Honourable Leader.

STATEMENTS BY HONOURABLE
MINISTERS/MEMBERS
OF THE GOVERNMENT

Change of Ministry Name from Women's Affairs to Gender Affairs

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Services.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker and other Members of the Legislative Assembly, I would like to give a statement regarding the name change of the Ministry for which I am responsible. As of the 11 March 2003 the subject area of Women's Affairs will now be referred to as Gender Affairs, thereby the name of the Ministry will now be Community Services, Gender Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Madam Speaker and Honourable Members of the Legislative Assembly, as you are aware the Ministry is in the process of editing the final version of the Cayman Islands National Policy on Gender Equity and Equality. The final draft will be presented to Executive Council in the very near future. The overall goal of this policy is to promote gender equality and sustainable human development in the Cayman Islands. Gender Equality is a development goal in itself, and this policy aims to promote gender awareness among policy makers, planners, implementors and the general public, in order to achieve equity and equality for men and women, boys and girls.

Madam Speaker, some may question why the change from Women's Affairs to Gender Affairs and may feel that this is a step backward for women's issues. I must take this opportunity to highlight why this is not a step backwards for women's issues but a step forwards total human development and gender equality.

Gender equity is the process of being fair to women and men. To ensure fairness, measures must often be taken to adjust historical and social disadvantages that prevent women and men from operating on a level playing field. A gender policy may embody measures of adjustment. Gender equity leads to gender equality, which means that women and men enjoy the same status. Gender equality means that women and men have equal conditions for realising their human rights and potential to contribute the political, economic, social and cultural development locally, regionally and internationally and to benefit from these results.

The National Gender Policy is an integral part of the national development process and reinforces the overall development objectives of our country. A gender perspective is necessary if policy makers, planners, administrators and society at large are to understand the underlying causes and find adequate long-term solutions for crucial national and global issues such as labour, trade and migration problems. Therefore, in order to reflect the importance of gender issues I decided that this must be reflected in the title of the Ministry for which I hold responsibility.

Madam Speaker, I want to reassure the Honourable Members of the House that the Ministry is not losing its focus on addressing the issues that affect women. I must say that would be the contrary. Since I have had responsibility for Women's Affairs, a counsellor has been added to the staff of the Women's Resource Centre. This long-awaited position was desperately needed, and it will greatly enhance the programming of this facility. In addition the government purchased property for the establishment of the Cayman Islands Crisis Centre, a shelter for battered women and their children.

The Ministry also continued to be a main sponsor for the television programme Focus on Domestic Abuse and to coordinate the Domestic Violence Intervention training programme for police officers and front line professionals. I dare say that we are not losing focus on women's issues; we are simply going a step further towards ensuring that equal value is placed on the contributions of women and men as partners in national development and the development of the society as a whole.

If I may, Madam Speaker, I would like to share with the Honourable Members of the House a poem that is from the manual used in the Domestic Violence Intervention training programme and is excerpted from Understanding Gender: A Struggle within a Struggle. I hope that this poem will lie to rest any questions in this Honourable House of "Why Gender?"

*For every woman who is tired of acting weak when she knows she is strong;
There is a man who is tired of appearing strong when he feels vulnerable.*

*For every woman who is tired of acting dumb;
There is a man who is burdened with the responsibility of 'knowing everything'.*

*For every woman who is tired of being called an 'emotional female';
There is a man who is denied the right to weep and be gentle.*

For every woman who is called unfeminine when she competes;

There is a man for whom competition is the only way to prove he is masculine.

For every woman who is tired of being a sex object;

There is a man who must worry about his potency.

For every woman who feels tied down by her children;

There is a man who is denied the full pleasure of parenthood.

For every woman who is denied meaningful employment and equal pay;

There is a man who must bear the financial responsibility of another human being.

For every woman who was not taught the intricacies of an automobile;

There is a man who was not taught the satisfaction of cooking.

For every woman who takes a step towards her own liberation;

There is a man who finds that the way to freedom has been made a little easier.

I hope that after reading this poem Members of this Honourable House understand why the move to change the title of the Ministry to reflect gender affairs. We realise that gender is culturally based and created by societies therefore they can be changed. It is my hope that by changing the name of the Ministry, we are making one of the many steps necessary toward achieving gender equality and total human development.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND OF REPORTS

(recommitted)

Community College of the Cayman Islands Annual Report 2001/02

The Speaker: Earlier we deferred the presentation of Papers and Reports. I now recognise the Honourable Minister responsible for Education.

Hon. Roy Boddan: Madam Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the Community College Annual Report for the academic year 2001/02.

The Speaker: So ordered. Would the Honourable Minister wish to speak thereto?

Hon. Roy Boddan: Yes, Madam Speaker, I would crave the indulgence of the House to read the summary as prepared by the College President.

The Speaker: Please proceed.

Hon. Roy Boddén: Once again the College had a very successful year. The number of graduates increased from 104 in 2001 to 132. Enrolment in Vocational and Associate degree programmes increased. Attrition declined. The Library Collection grew. The curriculum for the professional banking programmes were revised and restructured. Financially, the College is contributing about 30 percent of its annual expenditure. Fees have not increased over the past few years in order to promote inclusion. About 70 percent of the students attending the College are Caymanians. The College has a qualified, experienced and dedicated faculty. The Board of Governors charted a course for the future and further development of the institution. Associate degree graduates are gaining ready acceptance at some of the most prestigious universities in Canada, the United Kingdom and the United States of America. Most of those attending American universities are receiving two years of advanced standing. Many are completing their baccalaureate degrees in two years and some are graduating with high academic honours.

The Board of Governors

Despite the recurring difficulties with attendance at meetings, the Board of Governors met frequently. In addition to the normal and routine matters, the Board focused on determining the type of institution that can best serve the educational and training needs of the Cayman Islands, identifying the challenges ahead and charting a course on the future and further development of the College.

After more than one year of discussions and deliberations the Board decided upon seven recommendations: -

1. change the name of the institution from the Community College of the Cayman Islands to the University College of the Cayman Islands (UCCI)
2. introduce four-year Baccalaureate programmes in selected specialisations
3. centralise all Government Tertiary institutions
4. make Teacher Training Programmes a priority
5. establish a Business Institute at the College
6. rethink Vocational education and programmes
7. introduce more Professional Programmes.

These decisions which promise significant educational, social, financial and economical benefits to the institution, the individuals attending the College and the Government have been forwarded, with justification, to the Honourable Minister of Education. We now wait with anticipation Government's input, feedback and guidance.

Staffing

The College had one major staffing disruption in October with the unexpected departure of one of the newly recruited lecturers. Potentially, the consequences could have been far-reaching since Cayman does not have a pool of readily adjuncts. Fortunately, many members of faculty volunteered to carry overloads and no class was cancelled. A replacement was recruited for the start of the spring semester.

At the end of the year five members of staff: the accountant; two lecturers; and two members of the support staff opted not to renew their contracts with the College. The Library assistant and Laboratory technician accepted teaching positions with local high schools. The other three left for personal, professional and other reasons. We have already recruited replacements and the College will have a full staffing complement for the start of the 2002/03 academic year.

The Curriculum

At the start of the 2001/02 academic year the College offered 24 programmes. Two of these programmes leading to professional certification in computing, the A+ and Microsoft Certified Systems Certificate (MCSC), were shelved in November because of very low enrolment.

As was the case in previous years the syllabi for all associate degree courses were evaluated and modified to ensure that they are current and some of the syllabi for vocational programmes were revised based on feedback received from the Programme Advisory Committee.

In collaboration with the Cayman Islands Bankers Association, all of the Banking programmes were restructured. This resulted in the need for a revision or construction of new syllabi for most courses. The syllabi for all the Banking programmes have been submitted to the Institute of Financial Services in the United Kingdom for approval and for joint Community College and IFS certification. The new programmes: Financial Services Foundation Certificate, Certificate in Management Practice, and Certificate in Offshore Administration - plus the Legal Secretarial Certificate and Diploma in Banking will be offered in September 2002.

Graduates

In 2001, 104 students satisfied the academic requirements of their programmes and graduated. This was our largest graduating class. In 2002 132 students graduated - 28 more than the previous year. This was chiefly because of an increase of more than 100 percent from Associate degree programmes.

Four significant points emerged from a breakdown of the statistics:-

1. 80 of the 132 graduates received diplomas from work related programmes.
2. About half the graduates can be classified as mature students.
3. More than 50 percent of these associate degree graduates completed their programme through part-time study.

4. About 70 percent of the graduates are females.

We are very pleased with the increasing number of females who are attending the College and are successfully satisfying the requirements of their programmes. We are also very concerned about the declining male participation. This is not only a Cayman phenomenon but is fairly universal. Many research papers have been written on this topic and they all conclude that the chief reason for the decline on male participation at the tertiary level is under-achievement at the high school level.

The Cayman Islands Government needs to pay more attention to this vexing concern and should divert resources to reverse this trend for social and other reasons.

The Library

The Library serves as a hub for academic study, a venue for research and as a communication centre to disseminate information to students. As in previous years, the main emphasis was on ordering books and other materials from university and specialty presses that supplement faculty teaching and support student research. 1,465 items were added in 2002 covering political science, international relations, banking, economics, finance, development, environmental studies, social issues, insurance, taxation and education.

The current inventory is 14,971 items including books, videos, audiotapes and CD products. The value of the collection is US$549,310.62 and does not include the Caymanian Society of Architects, Surveyors and Engineers (CASE) materials that are housed on our shelves for circulation to their members.

In addition to the books, magazines etcetera the Library has four networked Internet stations and four standalone computers for individual use. The Internet stations are free (thanks to Cable and Wireless) and were heavily used. Unfortunately, the individual stations were under-utilised.

The Library continues to be heavily used by the Cayman Islands Law School and the Institute for Theological Learning and Development students. These patrons do not borrow materials but instead rely on our Reference collection for their projects. Community members who are studying for various external examinations also use the Library as a study centre.

Finance

Once again, the financial performance of the College was very satisfactory. The audit of the College's 2001 Financial Statement was conducted on a timely basis without any major problem.

During this period, the grant received from Government has increased but the increase is not in keeping with the growth in enrolment or the addition of new programmes. Fortunately, income is increasing annually and consequently, the College is able to increase its contribution to recurrent expenditure.

Income has increased because of the growth in enrolment (mainly tuition), fees collected for rental and other services and the College's success in curbing the number of delinquent accounts by preventing students with outstanding fees from registering until all fees are paid and current registration prepaid.

The table shows that expenditure is also increasing annually. In 2001 expenditure increased by six percent to $2,406,397 chiefly because of the increases in insurance and utilities costs and the hiring of an additional member of faculty. Salaries and Wages continue to be chief area of expenditure.

The audited financial statements for the financial year, which ended in December 2001, showed a surplus. The financials for the 2001/2002 academic year, on the other hand, show a deficit. Generally this was because of the current state of the Caymanian economy which impacted negatively upon enrolment in Continuing Education and Professional Programmes - the area with the lowest level of subsidization and the College's chief source of revenue.

Work experience and placement

The College has a modified apprenticeship scheme for all vocational programmes. In this scheme students attend classes for three days a week and are placed on an attachment for the remaining two days either with Government or a relevant private sector or company. We also arrange, as far as possible, for the students to receive a small stipend.

This year some employers informed us that they could not participate in the programme because of economic deceleration. Others stepped in and all students were successfully placed. The feedback received from employers in most cases was very complimentary. We are pleased with the excellent relationship with private sector companies and thank them not only for their support of our vocational programmes but also for their service on our programme advisory committees and for their input in the curriculum of these programmes.

Enrolment

Once again the College offered a wide variety of academic, vocational and professional programmes and many short and long courses ranging from academic and vocational to professional, leisure and developmental through its Continuing Education department.

The enrolment picture that emerged at the end of the year was mixed. Despite offerings in such areas as Bartending, Plumbing, Air-conditioning and Refrigeration, course and individual enrolment in the Continuing Education Department declined. Enrolment in the various one-day computing courses decreased. Overall, individual and course enrolment in the Professional Programmes also dropped in spite of a significant increase in the Foundation Banking Certificate.

Many factors contributed to the drop in enrolment in Professional programmes and in Adult and Continuing Education courses namely:-

- rising unemployment due to the deceleration in the Caymanian economy;
- competition from other local providers such as the Chamber of Commerce, Paramount Computers, et cetera;
- the introduction of Adult Education classes by some high schools;
- a reduction in sponsorship by many private sector companies and Government;
- the reduction in the number of individuals who were released by companies to attend classes during the day.

The softening of the economy, on the other hand, had a positive effect on enrolment in Associate degree and Vocational programmes. Vocational programme enrolment increased by 10 percent and the majority of the students joining these programmes were recent John Gray High School graduates. When compared to the 1999/2000 academic year the increase was 26 percent. The difficulty in finding jobs contributed to this growth. Even more importantly than the growth in enrolment is the fact that the number of students who dropped out declined and the number who graduated from the various programmes increased by 22 percent.

The largest growth enrolment was in Associate degree programmes. 206 new students enrolled during the year and active individual enrolment in the Fall 2002 was 398 - a 25 percent increase when compared to Fall 2001. Course enrolment increased by 29 percent to 2,893 and for the first time the College had to increase the number of sections offered in Mathematics, Physics, Chemistry, English and Sociology. Unfortunately, other subjects, with as many as 40 students, could not be split because of staffing restrictions.

A breakdown by category of the 149 students who enrolled in the associate degree programmes in September 2001 is as follows:-

- 43 fall in the category of mature students, that is, those individuals who are accepted because they were over age 21 and had relevant work experience;
- 21 who graduated from Community College vocational programmes in 2001 with a grade point average (gpa) of 3.0 or above;
- 53 had four or more O/ CXC passes, grades A, B, C or 1, 2 or 3 at the General or Technical level;
- 29 had SAT scores of 850 or above for the AAS programme or 950 or above for the Associate in Arts or Science programmes.
- 3 had United States high school diplomas.

It is important to note that a significant number of those in the O/CXC and SAT categories were from public and private high schools who took the external examinations before June 2000. We can infer from this that some individuals are taking a break after high school before enrolling in tertiary education.

Despite the increase in some areas and the decrease in others, the enrolment statistics continue to be very encouraging. More than 70 percent of all students enrolled in the vocational, professional and associate degree programmes were Caymanians.

Conclusion

The Board of Governors, faculty and staff of the Community College thank Government and private sector companies and organisations for providing work experience attachments for students enrolled in our vocational programmes, for releasing and sponsoring their employees to attend classes during the day and for providing scholarships and other forms of assistance to students. We thank the faculty and staff for their contribution to the development of the institution and wish those who left at the end of the year the very best in their future undertakings. We now look forward to the challenges in making the university college of the Cayman Islands a reality.

Madam Speaker, I would just like to say that excellence must not only be pursued but must be acknowledged and so I would take this opportunity to congratulate the Chairman, the Board of Governors, the President and faculty of the Community College on an excellent academic year, and to say publicly that I have received the recommendations of the Board of Governors, taken them to Executive Council and I have now communicated with the Chairman and the Board of Governors the position of the Executive Council regarding the request for the Community College of the Cayman Islands to advance to become a university college. I look forward to the Chairman of the Board of Governors making the public announcement as per the position of the Executive Council.

I would also take this opportunity to invite you, Madam Speaker, and other Honourable Members of this House to a presentation at the Community College next Wednesday. We should schedule it for 9 o'clock and hope to conclude it in an hour so that we will be able to come to the Legislative Assembly, if not on our normal starting time, then shortly thereafter. I thank you.

The Speaker: Thank you, Honourable Minister. I will recognise the Leader of Government for the motion for the adjournment, seeing that the business of the House has been concluded.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, as there is no more business to conduct, we propose to ad-adjourn the House until Monday 24 March 2003 at 10 am.

The Speaker: The question is that House is adjourned until Monday 24 March 2003 at 10 am.

All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

At 12.22 pm the House stood adjourned until Monday, 24 March 2003, at 10 am.

OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT
MONDAY
24 MARCH 2003
10.54 AM
Seventh Sitting

[Deputy Speaker in the Chair]

The Speaker: I will invite the First Elected Member for the district of George Town to grace us with prayers.

PRAYERS

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady, Queen Elizabeth II; Philip, Duke of Edinburgh; Charles, Prince of Wales; and all the Royal Family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Cabinet and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office. All this we ask for Thy great Name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together:

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

Proceedings resumed at 10.57 am

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

READING BY THE HONOURABLE
SPEAKER OF MESSAGES
AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Speaker: I have been asked to give the apologies of the Speaker who is off sick today and we wish her a speedy recovery.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS
AND OF REPORTS

Report of the Minister Responsible for Lands Recommending the Vesting of Crown Land Block 12C, Parcels 217 and 374, to the Port Authority of the Cayman Islands

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I beg to lay upon the Table of this Honourable House my report recommending the vesting of Crown Land Block 12C, Parcels 217 and 374, to the Port Authority of the Cayman Islands in accordance with Section 10 (1) (b) of The Governor (Vesting of Lands) Law (1998 Revision). This report is accompanied by the documents required pursuant to Section 10 (2) of the said Law, which contains the said details of the proposed vesting.

The Speaker: So ordered. Would the Honourable Minister wish to speak thereto?

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Just a few brief remarks to say that this came about as a result of Private Members' Motion No. 23/99 which resolved that Crown Land Block 12C, Parcels 217 and 374, be vested in the Port Authority of the Cayman Islands. This Motion was subsequently passed.

Mr. Speaker, the Ministry had concerns about access to Parcel 374 since the roads running through the Safe Haven development are still in private ownership. Furthermore, the Parcel does not benefit from any registered right of way—vehicular or pedestrian. The most sensible solution to this problem is the vesting of Parcel 217 in the Port Authority. This additional parcel runs from West Bay Road through the North Sound and a portion of it lies between Parcel 374 and the canal. So an encroachment situation would undoubtedly result if only Parcel 374 was vested.

Mr. Speaker, Block 12C, Parcel 217 comprises of a narrow strip of land sandwiched between the Safe Haven and Ritz Carlton development. It fronts the North Sound at its eastern end and the West Bay Road on its western end, being originally intended to provide road access to Parcel 374 but was never constructed upon nor used as such. In accordance with Section 10 (2) of the Governor (Vesting of Lands) Law (Amendment) (Disposition Law) 1998 Revision three valuations were commissioned, one from Government's Valuation Office, the Lands and Survey Department and the others from the private sector's independent valuation companies.

Mr. Speaker, the required procedures under the Law have been fulfilled. Accordingly, I have pleasure in tabling this document. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Thank you.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MINISTERS AND OFFICIAL MEMBERS OF THE GOVERNMENT

Suspension of Standing Order 23(7) and (8)

The Speaker: Honourable Members, since we have reached the hour of 11 am, can I have the motion for the suspension of Standing Orders 23(7) and (8).

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I move the suspension of Standing Orders in order to take Question Time after 11 o'clock.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Orders 23(7) and (8) be suspended to allow Question Time to continue beyond 11 am. All those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed. Standing Orders 23(7) and (8) suspended in order for Question Time to continue beyond 11 am.

Question No. 4

Deferred Wednesday 19 March 2003

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for the district of George Town.

No. 4: Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr. asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Tourism, Environment, Development and Commerce what was the total cost to Government of the relocation of the Tourism Office from Miami to New York.

The Speaker: The Honourable Leader of Government Business.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Mr. Speaker, may we have copies please.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: In answering the question of the cost of the relocation it is important to first understand the strategy behind the move and then compare the cost of moving against the cost of staying in Miami.

Briefly, why New York City? It is the gateway for the Cayman Islands' largest source market and represents the hub of the United States tourism and financial sectors. The Government's strategy is to reduce waste and duplication and to create new and better opportunities to improve the economy and welfare of these Islands. One such opportunity was to integrate the destination's overseas presence and Government's resources in the single most important city in each country we were represented. In the case of the United Kingdom, we were already in London, but in the United States our primary head office was in Miami, Florida. The reason for the relocation to New York is simple: from a strategic perspective New York city satisfies not only the needs of tourism, but rather optimises the Cayman Islands' total economic opportunities including financial services, inward investment and marketing.

This strategy was discussed internally within the Department of Tourism, within the Government and with our private sector partners. Within the Department of Tourism, the more I came to understand the business of tourism the more it became obvious to me that while the south-east remains an important region, it is the north-east of the United States that represents the strategic and operational centre of Caribbean travel marketing. If the Cayman Islands network was not structured or positioned to adequately tap into this region then we were compromising our marketing and sales potential from the very onset. I also thought it sent the wrong message to have the Deputy Director of Tourism, who is responsible for the United States sales and marketing, based in a secondary region in terms of visitor arrivals while leaving the most important region to a middle manager.

I knew there was a tremendous amount of work to be done and both time and resources were scarce. Having identified our key market, the Cayman Islands Department of Tourism had to retool itself so it was in both the right position and right condition to service this market in a way which would more accurately reflect its strategic significance. So, in addition to a shift in location, there has been a shift in our mindset as we are challenged to do more with less. In keeping with this mindset, the Department of Tourism undertook a major restructuring of its United States operations in 2001 which resulted in a reduction of staff from 54 to 32 and was able to achieve savings of approximately US$100,190,000. Mr. Speaker, we achieved operational right-sizing by reducing our overhead and staffing costs. This has become a trend within the travel industry and the Cayman Islands. The Cayman Islands Department of Tourism was ahead of the pack in achieving these critical efficiencies.

Mr. Speaker, when I took over, the Department of Tourism and Cayman Airways together had more than 15,000 sq ft of space in the Blue Lagoon offices in Miami, Florida which housed the Department of Tourism's United States national office and the Southeast regional office, comprising approximately 7,500 sq ft of the total. The national airline also had its reservations and marketing staff there taking up the other 7,500 sq ft in Blue Lagoon. After the move, the Department of Tourism's new office in New York is approximately 4,400 sq ft. This is a reduction of over 2,200 sq ft and, within this smaller space government has comfortably situated:

1. The Department of Tourism's United States national office;
2. The Department of Tourism's northeast regional office;
3. The New York office of the Cayman Islands Investment Bureau; and
4. A conference room with facilities suitable for Heads of Government Departments, personnel recruiting, Permanent Secretaries and Members of the Legislative Assembly to use for government business.

The relocation costs can be grouped into three main categories: -

1. The of ending the 12-year shared lease at the Blue Lagoon in Miami;
2. The cost of relocating the southeast regional office to a smaller Miami location; and
3. The cost of moving and setting up the national office at 3 Park Avenue in New York.

At the recommendation of the Deputy Financial Secretary, the overall assessment of the real estate options and costs was conducted by an external, objective firm with real estate experience in multiple markets. The Ministry selected Ernst and Young and used the firm's real estate division based in the United States. The Ernst and Young conclusions, all things considered, was that the Government would be best off financially to break the Blue Lagoon lease, reduce total square footage as the Ministry and Department wanted to do, and to consolidate the northeast regional office and the United States national office in one new location in New York.

In summary, the savings in square footage and total real estate expense over the next three to seven years would exceed the one-time costs of breaking the Blue Lagoon lease and the cost of a series of less significant relocations. The total cost of breaking the lease at the Blue Lagoon was US$178,556 of which the Department of Tourism (DoT)'s portion was $89,278. As many of the Members of this Honourable House and the wider community will be aware, this staggering lease burdened both the DoT and Cayman Airways for many years. The cost to the DoT of continuing in that space until the end of the lease—a 27-month period from May 2002 to July 2004—would have been US$448,015. The lease cost over the same 27-month period for the 3 Park Avenue location which houses the DoT's US national office, the DoT's northeast regional office, the New York office of the Cayman Islands Investment Bureau and the Cayman Islands Government conference room and facilities, is US$460,592. The costs of relocating the southeast regional office and moving the national office items to New York were a combined total of US$29,200 which included transporting documents and furniture, some new office and telecommunications equipment as well as the first month's rent and security deposit at the new Miami office. The cost of leasing new smaller accommodations for the southeast regional office at Doral is US$89,673. The cost of setting up the new national office at 3 Park Avenue and moving the northeast regional office from its 420 Lexington location at 42nd Street was approximately US$96,000. The cost of the remaining 11-month lease at the 420 Lexington location was US$108,937.

Again, I must reiterate that Government is getting more for its money because the New York office is being used to house three government entities—the Department of Tourism's national office, the Department of Tourism's northeast regional office and the Investment Bureau office. Additionally, there is an excellent conference facility available for official government business in New York. Overall, it will be the office to manage "Brand Cayman" in the United States.

The relocated, restructured and re-energised US national office for the Cayman Islands Department of Tourism was the result of an ambitious plan conceived in April 2001 while at the Caribbean Tourism Organisation Week. At that time, I began to evaluate the best location for the Cayman Islands' national office in the United States. As we took stock of the challenges and opportunities facing Cayman's twin drivers; that is the tourism and the financial services industries, we immediately recognised the parallel importance of this region. This information further substantiated the wisdom of further plans to integrate the Cayman Islands marketing, whether it be tourism, financial services, sports or investment. This Government is committed to managing the Cayman Islands brand with full marketing integrity, commitment and passion.

The Ministry and Department of Tourism have been working hard since last summer to revitalize the image of the Cayman Islands in the United States. We are committed to working more strategically with our business partners, our media partners, and most importantly, our guests. We have deliberately and strategically reached out and developed stronger relationships with our airline partners. In the past year, the United States Department of Tourism has been extremely busy not only managing the relocation and restructuring of the national office, but also executing its core business programme in order to strengthen the brand and begin rebuilding Cayman Islands tourism.

As we strive to penetrate new markets, the single most important message we want to communicate is the diversity and rich tapestry of the three Cayman Islands. Each has a unique personality, topography and range of activities. Together, our three islands share a special blend of Caribbean warmth, a distinct Caymanian hospitality and a pervasive air of safety, security and serenity.

Mr. Speaker, in summary the costs associated with relocating the tourism office from Miami to New York are as follows: -

1. The cost of terminating the DoT's portion of the Blue Lagoon lease was US$89,278.
2. The cost of moving and setting up the national office in New York was US$96,205.
3. The cost of the remaining 11-month lease period at 420 Lexington, New York City was UD$108,937.
4. The combined cost of relocating the southeast regional office and moving the national office items to New York was US$29,200.
5. The cost of leasing 3 Park Avenue over the 27-month period in question is US$428,621.
6. The cost of leasing new smaller accommodation for the southeast regional office at Doral is US$89,673.

This represents a total cost of US$841,914.

Mr. Speaker, on the other hand the savings realised by the Department of Tourism for terminating the lease at Blue Lagoon was US$448,015. In addition, the savings realised in recurrent staffing cost over the same 27-month period after the relocation of the United States national office and the simultaneous restructuring of our United States operation is US$1.19 million. This represents a combined savings of US$1,467,015. When you compare the total cost of the relocation to 3 Park Avenue of US$841,914 to the total savings realised by the move of US$1,467,015, this represents an overall savings of US$625,101.

Mr. Speaker, it should also be reiterated that there are additional operational efficiencies which are not reflected in this financial analysis, such as, but not limited to, reduced overhead cost for utilities and optimising the country's ability to directly access the priority markets for the Cayman Islands tourism, investment and financial services sectors. Our Government is making changes, pursuing a deliberate strategy of creating a more professional, facilitative and user-friendly environment for businesses and investment; changing immigration regulations, cutting red tape and rolling out the red carpet so that local and foreign businesses will find the Cayman Islands a proactive, efficient and professional place to do business.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Supplementaries

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for the district of George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In the answer the Honourable Minister said on page two that in the 15,000 sq ft of space the Blue Lagoon offices in Miami housed the DoT's US national office and the southeast regional office, and that the national airline also had its reservations and marketing staff there, taking up another 7,500 sq ft., so half of the space was utilised by DoT's national and southeast offices and the remainder by the national airline. I wonder if the Honourable Minister could say where the Cayman Airways reservations and marketing staff are now housed since the termination of that lease?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, the reservations of Cayman Airways has been moved to Grand Cayman and the other office accommodation are in Doral.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member from the district of George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Mr. Speaker, I wonder if the Honourable Minister could give us an indication of what the cost of that relocation is or was.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, I do not think the office dealt with that because we were asked specifically what the total cost to government was of the relocation of the tourism office from Miami to New York. I understand from the Permanent Secretary that the office dealt specifically with that.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member from the district of George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: So, Mr. Speaker, is the Honourable Minister saying that there is an additional cost to the termination of the lease, but it is not a cost directed to government but a cost to Cayman Airways?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for tourism.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: That is correct.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member from the district of George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. On page three—and perhaps the Honourable Minister can help me here because I am not the best when it comes to arithmetic—there is a summary of the cost associated with relocating the tourism office from Miami to New York. I am having difficulty with those figures and I will say why. On page two the third paragraph from the bottom, the Honourable Minister says the total cost of breaking the lease at Blue Lagoon was US$178,556 of which DoT's portion was US$89,278. In the summary of the cost associated with the relocation there does not appear to me to be any reference to that $178,000. There is reference to the cost of terminating the DoT's portion of the Blue Lagoon lease of $89,278, the cost of moving and setting up the national office, the cost of the remaining 11-month lease at 420 Lexington, the combined cost of relocating the southeast regional office and the cost of leasing 3 Park Avenue and the cost of leasing small accommodations for the southeast office at Doral. However, I do not see a reference in there to the $178,556 which is referred to in the third paragraph from the bottom on page two. If that has not been included then the cost in the actual summary is incorrect. So I would ask the Honourable Minister if he could clarify that.

[Pause]

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, if the Member would look at the answer on page two, in the fifth paragraph, it says that the total cost of breaking the lease at the Blue Lagoon was US$178,556 of which the Department of Tourism's portion was US$89,278. The Cayman Airways portion was not included because the question related to tourism, but certainly the Department of Tourism's cost of the lease was US$89,278 and that is in the answer.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member from the district of George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. So, the reason why that amount is not accounted for as a cost to government is because the difference is paid by Cayman Airways?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I said that earlier.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Elected Member from the district of East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I am wondering if the Minister could say how he arrived at a combined saving of $1,467,015 if the $89,278 is not accounted for in the calculations on savings. On page four it says, "On the other hand the savings realised by DoT for terminating the lease at Blue Lagoon was $448,015. In addition, the savings realised in recurrent staff costs over the same 27-month period after the relocation of the US national office and the simultaneous restructuring of our US operations is $1.19 million".

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, the question from the Member for East End is in regards to the $1.—I think it is 467—of combined savings on the tourism side. If you check the Cayman Airways figure – and I will give the House that in writing if you are doubting it—you will see that the government has still saved money.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for the district of East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. What I am trying to ascertain and to show the Minister, is the $448,015 on page two was attributed to the cost of DoT of continuing in that space until the end of the lease of the 27-month period. We paid $178,556 to break that lease and half of that amounted to $89,000 for DoT. He goes on, on page four, to say that after terminating the lease there was a saving of $448,015. I am wondering where the $89,000 was accounted for.

[Pause]

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I would ask the Members to look at their documents on page two, the fifth paragraph – the same $448,015 the Member referred to – that is only the Department of Tourism's portion. If Cayman Airways had continued for the same period of 27 months, they would have had that same cost. As I said to you, Mr. Speaker, the Government has saved. That figure is correct in total.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for the district of East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Mr. Speaker, I am not saying that that is not what it would have cost for that 27-month period; what I am asking is, in breaking the lease the DoT still had to pay $89,000. Therefore, on page four we cannot again say that there is a savings of the total amount for that 27-month period.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker . . .

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: The question the Member raised that the $448,015.... As I said earlier, the total savings and the $89,000 is taken in account in the combined savings of $1,467,015.

[Interjections]

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I have given as all-inclusive an answer as I can. I do not know if the Members want anything else. I am prepared to try to find the information if they think that something is wrong with the question, because I know the Ministry has taken quite a bit of time with the accountants on this, going through the whole thing with Ernst & Young and everybody else, just to make sure that they would be satisfied. However, we do not seem to have convinced them.

The Speaker: Are there any further Supplementaries? If there are no further Supplementaries—Madam Clerk.

Question No. 5

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

No. 5: Mr. Lyndon L. Martin asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Community Services, Youth and Women's Affairs if the positions of Sports Officer and Assistant Community Development Officer have been filled for Cayman Brac.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister could I just ask you to wait until we get the answers circulated please.

[Pause]

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, before I answer this question, as I have provided a written answer, I would just like to mention that the human resource issues that we face in Cayman Brac are quite substantial, basically in terms of getting people in positions that we have available. I would like that to be borne by the people of Cayman Brac and by the representatives for Cayman Brac.

The answer to the question is that presently there are no positions of Sports Officer and Assistant Community Development Officer in Cayman Brac. There is a Sports Instructor Post, a Community Development Officer and a Youth Development Officer.

The Sports Instructor position has been officially vacant since 1 February 2003. We have identified an instructor to fill that position and we are working in conjunction with the Personnel Department to have that person in post early April 2003. He has recently, between 7 and 14 March this year, completed a Sports/Community Leadership course hosted between the Ministry of Sports and the Cayman Islands Olympic Committee.

The post of Community Development Officer is not vacant. In terms of the question the Member was asking with regards to the assistant development officer, there is a community development officer in that post. That post is filled by someone who has been occupying that post for some time.

The Development of Youth and Sports has also identified a candidate to fill the position of Youth Development Worker in Cayman Brac. As soon as this person accepts this position, she will assist the Community Development Officer and will work closely with the Sports Instructor.

As you know, Mr. Speaker, there has been an integration between the Community Development unit and the Youth and Sports Department.

The Speaker: Are there any Supplementaries? The Second Elected Member for the district of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Supplementaries

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I was hoping the Honourable Minister could indicate if the new sports instructor that is hoping to be on line by early April is Caymanian or non-Caymanian.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Community Services.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, the young man is a Caymanian and he is from the district of Cayman Brac and it is very fortunate that we were able to find someone from the district at this time to fill the post.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for the district of Cayman Brac.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I appreciate the answer given by the Honourable Minister that human resources in Cayman Brac is a challenge. I would also like to point out that accommodation is also a challenge and if the Ministry could indicate if there has been any appropriate accommodation for the sports instructor office or the youth development worker, as I know there have been difficulties in the past to find an office to work in.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Services.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, I have been told that presently those persons are accommodated in the District Administration building, but there is a building that will be renovated shortly to accommodate those persons that are in community development and youth and sports. That is something that we will give great attention to in the near future.

The Speaker: Are there any further Supplementaries? If there is no further supplementary, we will move on to the next question.

Question No. 6

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for the district of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman

No. 6: Mr. Lyndon L. Martin asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Community Services, Youth and Women's Affairs what progress has been made in the provision of alcohol and drug counselling on Cayman Brac.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Community Services.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: A resident Counsellor provided alcohol and drug counselling on Cayman Brac until the post became vacant due to retirement in July 2002. This post was advertised in 2002, however, there were no suitable candidates identified locally to assume the position.

In September 2002, a new Director was appointed and the process of recruitment commenced shortly thereafter. A job description was modified to reflect the unique needs of the Cayman Brac post and this was submitted along with a modified job advertisement to the Personnel Department for publication. The Personnel Department posted the advertisement in the local media and in the Globe and Mail in Toronto with a closing date for applications to be received by December 30, 2002. This drive yielded three potential candidates, which was deemed by the Department to be an insufficient pool for interviews.

In an effort to attract more candidates, the Department advertised the post within the region in January 2003 on a website for regional treatment providers. Thus far, there have only been two responses, one of whom does not possess the relevant qualifications. In an effort to conserve funds, the Department is in the process of reviewing applications received during previous recruitment drives with a view to contacting any of these persons deemed to be suitable candidates.

In the interim, two counsellors from Caribbean Haven Outpatient Services have visited Cayman Brac to conduct assessments and arrange referrals to the Caribbean Haven Residential Centre located in Breakers. These visits have taken place approximately every six weeks, or as an appropriate amount of referrals have been received through liaison with the representative from the Department of Social Services in Cayman Brac.

It is hoped that interviews for potential candidates can be arranged within the next four to six weeks. If a successful candidate is chosen that person could be in the post within four to six weeks.

The Speaker: Any Supplementaries? Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Supplementaries

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. There are individuals who by court order are required to have alcohol or drug counselling. I was hoping the Honourable Minister could give a commitment to provide some form of weekly visits by an appropriate counsellor in order to fulfil these court orders and other needs in the community for counselling until the post is filled in four to six weeks.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Services.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, unfortunately, the Substance Abuse Department does not have the kind of money that would allow what the Member for Cayman Brac has suggested. However, the substance abuse services remain in contact with the social worker in the Brac and through the Department of Social Services they rely upon them to be informed as to when there is a need for them to do these assessments for the courts.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for the district of North Side.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Minister is in a position to say, based on the assessments done so far in the district of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, how many of these have resulted in referrals to Caribbean Haven Residential Centre in Breakers.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Services.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, I am told that we are only aware of one person from the Brac being referred to Caribbean Haven this year.

The Speaker: If there are no further Supplementaries I would ask the Clerk that we move to the next question.

Question No. 7

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for the district of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

No. 7: Mr. Lyndon L. Martin asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Health Services, District Administration and Agriculture if there has been any progress in the collection of outstanding landing fees owed to the Civil Aviation Authority by Island Air.

The Speaker: Could I ask the Honourable Minister if we could wait until we get the answers circulated?

[Pause.]

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health Services, District Administration and Agriculture.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: The matter of outstanding landing fees owed to the Civil Aviation Authority (CAA) by Island Air has remained unresolved for almost 10 years. Together with Ministry staff I have met with the CAA and discussed options for action on the matter. I intend to resolve this matter within the year, beginning with discussions with all the parties concerned.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for the district of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Supplementaries

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Could the Honourable Minister indicate if this debt is still accruing or is Island Air now paying their landing fees as appropriate.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Aviation.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, this bill continues to grow. No money has been paid to the best of my knowledge and understanding.

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for the district of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Could the Honourable Minister indicate whether this debt is strictly for Island Air planes or does it represent debt for other airlines, commercial or private, for which Island Air acts as an agent.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Aviation.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, the money represents that which is owed by Island Air alone and as of 28 February 2003 it was $1,070,426.37.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Mr. Speaker, could the Honourable Minister indicate whether there have been any civil proceedings in the past or whether there are any currently between the Civil Aviation Authority and Island Air in an effort to collect these funds.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, legal action was initiated on the 2 April 2001 and when I came to the Ministry I understood that that had run into a stall for whatever reasons. I attempted to initiate this legal proceeding after taking on responsibility for aviation. The recommendation that I made at the time was withdrawn and this matter continues to hang.

Perhaps it might help if I tell this Honourable House a little of what I understand the situation to be. I might also help the Member who is asking the question. I understand that this money has built up over ten years. From the inquiry that I have made, supposedly there was a promise given to this airline that they would be exempted. I cannot find any such record of it, I have been told that there was a verbal agreement. It has been quite a few years back I understand, well over five years and I have no knowledge of anything in writing that says this can be done. Certainly it has not been done during the time that I have been there and indeed one would have to think very long and hard about such an exemption. Whether or not we pursue this matter legally or as something which is negotiated, it is my intention to see that this comes to a close as soon as possible.

As I noted earlier, I met with the Civil Aviation Authority and their Board to get a full brief from them on this matter. I can say that it does not necessarily lie with the government legal department to collect this, as it has recently been decided that authorities may hire their own legal counsel. If it is necessary to follow through on this legally then it is the likelihood that the Civil Aviation Authority will be doing this through its legal counsel.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for the district of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I am aware that the Civil Aviation Authority has some regulatory arm for the establishment and maintenance of the fares charged. I was hoping the Minister could indicate whether the landing fee which would be part of the cost-base of the airline is included when assessing the fare to and fro Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Aviation.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, the Air Traffic Licensing Authority is the body that has dealings with the airfares. That matter has no connection to this. This deals with the landing fees which is separate.

The Speaker: Are there any further Supplementaries? The Honourable Member for the district of North Side.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Minister is in a position to say what authority the director of the Civil Aviation Authority has to collect these landing fees. What can he put in place other than a lawsuit?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Aviation.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I am advised that in a final drastic action it would be possible to stop the operation carried on by the airline, but that is not something that the Civil Aviation Authority would like to pursue and certainly it would not be something that I would be prepared to support, as I believe there are other ways it can be dealt with. However, perhaps the only practical way may be having this matter resolved legally if a solution cannot be reached through discussions and negotiations.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for the district of East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Minister can say if any discussions have been entered into recently with the Island Air executives, owners, et cetera, and if that would not be a first move prior to legal proceedings.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Aviation.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, there has not been any recent meeting with the management of Island Air since the time that a suit was initiated. It would now have to be done based on whether legal advice would say yes, you can talk with them and the way this would be done.

As I said, legal action has been initiated and there has been no discussion with them since that time. However, prior to that, of course, there were discussions with them.

The Speaker: If there are no other Supplementaries, we will move on to the next item.

STATEMENTS BY HONOURABLE MINISTERS/MEMBERS OF THE GOVERNMENT

The Speaker: I have received no notice of any statements.

Suspension of Standing Order 46(1) and (2)

The Speaker: May I have a motion for the suspension of Standing Orders 46(1) and (2).

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move that Standing Order 46(1) and (2) be suspended for the purposes of the First Reading of the Health Services Authority (Amendment) Bill 2003.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Orders 46(1) and (2) be suspended.

All those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed. Standing Order 46(1) and (2) suspended to allow the Bill to be read a first time.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed. Standing Order 46 (4) suspended to allow the Bill to be read a second time.

SECOND READING

The Health Services Authority (Amendment) Bill 2003

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. This Bill seeks to amend section 8 of the Health Services Authority Law 2002.

- (a) By repealing the word "six" and substituting "eight"; and repealing the word "eight" and by substituting "ten".

This Bill has been circulated to Members this morning.

[Interjections]

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: I am sorry, Mr. Speaker, that is a committee stage amendment.

Mr. Speaker, I will get it right in a few seconds.

The Clerk: A Bill for a Law to Amend the Health Services Authority Law 2002: and for Incidental and Connected Purposes.

The Speaker: The Bill has been duly moved. Does the Mover wish to speak thereto?

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Yes, Mr. Speaker. Just to say that these amendments are very small amendments to the Law. In the one instance, it seeks to put a limit on the length of time for which the board is appointed—a maximum of three years. At the end of three years the persons will be eligible for re-appointment. It is not automatic and what I would wish to see done in this regard is that some members be retained for continuity of the board, but that changes could be made elsewhere in the persons appointed to the Health Services Authority board.

I believe that it would not serve well if it were the case that a whole new board should be reappointed. I would certainly advocate a change, when a change is necessary, of some, but that some be retained for continuity. It is of that kind of importance.

The section which now says that: “Such persons would hold office at the pleasure of the Governor in Council”.

That section would be repealed. The other amendment would be in respect of repealing subsection (3) of section 32. I am not quite sure why that section was put in there in the first instance and no one seems to be able to give me a good answer. It did occur. It would be replaced by a section which reads: “A direction given by the Minister shall not apply in respect of a matter pending before the Authority on the day on which such directions are given to the Authority.”

The way it presently is stated is that if the Minister gives the board a direction he has to put it in the Gazette. Such direction might be a request to the board to act in a way so that it would best deal with its competition and that would have to be gazetted for the competitors to know. So, it does not make much sense. I think it is one of those things that has occurred and no one can say why it turned up the way it did.

Mr. Speaker, as I said these amendments are not over-shadowing, in my opinion, and I recommend them to Honourable Members.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Third Elected Member from the district of Bodden Town.

Mr. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, just to give support from this side over here – and it is good. These things do happen where points are picked up to make the workings of the authority more efficient. We give support to the amendment to this Bill.

The Speaker: If there is no one else who would like to speak does the Honourable Minister wish to exercise his right of reply?

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, just to say thanks to the Member who spoke on behalf of the Opposition and to thank all Honourable Members for their tacit support.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill shortly entitled the Health Services Authority (Amendment) Bill, 2003 be given a Second Reading.

All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed. The Health Services Authority (Amendment) Bill, 2003 given a Second Reading.

The Speaker: The House will now move into committee.

House In Committee at 12.10 Pm

The Chairman: I have received notice of the committee stage amendment and I have waived the two days notice for the amendment.

The Honourable Minister for Health Services.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Chairman, and I will get it right now.

In accordance with the provisions of standing order 52(1) and (2) I, the Minister the responsible for Health Services, District Administration and Agriculture, give notice that I intend to move the following committee stage amendments to the Health Services Authority (Amendment) Bill 2003:

That clause 2 be amended by inserting the following as paragraph (a) and by renumbering the clause accordingly:-

- “(a) in subsection (4) (f) by –
- (i) repealing the word “six” and substituting “eight”; and
  - (ii) repealing the word “eight” and by substituting “ten”.”

The Chairman: The amendment has been duly moved. Does any Member wish to speak thereto? If not, I will put the question.

All those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

Agreed. Amendment passed.

The Chairman: I will put the question that clause 2 does stand part of the Bill as amended.

All those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

Agreed. Clause 2 as amended passed.

Clause 3

The Clerk:
Clause 3 Amendment of section 32—Minister may give general direction.

The Chairman: The question is that the title does stand part of the Bill.

All those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

Agreed. Title passed.

The Chairman: The question is that the Bill be reported to the Honourable House.

All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

Agreed. That the Bill be reported to the House.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. The House will now resume.

House Resumed at 12.15 Pm

REPORT ON BILL

The Health Services Authority (Amendment) Bill, 2003

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are now resumed.

The Honourable Minister for Health Services.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I have to report that a Bill for a Law to amend the Health Services Authority Law 2002 was passed with amendments.

The Speaker: The Bill has been duly reported and is set down for the Third Reading.

Since we have completed business on the Order Paper could I have the Motion for the adjournment?

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Wednesday 26 March 2003 at 10 am.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House be adjourned until Wednesday 26 March 2003 at 10 am.

All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

At 12.16 pm the House stood adjourned until Wednesday, 26 March 2003, at 10 am.

OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT
WEDNESDAY
26 MARCH 2003
11.14 AM
Eighth Sitting

[Deputy Speaker in the Chair]

The Speaker: I will ask the Honourable Minister for Education to grace us with prayers.

PRAYERS

Hon. Roy Bodden: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal Family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office. All this we ask for Thy great Name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen

Proceedings resumed at 11.17 am

The Speaker: Thank you. Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

READING BY THE HONOURABLE
SPEAKER OF MESSAGES
AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

Apologies

The Speaker: I have received apologies from the Honourable Minister for Communications and Works who is off the Island.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS
AND OF REPORTS

Report of the Standing Public Accounts Committee on the Special Report of the Auditor General on the State of Public Finances of the Cayman Islands' Government for the Year ended 31 December 2000, together with the Special Report of the Auditor General on The state of Public Finances

The Speaker: I will call on the Chairman of the Public Accounts Committee, the Second Elected Member for the district of West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the signed Report of the Standing Public Accounts Committee on the Special Report of the Auditor General on the State of Public Finances of the Cayman Islands' Government for the Year ended 31 December 2000, and the actual Report of the Auditor General.

The Speaker: So ordered.

The Speaker: Would the Honourable Member wish to speak thereto?

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I would like to comment on the Report for the benefit of all Honourable Members of this House and the wider public to whom the Report of the Public Accounts Committee and the Report of the Auditor General would have now become available, as it is now tabled. First, I would like to thank all Members of the Public Accounts Committee for their tireless work and effort in regards to the work of the Committee. Mr. Speaker, the Public Accounts Committee is indeed one of the most significant and powerful Committees that our Parliament has. The Committee deliberates and calls witnesses regarding reports that are submitted to this Parliament by the Auditor General. The Committee has the ability to call any public officer to appear before it and be questioned in regards to the findings of the Auditor General. The Committee works very closely with the Audit Office and, as is the privilege of all Members of this House, the Committee, from time to time, also provides the Audit Office with information and the like to request certain work to be done. The Committee is comprised of the Speaker, the Second Elected Member for the district of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, the Elected Member for East End, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town and myself. The Committee has taken its work very seriously; we have had our challenges at times in getting work done because we are constrained in regards to the actual manpower that the Parliament is able to afford the Committee at certain periods of times especially when Parliament is sitting. Nonetheless, I think it is fair to say the Committee proceeded and now we are able to provide this Report to the Parliament whom we work on behalf of.

I would also like to thank the Auditor General and his staff for the work and support that they have provided the Committee. I would like to thank the Clerk and her staff for the work and support that they also provided the Committee. I would also like to thank all the public officers who appeared before the Committee in regards to this Report, and a list of those persons can be found on page 3 in section 6 of the Report.

Our Report caused us to look way back in time. It is very critical of, not only the budget position, but also the work that was done after the 2000 Budget was passed—the work of the Executive in regards to monitoring the budget. I think, as always, the Auditor General and his staff find themselves in a peculiar position as auditors. Many times their findings cause persons within the civil service to become a bit defensive and concerned that the findings and the reports may not accurately reflect certain situations. However, that is where the Public Accounts Committee comes in. During the witness calling on this Report I think it is fair to say that as a Committee we found that the Auditor General did a thorough job in regards to looking at the State of Public Finances for the year ended 31 December 2000. However, it is very useful, once the Committee does its round of witness calling, to supplement and augment the findings of the Auditor General. Therefore, it is very important that the Report of the Committee be read in conjunction with the Report of the Auditor General. I think it is fair to say that sometimes we find situations where the Auditor General's staff wind up doing their work, refining and fine-tuning their report and when the Committee actually calls witnesses we get additional information that might not have been readily available or forthcoming to the Auditor General. That is not to suggest that there is anything untoward regarding the Audit Office and their inter-relations with particular government departments. However, that is something we find that the Auditor General also observes.

We did have one peculiar challenge in carrying out the work as a Committee for this Report. It is noted in section 2, on page 1, after we list the membership of the Committee, that the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town is also a member of the Committee as a Member of the Executive Council through the general elections of 2000. In order to avoid any appearance of conflict of interest, and to maintain his independence as a member of the Committee, he did not participate in the discussions relating to the subject matter of the Ministry that he had responsibility for at that time. Mr. Speaker, I think it is fair to say that some of the information that was in this Report did, I think, cause the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town to reflect on, and come to the conclusion along with the Committee that he would not sign the Report — and all of us agreed with this as a Committee. However, he was not submitting a minority report. I think all that bodes well regarding the work of the Committee and it shows the cohesiveness and interest that all the Members of the Committee have in ensuring that the Committee tries to, at all times, come to a position that is supported by all members of the Committee.

We did support the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town in his efforts to do just that and I would like to, as Chairman, thank him for his approach regarding his work on the Committee. A report such as this does cause there to be a difficult position for him as a member of the Committee reflecting upon a time in which he was a Member of the Executive. Therefore, I thought it was very important for me to mention that because as the general public get their hands on the Report and read it, I wanted to make sure that no unnecessary or inaccurate inferences or conclusions would be drawn by anything that is stated in the Report.

When one looks at the Auditor General's Report—in particular the general comment section, starting on page 25, section 2.46 through section 2.59—it becomes very interesting, the actual position that was taken and that the Executive found themselves in at the time. I intend to close off shortly, but I thought this would be an important area for me to speak on briefly. Once the Government Minutes are prepared and tabled, all Members will have the opportunity to debate the Reports in their entirety.

Table 1 of the Public Accounts Committee's Report on page 14—The estimated and actual operating results for the year ended 31 December 2000—would reflect the combined statements of receipts and payments but exclude the general reserve fund. One can see where alarm would be caused by the Auditor General's Report and the findings of the Public Accounts Committee. If we look at the recurrent revenues, the original estimate was CI$314.2 million but the actual results were CI$280.7 million. The original budget for expenditure was CI$264.1 million and the actual result was CI$247.3 million. For statutory expenditure, the original budget was CI$35.3 million and the actual reported amount for the year was CI$36.9 million. If you take the recurrent expenditure and statutory expenditure away from the recurrent revenues on the budget there was a projected operating surplus of some CI$14.8 million, whereas the actual resulted in a deficit of some CI$3.5 million, which is a negative variance of some CI$18.3 million.

As you work your way through this Table you come down to the variant—and as they say the bottom line is what matters. You have an adjusted deficit before financing of some CI$68.85 million, and an adjusted deficit after financing of some CI$45.05 million as there was actual loan financing of CI$23.8 million for the year. Those numbers alone would cause much alarm as Members go through our Report in conjunction with the State of Public Finances Report of the Auditor General. As the wider public were to have this Report available to them, I focus on section 2.46 of the Auditor General's Report and the related sections on the findings of the Committee in this regard—sections 5 through 9 of the Public Accounts Committee Report. A number of things were revealed and substantiated by our witness calling and findings: First, the Report was critical of the fact that only one Finance Committee was called for the entire year of 2000. The Report of the Auditor General also quoted certain sections of the Public Finance and Audit Law, the old Law, which has now been replaced by the Public Management and Finance Law. However, we must look back at what existed in 2000. The Report noted that according to the Law there were certain powers given to the Honourable Third Official Member in regards to acting as Financial Secretary in calling a meeting of Finance Committee. What occurred in practice was that for the Financial Secretary to call a meeting of Finance Committee an agenda had to be approved by Executive Council. Even though by reading the Law it could and it may have been inferred in the Auditor General's Report that only one Finance Committee was called and that the Financial Secretary, under section 15(3) and I quote: “The financial secretary may in writing reserve the whole or any part of a provision shown in the subhead and for so long as such reservation remains in force no expenditure will be incurred against the provision reserved”.

Also under section 11: “The financial secretary shall subject to this and any other law have the management of finances of the government and the supervision, control and direction of all matters relating to the financial affairs of government.”

It may have been inferred and stated in the Report that callings of Finance Committee could be done in the Financial Secretary's sole discretion. However, as most of us would know, and certainly as was revealed during the witness calling that is not the way the system works in practice. As I said, and I want to repeat for clarity, in practice a meeting of the Finance Committee cannot be called without the support of the Executive Council because the Executive Council must approve the actual agenda for Finance Committee.

Mr. Speaker, section 2.52, which we looked at, in great depth, examines how the Government at the time monitored the financial position of the country. It was revealed to us and it was stated in the Auditor General's Report, that certain information that should have been deliberated upon in Executive Council, that is the financial position of the country, was done so informally and was not minuted. That situation is and will be one that causes concern for the Committee and will be picked up on as the public looks at both of these Reports. We see from the Reports that the financial position, although it should have been known to the Executive Council, there was no formal record of discussion on the positions taken. We also see another instance that would have caused a member of the Committee who was also at the time a Member of the Executive Council, to be in a very difficult position, considering everything that is revealed in our Report and in the Auditor General's Report regarding the actual financial position of the Government at the time.

It is very important that we all as Parliamentarians, and as the general public, read the two Reports together, because in reading them in conjunction we have the opportunity to look at what was the state of the public finances for the year ended 31 December 2001, and to hopefully glean a much clearer and more accurate position. I am not saying that the Auditor General's Report is flawed in any way, but it is useful once the Public Accounts Committee deliberates and calls witnesses and is able to provide our thoughts which are based on our findings in relation to the Auditor General's Report. That is why our system of Parliament is designed the way it is.

I am not going to read an entire Report that is some 35 pages long, as I did the last time that I tabled the Report. I just thought that I would offer a few brief comments on some of the areas that I thought might catch the attention of Members and the public upon reading the Report. As I said, I am sure Table 1 in our Report is going to draw much discussion and much thought regarding the financial position. However, I believe in fairness and it would only be fair for us to receive the Government Minute and at that time all of us, as Members, can offer constructive debate on the Reports.

I would again offer the Report of the Standing Public Accounts Committee for reading by all Members of this House. I would also like to thank the Members of this House for having entrusted in me the heavy responsibility of being the Chairman of the Public Accounts Committee up until this time. This will be my final report as Chairman of the Public Accounts Committee due to a decision that has been taken by the United Democratic Party Government that we are going to, for the first time in the Cayman Islands, practice the well-established principle that is adhered to in the majority of parliaments throughout the Commonwealth and the United Kingdom, that a Member from the Opposition be the chairman of this very important and very powerful Committee. I look forward to working along with whoever is going to take up the chairmanship. I promise him or her that I will at all times be as vigorous in the pursuit of carrying out the work of the Public Accounts Committee. I find this to be a refreshing haven in the world of politics because, as most of you would know, in my former profession I was an auditor, and so I find this to be interesting work. I enjoy it tremendously, as do all members of the Committee.

I would like to beg to move a Motion that the debate on the Report of the Auditor General and the Public Accounts Committee be deferred until the Government Minute has been tabled. Under Standing Orders it should be within 90 days of the tabling of the Report.

With those brief comments, I would offer the Report of the Public Accounts Committee and the Report of the Auditor General on the State of Public Finances for the year ended 31 December 2000 to this Honourable House.

Motion to defer debate on the Report

The Speaker: Do I have a Seconder for the Motion?

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Mr. Speaker, I would like to second that Motion to defer the debate on the Auditor General's Report on the Public Accounts Committee until the date of tabling the minutes of the Report.

The Speaker: Thank you, Honourable Member. Second Elected Member for the district of George Town.

Point of Procedure

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Mr. Speaker, on a point of procedure, from whence does this Honourable House derive the authority to debate this Report? Which Standing Order are we relying on for that? The second point is this: the Government Minute which is required to be laid has not yet been laid in relation to the previous Public Accounts Committee Report which is also awaiting debate. I wonder if those two matters could be clarified, Sir.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, on your point of clarification, I understand that with previous practice reports that were laid on the Table, we laid and allowed for debate. If I may refer to the previous tabling of the same report, which was the 1999 report by the Public Accounts Committee on 11 January 2002, we did have the Motion at that time that the debate be deferred and it was passed unanimously.

Therefore, under that ruling, we will take a vote on the Motion that is on the Floor.

On the other question, as to waiting on the Report, you are correct in saying that Standing Order 77(7) does require that the Government Minute should be laid on the Table of the House within three months of laying the Report of the Committee.

Having said that, the last Public Accounts Report was tabled on 11 January 2002 which happened to be the ending of the Session of 2001. The House was prorogued after that Session and we did have a following Session; four Sessions for the year 2002 of which the House had been prorogued as well.

There is concern as to what happens to the business after the House is prorogued. According to the information received it says: "The effect of a proration is at once to terminate all the current business of Parliament. Not only are the sittings of Parliament at an end, but all proceedings pending at the time are quashed, except impeachments by the Commons, and appeals before the House of the Lords. ... every Bill must" therefore "be renewed after a proration, as if it has never been introduced."

We have done some research on this and there are different procedures in different parliaments. What will happen in some parliaments is that prior to the proroguing of the House there is a motion which is moved to carry business forward to the next session of parliament. In other parliaments the practice is that at the first sitting of the House in the new session the House gives leave for all business that has lapsed by reason of prorogation to be reinstated before the House at the same stage it had reached. Not having either one of those being done prior to the House being prorogued in both Sessions of 2001 and 2002, I am not sure where the requirement for the tabling of the Government Minute stands. However, I would suggest, and I will be at the mercy of the House, that if a motion is brought that would require the Government Minute for the Public Accounts Committee Report of 1999 to be laid within this Session or within three months of this time, we would then be in accordance with the provisions of the Standing Orders. Having said all of that, we do have a Motion on the Floor and it has been seconded. I will now ask . . .

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Mr. Speaker, I can attempt to assist the House in relation to that particular Motion, if you will give me an opportunity. I would like to address some comments you made in relation to the laying of the Government Minute. I agree with you, Sir, that what is on the Floor of the House is this Motion. If I could, with respect Sir, direct your attention to Standing Order 74(5).

Before that perhaps we could look at Standing Order 75; the Public Accounts Committee is a standing select committee. I do not think there is any doubt about that.

Standing Order 74 deals with the conduct of the affairs of select committees and 74(5) deals specifically with reports. If I may read that, Sir. "The report or special report [in this case of the Public Accounts Committee] together with a copy of the minutes of proceedings of a select committee shall be presented to the House by the chairman or other Member of the committee acting on his behalf [that, Sir has just been done] and shall be recorded in the minutes of proceedings of the House as having been so presented and the chairman or any Member may, forthwith and without notice, move that the recommendations contained therein be adopted, modified or rejected, and if the motion be seconded and unopposed the Presiding Officer may forthwith and without debate put the question thereon.”

“74(6) A motion moved and seconded under paragraph (5) shall, where it is opposed, be deemed to be an original motion of which notice has been duly given.”

The point I am making is that the motion has been moved and seconded and, unless it is opposed, the question is to be forthwith put, either to adopt, modify or reject that report. The opportunity for debate only arises if it is opposed. I am not trying to create any difficulty, I just want this House to follow the correct procedure. And I submit, Sir, that is the appropriate Standing Order under which this Report should be laid and adopted, modified or rejected by this Honourable House. Thank you, Sir.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, I appreciate that attempt at clarification, but I do want to direct your attention to the point where it says: “ ... having been so presented ... and the chairman or any Member may, forthwith and without notice, move that the recommendations contained therein be adopted, modified or rejected and if the motion be seconded ...” That has not occurred. We have not had a motion that it be accepted; we have had a motion for the deferral.

Honourable Members, having said that, the question is that the debate on the Reports as mentioned from the Public Accounts Committee be deferred until the Government Minute is laid upon the Table of this Honourable House.

All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed. That the Report of the Public Accounts Committee on the Special Report of the Auditor General on the State of Public Finances of the Cayman Islands' Government for the Year ended 31 December 2000, be deferred until the Government Minute is laid upon the Table of this Honourable House.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MINISTERS AND OFFICIAL MEMBERS OF THE GOVERNMENT

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for the district of George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, my apologies, I just noticed the hour for Question Time has passed. Could I get a Motion for the suspension of Standing Orders to allow Question Time to continue beyond 11 am.

Suspension of Standing Order 23(7) and (8)

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: I beg to move the suspension of the appropriate Standing Orders to allow questions beyond 11 am.

The Speaker: Thank you, Honourable Minister. The question is that Standing Orders 23(7) and (8) be suspended to allow Question Time to continue beyond 11 am.

All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed. Standing Orders 23(7) and (8) suspended in order for Question Time to continue beyond 11 am.

Question No. 8

The Speaker: Honourable First Elected Member for George Town.

No. 8: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Education, Human Resources and Culture to give an update on the restructuring of the Education Department.

Hon. Roy Boddén: The restructuring of the Education Department is now complete with the development of the final senior post in Data and Communication Services. Job descriptions have now been developed for all senior staff and those for all other officers will continue as the five areas recommended by the Millet Report are developed further. These areas, School Improvement, Corporate Planning and Affairs, Establishments, Support Services and Data and Communication Services are all undergoing active review and development in the 2003–2004 academic year.

Supplementaries

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for the district of George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. In the Minister's substantive answer, he speaks of: “Job descriptions have now been developed for all senior staff and those for all other officers will continue as the five areas recommended by the Millet Report are developed further”.

He says initially that the restructuring of the Education Department is now complete. If the restructuring is complete and if the five areas have to be developed further, could the Minister explain where the difference lies?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the posts of five areas have to be tailored to ensure that those posts comply and are compatible with the sections under which they fall. For example, if we were to take establishments, we have to ensure that all staff members who fall under establishments are compatible with what the establishments, department or section are supposed to do. That is what is intended by this exercise now.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Mr. Speaker, if you will permit me, the report that both the Minister and myself refer to, seeks to secure in the recommendations No. 46, —and I will turn it into a question, Sir—a better focused organisation should be renamed the Department for Education and restructured along the following lines: -

- Chief Education Officer/Director for Education.
- Chief Advisor to the Education Council/Chair of the Senior Management Group (SMG)
- Chief Accounting Officer/Chief Liaison Officer with the Ministry of Education Council (HSA)
- School Governing Boards; and
- Chief Inspector of Schools.

Then it lists the five categories that the Minister mentioned in his answer. While I understand what the Minister has just explained, my question with the whole affair is that the answer in the beginning says that the restructuring is now complete, but there are still further developing areas within the restructuring. Therefore, I ask the question again for clarity, if the exercise is complete, is it that it is ongoing? Is it fluid and if so, why say it is complete?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the sections have been restructured as per the recommendations in the Millet Report, but there is still fine-tuning to do with each section. Perhaps that is what I should have said to the Honourable Member. I apologise for misleading him.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for the district of George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Mr. Speaker, I will choose one of the five categories at random. I will go to the middle. There is a director of Communications and Data Services to include publications, publicity and public liaison, data collection, interpretation, development of the department's information and communication's technology, capability including Education Department websites on intranet and internet, and the proposed Cayman Islands virtual teachers centre (see paragraph 52). Can the Minister state if, in the completion of the restructuring, the person in that post is not only responsible for dealing with all the matters I just read.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Yes, Mr. Speaker, that is my understanding.

The Speaker: If there are no further Supplementaries, Madam Clerk.

Question No. 9

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

No. 9: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Education, Human Resources and Culture to give an update on the Post Inspection Reports for primary schools.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education.

Hon. Roy Bodden: To date, three out of 15 primary schools have received post inspection visits. They are as follows:-

- Creek Primary, May 2000
- Savannah Primary, May 2001
- Red Bay Primary, May 2001

Post-inspection visits are carried out by the Schools' Inspectorate three years after a full inspection. Their main focus is to evaluate the progress the school has made on the key issues for action or priority areas identified during the full inspection. The inspectors also assess what progress has been made in the subjects of English, mathematics and science.

Creek Primary

At Creek Primary the following key issues were identified during the initial inspection:

- Ensuring its aims for the pupils' academic and personal development are shared, understood and agreed by staff and parents, and effectively and consistently implemented;

- Establishing clearer and higher expectations of what pupils can and should achieve, in their learning and presentation of work;
- Securing higher standards of work, especially in language, arts and mathematics;
- Providing teaching that is more varied in approach and better matches the abilities and learning needs of all pupils;
- Clarifying and strengthening the procedures and responsibilities for monitoring and evaluating the work of the school.

The conclusions of the post-inspection report were:

- "Despite some limitations in the action plan, the principal and staff have developed sound strategies for raising standards and improving practice, and discernible progress has been made on aspects of each key issue. There are also signs that staff are discussing and sharing ideas, attempting new approaches and involving parents and the community in planning and the school's work. In the context of the continued hard work and commitment of the staff, this provides a very positive foundation for further work.
- However, the issues raised during the full inspection remain areas of priority for the school's work. The school should consider requesting some outside assistance with areas it has found most challenging, such as raising expectations, meeting the needs of the full ability range within each class and raising standards in mathematics."

Savannah Primary

At Savannah Primary, the following key issues were identified:

- Strengthen the organization and management of the school;
- Introduce more effective assessment and monitoring procedures;
- Improve the quality of teaching and the standards of achievement;
- Reconsider the approach to identifying and teaching pupils with special educational needs and learning difficulties;
- Strengthen the provision for pupils' spiritual, moral, social and cultural development.

The conclusions of the post-inspection report were:

- "Delays in finalising and gaining approval of the action plan and limitations in the plan itself, have hindered the progress made in addressing the key issues raised in the 1998 inspection report. Consequently they remain areas of priority for the school's work. The school should consider requesting outside assistance with areas it has found most challenging, such as policy and guidance formulation, developing schemes of work and meeting the needs of the full ability range in each class."

Red Bay Primary

At Red Bay Primary, the following key issues were identified:

- Strengthen the management structure and involve senior staff in formulating and implementing policies and clear educational objectives;
- Raise academic standards by improving the quality of teaching and making better use of assessment data;
- Set higher expectations for all pupils including those with special educational needs;
- Create a supportive environment which motivates staff and pupils and enhances the pupils' spiritual, moral, social and cultural development;
- Monitor and evaluate the work of the school, especially the effectiveness of teaching and learning.

The conclusions of the post-inspection report were:

- "Since the inspection in 1998, progress has been made on aspects of each of the five key issues. However, there are limitations in the school's action plans, and the implementation of the plans has been delayed considerably. As a result, there is still some way to go to fully address each of the key issues for action.
- Changes in the school's management structure and the various other initiatives and programmes have created a climate in which further and more systematic improvements can take place. As a priority, the school will need to revisit the plan, with consideration for the findings and recommendations in this report, to ensure the planned actions provide a full coverage of the key issues and all linked issues, and thus provide a clearer focus for improvement."

The full summary reports for both the full inspections and the post inspections have been distributed to parents and are available for reference in various public locations, including the George Town Library, the Education Department, the National Archive and the Teachers' Centre in Cayman Brac.

In summary, progress has been variable. Some improvements have been made, but in all cases further work is needed on the priority areas that were identified during the full inspections.

The inspection teams found that schools had worked very hard to respond to the recommendations. Where their work had not had the desired impact, this was due to factors such as weaknesses in the action planning process; delays in implementing their action plans; and a need for external support and guidance.

Supplementaries

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Mr. Speaker, at the very beginning of his answer, three of 15 primary schools have received post inspection visits and it lists the three schools. Perhaps a little bit of history might enlighten us. If this is three out of 15 and one was done in May 2000, and two were done in May 2001, could the Minister explain to us the sequence of events which lead up to post inspection visits and getting the reports for those, so that we can understand the timelines involved where we see that it is 15 primary schools, but only three have so far reached the point where they have post inspection reports.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. There has been a six-year schedule set in which all government schools had to be inspected. Post inspections begin three years after that inspection schedule has been met.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. If I understood the Minister correctly with what he said about a six-year schedule for all 15 schools to have the first inspection, and then the post inspection comes three years after each of them has had their first inspection, while not suggesting that that is not real and how it should be, it somehow seems to involve a long time period. Also, I believe that action plans are developed and I would be confident that this sequence of events lays everything out in order. However, in asking the Minister the question about the six years, is it that the inspectorate is satisfied that the plan with that timeline is not only sufficient, but the right approach, given all the circumstances at present within the primary system?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, yes, that time is sufficient. I should have added that not only do the government schools fall on that schedule timeline, but also the private and secondary schools. We have to bear in mind that after the inspections the school will need a certain amount of time to be able to comply with the post inspection requirements. Therefore that is adequate.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Minister is in a position to give the dates of the full inspections of all primary schools and the estimated dates for post inspections of all primary schools other than the three named in the question.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I shall be happy to provide such information on a subsequent occasion, but it is not information that I have readily at hand because we did not anticipate that it would have arisen out of this question.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for the district of East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Minister can tell us how many of the schools had first inspections in 1997 and 1998.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I have to again apologise to the Honourable Member and give an undertaking to provide this information in writing because it is not information that is readily at hand. I do not want to hazard any guesses and mislead the Members. If I can be given the permission I will supply the information at a subsequent occasion.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for the district of East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I appreciate the Minister's answer, but just to follow up I wonder if the Minister could hazard a guess as to whether or not there was more than one school done in 1997. The three year period for that was 2000 and there was only one inspected. If it was more than one in 1997 we should know that. If there were more than two in 1998, then why were they not post inspected in 2001?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, there were more than two, but I do not want to get into hazarding guesses because when I give inaccurate information it is going to look bad on my policies as the Minister; it is going to reflect on my departments. If Members are tolerant, I will provide the information which is specific and exact. Anyone who knows me knows that I am not in the business of hazarding guesses.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for the district of East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker. I am glad to hear the reply from the Minister that he will undertake to get that information available. Maybe we will do another question at the next sitting so it can be aired. Mr. Speaker, my next question is, I am interested in knowing from the Minister how this process works. We get the first inspection and then we do a post inspection three years later. I note in the Minister's answer—and if you permit me, Sir, there are a number of areas in the post inspection under the three schools that he reported on,

1. Creek Primary School. "The school should consider requesting some outside assistance with areas it has found most challenging..."

2. Savannah Primary School. "The school should consider requesting outside assistance with the areas it has found most challenging..."

3. Red Bay Primary School. "As a priority, the school will need to revisit the plan, with consideration for the findings and recommendations in this report to ensure the planned actions provide a full coverage..."

Mr. Speaker, my question is, what role does the Education Department play in this? Is it only the principle that inspectors inspect and make recommendations and leave the principal and teachers to get all of this in? Where does the Education Department assist them in reaching those goals because, obviously, they have identified the weaknesses?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Education.

Hon. Roy Boddén: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The inspection process itself is intended to help schools to be able to tackle the key issues which are identified by training school staff to evaluate their own work, using the same criteria that is used by inspectors before the inspection team visits, providing detailed written and oral reports to school staff which indicate the steps that the school need to take to address the key issues, providing feedback to teachers after lesson observations and having inspectors engage in professional dialogue with school staff. In some cases there is expertise that is identified within the school by the inspection team that the school is encouraged to make better use of. However, as the inspection reports indicate, there are areas where schools need additional support. This support must be strategic and targeted to meet the specific needs raised by the inspections.

The Education Department has responsibility for providing ongoing monitoring and support for schools to help them respond to the inspection findings. Thus the Education Department provides what we call, link officers who assume this responsibility. To complement what the Education Department provides, the inspectorate has expanded its training programmes to cover self-assessment and action planning, an annual senior management course and termly meetings with the principals. Effective school leadership is crucial to school improvement. In acknowledgement of this, the Ministry, the school inspectorate and the Education Department have all collaborated to develop a new national educational leadership programme which will begin in May of this year.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for the district of East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Much of what the Minister said I probably will not remember until I see it in writing. I specifically heard him talk about two things that I paid close attention to – the first being a link officer. I take that to mean between initial inspections and post inspections. The other section was the schools' need for effective school leadership, and that is developing. May I then ask the Minister, after three years with the development of school leadership being monitored by the Education Department and a link officer providing that support, are we still saying that they need to go outside to seek help? I wonder if the Minister can identify the help that is needed from the outside.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education.

Hon. Roy Boddén: Mr. Speaker, the reference to "outside" in this case means that the school has to go outside of the school to the Education Department to seek this help.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for the district of East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can I ask the Minister, is this not done on a regular basis within that three-year period and evaluations done on a regular basis leading up to that three years to ensure that these kinds of posts reports are not published. That is, who is responsible? Are we leaving it to the principal, or is it the Department that is responsible to ensure that the principal runs the school in accordance with the academic levels of curriculum for children to reach. Is it the teacher; the principal or is it the Department of Education that has to ensure evaluations are done that have reached the required level for that curriculum?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education.

Hon. Roy Boddén: Mr. Speaker, it is a shared responsibility between the schools and the Education Department. Perhaps I should say that the system works like this: the inspectorate is an independent body whose responsibility is to audit the schools. As a result of this audit, as in all audits, even in the audit referred to a short while ago by the Second Elected Member for West Bay, certain weaknesses are turned up. When these weaknesses are turned up it is the responsibility of the school, working in collaboration with the Education Department, to strengthen the weaknesses so that they can be corrected before the next post inspection.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for the district of George Town.

The Honourable Minister for Education.

Hon. Roy Bodden: It is being done. Where help is needed I mentioned the link officers. For example, in the case of East End the link officer is the mathematics advisor. These persons are responsible and they come from the Education Department and they have the responsibility to the various schools.

If the Honourable Member has another supplementary Mr. Speaker, then maybe he can wait until—I know that they all want to be Ministers of Education, but it takes time. It took me twelve years!

[Laughter.]

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for the district of George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, it is good to have a bit of humour sometimes. However, on a serious note, understanding all that the Minister has said so far, perhaps going to some specific timelines . . . because we understand that the inspectorate are literally the auditors for the schools and their reports will cause whatever action needs to be taken after they have made their assessments. Looking at Savannah Primary School we see that the post inspection visit was done in May 2001. I think I am right in presuming that after the visit was done there was a timely report done. The auditors have completed their jobs. They do not involve themselves with either the logistics or the resources which are going to make the things happen. Their job is to show what is wrong and make some recommendations. We have these link offices which the Minister just spoke about and we also understand that the restructuring of the Education Department has been completed. One of the five posts that is involved in that restructuring is the director of school improvement whose responsibilities include: all government primary and secondary schools, curriculum assessment, school advisory services, site-based and action planning, teacher and principal appraisal, training and professional development of school staff. I am presuming it is that responsibility which the link officer would be connected to. This was done from 2001 and we have all of this in place. Can I ask the Minister, based on the post inspections report, what has been done with regards to implementation of the recommendations?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Education.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, in the case of the school reference, the director of schools' improvement is actually the link officer for Savannah Primary School. He is working with the schools' inspectorate to effect the necessary improvements that are recommended. I want to say, Sir, since there seems to be no shortage of education experts over on that side,, the system is fraught with its challenges, and in all candour it is a new system. We are doing our best, all entities are working and there are bound to be gaps,, if for no other reason than because it is a new system. I am confident in the abilities of the people. Perhaps when roles are reversed, we will see if the measured improvements that we are making are conducive to what the education ministers over on the other side expect.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town. I will allow one additional supplementary after this one.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The Minister mentioned the word candour and so will I. Whether he believes it or not this whole attempt is to assist him. I just want to get that clear. The Minister just said that the director of schools' improvement, who is the link officer for Savannah Primary School, is working with the inspectorate to effect these changes. I would beg you to consider this not as a supplementary, Sir, because this is just a matter of him clarifying that specific answer that he just gave.

If the inspectorate are the auditors and they do not get involved, then where are we going when we speak of the link officer effecting the changes by liaising with the inspectorate? I want to get that out then we can get to the supplementary.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, obviously, Sir, if the auditors say that something needs to be corrected and it is not understood or someone wishes to ascertain exactly what they have to correct, then who do you think they are going to ask but the auditors? I rest my case. I think my point is made.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for the district of George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Mr. Speaker, in the answer. I am not expecting the Minister to hazard any guesses at any of the questions. To go back to the way the system works with the inspectorate and the various modifications that have been made since the Department has now been restructured, with the site-based planning and the implementation of whatever the recommendations are—whether it is with initial inspection or whether it is post inspection after the three-year period. When it comes to the resources that are required—obviously some of the observations and recommendations made by the inspectorate will require funding, some require human resources and they would address a myriad of situations. How is the link accomplished with all of the connections? At the end of the day, when the inspectorate comes back and does their checklist as to what was recommended, the schools develop their site-based planning (and whatever else they have to do), and with the implementation – is there a constant flow of information throughout the system so that when it comes to budgeting there is no hold up in the schools being able to implement their action plans (within reason understanding all the fiscal constraints) ? We are forever hearing that this is slowed down, that is slowed down, the next thing is slowed down. Is the reason because of resources or is it simply because there is so much at hand and everyone is doing the best they can, but we cannot get everything done at one time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Education.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, each school prepares its budget and sets its priorities and then works with the Education Department to arrive at those priorities and to achieve their objectives. That has to be juxtaposed against what the Honourable Member mentioned; the fiscal constraints, et cetera. That is the way those kinds of situations are addressed.

The Speaker: Madam Clerk.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

No. 10:Mr. V. Arden McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Health Services, District Administration and Agriculture to give an updated list of staff employed by the Health Services Authority as –

- a. Ambulance drivers
- b. Paramedics
- c. Emergency Medical Technicians (EMT); broken down by nationality and length of service.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean:The Ambulance Service currently has 24 members of staff. The post of Ambulance Driver does not exist; all staff are qualified Emergency Medical Technicians (EMTs) or Paramedics. The persons are as follows:-

Health Authority Ambulance Services

Nationality	Post	Contract Type	Length of Service
Steven Duval Caymanian	Supervisor	PPE	Jul. 1987 16yrs
Hallan Ebanks Caymanian	EMT – P	PPE	1995 8 yrs

Sherman Myles Caymanian	EMT	PPE	Aug. 1998 4 yrs
Georgette Smith Caymanian	EMT	PPE	Jan. 2001 2 yrs

Mr. Speaker, that makes a total of 17 Caymanians, and 7 non-Caymanians. The list that I have read should be attached. If it is not, it will be provided.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Supplementaries

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you Mr. Speaker. Could I ask the Minister for some clarification? The list that we have does not include the names but it has the nationalities and the posts. Could he explain EMT – P.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, the EMT – P means that these persons are also paramedics which I am told is an additional qualification. I would also add that I read the names. The names have been left off the list, in that, it asks for nationality and length of service.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The Minister can rest assured that we do not need the names. This is fine. I wonder if the Minister can say if it is desirable to have all these EMTs with the qualification of EMT – P.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister of Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, it is not absolutely necessary that all EMTs are paramedics, but it is the desire of the Health Services to increase the number and they are working towards that.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Mr. Speaker, the Minister seems to figure out where I am going. Nevertheless, I wonder if the Minister can tell us where these EMTs would go to be qualified and what are the immediate plans that he just spoke of. Could he explain those plans to train some more of these Caymanians to become paramedics?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, for the EMTs to receive paramedic training they would need to go to the United States. However, it does provide a logistical challenge, in that we need a few more, if even temporarily, so that the person can be released to go and do this training.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Mr. Speaker, I hear the Minister, and I appreciate that, but I would also ask him what qualification does one need to join that area of the Health Services Authority? I notice all of these are EMTs. Do you need to be qualified as an EMT to come on board or does the government provide training prior to them being hired in that area?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, the persons who are recruited in this service . . . the advertisements can be such that they invite persons with EMT training to apply or, where that is not available, they are taken in and are trained within the service. However, we cannot do the paramedic part of it within the service. They need to go overseas for that.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for the district of East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: The substantive question asks for the list of employees as ambulance drivers and the substantive answer said that the position of driver does not exist. The Minister's last reply said that advertisements call for persons with EMT training, or they are trained. Is it that they come in as a backroom clerk or a trainee or a student and are never hired into the system as a driver? What job is done during that training period?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, persons who are taken into the ambulance service are chosen from among those who have at least a high school education. That would be an appropriate standard. In fact, that is advertised in today's paper as being a qualification. They should possess a high school certificate or equivalent. As soon as the persons are hired they are allowed to go out with trained staff on ambulance calls. During the initial period of their employment they are shown on the job what to do in terms of going out with the ambulance. There are also classroom studies provided for them until they have reached the level to qualify as an EMT.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for the district of West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Could the Minister say, in regard to both the classroom instruction for EMT and the paramedic, how many hours of classroom study do you have to do to become an EMT or a paramedic? What sort of certification and examination do you have to go through to become qualified, or do you have to go through some sort of certification? In regards to getting the paramedics qualification, what would be the cost of sending someone overseas to get that qualification?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, the training to reach the level of an EMT, as best as I can understand, is approximately three months and certification is done locally. For a paramedic this has to be done overseas. I understand that it takes about six months and you can get varying levels of qualification at state level and then at national level, dependent on taking the various higher examinations.

The Speaker: The Member for the district of North Side.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, I wonder if the Honourable Member could say if the 24 members of staff of the ambulance service is a full complement to provide the necessary services required. If not, would the Minister say how many more persons are needed to make a full complement?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, there are three stations that are served by the ambulance service and the persons who serve have four days on and four days off. They are operated on 12-hour shifts except the one at the hospital which is 24 hours, seven days a week. Ideally, taking into account illness, leave, public holidays and so on, it is desirable to have at least 27. 28 would provide a full complement to meet the requirements for full coverage. It is now short of about four persons.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for the district of West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: In answer to an earlier supplementary the Minister stated that for a paramedic you can get varying levels of qualifications depending on state boards. I guess that depends on what state board you go to and the opportunities there are. What is the standard for Cayman? In other words, what is the minimum standard that the Health Services Authority would want a paramedic to reach and under what state board?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I cannot give a definite description of the level, but I can say to the House and the Member that we have been, in the past, using mostly the state of Florida for training in paramedics. I could perhaps find additional information, but I do not have that at this time, I could make it available in writing.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Mr. Speaker, I wonder if the Minister can tell us how many they plan to send away shortly and will the government bring some in on a temporary basis to cover during that period?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, at this time there is a shortfall in the number of persons who are needed for the ambulance service; therefore, there are no immediate plans to send anyone for training in paramedics. That is something that would be done as soon as we get the complement up. Of course, it is a cost consideration to hire persons temporarily in order to send those on training, but there is really no timeline that I could give and be specific on at this time.

The Speaker: Honourable Members, if there are no further Supplementaries I now propose that we take the luncheon break.

Proceedings will resume at 2.30 pm.

Proceedings suspended at 1.05 pm

Proceedings resumed at 2.44 pm

The Speaker: Please be seated. [Question Time continues.]

Question No. 11

(The Honourable Deputy Speaker, in whose name Question No. 11 stood, had deputed the Second Elected Member for West Bay to ask the Question).

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for the district of West Bay.

No. 11: Mr. Rolston M. Anglin asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Community Services, Youth and Women's Affairs what is the policy regarding prisoners being allowed to travel off Island to attend funeral services.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Requests from prisoners to attend the funeral of close relatives are all dealt with on an individual basis and a compassionate decision is made following a detailed risk assessment.

If a prisoner is in security categories A, B or C an escort is required. In these circumstances permission will usually only be granted for immediate relatives (mother, father, brother, sister, wife, husband, children). However, there are exceptions where, for instance, a grandparent has raised the prisoner and is, in effect, a parent.

Category D prisoners, who have demonstrated that they can be trusted unescorted, may be given permission to attend the funerals of other family members or if the risk assessment is favourable.

Part of the risk assessment is the expected reaction of the mourners, and particularly the bereaved, to the prisoner's attendance at the funeral.

It follows therefore that permission to attend a funeral off island will only be granted in the most exceptional circumstances; after the most rigorous risk assessment by the Prison Authorities and with the express permission of the Minister responsible for Prisons.

There can be no question of an escorted attendance. First, the cost to the CIG is not justifiable and second the personal safety of the escorting officers has to be considered.

- The prisoner must be category D.
- Custodial behaviour needs to be impeccable.
- The risk of offending whilst out of custody must be minimal and the consequences of an offence equally minimal.
  - The likelihood of the prisoner returning must be extremely high. To this end the proximity of release or parole date is a key factor.
  - The attitude of the prisoner's family and the locale of the funeral are also taken into account. For a favourable decision it must be practical to carry out an accurate assessment.
  - The prisoner's relationship with the deceased must be so close as to warrant the exercise being considered in the first place.

Permission to travel off Island to attend a funeral has only been granted once.

- Although serving a sentence for importing cocaine [9 years -in custody from 7/7/00] the prisoner was a genuine first offender;
- He was within 7 months of his Parole Eligibility Date [6/7/03] and is considered by the Prison Authorities as being an excellent candidate for Parole (in his case Remission of Sentence and Deportation)
- He had been on the Enhanced Wing as a Category D prisoner for 17 months.
- He had never committed an offence whilst in prison and had always tested negative for drugs.
- He was extremely close to his 59 year old mother whose death came as an unexpected shock. [He fainted when given the news by his sister in the presence of the Prison Chaplain and an Assistant Director].
- The family home and location of the funeral are not in areas considered to be high risk.
- His mother had been a Senior Probation Officer in Jamaica and other members of his family work in the Department of Corrections.
- The Prison Authorities considered it highly unlikely that he would not return and even more unlikely that he would commit an offence whilst on unescorted absence. [He travelled to Jamaica in the company of his sister on 28/11/02 and returned on 2/12/02.]

Interestingly, there was a problem with his passport on his return flight from Norman Manley airport and the airline refused to allow him to board. He insisted on telephoning the Prison from the airport immediately. Immigration were contacted and arranged with the Jamaican authorities for him to fly. In consequence he returned on time. He provided a negative drug test on his return.

It is considered that the number of prisoners that will meet these criteria is extremely small.

I would also like to add for the records a letter which I received from Junior M. A. Dixon, inmate #3357 and it reads:-

“Dear Sir,

“On behalf of my family, I take great pleasure in expressing my greatest thanks and sincere appreciation to you for having given me the opportunity to attend my mother’s funeral in Jamaica.

“I thank you for being compassionate and sympathetic to my unique situation. I hail you for making such a colossal decision to send me and I want you to know that the great respect I had for you has now quadrupled.

“I wish you all the best and hope that you will continue to be successful in all your endeavours. I pray that the good Lord will continue to shine his perpetual light upon you and bless you always.

“Yours respectfully,
“Junior M. A. Dixon (Inmate #3357)”

The Speaker: If there are no further Supplementaries, Madam Clerk you could go on to the next question.

Question No. 12

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

No. 12: Mr. Lyndon L. Martin asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Education, Human Resources and Culture what provisions are available locally for GED or equivalent programmes.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education.

Hon. Roy Boddan: First, Mr. Speaker, on the answer paper that Honourable Members are given they will see the acronym GED. The answers have General Education Degree but it is supposed to read General Education Diploma.

GED – General Education Diploma – is an American examination, which is done by students in order to get a high school equivalency diploma. It is usually an alternative for students who did not, for whatever reason, get to complete and graduate from their high school.

In Cayman the examination used to be offered at the International College of the Cayman Islands. There have been changes at the management level of the examination and it is no longer offered locally. A similar situation exists in other territories, which used to offer the GED. However, students in Cayman can attend preparation classes at the ICCI. Having done the preparation course, the students may travel to the USA in order to do the written examination. Current efforts are being made to have Cayman once again become an examination centre.

Supplementaries

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for the district of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you. Mr. Speaker, I was hoping the Minister could give more details as to the efforts that are currently being made to have the examination done locally.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Education.

Hon. Roy Boddan: Mr. Speaker, as far as the GED is concerned it seems highly improbable that we will ever be able to offer that locally again because the entities which franchise the examination have significantly changed the criteria for acquiring a franchise outside of the United States. We have experienced some difficulties because after going through the preparation at ICCI, students have to fly to a centre in Miami or in Florida and take the examinations. What happened in many cases was that was impractical because certain people were also precluded. Any person having a record is not able to access a visa to the United States, so it precluded some people. In addition, there were the normal inconveniences experienced by this kind of travel; it was expensive and often they had to book a hotel.

As a result of that, the Education Council, with my encouragement, initiated the formation of a small Committee to undertake the design of an equivalent programme which will be used for certification in the Cayman Islands.

Members of this Committee consist of representatives of ICCI, the Cayman Islands Community College, the Senior Education Officer for schools' improvement, the Education Officer for test development, as well as the Education Council representatives. This certificate will be endorsed by the Education Council and will be available for certification following a course of prescribed study, which will emphasise four core areas of language, arts, mathematics, science and social studies. There will also be considerable emphasis on social education, as well as on citizenship education.

When I got settled into office I contacted the Chamber of Commerce and asked them if they would, from among their membership, ascertain for me the subject areas and level of proficiency desired in such an examination. I got a cursory report and I hope that we can use this as a take-off point for this examination which will be entirely local to begin with.

The Speaker: If there are no further Supplementaries we will move on to the next question.

Question No. 13

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

No. 13:Mr. Lyndon L. Martin asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Health Services, District Administration and Agriculture what provisions are in place to provide Cayman Brac and Little Cayman with medical coverage in the absence of a surgeon and a gynaecologist and what efforts are being made to provide full-time coverage by qualified specialists or general practitioners with interest in these specialties.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean:

1. Surgical Service

A locum surgeon is currently providing a service at Faith Hospital. In the meantime potential candidates for the post are being sought. Should there be a delay in finding a surgeon to fill the substantive post we are also looking for other locums prepared to work at Faith Hospital.

This post is difficult to fill because the very large general practice component of the job, matched with the small surgical component, does not make this an attractive post for a qualified surgeon. Surgeons are not typically trained in general practice and this in itself poses a significant clinical risk management issue.

2. Obstetric/Gynaecology Service

It has not proven possible to attract a replacement obstetrician/gynaecologist (ob/gyn) for Faith Hospital. The reasons are much the same as for the surgical post. There is very little obstetric or gynaecological practice afforded to the clinician, and this is therefore not attractive to a trained ob/gyn.

Currently the Obstetric and Gynaecology Service at Faith Hospital is supervised by the ob/gyn at the Cayman Islands Hospital who visits Cayman Brac on a monthly basis. Between his visits, the patients are managed by Registered Nurse Midwives at Faith Hospital who are following a plan of care, designed by the ob/gyn.

The level of service currently being offered at Faith Hospital will be reviewed and increased if considered necessary when a second ob/gyn joins the health service in mid April 2003. Coverage will continue to be provided by the Cayman Islands Hospital until a suitable candidate is appointed to fill the vacant post at Faith Hospital.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Supplementaries

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I would like to thank the Honourable Minister for the comprehensive answer provided to this question. I was hoping the Honourable Minister could inform this Honourable House if the recently introduced limitation as to the jurisdictions from which the primary qualification of the practitioners to be licensed in the Cayman Islands is obtained—the United States of America, Canada, the United Kingdom and Jamaica—has added or contributed to the difficulty in finding suitably qualified specialists for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, the Cayman Islands have for many years chosen to follow the standard set by the four countries as named by the Member asking the question. The posts, however, have been advertised in Barbados and Trinidad as well as the United Kingdom and Canada, with very poor response. We tend to get applications for working at the Hospital in Grand Cayman, but when the limitations and the extent of the practice in Cayman Brac become known, it does not pose the same attraction for these medical professionals. When we are looking for specialists it is a requirement for a specialist to be able to maintain their specialist qualification or grade, et cetera; they are required to do a certain amount of work in that particular field in any given year. If they do not, they become de-skilled and they can lose the recognition as a specialist. Perhaps we could advertise in other countries that we do not advertise in now or we might choose the standards over and beyond the countries that we do now. However, at this time we do not feel that we would be that comfortable in trying to go further afield when we believe it is possible to stay within the present parameters.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In the answer given in section 2, ob/gyn, the Honourable Minister indicated that monthly visits were provided from the ob/gyn of the Cayman Islands Hospital to Cayman Brac. Can the Minister confirm that this schedule has been maintained with some form of regularity?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, the Hospital has tried to make it as regular as is possible for the one gynaecologist now in the Hospital in Grand Cayman to visit. I cannot say it has happened every single month as it was supposed to. However, there is a second one who should be joining the staff mid-April and this situation should become much easier. Of course, one would realise that if the gynaecologist from the Hospital here is sent to the Brac for a day or two, we then have to seek to find someone in private practice here to fill that particular time. The better arrangement would be to have two and we are now working towards that.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. From my research I found an arrangement which some smaller countries have in place. I would like to share with the Honourable Minister and ask if a similar arrange could be looked into for Faith Hospital. Many of the smaller countries that have contractual agreements for the provision of tertiary care by a US provider or UK provider have entered into an agreement where they rotate locums from that tertiary provider through the hospital of the small country. It offers an advantage that the patients from that jurisdiction are already familiar with a provider in the event that they have to receive tertiary care. Additionally, it provides the physicians with orientation to the types of problems and individuals from the smaller jurisdiction. I was hoping to get an indication whether the Honourable Minister and his Ministry and the Health Services Authority would be willing to look into such an arrangement.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, what the hospitals in Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac have been considering is attempting to find a person who is a general practitioner but with special interest and training to a certain level in gynaecology—as is the question that is being asked—but who is not necessarily a specialist that could provide for the extent that it is required. I have heard what the Member has said about arrangements that exist in other small territories. I think he might be glad to know that I have been discussing with certain of the very large hospitals in Florida to see whether such an arrangement can be made whereby their doctors we could start an affiliation with these institutions where they may consider rotating or providing staff for the hospitals here in Grand Cayman, and of course, it also utilises those persons in Cayman Brac as is necessary. My initial finding is that there are a number of medical training institutions that would like to do this to expose the doctors to situations outside of the United States different to which they are used to, and in turn, there are at least one or two who have indicated that they would also consider having some of our doctors do attachments there at no cost to us other than their accommodation and travel. That is the closest that I have reached to what the Member has asked.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you. Mr. Speaker, there was a pregnant lady on this morning's flight coming from Cayman Brac to Grand Cayman to await the delivery of her child—an estimated 6 weeks from her delivery date. The question I pose to the Minister is this: If the current arrangements in place through the Health Services Authority require that the 12 pregnant ladies now on Cayman Brac, prior to their delivery, reside in Grand Cayman to await the delivery of their children.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, the Honourable Member seems to suggest by that question that the Government should assume some responsibility for the parenthood of their children. I could not venture any such proposition. One has to accept that parenthood is—hopefully in most instances—planned by a couple, be that wherever and certainly in the case of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. It has been very fortunate that in some instances we have had up to three specialists to serve the population there at one time. The last specialist gynaecologist who was there resigned after stating in his letter that he liked the community and would have liked to stay but he was losing his skills, and he had an offer from a very large hospital in Trinidad. It was very clear why he was leaving. I think I am aware of the case that the Member referred to and I think that it is a situation which I have heard many times in the past several weeks about government not providing care so that pregnant mothers in the Brac can be attended to in the Brac. I cannot perform miracles. I cannot expect that the Health Services Authority can recruit medical professionals where they may not exist. They can try to find them, but we are hunting within similar pools as other hospitals in the region and we would have to attract by salaries or the fact that maybe the person could further their career.. We have not been able to find a specialist for the Brac, but I think it becomes the responsibility of anyone who chooses to start a family as to where they will get the care. If it is not available at A then logically they must choose to do it at B. The Government tries within the Health Services. I must say that I know of no country in the world (for the little that I have learned during the past 12 months or so about medical care and the ratio) which has the level of care that is given in the Cayman Islands. Regarding travel, the Health Services Authority, not I, believes that the best way of handling this is for a pregnant woman to travel to Grand Cayman or anywhere else. However, the realities of life are that if we take some of our most severe cases, of trauma, of people who are virtually dead, we have to fly them out of here by air ambulance to Miami. So, I think one has to balance the reality of the situation against what is hoped for. I am not advocating, nor is the Government, nor is the Health Services Authority, that the women in the Brac who are pregnant should have to travel to Grand Cayman for delivery. We know that we have some extremely competent midwives and I am told that often those midwives can handle a patient as well or better perhaps than the skilled hands of the surgeon or the gynaecologist.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Absolutely. God bless the memory of Nurse Beulah McLaughlin who delivered about 1500 of us, including myself and quite a few of us in here. That is absolute reality, Mr. Speaker. I just think that it is necessary to try to explain that because I bear the burden of trying politically to find the answer. I am trying to do that, but certain things I simply cannot do and I must state it as I find it or know it to be.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Mr. Speaker, in light of the range of questions, I wonder if the Honourable Minister could say whether or not the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac is not supportive of the Government health policies.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I think that question does not emanate out of the substantive ones, so I will not try to answer that. However, I do not think that the Member is against the policies of the Government, at least I would hope not.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In the last answer provided, reference was made to the past OB/GYN and the termination of this working relationship or his choice to leave. That particular individual also made a proposal which I would like the Minister also to bear in mind. His arrangement should be where he is rotated from Faith Hospital through George Town Hospital, say for one week of the month, in order for him to maintain his skill level and his exposure at the Faith Hospital. I was hoping that the Minister would give an undertaking to also look at such a proposal, because it is not only about attracting an OB/GYN, but also the effort in maintaining and retaining one. So such an arrangement would make it more likely to retain a properly qualified specialist, or even a general practitioner with interest in this particular specialty.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, that is what is proposed to be done, that such a person would be rotated to make sure that they have sufficient opportunity of dealing with enough cases to keep up their skill level. That is one of the things that has been discussed and will be done by the Health Services Authority to try to reach a position that might best serve the two sections in the two Islands.

The Speaker: I will allow one more supplementary. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. This is my final supplementary. In the original question it asked what efforts are being made to cover during the absence of a surgeon or gynaecologist, and that would also cover situations such as air ambulance out of Cayman Brac to receive proper attention in Grand Cayman. As recently as this past weekend, we had an occasion where an individual had to be air-lifted out and the arrangement that was conveyed to me is that there is a policy of utilising Island Air to provide such service. In the past this has proven to be fraught with difficulties, taking as long as 16 hours in some cases to have the individual air-lifted from Cayman Brac. I was also hoping that the Minister could give an undertaking to look into alternative methods of air-lifting including a possibility of utilising Cayman Airways during the four nights that it overnights in Cayman Brac and is sitting on the apron. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, the Cayman Airways jet flight into the Brac is a different situation altogether from Island Air or the light aircraft that normally flies air ambulances. I feel sure that if there were a case of emergency in the Brac that warranted the airline, and the jet was there, then we could have that done, but I am not aware of any such situations. The time that it takes for an air ambulance to come from the Brac is completely dependent upon what is happening, wherever, with Island Air or whether there would be the availability of an aircraft —there is a company, as far as I know, that is used out of Miami as well because these companies which offer air ambulance are busy. They are doing hundreds of jobs. Cayman is one miniscule demand for such availability. I am not trying to argue the point. Perhaps it did take a long time for the person to be air ambulated from Cayman Brac, but it does happen. I know that there are major 24 hours delays in getting people out of there and to Miami who are in serious trauma and barely breathing. Many of them have to be stabilised before they can even get on the plane. So these things will occur, but I do not think it is a general rule. Of course, any means that is possible in such circumstances will be used by the Government; by me; by the Hospital.

The Speaker: Madam Clerk, the next question.

Question No. 14

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

No. 14:Mr. Lyndon L. Martin asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Community Services, Youth and Women's Affairs what is the current status of the development of Cayman Brac's Heritage House and under which Ministry does the responsibility for its completion rest.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Community Services.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, before I answer this question, I just have to make a brief remark. I think it is important for the general public who have been listening to proceedings in the Legislative Assembly and who understand that in the majority questions come from the Opposition, under the new party system we have operating in our Parliament we have questions coming from a Member of our Party who is the whip of our Party; in other words, a person who is responsible for organising discipline. Therefore, in answering this question, I just want to make it clear that the Member also has the opportunity to caucus the Party and to ascertain some of these answers as well. However, I suppose because of the fact that the people in the Brac might want to hear publicly some of these answers I have willingly agreed that this question should be answered.

The Cayman Brac Heritage was a joint project between District Administration where funds were provided through Public Buildings, the Ministry of Community Affairs and the Cayman Brac Beautification Committee. The official opening of the Cayman Brac Heritage Park was 22 April 2000. A Cayman Brac Heritage House and Park Advisory Committee was set up by the then Minister for Community Parks and Culture.

At this time it was envisaged that District Administration would provide the staffing, mainly a grounds-man, a gardener and a coordinator would have overseen the day-to-day management of this park. At this time there were minor works to be done on this park, mainly the preservation of existing trees and the addition of a few more island plants such as a breadfruit, et cetera. This work was to have been completed by the Cayman Brac Beautification Committee in 2000. Unfortunately, this Committee has not been functional since the end of December 2000. In 2002, a total of $23,000 was allocated for Community Park in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, $15,000 under capital and $8,000 under Community Development grants to complete work on this park. $12,000 was spent through District Administration in 2002.

There was no request for the funds budgeted under the Community Development Grant in 2002. There is $5,000 for the District Beautification Committee in the 2003 half-year Budget. The Ministry is very keen on having this Park being used by the people of Cayman Brac and is awaiting the Beautification Committee's request for their annual grant.

District Administration is now in the process of outfitting the kitchen so that it can be ready for use before the end of this month.

I understand that a church group has requested the use of this park and as a result the Ministry has gone ahead over the last two weeks to make sure that District Administration do the necessary finishing works on it to make the park functional.

This is in addition to the question: In my opinion the park was in the position to be functional for quite some time now, but it was not made that way. However, the park is under my Ministry.

Supplementary

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In today's Caymanian Compass, in the financial supplement, there is an editorial that covers the park by Ms. Patricia Bradley. It was one of two series on the Heritage Park of Cayman Brac that refers to it as an interpretive centre and as a headquarters and bases for the nature tourism initiative for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. That initiative, which is spearheaded through the Ministry of District Administration in Cayman Brac . . . I am hoping the Minister would say if there intends to be a joint Committee for the management of this facility once opened between the two Ministries as the usage of the particular park seems to be envisioned to cross both Ministries.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Services.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, I am not going to answer that supplementary question at this particular point. I think that is something I would prefer to reserve in political caucus. I am not going to put myself in any political difficulties with any other Minister by answering any such statement.

The Speaker: No further Supplementaries?

I have been given notice of a statement by the Honourable Minister for Education. I acknowledge him at this time.

STATEMENTS BY HONOURABLE MINISTERS/MEMBERS OF THE GOVERNMENT

New Scholarship Guidelines

Hon. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. This statement is regarding the new scholarship guidelines and I am most anxious to get it out because it will be of benefit to Honourable Members in this House, as well as the general public.

Members of this Honourable House are aware that a record number of new scholarships, 153 to be exact, for study locally and overseas were awarded to Caymanian students in 2002. Of these 71 new overseas scholarships and 82 scholarships to local institutions were taken up. This year 100 new scholarships will be awarded. The Government will spend $3 million on tertiary education scholarships. Of these 60 scholarships will be awarded for local institutions and 40 for universities and colleges in the USA, UK, Canada and the region. In a time of austerity we must preserve the scholarship budget, but we must also ensure that we are getting maximum value for the scholarship dollar. The Education Council has found over the 30 plus years of its existence that students who go overseas at 18 years of age or older inevitably do better at their studies and have less adjustment problems. This is reflected in existing scholarship guidelines when extremely few students are given scholarships to go straight from high school to university.

We are fortunate to have excellent tertiary opportunities locally in our own Community College, the Cayman Islands Law School, as well as ICCI. Education Council has proposed revised guidelines to assist in maximising the return on scholarship funds and these have now been accepted by (Executive Council) ExCo. This will make scholarships more competitive. These new guidelines are in keeping with the financial management initiative which government has embarked upon.

At the beginning of each scholarship-granting period, Council will be given a written breakdown of funds committed and funds available for the next academic year's scholarships. Funds will be split between local and overseas scholarships so that the number of scholarships in each category can be decided in advance. The number of overseas and local scholarships will be publicised at the beginning of March in the year that the scholarship is to be tendered. The deadline for overseas scholarship applications for the 2003/2004 academic year is the 31 March. Scholarships will be processed in April whether they are for September or January enrolment. Local scholarships will be processed in August. Deadlines will be well publicised and adhered to. New overseas scholarships will reflect the annual increase of tuition fees imposed by many universities and colleges.

The maximum overseas scholarships awarded will be CI$52,960 over a possible six semesters including one summer semester if required by the programme. This will be equitable and not penalise those students who manage their finances well or borrow to supplement their scholarship. It will also enable students wishing to attend more expensive universities and colleges abroad to have advanced notice that they would need to seek supplementary funding through the CIDB, commercial banks or other sources. Under the revised guidelines, all students, including students eligible for merit scholarships, are required to study locally for the first two years in order to be considered for an overseas scholarship.

The only exception will be in respect of those specialised courses not offered locally. Student choice to study overseas as opposed to locally will not be a consideration. In the short-term, priority for overseas scholarships will be given in the education and health fields. This reflects the worldwide shortage of teachers and health professionals, which has begun to impact recruitment in these fields. The Cayman scholar will continue to be chosen annually, but the term of scholarship will be four years instead of five, reflecting a requirement to complete the first two years locally. Students who complete the associate degree with a grade point average of 3.5 or above or the Advanced Level examinations may be awarded a merit scholarship with a higher degree of funding for a period of three years.

The Education Council grants a number of scholarships tenable at local private high schools each year for students wishing to pursue a British degree under the British system for which Advanced Levels is one of the entry requirements. Students who choose the 'A' Level route with two 'A' Level passes will be given 3-year overseas scholarships. Students who complete the associate degree locally with a GPA of 2.5 will be eligible for a maximum of three years overseas study to complete the Bachelors degree. Students who are awarded scholarships for Masters level programmes will be eligible for a maximum of two years' study.

Doctoral students will be considered individually on merit, but priority will be given first in bachelors, and in the second place, to Masters level in areas of identified need in the country. The Executive Council recently approved a proposal for 4-year degrees in specialised areas to be offered at the University College of the Cayman Islands, formally the Community College of the Cayman Islands. This will alleviate the pressure on scholarship funds in the future, but it will not begin to take effect in reducing the cost of overseas scholarships until 2006. The foregoing revisions are in addition to criteria for scholarship laid down by the Education Law (1985) and the Scholarship Guidelines of the Education Council. Students and parents are reminded that a government scholarship carries with it certain responsibilities. For example, students must maintain a minimum GPA in each year of study. Students must also carry a minimum class load as decided by Council. Failure to follow these guidelines will result in the scholarship being suspended or withdrawn. The Education Council Secretariat has been relocated to the Employment Services Centre at 310 Paddington Place and staff has been increased. In these days of technology, each scholarship student should be in contact with the office by e-mail. There is no longer a reason why students' requests or any difficulties cannot be conveyed to the Council in a timely manner.

In conclusion, I should like to express my sincere appreciation to the Education Council and its Secretariat, and the Education Board for the Sister Islands for the valuable work they continue to do on scholarships and other matters. I should also like to express my thanks to the Cayman Islands Development Bank that has processed scholarship payments for the past two years. As always I take this opportunity to thank my own staff at the Ministry and the Department of Education for their advice and technical guidance.

The Speaker: Thank you, Honourable Minister. I now acknowledge the Minister of Health who has also given notice of two statements.

Update on Health Services

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wish to thank you for allowing me this opportunity to update Members of this Honourable House on four areas which are important to the delivery of health services in these Islands. The areas this statement will focus on are:-

1. Implementation of the Health Services Authority Law 2002; Essential public health functions;
2. The Ministry of Health Services regulatory functions; and.
3. New procedures for accessing medical care overseas.

I would like to begin by clarifying a few of the issues pertaining to the establishment of a Health Services Authority before speaking on the implementation of the Health Services Authority (HAS) Law 2002.

Soon after becoming the Minister of Health I realised that the Health Services Department had grown too large to continue to be effectively managed under the old structure. The Health Services Authority Law passed in 2002 changed the Department to an Authority, thereby creating a new management structure. Mr. Speaker, change is difficult for most people to come to grips with, but it is a necessary requirement for any organisation to undergo if it wishes to renew itself. The process of transforming the delivery of health care in these Islands is progressing well and we are already seeing the benefits of prudently re-structured management.

Under the new six department structure the Health Services Authority Board has devolved more responsibility and decision-making authority to those employees who have direct contact with customers. This type of structure is more inclusive, promotes teamwork and is reflective of an organisation that is customer driven. Members of this Honourable House will recall that among the duties that the Authority would carry out as per the HSA Law 2002 was first and foremost: "It will be the duty of the Authority to provide health care services and facilities in the Islands in accordance with the National Strategic Plan for Health prepared from time to time by the Government".

Members may recall that the first Plan was tabled already in this Honourable House. Since 1997 the National Strategic Plan for Health has been regularly updated. Many of the action plans are an integral part of the Authority's work and the Minister of Health Services uses this document to update and produce new laws and formulate policies.

An update of the National Strategic Plan for Health is scheduled to take place this year with the view to ensuring it is a national plan that will impact not only the work of the Health Services Authority, but also other health care providers on the Island. To illustrate the plan in action I refer to strategy one which says: "We will establish and coordinate community based health care services with advanced and effective central support".

The Health Services Authority recently introduced an Oncology Unit at the Cayman Islands Hospital for the on-going care and treatment of cancer patients. This is one way of implementing this strategy. The Authority intends, where it is feasible and demand exists, to continue to expand the scope of services it currently offers at the Cayman Islands Hospital while also strengthening the community-based health care services.

As required under the Health Services Authority Law 2002, the administration and operation of health care facilities are to be left to the HSA Board to coordinate. Under this Law the Authority is required: "To administer the government health care facilities in an efficient manner and in such a way as to maintain and promote the health of patients of those facilities".

I would now like to make reference to an initiative by the HSA to create greater access to health care and to better serve the health needs of our various communities.

Following a review of staff work load and utilisation rates, the Health Services Authority proposed to implement changes in the clinic opening hours and the schedule for doctors' visits to the health centres in the eastern districts. The changes to the doctors' schedule are to provide the following benefits to the residents of Bodden Town, North Side and East End:-

1. Reduce waiting times to see the doctor. An appointment system is being introduced which will allow patients to schedule their appointments with a doctor to avoid waiting in the clinic.

2. There will be an increase in the number of physician clinic hours. A doctor will now be directly available to patients in these clinics four days per week instead of the two days previously.

3. A nurse will be available at all clinics to attend to any concerns outside of the doctors' schedule. The nurse based at the clinic will also continue to undertake home visits.

Following a meeting with the Members for North Side and East End, staff of the Authority have agreed to review the proposed times for clinics opening hours with the intention of addressing concerns raised by both Members. We look forward to reaching an arrangement that makes the best use of available resources while meeting the needs of the people of the eastern districts.

When Health Services became an Authority on the 1 July 2002, the Board undertook a study of all the services that were offered at the Cayman Islands Health Services facilities. One of the areas that were reviewed was that of ambulatory service. The study revealed it cost the government $1 million per annum to operate the ambulance service and the revenue generated was only $300,000 resulting in a deficit of $700,000. Ambulance service continues to be an essential part of the delivery of health services though heavily subsidised. The HSA is undertaking a review of this service with the objective of making a proposal on efficiencies and cost savings. New and innovative measures are expected in the near future. Based on discussions with Members, I have instructed the HSA to bring the service up to full staffing complement as soon as possible, enabling all districts to be fully covered.

Members of this Honourable House should note that requesting the Board to carry out this undertaking will not result in any cost efficiency for the Authority. This will result in an additional expenditure of approximately $200,000 to be paid by the government to cover the increased service for this year.

Another area under the responsibility of the Authority is providing health care services to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. For January and February 2003 the combined cost of providing health care services to persons on these two Islands was approximately $441,024. The amount collected for services rendered during the two months was $24,406. This resulted in a deficit of approximately $416,618 that is paid for by government through the Ministry of Health Services.

Despite the figures quoted above, the delivery of health care in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, especially at Faith Hospital, will be improved and there are no plans to reduce service. To the contrary, plans are being made to offer more clinics, for example, in the areas of obstetrics and gynaecology. This will be made possible by the addition of a second obstetrician/gynaecologist that will be joining the Health Services Authority's team around the middle of April 2003.

The senior management team of the Health Services Authority including those at Faith Hospital will be working together to establish strategies to effectively improve customer service, revenue collection and containment of expenditure. As part of this review a few posts are being examined with the aim to increasing efficiencies and providing better coverage in more critical areas. This process has already started and the public can expect to realise the benefits in the near future. We continue to encounter difficulties in recruiting medical staff to work in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. This is mainly due to the low volume of activity in any one speciality area and physicians find themselves becoming de-skilled after a short period of time. This is cause for concern to doctors and they often refuse to take up long-term employment in such an environment. The Health Services Authority is, however, trying to find new and creative ways to deal with this problem such as offering applicants more rotation time through the hospital in Grand Cayman, allowing them to treat a larger number of patients and thereby maintain their skills.

There are plans to relocate the clinic in Little Cayman to a more suitable location in the recently built hurricane shelter. This will allow for better treatment of patients including the placement of a proper dental chair and equipment, more space for physiotherapy and other medical support services. This will be followed by an improved dentist schedule. Currently one nurse single-handedly operates the clinic on Little Cayman. Better relief is planned for the current post holder who continues to provide excellent service to that community.

Continued development of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman is prominent on the Government's agenda and having access to high quality health care on location is conducive to such development. At this point I would like to share some financial information on the performance to date of the Health Services Authority. The Health Services Authority charges billed for January and February 2003 are greater than the budgeted amount by $142,580. During the first six months of operation as an Authority the management was able to increase their revenue from non-government collections by 12.9 per cent when compared to the previous six months operating as a department.

For the 2003 half-year budget period the Health Services Authority budgeted for collections of $17.5 million. This figure is currently projected to be $18 million – a projected increase of approximately 2.5 per cent. This amount is the total projected collections including both non-government and government payment for patient services, as well as payment for public health programmes and services to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

In summary, the Health Services Authority will be subsidised by government in the amount of $2.3 million for the 2003 half-year budget period. During this period revenue collections are expected to increase over the budget by $445,000 and expenditure is expected to decrease by $1.045 million. Therefore, overall it is projected that the Health Services Authority is expected to only have a net operating loss of $811,000 for the first six months of this year. This, I believe, is a commendable start to establishing the Health Services Authority as a financially viable entity.

Members of this Honourable House should note that Executive Council approved the Commencement Order to bring section 16 of the Health Services Authority Law 2002 into force effective 1 March 2003. This grants the Health Services Authority Board the responsibility to determine the fees to be charged for the services provided at all of its health care facilities. However, any new proposed fees shall only come into effect 90 days after their submission to the Minister for Health Services if the Governor in Council does not disallow them. Allowing the HSA to have appropriate charged levels for all the services they perform will reduce the need for the Authority to be subsidised by government. One advantage of changing the Health Services department to an Authority, which is already evident, is that we are now able to clearly identify the true cost of health services in this country and what government is paying for.

I will begin speaking on item number 2 – Essential Public Health Functions, by reminding Members of this Honourable House of two other duties of the Health Services Authority as outlined in the Law. They are:-

1. The Authority will provide public health programmes as determined by the Minister of Health acting on the recommendations of the Board; and

2. It will supply outputs that the Governor in Council has agreed that it will purchase from the Authority.

The medical experts tell us that the output or result of a health system of any country should be to improve the health of its citizens through promotion of health, prevention of disease, cure, care and rehabilitation. For the six-month period, January to June 2003, the Ministry of Health Services entered into an agreement to purchase eight outputs from the Health Services Authority, which included programmes covered under the Public Health Department. Mr. Speaker, public health programmes are significant to the health and wellbeing of the people of these Islands. These are programmes which the Government sees as vital services.

The director of Pan American Health Organisation defines essential public health functions as the: “Collective intervention by the government and civil society to protect and improve the health of the people”.

To date the Government, through the Ministry of Health Services, has paid the Authority a combined cost of approximately $383,761 for public health programmes. The Public Health Department is directly responsible for overseeing the following programmes:-

1. monitoring, control and investigation of communicable, infectious diseases;
2. screening, counselling, monitoring and home care to clients with HIV, AIDS and other sexually transmitted infections;
3. child health immunisation and school health programmes;
4. ante-natal, post-natal care and family planning services to Caymanians and spouses;
5. prison health care; and
6. health research and promotion programmes.

The Ministry of Health Services recently engaged the services of a projects officer with research background to begin the process of reviewing laws, including the Public Health Law 2002 (Revision) and compiling all existing policy documents into a manual. Once this reference tool is completed it will be shared with other government departments and agencies, as well as relevant persons. During this year it is my aim to begin the process of strengthening the institutional capacity and infrastructure of the public health systems. This will be done by implementing the recommendations of a report that was produced during a workshop where participants representing a cross-section of ministries, evaluated the performance of essential public health functions within the Cayman Islands.

Research in public health will be expanded by the development of a research agenda based on the health needs of the population of the Cayman Islands. Greater emphasis will be placed on health promotion as the Ministry of Health Services will be forming a multi-agency health promotion working group to assist with planning, implementing and evaluating health promotion activities. To emphasise the importance of essential public health functions I will close my update on this section by repeating a well-known saying: Prevention is better than cure.

It is the Ministry of Health Services' responsibility to ensure the people of these Islands are provided with health care services that are consistent with the highest international standards. The third item I will speak on has to do with strengthening the Ministry's regulatory functions. Under the Health Practice Law 2002 the Governor in Council will be requested to approve the establishment of a health commission to advise the Minister of Health Services on policy relating to health practice in these Islands. Members of four councils will also be appointed to assume the responsibility currently carried out by the Health Practitioners Board. These four councils will register practitioners in accordance with the Law, regulate the professional conduct and discipline of registered practitioners and regulate the training requirements of registered practitioners in these Islands. I am pleased to inform Members of this Honourable House that Health Services staff recently participated in a workshop that developed regional blood bank standards and work has commenced on establishing a national transfusion advisory Committee under the auspices of the Ministry of Health Services. The Members of this Committee are drawn from various sectors and disciplines and are charged with two principle tasks:-

1. Championing the passage of legislation that will govern our blood bank's operation; and
2. They are to ensure that the new Caribbean standards are implemented in practice.

Staff from the Ministry, Personnel Department and Computer Services have commenced the process of establishing a centralised database to ensure government pays medical services for only those persons entitled under this scheme. While ensuring access to quality health care, the Ministry of Health Services, in conjunction with other government departments, is working diligently to contain government's expenditure on health services while also attempting to resolve outstanding debts. Members of this Honourable House are aware that government is owed a significant amount of money for health services. All outstanding amounts that were previously owed for overseas loans and advances have been transferred to the Treasury Debt Collection Unit. This Unit has assumed responsibility for the collection of these accounts. All local accounts remain with the Health Services Authority to collect the outstanding amounts that were previously owed to the Health Services Department. All collections above the net outstanding amount, that is, total outstanding accounts less the reserve, will be equally shared between the Health Services Authority and Government. Accounts determined not to be collectible will have to be written off.

Mr. Speaker, one of the strategic parameters of the National Strategic Plan for Health is that: "We will not deny anyone access to our health services".

Mr. Speaker, I will repeat that: "We will not deny anyone access to our health services".

Therefore, the government accepts responsibility to pay the cost of medical treatment for those persons who have no means to do so themselves. For the months of January and February 2003 a combined total of approximately $1,555,557 was paid by the government for medical services to patients classified as indigents.

In an effort to ensure access to essential health care services for all persons in the community the Health Services Authority will not refuse care for persons with life-threatening illnesses who arrive at the emergency service. A process has also been set up by the Patient Financial Services for counsellors to assist Caymanians who have no financial means to pay for their care. All others will be expected to cover the cost of their treatment either by health insurance, credit card or cash.

I would now like to update Members of this Honourable House on the revised process for accessing medical care overseas. Mr. Speaker, the Cayman Islands Government recently extended its contract with Baptist Health of South Florida for one year. However, we are still contemplating the hiring of a Third Party Administrator (TPA). Such an arrangement will further expand the pool of providers for overseas health care and would also assist in containing the cost of health care for entitled persons in the government scheme. While there are some new procedures, all referrals must still be medically approved by the local administrator for overseas referrals, the Chief Medical Officer who at this time is Dr. Gerald Smith. The Ministry of Health Services is reviewing the recommendation to appoint a medical review board to support the Chief Medical Officer in approving non-emergency referrals for overseas medical care.

In the case of persons such as civil servants and pensioners, once a referral has been approved these individuals are sent overseas to receive treatment. No financial assessment is necessary because of their participation in the government scheme. If a person has health insurance they are referred to their insurance company for guidance with accessing overseas providers. For others the Health Services Authority will conduct an initial inquiry into the patient's ability to pay. If this assessment reveals that a person should be classified as indigent for medical purposes the information is sent to the Social Services Department for verification before a person will be added to the indigents' list. Caymanians who are not classified as indigents, but require financial assistance, are encouraged to seek a loan from a local institution. If it is determined that it will be necessary for the government to cover the cost of the medical referral, the monetary aspects of the case are then handed over to government's Treasury Department. Much like a bank, this Department will conduct a thorough assessment, working with the patient to prepare a repayment plan and secure collateral for funds that the government will pay to an overseas provider on his or her behalf.

In conclusion, Mr. Speaker, the Ministry of Health Services and the Authority are committed to improving health care for the people of these Islands, as well as those who visit our shores. The Health Services Authority will continue to expand its local services to reduce the need for overseas care. I would encourage everyone to do their part by supporting the efforts of the Health Services Authority to transform the delivery of health services in these Islands. Also, persons should only utilise the services when necessary as a way to help contain the cost of health care. Together we work in order that all our citizens continue to have access to cost effective, quality health care for many more years to come. I believe our mission to ensure the wellness of our people through a dynamic community-based health care system in collaboration with local and overseas providers is attainable. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister, are you prepared at this time to do your second statement?

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Yes, Mr. Speaker, it is a shorter statement. It should be within the time that is required.

The Speaker: Carry on, Minister.

Progress by Select Committee of the Whole House on Revisions to the Health Insurance Law and Regulations 1997 and Other Matters Related

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Since my last statement on health insurance in this Honourable House (27 February 2002), there have been a number of occurrences which are noteworthy. These are as follows:-

1. The Select Committee of all the Members of this Legislative Assembly has been meeting to review the Health Insurance Law 1997 and the accompanying Health Insurance Regulations. Submissions, oral and written, have been received by the Select Committee and drafting instructions for amending the Law and Regulations have been issued by the Select Committee.

2. At the time of my last update to Members of this Honourable House, I also advised that I would be obtaining expert advice from one of the top accounting firms in these Islands, which would draw on its local and international experience to advise me more precisely on the relationship between health fees and health insurance premiums in the Cayman Islands. I also said that the firm would be advising me on the other factors that may or may not impact health insurance premiums and the administration of health insurance claims. This advice has been received and the consultants' recommendations to amend the Health Insurance Law and Regulations have been accepted by the Select Committee of the Legislative Assembly on health insurance and have been included in the proposed amendments to the Health Insurance Law and Regulations.

3. Following my visit to Bermuda in January this year, accompanied by the Permanent Secretary in the Ministry and Senior Legislative Counsel to meet with health officials, some useful aspects of their provisions for health insurance are being incorporated into the amendments.

4. I expect to receive the draft amendments to the Health Insurance Law and Regulations this week and will shortly thereafter convene a meeting of the Select Committee to finalise the revisions to the Health Insurance Law and Regulations.

A White Paper will be produced for circulation to invite further feedback on the proposed revisions prior to bringing the amendments to this Honourable House in June of this year for approval.

5. In the meantime, the Ministry for Health Services will also be strengthening its capability to monitor and ensure compliance by appointing a Superintendent of Health Insurance to the staff of the Ministry. Previously, this function was carried out by one staff member of the Cayman Islands Monetary Authority, but the Monetary Authority has been undergoing changes and this position no longer exists within the Monetary Authority.

They are, however, continuing to assist the public with matters relating to health insurance until such time as the Ministry of Health Services appoints a Superintendent of Health Insurance.

I understand that some employers are in the habit of taking out insurance coverage for their employees in order to obtain the requisite work permit, only to let the premiums lapse, leaving the employee and possibly his/her dependants exposed to unaffordable health care costs should a major medical condition occur.

Therefore, among the responsibilities of the newly-appointed Superintendent of Health Insurance will be to identify those employers who have been delinquent in the payment of health insurance premiums for their employees.

6. An agreement for consultancy services to assist in the development of a health insurance product has been entered into between the Ministry of Health Services on behalf of the Government of the Cayman Islands and KPMG Cayman Islands. In this agreement the Ministry has engaged the services of the consultants to evaluate the feasibility of developing a health insurance product to provide benefits to low income, aged and otherwise uninsurable persons in the Cayman Islands.

I have taken this decision because I am particularly concerned about the increasingly high cost of health insurance premiums for persons in the lower income bracket, even for the Standard Health Insurance Contract, which is the minimum coverage mandated by the Health Insurance Law and Regulations.

In addition, those persons 60 years of age and over are being denied health insurance coverage, especially once they are no longer employed and other persons much younger are being denied coverage due to what is termed a "pre-existing condition". Even so-called obesity is now given as a reason for excluding persons.

It makes sense to provide an alternative for persons who find health insurance premiums unaffordable and for those who are deemed uninsurable, in order to allow them the opportunity to regularly set aside funds, through the payment of a health insurance premium, for those times when they will need funds to pay for costly medical treatment. I can assure you that I am searching diligently for that alternative.

7. Despite the challenges that I have just mentioned, a most refreshing and welcome development has occurred, in that, Cayman General Insurance and a newly-formed Caymanian-owned company on Cayman Brac (Brac Informatics Centre) have worked together to develop an e-service product known as InformaticsCONNECT.

I have been made to understand that InformaticsCONNECT was designed with the single purpose of improving efficiency in the settlement of health insurance claims. There are two immediate benefits associated with this new service and these are:-

- (i) the ease of administration for the Health Services Authority (HSA) in preparing and processing health insurance claims and enhancing the timely capture of fees for services rendered when using the system.

The HSA, like other health care providers, incurs additional costs to provide the health insurer with a 'clean claim' before settlement can be made and must employ accounting personnel to monitor receivables thus adding to the cost of providing health care.

- (ii) more efficient verification, adjudication, processing and payment of claims by the health insurer to the provider of health services.

I am told that the Health Services Authority has been invited to and has agreed to work with Cayman General Insurance to do a test run on the InformaticsCONNECT product at no additional cost to the HSA.

I, and staff from the Ministry, have seen a demonstration of the product and have been most impressed with what we saw. If the promise and potential of InformaticsCONNECT are ever realized, I see one of the benefits to insured persons being to once again, generally, be able to have their health insurance card accepted by providers of health care and services as payment in advance.

There is more than likely the perennial cynic out there who will be ready to shoot down what I have just reported to Members of this Honourable House, and to some degree that is understandable. However, I will remind all concerned that I have made a commitment to see a resolution to the current problems with the implementation of the Health Insurance Law 1997 and the Health Insurance Regulations.

Admittedly, it has taken longer than I could have ever imagined to listen to affected persons and institutions to gain a better understanding of the multitude of problems and why they occur; to look at other models of health insurance and learn from them and to feel confident that the proposed amendments to the Health Insurance Law and Regulations are appropriate and achievable.

I take this opportunity to thank all those individuals and organizations who have offered advice, all those who have made representations to the Select Committee of the Legislative Assembly on health insurance, and indeed, the members of the Select Committee for their own input, support and attention to these recommendations that have been brought before them.

Thank you Mr. Speaker.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

THIRD READING

The Health Services Authority (Amendment) Bill 2003

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move the Third Reading of a Bill entitled, The Health Services Authority (Amendment) Bill 2003.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill shortly entitled, The Health Services Authority (Amendment) Bill 2003 be given a Third Reading and passed.

All those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed. The Health Services Authority (Amendment) Bill 2003 given a Third Reading and passed.

Suspension of Standing Orders 45 46(1) and (2)

The Speaker: May I have a motion for the suspension of Standing Orders 45 and 46(1) and (2)?

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move the suspension of Standing Orders 45 and 46(1) and (2).

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Orders 45 and 46(1) and (2) be suspended.

All those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed. Standing Orders 45 and 46(1) and (2) suspended to allow the Bills to be read a first time.

FIRST READINGS

The Children Bill, 2003

The Speaker: The Bill has been deemed to have been read a first time and is set down for Second Reading.

The Notaries Public (Amendment) Bill, 2003

The Speaker: The Bill has been deemed to have been read a first time and is set down for Second Reading.

The Cayman Islands Registered Stock (Amendment) Bill, 2003

The Speaker: The Bill has been deemed to have been read a first time and is set down for Second Reading.

Hour of Interruption—4.30 Pm

The Speaker: Honourable Members, we have now reached the hour of interruption. May I have the Motion for the adjournment or do we want to continue until we have completed business for today?

Suspension of Standing Order 46(4)

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move the adjournment of this Honourable House until tomorrow morning at 10 am.

I am told that Members have agreed that we could continue with the second readings on these Bills and I would so move the suspension of Standing Order 46(4) and ask that we continue past the hour of 4.30 pm to deal with, I am told, two of the Bills, The Notaries Public (Amendment) Bill, 2003 and The Cayman Islands Registered Stock (Amendment) Bill, 2003.

The Speaker: Honourable Members, I have been given notice that the Member with the responsibility for the Children Bill will be moving a motion for the deferral of that debate as well. Along with the other two Bills, that would allow us to complete the business of the House.

The question is that Standing Order 46(4) be suspended to allow the Second Readings.

All those in favour, please say Ayes. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed. Standing Order 46(4) suspended to allow the Bills to be read a second time.

The Speaker: Could I have a motion for the continuation of the House past 4.30 pm?

Suspension of Standing Order 10(2)

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move the appropriate Standing Order that the business be continued past 4.30 pm.

The Speaker: The question is that the House be allowed to continue past 4.30 pm.

All those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed. Standing Order 10(2) suspended to allow the proceedings of the House to continue beyond 4.30 pm.

SECOND READINGS

The Children Bill 2003
(deferred)

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Services.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move that the Second Reading of the Children Bill 2003 be deferred until the second Meeting of the 2003 Session of the Legislative Assembly.

The Speaker: The question is that The Children Bill 2003 be deferred and carried forward to the Second Meeting of the 2003 Session of the Legislative Assembly. If there is no debate I will put the question.

All those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed. Second reading of The Children Bill 2003 deferred and carried forward to the Second Meeting of the 2003 Session of the Legislative Assembly.

The Notaries Public (Amendment) Bill, 2003

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Second Official Member.

Hon. Samuel W. Bulgin: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I beg to move the Second Reading of the Bill entitled The Notaries Public (Amendment) Bill, 2003.

The Speaker: The Bill has been duly moved. Does the Mover wish to speak thereto?

Hon. Samuel W. Bulgin: Just briefly. Thank you, Mr. Speaker. This amendment is brought in connection with a request from notaries to have an increase in the fees that they can charge members of the general public for services rendered. The fees have not changed in the last 20 years even though the annual fees paid by notaries have been increased since 2001. Honourable Members will recall that this Honourable House amended The Notaries Public Law in 2001. The effect of that Law was to increase the annual fees that notaries have to pay to the Cayman Islands Government. Section 9(1) of the Notaries Public Law (2002 Revision) states that: "A Notary Public shall not charge for the performance of any of the duties of his office any sum in excess of the fees prescribed in the Fifth Schedule ..."

The amount shown in the Fifth Schedule has remained unchanged for over 20 years. Accordingly, notaries have requested that in light of the increase in annual fees that they have to pay to government, that the government should consider updating the fee levels that notaries can charge the general public for their services.

The entire thrust of this Bill now before this House is to respond to that request. Mr. Speaker, the fee levels proposed by the Bill have been calculated on the basis of the movement in the consumer price index over the last 20 years. The increases are extremely nominal so as to keep it affordable. In some instances the increase is $3, in other instances, $5, and in two categories an increase of $15.

I now turn to the Bill itself, Mr. Speaker. The Bill is a very short one with two clauses. Its Memorandum of Objects and Reasons states that the purpose of the Bill is to increase certain fees imposed under the Notaries Public Law (2002 Revision). Clause 1 of the Bill provides the title of the intended Law. Clause 2 specifies the new fee levels for the Fifth Schedule and provides the various services offered by the notaries to the general public. I might just give notice that I will be proposing a Committee stage amendment to increase two amounts reflected in the Bill. I respectfully ask, therefore, that Members give this Bill their support.

The Speaker: Thank you. Does any other Member wish to speak? Does any other Member wish to speak? If no other Member wishes to speak does the Honourable Temporary Second Official Member wish to exercise his right of reply?

Hon. Samuel W. Bulgin: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Just to express my thanks to Honourable Members for their support in this Bill.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill shortly entitled, The Notaries Public (Amendment) Bill 2003 be given a Second Reading.

All those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed. The Notaries Public (Amendment) Bill 2003 given a Second Reading.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

The Cayman Islands Registered Stock (Amendment) Bill, 2003.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move the Second Reading of a Bill entitled, The Cayman Islands Registered Stock (Amendment) Bill, 2003.

The Speaker: The Bill has been duly moved. Does the Mover wish to speak thereto?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Honourable Members of this House will recall that the Legislative Assembly passed the Cayman Islands Registered Stock Law, 2002, hereafter referred to as "the Law" in December of last year. This Law enables the Government to execute a debt issue upon the Legislative Assembly's approval of a Government Motion that specifies the size of the issue and how the proceeds of the issue are to be used. The government's legal counsel, Sidley Austin, Brown and Wood [LLP] on the planned US$163.2 million issue that is due to be finalised on the 31st of this month has advised that the wording used in the Law should be modernised to make its language and practices more in keeping with the current industry procedures. This need to update the Law to reflect the current financial practices and terminology is a foundation on which this Bill rests.

I now turn to the Bill itself Mr. Speaker. The Memorandum of Objects and Reasons states that the Bill is for a Law to be entitled The Cayman Islands Registered Stock (Amendment) Law, 2003, which is now before Honourable Members. The Bill has 26 clauses and its Memorandum of Objects and Reasons comments on the main clauses and makes it clear that the Bill is being presented as a result of an advice received by the Government that the Law should be updated as I said earlier. I will be concentrating on the key clauses of the Bill while offering some comments on other clauses. In this regard, the key clauses are clauses 2, 5, 8, 22 and 26 as set out in the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons of the Bill.

Clause 1 of the Bill provides the title of the intended Law.

Clause 2 of the Bill proposes that the name of the Law be changed to the Cayman Islands Government Securities Law, 2002 and provides that that word "stock" be replaced with the word "securities". The original title, as I mentioned a short while ago, stated that the title of the Law is the Cayman Islands Registered Stock Law. This is to be changed to the Cayman Islands Government Securities Law, 2002.

The word "securities" will be replacing the word "stock". I wish to elaborate on two of the words used in the suggested name that I have just mentioned and these are "securities" and "government". I am getting good help from the Honourable Member for North Side.

This is why I am expressing my gratitude for the help that I am receiving. You are welcome, Ma'am. Thank you very much. Let me say thanks to the Honourable Member for North Side.

The Bill provides for the word "securities" to replace the word "stock" as the Honourable Member for North Side has pointed out. Wherever the latter appears in the Law; that is the word "stock", the term "stock" is normally applied to documents that entitle a holder of those documents to vote at meetings and elections held by the issuer of those documents. Stockholders are therefore able to influence the affairs of the entity issuing the stock and are in fact the owners of the entity. None of this is relevant in respect of holders of debt instruments that have been issued by national governments. The use of the word "stock" is less appropriate in such instances. In the case of national governments issuing debt instruments it is more appropriate to the word "securities".

Clause 2(b) repeals the word "stock" and substitutes the word "securities" in its place wherever the word "stock" appears in the Law.

As stated in clause 3, the term "securities" includes notes, bonds and debentures. If we were to look at the meaning of these terminologies we would find that a note is a written promise to repay the principal sum on certain specified dates over the life of the note, whereas in the case of a bond, principal repayment normally occurs on its maturity date. A debenture is an un-secure bond, meaning that the issuer of the debenture does not provide any specific security or collateral for the receipt of funds from the debenture holder.

The second word I wish to comment on in the suggested title for the Law is the word "government". The Cayman Islands has a Law called the Securities Investment Business Law. In order to avoid possible name confusion with this Law clause 2(a) inserts the word "government" into the suggested name change to make it clear that the Law refers exclusively to the Cayman Islands Government and not to legislation applicable to any other sector.

Clause 4 of the Bill amends section 6 of the Law by making certain minor changes to effect greater clarity to the various subsections contained within section 6 of the Law, and clause 4, the First Elected Member from George Town raised the question as to why in 6(1) (d) the word "rate" was being amended to read "rates". The clarification being sought on this specific bond issue, the rate will be fixed for the life of the bond. However, it is possible at some time in the future that if the government engages in a further bond issue this could be entered into under the arrangements where variable rates could be a consideration. However, "rates" would encompass . . . anyway, I will continue.

Turning now to clause 5. The Government plans to issue notes subject to the Legislative Assembly approving a Government Motion that I mentioned previously. Those notes will be un-secured which means that none of the government's assets will be pledged as security or collateral in order to receive funds from the buyer of those notes. The note holders will therefore rely on the full faith and good credit of the Cayman Islands which effectively act as a substitute for specific collateral from the government. Clause 5 inserts language to the effect that the holders of securities issued by the government will know that the full faith and credit of the Cayman Islands is pledged for the payment of principal and interest relating to those securities. This clause does not add any undue burden to the Cayman Islands. Our impeccable loan repayment track record demonstrates our good faith and credit worthiness. I should also point out that wording in clause 5 is common-place in legislation that pertains to a sovereign debt obligation.

Clause 6 amends section 8 of the Law by substituting the word "may" for "shall" where "shall" appears in section 8. It can be seen with this amendment that the word "shall"—I am not pretending to be a lawyer, I will leave this up to my colleague, the Honourable Second Official Member and the representative from the Legal Department who is here—allows no discretion where the word "may" does. As I mentioned earlier, our lawyers were invited to look at the legislation itself to make sure that its construction at the end of the day was quite favourable to the Cayman Islands Government.

Clause 7 amends section 10(1) of the Law by effecting inclusion of items that may be required by terms of the securities to be entered into the register. Again this is a tidying up amendment, Mr. Speaker.

Clause 8 provides that the Governor in Council may appoint a fiscal agent to carry out any or all of the duties of the Registrar. The Law defines the Registrar to be the Cayman Islands Monetary Authority. The Registrar's duty is to keep a register which records all securities issued by the government, transfer of those securities and all dealings in such securities. A fiscal agent appointed to carry out the Registrar's task would normally be a commercial bank. Clause 8 means that the Governor in Council may appoint a fiscal agent to perform the task that would otherwise fall to the Monetary Authority. The government will seriously consider this route because it would relieve the Monetary Authority of these responsibilities. The government has received a price quotation from a leading bank in New York that it can perform the duties expected of the Registrar for an annual fee of $5000. The Bill, therefore, adds flexibility to the manner in which the requirements of the Law can be satisfied, either by the Monetary Authority or by the appointment of a fiscal agent.

Clauses 9 through 21 and 23 through 25 propose various amendments, the substance of which is to modernise the language of the Law and to give government greater flexibility in the manner in which it administers issues of securities with the aim of ensuring that this is performed efficiently. Looking at the various amendments it can be seen where some of the paragraphs or sections as were set out in the original legislation have been repealed and substituted with other new sections containing what is referred to as modern language. This again is based on the recommendations that have been made by our lawyers from overseas working in conjunction with the Attorney General's office, or the Legal Drafting Department.

Clause 22 proposes the repeal of section 40 of the Law and the insertion of new wording to the effect that all documents and instruments made or used under the provisions of this Law shall be in a form as may be determined by the Financial Secretary and any documents which are required in order to issue securities under this Law shall be signed and executed by either the Governor or the Financial Secretary. The effect of this clause is to give greater flexibility to the manner in which government can carry out its obligations under the legislation.

Clauses 23 through 25 propose various amendments, the substance of which is to modernise the language of the Law and give the government greater flexibility in the manner in which it administers issues of securities with the aim of ensuring that this is performed efficiently and effectively.

Clause 26 provides that legal action may be taken against the Government of the Cayman Islands in the event that the government breaches any of its obligations under any agreement relating to an issue of securities. This clause should not strike Honourable Members as being a surprise because it is to be found in all modern pieces of legislation governing the issuing of securities.

In conclusion, I wish to make the following remarks: the sole purpose of this Bill is to ensure that our legislation reflects current practices and terminology used in the financial world and to give the government greater flexibility in the conduct of administrative tasks that are required in the connection with the issue of securities. Secondly, this updating is an ongoing exercise and it is likely that the legislation will have to be amended in the future to reflect changes occurring in the financial world and changes that are favourable to the government protecting its interest.

I commend this Bill to Honourable Members.

The Speaker: Thank you. Does any other Member wish to speak? Does any other Member wish to speak? The First Elected Member from the district of George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Mr. Speaker, I have listened carefully to the Honourable Third Official Member in his justifying the Bill being brought to the Legislative Assembly. I think we all understand the motive for the Bill and the various amendments that have been brought. I just wish to make two observations. I would hope that either, if the thoughts expressed are not accepted, that there would be justification in the wind up as to why they are accepted or, if they are accepted, then perhaps something might be done by way of some amendment.

The first one is a simple one and perhaps it may just be how I interpret things because I certainly do not profess to have any legal background. The amendment in section 4 where the principal Law is amended in section 6 (1) in paragraph (d) – the Honourable Third Official Member did allude to it—by repealing the word "rate" and substituting the word "rates". The way it reads in section 6(1) of the Law: "The Financial Secretary shall, in respect of each issue of stock to be raised under this Law, specify by directions published in the Gazette—" and then (d) the rate of interest payable on the stock; . . ."

Therefore, with what is being proposed, it would read: " ... specify by directions published in the Gazette the rates of interest payable on the stock;"

My interpretation of that is that any stock at any time carries more than one rate of interest. That may not be how other people interpret it, but when I read it that is what it says to me. While he has explained that at some points in time some of the stocks will attract different rates of interest, during differing periods of time this stock, for instance, only attracts one specific rate of interest. I would suggest that it reads: "rate or rates". It is simple wording, but I am only suggesting it from a layperson's reading of the Law. That is only a suggestion.

The second observation I wish to make—and I will have to crave your indulgence, Mr. Speaker—is not based on any amendment that is being proposed, but, because of the amendments that are being proposed, it stuck out at me. In the original Bill, section 6(1) (f) reads and it is prefaced by: "The Financial Secretary shall, in respect of each issue of stock to be raised under this Law, specify by directions published in the Gazette—"

Section 6(1)(f) reads: " ... whether there shall be sinking fund for the redemption of the stock; ... "

It goes on in section 24, part VI – Sinking Funds and Repayment of Loans: "If by direction under 6(1) the Financial Secretary has specified that there shall be a sinking fund for the purpose of redeeming an issue of stock made under this Law, the Financial Secretary shall establish a sinking fund for that purpose ... "

I note with keen interest section 30(2): "If a sinking fund has not been established under section 24 for the redemption of an issue of stock"— which will now read: "of securities" -, "raised under this Law, the Governor in Council shall-

- a. at the date of redemption;
- b. if an option has been reserved under section 6(3) to redeem the stock earlier than the date of redemption, [which should read "than the date of redemption", so I hope the Honourable Third Official Member is making note of that too. That is a typo that can be corrected at the same time] at any earlier date determined by the Governor in Council [and here is where it is key] pay out of the revenue and pay to the Registrar such sum as is required to redeem that stock."

In the amendments there are several areas which refer to the fact that the payout has to come from the revenue of the country. How the Law reads and what obtains in the Law does not mandate that a sinking fund should be created whenever we have what is called a bond issue.

I remember when the Honourable Third Official Member and I talked about this originally some two years ago. His main concern at that time was whether or not a sinking fund was necessary. How this Law applies to this specific securities issue (that the Government Motion is coming to right after this) is that instead of it being retired at the end of the term, my understanding from the Honourable Third Official Member is that there will be half-yearly payments towards the principal. The interest will be paid on a recurring basis, but the payments over whatever the term is, will be paid in half-yearly equal instalments. That is my understanding.

The thought perhaps given there is that because you are not waiting until the end of the term to retire the debt and you are making half-yearly payments, there may be no need for a sinking fund. The mere fact that it is crystal clear that these funds come out of general revenue, I hold the view that even if it is short-term (where you are making six-monthly payments) and my colleagues on this side certainly agree with me because we have discussed the matter, that there should be a sinking fund.

One might wish to say that because of the way the Public Management and Finance Law will tailor the fiscal operations of Central Government there may be no need and that the discipline will be there. However, Mr. Speaker, I hold the firm belief and as we all know, and as has been espoused on several occasions by the same Honourable Third Official Member, the revenue that is collected by government is seasonal and there are certain times of the year when the vast percentage of the total percentage of the year is collected. Then there is a long dry season, and then it picks up again going into the next year. If we are making six-monthly payments while in every budgetary process, those payments will be accounted for in every annual budget. The situation that I speak of—these six-monthly payments are going to be with fixed dates and they must . . . for instance I do not know what the dates are but you would be speaking about something like 30 June and 31 December. If we do not employ the discipline of that sinking fund, and knowing how government works regardless, you never know what might come up.

The fact is that this obligation is one that is fixed. It is like your light bill. If you want electricity and you only have enough money to buy groceries, you decide whether you want to eat or you want to see. I do not think we should put ourselves in a position where we might find for one part of the year having the six-month payments to make and revenues are slow, even when you do your projections and prepare your budget as you do with your own income at home.

I hold the view that we are much safer if we have a sinking fund with a stipulated amount put into it on a continual basis to ensure that amount is there, even if the investments in that sinking fund are short-term investments.

I notice where the Law, as it is presently, did not allow for any investment to be made. In section 28(5) (a): “The trustees shall not invest any monies contained in a sinking fund- (a) by way of deposit at interest; . . .”.

That is what we would call regular term deposits. I think that is being amended now if I am not mistaken.

How the Law reads now, it says you cannot do that. If the Law is amended and it allows you to do that, I believe that we will be better served with that sinking fund. My argument is that, instead of making the sinking fund one that is optional, it should be mandatory.

The truth is, if we examine it, it is all a question of policy and likes and dislikes, because to have it does nothing more to hinder the government. At the end of every six months they are going to have to find the money anyhow. If you speak about cash flow, what happens during the interim is that you cannot use this money. The truth of the matter is, if you do not have a sinking fund and you have to have that amount when the time comes to make the payment, you are going to have to put the money aside anyhow. You cannot depend on two days' receipts in the Treasury to make the payment.

I am just speaking it as I would look at it for myself if I were handling a situation on my own. I feel very strongly about this, Mr. Speaker, from a practical point of view. This has no bearing on which government it is. It does not matter. I speak about it as a Law that we might well engage in, in future when all of us are not here. What I would never like to see happen is that, because of the Law making a sinking fund optional, some smart—I am being cynical—government down the line which does not employ fiscal prudence and does not have a sinking fund and has a debt to be retired at the end of a period and the period comes and there is no money to pay it. My application to that is simply not because this one is having half-yearly payments and there may not be such a dire need to have a sinking fund, I still hold the view that there should be a sinking fund at all times. I say that as I explained before because I believe it is the safest way forward with this venture.

While that is not a part of the proposed amendments, I take this opportunity and I seriously ask the Government, through the Honourable Third Official Member, to consider the two points that I have just made. Perhaps in his wind-up we can hear the disposition, but I really would not like it to be left alone because if the government takes a different view the issue is not going to be left alone. The more I think about it, the more I am convinced it is the way to go. As I said, if they go that route it does not change anything from what they want to accomplish; it just tightens the situation a little bit more and makes it tidier.

I thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? Does any other Member wish to speak? If no other Member wishes to speak, does the Honourable Third Official Member wish to exercise his right of reply?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I have taken note of the observations that have been made by the Honourable First Elected Member for George Town. His suggestion against the amendment in section 6(1) (d) of the Law where he said “rate” or “rates”, I have been made to understand by the Senior Legislative Counsel that that will not pose a problem. As I mentioned earlier, I was taking “rates” to embrace “rate” which would be the singular. In regards to the proposal for the setting up of a sinking fund, in this instance, I will differ with the First Elected Member from George Town and I will explain why. What the Honourable Member is suggesting makes a whole lot of sense in terms of how the bond issue was initially intended to be structured. It was proposed that the bond issue would have been for a discreet period of time and interest would be paid at intervals during the life of the bond issue and at the end of the life of the bond issue a single lump sum payment would have been paid out whether it was for x million or y million.

At this point in time, Mr. Speaker, the Honourable Member will recognise that the reason why this bond issue is being pursued by the Government is to reduce the annualised payments that will have to be made in respect of the Government's indebtedness. It will be significantly reduced. The Government relies on its annual budget in terms of quantifying its revenue for the year, projecting its revenue and quantifying its expenditure needs. The payments that are made at this time against the various loans to be repaid are paid at unfixed dates at varying intervals throughout the course of the year.

The Government in preparing its budget will budget for the two payments that will be made out covering both principal and interest against this bond issue on dates to be agreed. In the short-term, and as Honourable Members will appreciate, there is a build up of cash at the beginning of the calendar year. We are now changing over to a fiscal year and this reflects a declining balance through to the end of the year, but the cash flow is monitored in such a way whereby the worse situation that should occur at the end of any year is the Government experiencing a break-even position or if it is a deficit, a deficit that is projected, but one that is minimal.

The Honourable Member is quite correct when he used the analogy between food and light bills in terms of a decision having to be made, and in this instance we know that statutory obligations will have to be paid first before other charges are met. Mr. Speaker, in this instance the Government is not projecting its cash flow requirements simply on a two-day requirement. Just as how the sums of money are presently found during the course of a given year and they are budgeted for during the course of a given year and the Government has not reneged on any of its loan payments up to this point in time and will never hopefully do that, it is the same course that will be pursued in respect of the bond issue. Provision will have to be made as is being suggested.

The Government knows that it will have two payments to make: principal and interest. The Government will be budgeting. In the short-term the same type of attention to detail in terms of our prudential practice that would be observed in terms of operating a sinking fund on a short-term basis, it is the same that will have to be observed in terms of laying aside funds on a short-term basis to meet obligations that are due and payable. What we would do first of all, in setting up the sinking fund, there are certain administrative costs that will be incurred. I know what the Honourable Member is talking about is ring fencing a sum of money to be paid out at a given date.

The budget, when it takes place within the course of a year, will have to be regarded as ring fenced in terms of those obligations that will have to be made. If it were a question that it was going to be a single payment during the course of the year or the money was going to be paid out bi-annually or at the end of a 15-year period, I would be the first one to say yes, we agree. However, what I am saying to the Honourable Member is that we are not agreeing in terms of what has to be done. There is a need to make provision and it will have to be made by the Government to satisfy its obligations. What I am saying to him is the same type of protection he is seeking under a bond issue, knowing that we have monies that will be paid out at short intervals as is currently being done, the same can be achieved under the present management of the cash flow by the Government as against setting up a sinking fund. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, I cannot guarantee one minute from now.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill shortly entitled, The Cayman Islands Registered Stock (Amendment) Bill, 2003 is given a Second Reading.

All those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

THIRD READINGS*The Notaries Public (Amendment) Bill, 2003

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Second Official Member.

Mr. Samuel Bulgin: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move that a Bill entitled, The Notaries Public (Amendment) Bill 2003, be given a Third Reading and passed.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill shortly entitled, The Notaries Public (Amendment) Bill 2003 be given a third reading and passed.

All those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed. The Notaries Public (Amendment) Bill 2003 given a Third Reading and passed.

The Cayman Islands Registered Stock (Amendment) Bill, 2003

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move that a Bill entitled, The Cayman Islands Registered Stock (Amendment) Bill, 2003 be given a Third Reading and passed.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill shortly entitled, The Cayman Islands Registered Stock (Amendment) Bill, 2003 be given a Third Reading and passed.

All those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed. The Cayman Islands Registered Stock (Amendment) Bill, 2003 has been given a Third Reading and passed.

Suspension of Standing Order 24(5)

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move the suspension of Standing Order 24(5) so that the Government Motion may be taken.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 24(5) be suspended.

All those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed: Standing Order 24(5) suspended to allow the Government Motion to be taken.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS*MOTIONS*GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 1/03*The Cayman Islands Government Securities Law (Law 33 of 2002)

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move Government Motion No. 1/03, which reads as follows:-

“WHEREAS section 28(1) of the Public Finance and Audit Law (1997 Revision) provides that the Government shall not borrow money except in accordance with a law,

“AND WHEREAS section 4(1) of the Cayman Islands Government Securities Law, 2002 provides that whenever by any Law or resolution of the Legislative Assembly, authority is given to the Governor in Council to raise any money by way of loan or for any purpose mentioned in that Law or resolution, or whenever it is necessary to raise any sum of money for the purpose of repaying any loan raised by the Government under this or any other Law or a resolution of the Legislative Assembly, the Governor in Council may, from time to time, raise such sum or any part thereof under the provisions of this Law by the creation and issue of registered securities;

“AND WHEREAS it is proposed that the Governor in Council shall create and issue registered securities in the form of notes in the original principal amount of US$163.2 million for purposes which include the financing of capital expenditure, debt consolidation and the reimbursement of debt consolidation;

“BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT this Honourable House, acting in accordance with section 4(1) of the Cayman Islands Government Securities Law, 2002, as recently passed, authorises the Governor in Council to issue securities in the form of notes on behalf of the Government of the Cayman Islands in the principal amount not exceeding US$163.2 million for the aforementioned purposes.”

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House, acting in accordance with section 4(1) of the Cayman Islands Government Securities Law 2002, authorises the Governor in Council to issue securities in the form of notes on behalf of the Government of the Cayman Islands in the principal amount not exceeding US$163.2 million for the aforementioned purposes.

The Motion is opened for debate. Does the Honourable Member wish to speak thereto?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The Government's intention to issue a debt instrument is well known. It has been mentioned in this Honourable House on many occasions in the past and as recently as the amendment that was dealt with to the legislation a short while ago. Section 4(1) of the Government Securities Law, 2002 allows the government to make an issue of securities provided the government obtains a resolution from this Honourable House that authorises the issue of securities. This is how the Law is intended to operate: that on each occasion a bond is to be entered into, the approval of this Honourable House be sought. The Motion is therefore before this Honourable House because the Government requires the approval in order to carry out its intention of issuing the securities in the amount of $163.2 million as I have just mentioned.

The word "bond issue" has become well known to all Honourable Members of this House and I would like to explain why the language in the Motion moves away from those words and speaks of government issuing securities in the form of notes. When the Government first considered issuing that instrument it was envisioned that the debt would be offered in the public market. The public market uses the expression "bond issue" to cover an offering of debt instruments. This is the reason why the words "bond issue" became so closely associated with government's wish to make an issue of debt. Mr. Speaker, a small number of large investors in the private placement market have given their commitment to buy government's entire debt offering. The private placement market uses the term 'notes' to cover debt offerings as opposed to the term 'bond issues' in the public market. This explains why the Motion speaks of government issuing securities in the form of notes.

Mr. Speaker, there were several reasons why the Government decided to launch its debt offerings in the private placement market.

First, the minimum size of a debt offering in the public market is $250 million and typical deal size averages at least US$500 million. These amounts were larger than the Government needed to borrow.

Secondly, the private placement market resulted in lower legal and advisory costs than the public market, mainly because the government's debts offering does not have to be registered with the Security and Exchange Commission in the United States of America.

Thirdly, the public market is focused on bullet maturity bonds, which means that the principal amount owed in respect of the bond is repaid at the very end of its life by a single payment. The private placement market offered government the flexibility of being able to repay the principal throughout the life of the debt. Mr. Speaker, what I have just said addresses the concern that has been alluded to by the First Elected Member from George Town, which connects with the setting up of the sinking fund. It is for this reason that the Government felt it would be sufficiently safe to use the annualised budget in which provisions will be made for the two payments to be made during the course of the year, as against if it was going to be a bullet bond whereby interest would be paid at intervals during the life of the bond with a single payment made at the end or at the maturity of the bond. Then the most prudent and safest route to take would be the route of establishing a sinking fund. I just want to assure that Honourable Member that in terms of his concern they are very much in sync with mine, in terms of making sure that adequate arrangements are put in place so that Government is able to meet its obligations when due.

So, the fact that a specific provision has not been made in law for a sinking fund to be set to meet to provide for the two payments to be made during the course of the year the operation of the budget, the management of the cash flow and the attention that will be paid to the yields that will be realised from monies that will be placed on deposits on short term and knowing the fact that the Government budgets to meet its obligation throughout the course of the year, and not only to budget but monitors that to make sure that sufficient cash is available to satisfy the obligations whenever they become due, I think should address the concern that has been raised earlier by that Honourable Member.

I will now outline the key features of the notes that the Government plans to issue. The size of the note issue that Government plans to make is US$163.2 million. This is the amount sufficient to repay the government's public debt loans and have $9.6 million for capital expenditure. The $9.6 million is equivalent to the $8 million that the Legislative Assembly approved on the 7 January 2002. Because of the fact that there was a need to delay the bond issue firstly to get the best rate and to make sure that the offering memorandum is approved bridge financing was sought in the interim through a local bank for this part of the $8 million. This, as Honourable Members will recall, was covered by a specific loans law that was put in place, but it was intended that that would be embraced within the bond issue. So, it was a 'belt and braces' approach to make sure that there was the necessary authority for the raising of the money during the course of the year 2002, and also that it would be factored into the bond issue.

The plan note issue has a 15-year life. Principal repayments will occur every six months over the 15-year's period and the note will be fully repaid by March 2018. Mr. Speaker, interest and principal repayment will occur on the 30 March and the 30 September each year with the first payments due on the 30 September 2003. I will now demonstrate the significance of Government making half-yearly repayments of principal over the life of the note. If the Government had chosen to repay the principal on the maturity date of the note total interest cost would have totalled $129.7 million. By making half-yearly repayments of principal interest cost will decline to US$67 million. The savings that will be made by the Government in making this decision to repay the principal half-yearly is therefore $62.7 million. This will be a considerable savings to the country at large. The interest rate payable on notes that the Government plans to issue is 5.3 per cent per annum. This rate is fixed for the 15-year life of the note and will not fluctuate when interest rate changes are announced. Government will therefore know its interest cost in respect of the note issue with absolute certainty for the next 15 years. At present Government's interest rate cost will change when rate changes are announced. These are against the existing loans to be paid off but we know that they will be paid off and locked in under the note to be issued. So, the interest rate will be known throughout the life of the bond. The interest rate of 5.3 per cent on the notes consists of two parts. The yield on the 8-year US treasury note plus a percentage for risk that buyers of the notes require. The notes were priced at 3 pm on Wednesday 29 January 2003. The yield on the 8-year US treasury at the time was 3.8 per cent and the percentage spread for risk that the buyers of the note requested was 1.5 per cent. With the Government repaying principal on the notes every six months the average life of the notes is approximately . . . Mr. Speaker, I will seek your indulgence in pausing for a minute.

[Pause]

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The government repaying principal on the notes every six months, the average life of the notes is approximately eight years. This establishes the link to the pricing against the eight-year treasury that I mentioned previously. The 1.5 per cent risk spread is very competitive to rates obtained in recent transactions of similar size in the private placement market. The low percentage requested by investors to compensate for the perceived risk attached to buying the notes reflect the very strong A-3 rating given by Moody's which is an international credit rating agency used by the Cayman Islands. The 5.3 per cent is therefore the result of combining the two separate components of 3.8 per cent and 1.5 per cent. The interest rate was competitively priced.

Those are the key features of the notes that the Government plans to issue. The Motion makes it clear how the proceeds of the note will be used. The proceeds will be used to finance the capital development expenditure of an amount of $9.6 million which equates to $8 million with the remainder of US$163.2 million being used in connection with the debt consolidation. Mr. Speaker, I should point out that at the time when the Government took the decision to issue the notes it was then quantified that the amount that would be required was $128 million. Because of the fact that the Government has been making repayments since that time up until now the amount to be repaid has been reduced. The Government therefore proposes that the differential between what the original amount, as specified in the bond issue was going to be and what the loans are at this time will be paid off, will be placed into the general reserve fund.

The bond issue is for a fixed amount. The offering document was drawn up as such. Honourable Members will recall in this House that the time could not have been specified in terms of when the bond issue would have matured. For example, in November of last year the government could have gone ahead and concluded arrangements for the draw down against the bond issue. But on the advice of the local bank that we are dealing with, plus the international bank that facilitated this offering it was suggested that if the Government waited until the early part of the New Year the rate would have been improved upon. By acting on that decision it put the government in a favourable position because it would have been in excess of 6 per cent had the government locked in the rate in November of last year, as against waiting until the early part of this year to lock in the rate at 5.3 per cent.

[Inaudible comment]

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I have given the relevant details in support of the note issue and I think this information — the balance in this. . .

[Pause]

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I will have to undertake to give that Honourable Member the details that he is seeking, as it cannot be . . .

[Pause]

Hon. George A. McCarthy: In a perfect world everything is done perfectly, but given the fact, as I have outlined, the Government has pursued a course of action that, although it was envisioned over a year ago that this bond issue would have materialised, by waiting in excess of a year we have secured the funding at the best rate that could be available at this time at a significant cost to the Government. I also pointed out that instead of pursuing the bullet bond route, which would have resulted in an additional $67 million having to be paid out by making loans payments at half-yearly intervals during the course of the loan, the Government will be saving approximately $67 million. As I said earlier, it was envisioned that the amount that would have been required to liquidate the loans at the time when the bond issue was conceptualised, was CI$128 million. The sum that this amount has been reduced by during the period of time and what has been projected up through the end of this month, will be approximately CI$19.2 million. This means that the amount to be paid out will be approximately $108.8 million. This shows the excellent track record that the Government has in terms of meeting its obligation, because within that short interval the Government would have paid out approximately $19.2 million. This speaks for itself. Mr. Speaker, thank you very much.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for the district of George Town.

Point of Procedure

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a procedural point. I have listened with interest and increasing concern to the submission of the Honourable Third Official Member. I had hoped that in the course of his remarks he would have addressed what is clearly to us on this side a constitutional impediment to proceeding on this Motion this evening.

This Motion is premised on the passing and enactment of the Cayman Islands Registered Stock (Amendment) Law, 2003, upon which this Honourable House proceeded a short while ago. Among other things, Sir, that amendment, when it becomes law, will have the effect of changing the name of the Law to the Cayman Islands Securities Law. It will also have the effect of amending references to 'registered stock' to 'registered securities'. The Honourable Third Official Member made it very clear that on advice received from Sidley Austin and other overseas legal advisors to the government, it is absolutely critical that the somewhat antiquated references in the Cayman Islands Registered Stock Law be changed to reflect modern practice.

The fundamental constitutional impediment is section 39 of the Cayman Islands Constitution Order 1972, which says, "A bill shall not become a Law until-

- (a) "the governor has assented to it in Her Majesty's name and on Her Majesty's behalf and has signed it in token of his assent".

It follows that simply because this Honourable House has passed the amendment to the Cayman Islands Registered Stock Law this afternoon does not bring into effect those amendments. This Motion that is before us, and to which the Honourable Third Official Member just spoke extensively, is premised on the basis that those amendments have become law. They have not become law. In the second recital it refers to the Cayman Islands Securities Law 2002. At this precise moment no such law exists. Also, in that second recital is a reference to registered securities as a matter of Cayman Islands Law. At this point no such creature exists. In the resolution section there is again reference to the Cayman Islands Securities Law and to the issuing of securities.

It is, therefore, my submission on behalf of the Members of the Opposition that this House cannot lawfully proceed on this Motion this afternoon. It cannot, Sir, until the amendments that were passed today have been assented to by His Excellency the Governor in accordance with section 39 of the Cayman Islands Constitution. If we proceed and purport to accept this Motion and pass a resolution to that effect, the resolution will be null and void. It will have no legal effect and it will not confer upon the government the ability to go ahead and issue these securities as is contemplated.

I caution this Honourable House for us to not rush into this, but to take the time to ensure that the Law which was passed this afternoon is assented to, which will confer upon this Honourable House the ability to proceed on this Motion. I thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Honourable Members, in light of the revelation that was just made by the Second Elected Member from George Town, I propose that we take a short suspension for 10 to 15 minutes to allow myself to get further instructions.

Proceedings suspended at 6.10 pm

Proceedings resumed at 6.35 pm

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

The Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Health.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, the Government, the Opposition and yourself having had occasion to take advice, I beg to move that the debate at this time be ceased, and I beg to move the adjournment of the House until tomorrow at 11 am.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House be adjourned until tomorrow at 11 am.

All those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

At 6.37 pm the House stood adjourned until Thursday, 27 March 2003, at 11 am.

OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT
THURSDAY
27 MARCH 2003
11.28 AM
N ninth Sitting

[Deputy Speaker in the Chair]

The Speaker: I invite the Second Elected Member for George Town to grace us with prayers.

PRAYERS

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal Family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office. All this we ask for Thy great Name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

Proceedings resumed at 11.32 am

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS
OR AFFIRMATIONS

Oath of Allegiance

Mr. A. Joel Walton, JP
(Administered by the Clerk)

Mr. A. Joel Walton: I, A Joel Walton, do swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, her heirs and successors, according to law, so help me God.

The Speaker: Honourable Member on behalf of this House I welcome the Honourable Temporary Third Official Member and invite him to take his seat. Please be seated.

READING BY THE HONOURABLE
SPEAKER OF MESSAGES
AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

Apologies

The Speaker: I have received apologies from the Honourable Speaker who is still not feeling well.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MINISTERS AND OFFICIAL MEMBERS
OF THE GOVERNMENT

Question No. 15

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

No. 15: Mr. Lyndon L. Martin asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Health Services, District Administration and Agriculture what is the status of the previously announced acquisition of a dialysis machine for Faith Hospital.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. Mclean: The Ministry of Health Services was approached last year with respect to initiating a haemodialysis service within Faith Hospital. The Ministry in return requested the Health Services Department to explore the necessity and feasibility of implementing such a service on Cayman Brac.

In the meantime, funds were provided in the 2002 Budget for the purchase of two dialysis machines with the intention of purchasing one for the Brac if deemed necessary. However, after a review of the recommendation emanating from the study, a joint decision was made by the Health Services Department and the Ministry that a service of this nature should not be introduced at Faith Hospital (both for patient safety and service efficiency) at this time.

Supplementaries

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you Mr. Speaker, I was hoping the Minister could indicate how many patients in the Brac are currently receiving dialysis and how that service is currently provided for.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. Mclean: Mr. Speaker, to the best of my knowledge and that of the Health Service Authority, there is only one patient who is on dialysis from the Brac, who travels to Grand Cayman three times per week and all expenses are paid for him to do so including air travel expenses between the Islands.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, Madam Clerk, the next question.

Question No. 16

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

No. 16: Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for the Portfolio of Internal and External Affairs what is the current police complement on Cayman Brac and on Little Cayman.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The answer is as follows –

Cayman Brac: 11 Constables
1 Sergeant
1 Chief Inspector

Little Cayman: 1 Constable.

Supplementaries

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you Mr. Speaker, could the Honourable Member indicate whether these numbers are considered to be adequate based on the number of population and crime rate.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Mr. Speaker, it could be argued that police ratios may never be adequate but they are better than the police ratios for Grand Cayman.

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you Mr. Speaker, it was detailed in this Honourable House that there was a proposal and possible implementation of a second Inspector for Cayman Brac Police Station and the possibility of an additional constable for Little Cayman. Could the Honourable First Official Member provide details as to the progress in this regard.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you Mr. Speaker. I am not aware of the proposal for the second Inspector in Cayman Brac. What did occur some time ago was that the complement of constables was increased by 50 per cent and I detailed a few minutes ago the total complement for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. With only one constable on Little Cayman, could the Honourable First Official Member provide detail as to what is done during vacation time and days off to provide coverage for Little Cayman with only one constable?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The current position in Little Cayman is that when the constable is off for whatever reason, coverage is given from Cayman Brac. However, I can tell the House that the decision has been taken to appoint a second constable for Little Cayman. The post has been advertised and we expect to have a second constable in the post in due course.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, we will move on to the next question.

Question No. 17

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

No. 17: Mr. V. Arden McLean: asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Health Services, District Administration and Agriculture if the Health Services Authority's ambulatory services is up to full staff and vehicle complement.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. Mclean: I understand that the intent of the Member is to make an enquiry about the ambulance service and not the ambulatory service, which in terms of health care delivery is a very different thing.

The ambulance service currently has three vacant positions and the Health Services Authority is in the process of recruiting to fill these posts. The vehicles, however, are up to their full complement of four. Three are assigned to the various stations (West Bay, North Side and George Town) and one is being used as a spare.

The Speaker: If there is no further supplementary we will move on to the next item of business.

STATEMENTS BY HONOURABLE MINISTERS/MEMBERS OF THE GOVERNMENT

Update on Aviation Matters

The Speaker: I have been given notice of a statement by the Minister of Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

This Honourable House has shown evidence of its interest in aviation matters in this very sitting, so I have no doubt they are supportive of our recent change of name in recognition as a Ministry of the need to demonstrate or focus on this subject area. Members will be aware that the new name of the Ministry is Health Services, Agriculture, Aviation and District Administration.

At this time there is considerable concern in the sphere of commercial aviation due to the war in Iraq. We, in the Cayman Islands, are obliged to monitor this closely for its potential economic impact. Similarly, the heightened security arrangements implemented at our airport since 11 September, 2001 are now being maintained with particular vigilance. Security arrangements at airports fall to the Director of Civil Aviation through His Excellency, the Governor. This is number one of four aviation matters I will speak on, the others being as follows:

1. the recent international health alert regarding the Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome (SARS);
2. the proposed terminal expansion at Owen Roberts International Airport; and
3. the forecast work on airport facilities in Little Cayman.

1. Airport Security Arrangements

The Cayman Islands, through the Director of Civil Aviation (DCA), maintains international standards with regard to security. Current procedures follow the Cayman Islands National Aviation Security Programme issued by the United Kingdom Department for Transport (DfT) through His Excellency, which allows for varying protocols to be adopted as appropriate to changing threat levels.

Relevant training is provided from time to time through the Department for Transport's Regional Aviation Security Adviser (RASA), who is based in Miami for this region. The training he develops is based on directions issued from the DfT through the Governor from time to time. There is ongoing contact between the DCA and the RASA, and the latter visits at least once every two months, in pursuance of his principal function, which is to audit procedures in place in the field.

Owen Roberts International Airport on Grand Cayman

Specific improvements in security at our principal airport may be seen in the following:

(i) After some years the Civil Aviation Authority (CAA) now has a full complement of 24 Security Officers. I am advised that in general recent applicants for these jobs have been of a high calibre.

(ii) There is a uniformed police officer stationed at the screening point for outgoing passengers during critical hours (6 am to 6 pm). This is in keeping with the recommendation of the International Civil Aviation Organisation (ICAO).

(iii) The travelling public and their families have been very cooperative in assisting aviation authorities, in compliance with the current more exacting requirements. These have had to be worked around existing shortcomings in physical accommodations. Despite a certain amount of discomfort, with the cooperation of the public, the somewhat makeshift set-up has been made to work.

The arrangements have included the following list:

- i) more thorough searching of passengers and their hand luggage;
- ii) physical searches of check-in baggage;
- iii) screening of cargo on passenger carrying aircraft;
- iv) searching of aircraft;
- v) tighter restrictions for persons gaining access to the restricted areas of the airport.

An additional walk-through detector and a baggage X-ray unit have been put into use. Further to a Direction issued by His Excellency the Governor regarding X-ray screening of hold baggage (that is hand-held), matters are well in hand towards commissioning of new state-of-the-art X-ray machines and associated conveyors and carousel systems. This entire facility is expected to be operational in the very near future.

Gerrard Smith International Airport

With regard to security, no physical changes were assessed to be necessary at Gerrard Smith International Airport in Cayman Brac. However, two Airport Security Officers have been added to the staff.

Perhaps this information will assure the travelling public that appropriate steps are being taken to ensure their safety and security, and that we are being good stewards of the revenues collected by way of the security tax levy on airline tickets.

2. International Health Alert Regarding Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome (SARS)

Thankfully, no cases of SARS have been reported in the Cayman Islands to date.

Civil Aviation, Public Health and Immigration have devised co-operative arrangements aimed at effective monitoring of the situation. Public Health has taken the lead, with able support.

Health alert cards have been produced which are now being handed to arriving passengers by Immigration Officers. Airlines and travel agents have been briefed. Airport staff is to be advised of the symptoms and geared towards vigilance with regard to persons exhibiting known symptoms.

3. Owen Roberts International Airport Expansion

Under commission by the CAA, specialist firm JacobsGIBB produced a Master Plan in November 2002, for development of airport facilities at Owen Roberts International Airport, in keeping with forecasted growth for the next 15 to 20 years. Their report speaks to the requirements for future development of the airport including runway, taxiway, apron, commercial and general aviation terminal, ingress and egress corridors, and environmental issues. It must be noted that detailed studies are obviously necessary to take forward the development of each sector.

The report's findings identify the main commercial terminal as priority number one. This is an appropriate but not surprising response to the reality that the present terminal is now in use beyond its projected life. In fact, growth in throughput has, for some time, been well in excess of projections, so that the terminal has been accordingly stretched to accommodate demands. The security arrangements I spoke of earlier are a case in point.

While careful management has ensured that international requirements have been observed, the situation is no longer satisfactory in terms of the quality of travel experience for users of the terminal. Along with safety, comfort and convenience are key to the travelling public, and both of the latter are increasingly under threat, if not actually compromised, within the facilities of Owen Roberts International. We must also be mindful that, especially for visitors arriving for the first time, first impressions tend to be lasting impressions. The time for definitive action is fast approaching; without this, the situation will only deteriorate.

The JacobsGIBB report leaves open to our decision the choice between refurbishment and expansion of the current terminal building, and the building of a new terminal facility on a new footprint. I propose to table the report in this Honourable House in the very near future. Once in-principle commitments for project development have been secured, tender documents will be prepared as a first step towards development. All concerned are mindful of the need to carefully examine both technical capability and price, in the tendering processes.

4. Little Cayman Airport Facilities

As recently advised in this Honourable House, an airport master plan was completed for the CAA in July 2002. As I indicated to Honourable Members at the time, I intend to seek an Executive Council decision in the very near future on the development of airport facilities in Little Cayman. As we make every effort to remain compliant with international regulatory standards, the current position will need to be critically examined, given that the airstrip now in use does not meet such standards. We must, and will, as a Ministry and a Government, give top priority to the safety of air transport for users of the facility. Decisions for development will be guided by this and by the development objectives for Little Cayman and the Sister Islands taken together, including, but not limited to, reliability of service, impact on economic growth, and social and physical environmental effects. With regard to the latter, due care will be taken as to the presence, near the most likely site of a new development, of a United Nations listed RAMSAR site of international importance, in the form of a major Red-Footed Booby nesting site.

I thank Honourable Members of this House for their attention. I also hope that they, and the public we all serve, will find that the information contained in this statement is useful, and that it provides assurance that this important area of governance is receiving appropriate attention. I may just add that I hope when it is reported in the media, it will be as clear and as accurate as I think it is in this written statement which will be available to the media and anyone else. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Thank you, Honourable Minister. I have also received notice of a statement from the Leader of Government Business.

New Five-Year Tourism Policy

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker.

In November 2000 when I took over responsibility for tourism, I found the industry in decline and lacking focus and vision. The previous Government had allowed the last 5-year plan to lapse in 1999, and there was no bridge or obvious intent to get a new Tourism Management Policy and Plan in place.

Having a comprehensive, guiding document was a priority of mine, and I promptly called on the Department of Tourism to initiate a process to get a new Tourism Management Policy and Plan in place. This Plan was prepared following extensive consultation and research.

While this has been the earliest possibility for my Ministry to present this new 5-year policy in this Honourable House, it must be noted that this document has been widely circulated for months now, including having been posted on the Department of Tourism's website for all to acquaint themselves with its content. Every effort has been given to full and wide public disclosure because, after all, "Tourism is everybody's business".

Why a Tourism Policy Framework?

Tourism research has overwhelmingly found that strong policy intervention is needed if tourism is to be a viable route to sustainability that avoids the environmentally incompatible growth process, especially in small island states.

- First, tourism is extremely important to the local economy. By some estimates, it contributes up to 50 per cent of Gross Domestic Product and supports around 30 per cent of all employment in the country.

- Second, tourism affects everyone whether they are in the industry or not; it supports the wide range of services that are available to all and it also impacts upon the local way of life.

- Third, tourism is a complex industry involving a wide variety of stakeholders, many of whom do not even realise that they influence and impact the industry. Individuals need to be coordinated and activities managed.

- And finally, a policy framework is needed to make sure that everyone involved is aware of the overall goals and is pulling in the same direction.

The Ministry's Goal

It is my goal to develop and have in place a new Five Year Tourism Management Policy for the Cayman Islands by early 2003, designed to provide a framework and clear vision for the sustainable development of the tourism sector. This new policy would be:

- Harmoniously integrated into overall development plans and strategies of Cayman

- Developed with maximum input from all stakeholders

- Simple but not simplistic, so that all stakeholders, be it an investor or a taxi driver can get a sense of the vision and strategy for developing the tourism industry

Conclusion and General Consensus of the Policy Framework

The conclusion and general consensus that came of the policy development process is that the way ahead lay in consolidation and sustainable growth and we need to focus on five (5) strategic aims:

- In market terms, positioning the Cayman Islands as a distinctive, quality Caribbean destination for the discerning visitor.

- In product terms, concentrating on improving the quality of the experience (for stay over and cruise passengers), to deliver a unique distinctive Caymanian experience for which people are willing to pay a premium.

- In development terms, the key recommendation is the need to review tourism zones and limit planning permissions for new hotel development until occupancy levels are restored to a more viable level.

That is the recommendation in development of new hotels, Mr. Speaker, but as I said in the Throne Speech debate we consider that we have to look at all sectors and how they relate to the industry and we do feel that there is room for quality 5-7 star hotels and that is what we are supporting.

- In management terms the key recommendation is to institute a provisional cap on the number of cruise ship passengers per day arriving on Grand Cayman.

- In target terms, we are working to restore stay over visitor numbers to pre-1999 levels of approximately 350,000 visitors per annum by 2007—that is by 4 per cent per annum. Thereafter, the Cayman Islands should assume only modest growth. It is suggested this might be in the order of 2 to 3 per cent, which would mean approximately 375,000 stay over visitors by the end of the decade.

I should say also, Mr. Speaker that giving our ideas for new upscale five to seven star hotels would not necessarily mean that you are going to have 500,000 visitors. Certainly it will not be in the short term, for to develop a hotel does not mean that it will happen overnight. However, we must plan and that is what the Government is saying.

Name of Final Document

This Policy framework has been called Focus for the Future because it is about re-positioning the Cayman Islands' product and approach to meet new demands and a new overall goal. This will require a new focus by all concerned with the industry.

Nine (9) Key Policy Objectives

To make this vision reality nine policy objectives have been identified and these are as follows:

- Policy objective 1 is to provide a high quality product for the visitor.
- Policy objective 2 is to present a distinctive Caymanian experience.
- Policy objective 3 is a sustainable approach to tourism development.
- Policy objective 4 is to protect and enhance the marine resource.
- Policy objective 5 is to attract a more discerning and higher spending visitor.
- Policy objective 6 is to develop a highly skilled Caymanian tourism workforce.
- Policy objective 7 is to develop eco-tourism on the Sister Islands.
- Policy objective 8 is to organise tourism in Cayman more effectively.
- Policy objective 9 is to research and monitor tourism more effectively.

Implementation of the Recommendations

This document provides a consensual blueprint and charts a course for developing our tourism sector to the benefit of all. Unlike the way previous studies have been shelved, we are determined to act upon this report and not to allow it to be relegated to the bookshelves of a few persons for dust collection. The challenge now is implementation, and my Ministry and the Department of Tourism are therefore proposing the following mechanism for implementing the recommendations of the Tourism Policy Framework.

Implementation Committees

The Ministry and the Department of Tourism are proposing that committees comprised of a wide and diverse group of public and private sector representatives help drive this policy to ensure successful implementation. It is suggested that various sub-committees be appointed, with one steering committee that would be in charge of overseeing the implementation of the action items in the NTMP and the sub-committees that would deal with similar action point issues.

I have already spoken to the Chamber of Commerce and have asked them for recommendations for members for the various committees. Through this venue I ask the public that should they believe they can make a contribution, that they contact my Ministry and say, "I would like to serve on a committee". There are several committees which will, of course, get further publication.

The Steering Committee

This would be the overall coordinating body that will provide oversight for ensuring the implementation of the Management Policy. This body would guide the work of the sub-committees and they in turn would all report to this steering committee. It should be noted that in Section 6 of Tourism Law (1995 Revision), there is a provision for the annual appointment of a Tourism Advisory Council (TAC), whose terms of reference is to provide oversight and advice to the Minister of Tourism on tourism matters. This Council has not been convened for several years, and it is proposed to reactivate this body with a mandate to serve as the steering committee for the Tourism Management Policy. The Council will focus mainly on ensuring that the Management Policy recommendations are implemented, monitoring the progress of the committees and providing additional policy advice as required by the Minister.

Sub-Committees

Human Resources Committee

Providing information and creating awareness on a consistent basis on the importance of tourism to the Cayman Islands, the wide range of lucrative and exciting opportunities that exist in the sector, and dispelling the antiquated ideas of service equating servitude, are critical issues that need to be addressed to increase the involvement of Caymanians in the tourism sector. This sub-committee would comprise members in both the private and public sector. These members would be responsible for providing oversight and implementing all recommendations in the Management Policy relating to human resources development for tourism, including conducting a comprehensive needs assessment, as well as all tourism education, awareness and training. It should be noted that the 1992 Coopers & Lybrand's Ten Year Tourism Development Plan for the Cayman Islands (1992-2002) had recommended the establishment of a standing Human Resources Council, with a mandate along similar lines.

Our young people in particular should take an opportunity to study the aspects of tourism, how it relates to the country, what it means as a career and they would get the understanding that there is money to be made in the industry and that they should be qualified. We have talked about the hospitality training services. The Government is moving ahead with purchasing that property, but we will put the first programmes through the Community College, so that we will take time to implement a proper training facility. That is the plan.

Information and Research Committee

This sub-committee's overall purpose would be to improve the monitoring of tourism in the Cayman Islands and research capabilities, so that key decisions are founded on sound information and the outcomes measured rationally. Specifically, it would identify data requirements; review data gathering and analysis procedures; develop a tourism economic impact model for Cayman; and improve market research.

Transportation Committee

Ensuring adequate means of transportation and facilities that are of a high quality is key to the success of the tourism sector. This sub-committee will be responsible for action points in the Management Policy relating to facilities and services at the airports; ground transportation including taxi and bus operators; and public transportation issues. As a note, the Public Transportation Board (PTB) that currently exists and operates already deals with the majority of issues that this committee would need to oversee. However, there needs to be more oversight here.

George Town Port /Cruise Development Committee

In terms of a mandate, this committee would be responsible for matters and recommendations relating to cruise ship policy; cruise marketing plans; cruise facilities and services; and redevelopment plans for George Town. To a large extent this committee is already in existence in the form of the Port Improvement Beautification Committee (PIBC), which the Ministry of Tourism appointed in 2002. Their current terms of reference, as well as the standing members, can simply be extended to ensure that all action points covered in the Management Policy are adequately dealt with.

Environment Committee

With the tourism product in Cayman being primarily based around the natural environment, the role of this sub-committee takes on special importance. Matters and action points in the Management Policy relating to environmentally protected areas; marine conservation; management plans for Stingray City and other sites; impact assessments for large projects; creation and management of artificial reefs; enhancement of public beaches; creating a more environmentally friendly tourism sector; and developing an Agenda 21 strategy and seeking Green Globe certification for tourism products. It should be noted that the current Beach Erosion Committee appointed by the Ministry of Tourism is currently dealing with the specific issue of beach erosion and the body being proposed here can be an expansion of this existing committee.

Product & Infrastructure Enhancement Committee

This sub-committee would be responsible for items pertaining to the improvement of facilities and services at current land based attractions; the development of new attractions; development of an accreditation and award scheme for accommodations and attractions; development of a formal local design guide; the development and marketing of cultural resources; promotion of small scale eco-tourism type developments; and the improvement and standardization of signage.

The Ministry will appoint the Steering Committee and various sub-committees shortly and invites persons with a genuine interest in promoting sustainable tourism in these Islands to volunteer. I will reiterate the theme of last year's Annual Tourism Conference: "Tourism is everybody's business".

The action plans contained in the Management Policy will require the participation of numerous and diverse agencies – ranging from private tourism associations to various cultural, educational and environmental organisations to the Economics and Statistics offices. Managing this process will be no small task, but I understand how crucial it is to do this, Mr. Speaker, and I am committed to getting our public and private sector together to address our tourism challenges in a meaningful and effective manner. This new Tourism Management Policy will be a critical tool to preserving and building our tourism industry and I humbly request that this report not just be accepted, but be widely supported in the years ahead, understanding, Mr. Speaker, the country's problems, the need for revenue and the need for a better tourism product.

Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, and I lay the copy of the Focus for the Future; A Tourism Policy Framework for the Cayman Islands, on the Table of this Honourable House.

The Speaker: So ordered.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

MOTIONS

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 1/03

The Cayman Islands Government Securities Law (Law 33 of 2002)

(Continuation of Debate thereon)

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? First Elected Member for the district of George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

In looking at this Government Motion 1/03 and listening to the Honourable Third Official Member presenting the Motion yesterday, I think that there are some questions that need to be answered to clarify the situation, especially for us on this side, for us to be able to carefully examine the Motion and be able to do justice when the vote takes place. In making a contribution to the debate on the Motion, I am going to be asking some questions which I trust the Honourable Temporary Third Official Member will be able to give clear answers to in his reply.

It was obvious yesterday that the Honourable Third Official Member did not have at his fingertips the exact breakdown of the disbursement of these funds for the securities issue and, while he made mention of some figures, I think perhaps it would serve us well if we were able to hear exactly what the breakdown is.

We know that the Motion calls for securities to be issued not exceeding US$163.2 million. The Honourable Third Official Member mentioned yesterday that when this amount was decided upon, that was apparently what the total was in US dollars that was being sought to be able to liquidate in loans. Since the process has been a bit drawn out, the Government has been making its regular payments on the loans, so that the total amount that needs to be paid out now, instead of being the $128 million that the Honourable Financial Secretary mentioned, (and seemingly some CI$19.2 million has been paid down on the principal).... However, his argument yesterday was that the amount that was decided upon had already been fixed in the preparations for this issue. That is basically all that he said to justify why the amount was not changed, since there is CI$19.2 million less which has to be paid out in loans at present or by 31 March.

I am certain, because I checked it out, that just because an amount is fixed at the beginning does not mean that all this time that money is being paid down, that once all the parties were aware of what was happening, that if there was a need or a desire to reduce the amount, that it could not have been done. It certainly could have been done. I do not know the exact name of the entity that is being dealt with at present, and perhaps I did not check with those people directly, but I have checked with others who are in the same business and they did not show me any reason why there should have been a difficulty. I only say that based on what the Honourable Third Official Member said, and that was the only reason he gave why the amount was not changed. Now, Mr. Speaker, if we simply corral our thoughts to the basics, there is an amount of CI$19.2 million which is part and parcel of the total amount of the securities issue. So, at 5.3 per cent, (which is a very good rate, in our opinion, for today's market conditions), it means that we are borrowing CI$19.2 million, which is just under US$23 million, (US$22.85 or $22.86 million), to put into general reserves and we are going to be paying that back over fifteen years at 5.3 per cent. I do not know when we put that money into general reserves how it would be invested and I do not know if expectations can be that the returns from that amount can be more than 5.3 per cent. Thus, there are questions that need to be answered if justification is to be given to an action.

The other question that needs to be asked is, "Do we keep general reserves in foreign currencies or do we keep them in CI (Cayman Islands) dollars?" If we only keep them in CI dollars we are going to be borrowing US dollars and having to take those US dollars to purchase CI dollars to put in general reserves. I do not know. However, those questions need to be looked at because if we are looking at it in that manner then certainly we have to equate one against the other as to which one brings the best return and, therefore, what justifies borrowing a sum to place it in general reserves.

There are other questions that can be raised and perhaps there are thoughts that can be addressed to the situation. I do not know when funds are placed in general reserves whether those funds are at any point leveraged, for instance with the overdraft account that the Government has. If they are leveraged, does that give the Government a preferential interest rate for the overdraft account? I do not know, but the point that I circle this issue with is that it makes no sense to me to borrow CI$19.2 million to place on general reserves if it is going to cost us more to borrow it than we would get from having it. It is not like we are taking the money to do something, for example taking it to build a school; it is not like we are liquidating a debt that we are paying a higher interest rate for. That is the question that I ask and I do not know the answer to it. If this is a conscious decision because of due reasoning, then certainly we would like to hear that.

When you speak about this amount and about liquidating our debt, the immediate question that comes to mind in relation to what the Honourable Third Official Member said yesterday is, "Is this CI$108 million that he speaks of, the total public debt?" Are we liquidating the total public debt and are we only having this one securities issue at this time? That needs to be answered. We, on the Opposition, recognise that the big advantage of this securities issue, (and it is timely for us as a country), is that unlike many of the myriad loans that exist at present, (all borrowed at different times, some at different rates, for different terms, the majority of them short term), we will have a securities issue which will have a lifespan of 15 years, whereby we will be making two payments annually on principal and interest. So we are taking on a debt that will go on for 15 years which will liquidate much of our short term debt. The advantage that the country will have is that we would be paying about US$15.5 million per year on the repayment schedule for this securities issue compared to approximately $27 million a year on the short term loans including principal and interest.

What it does is it freezes up perhaps close to $10 million a year of general revenue which otherwise, in the short term, would have had to be paid on these loans. That in itself has to be an advantage. In these times when there is so much uncertainty, anything of that nature would work well for us, to give us that type of latitude in case revenues dip for reasons beyond our control and global conditions lean in that direction. At least it would not have us hamstrung for that amount, having to take that out of general revenues just to satisfy debt service.

The principle is not something that we disagree with at all. In fact, we think that now it makes sense. We just have those questions with regards to the amount of money that is going in to general reserves and the advantages of borrowing that money to place that money in general reserves, and what the net reserves are going to be from the one side compared to what the cost is going to be of getting that money on the other side.

When I think of the other pressing needs for the country—and I do not know the Government's disposition, but perhaps they might wish to air the thought—if we are looking at certain types of capital expenditure that are absolutely necessary, if there is a commitment to priorities by the Government, for instance in the area of education and public school facilities, what is the plan with regards to those facilities if we going to have them open by September of 2004? Are we going to be looking at engaging in capital expenditure by way of the orthodox method of loans or how are we going to do it?

I was just handed an editorial in the Cayman Net News of 19 March which speaks about the Government's policy regarding education. If you would allow me just to read two quick paragraphs. It is referring to the Minister's statement and it says: "Mr. Bodden's announcement of the plans for the construction of a high school and two more primary schools in the Cayman Islands is to be applauded. Government is aiming to having all three schools up and running by next September [that would be September 2004] the total cost of about $28 million dollars."

While that point is not directly related to the Motion, I am using that as an example to try to get a clear picture as to which direction the Government would be leaning towards with regards to capital expenditure of that nature.

The other issue, which I spoke about yesterday, Mr. Speaker, and I would crave your indulgence not to be too repetitious, but I must admit that I feel very strongly about this and I want to be allowed to express the opinion again with regards to the securities issue and a sinking fund.

The Law as it stands speaks of a sinking fund and the ability to either have one or not have one when there is an issue of security. So there is latitude to make the decision. The Honourable Third Official Member went on yesterday and said the same thing over and over, that, since this securities issue was over a 15-year period and since there were two payments annually, the fact that the monies would be budgeted for every year in our Budget, does not make a sinking fund a requirement.

My position is that it is the safest way to go notwithstanding this securities issue, but for any security issue, whether it is this one or any other one in the future. I mentioned yesterday and I would like to mention again, my thoughts about this matter. How strongly I feel has nothing to do with us in this Legislative Assembly today, but we do not know what the future brings and that is my whole point. I believe even if you budget every year for whatever your obligations are with regards to paying down on this securities issue, if you have a sinking fund and the money is allocated to that fund, every time the payment comes due you know the money is there. Even if you have it budgeted otherwise and no matter how much monitoring is done—and the Third Official Member spoke to a statutory obligation, and there are many statutory obligations, depending on Government's cash flow—it is not impossible—and I speak not about anyone's ability to manage the affairs of the country or to manage the money of the country,—for something to come up and Government to find itself in a position with not having the ready cash available to make the payment when the payment is due.

If there is a sinking fund, and the fund exists, and the money is allocated there periodically, or using whatever mechanism is to be used, then there is no chance and that is my point. As I said, it does not directly relate to this Motion because the Motion does not address a sinking fund, but I think the issue is important. I implore the Government to think about the issue, not because I say so, but because I believe it is in the best interest of all of us to act in that manner and to be proactive by making the necessary amendment to the Law which would call for a sinking fund to be mandatory.

[Pause.]

My apologies Mr. Speaker. Getting back to the sinking fund. Yesterday when the Honourable Third Official Member spoke about statutory obligations, every Member who is here, and some who are not here any more, heard arguments about some type of statutory obligations. We speak about the past service liability regarding Public Service Pensions and we speak of that as a statutory obligation and some of us who have been in here long enough can remember the many battles we have had when previous Governments have brought forward budgets. If you do not remember right then and there about this obligation and you do not see it and you find out two months later that it is not accounted for in the Budget, but it is an obligation. I am only using that as an example to say that this obligation that we speak about, which is something that you cannot sit and wait on, and Government will have to honour the commitment, the safest way to deal with it is having a sinking fund. I am sorry the Honourable Third Official Member is not here today, but I would implore him and the Government to reconsider the position.

I reiterate that I remember distinctly when we first discussed this issue that the biggest problem the Third Official Member had was whether or not there was going to be a sinking fund. What convinced him that this was sensible and the way forward for dealing with the Government's debt, was the fact that there would be a sinking fund.

I would hope that the question that we have raised can be answered with clarity in the reply from the Acting Third Official Member. As I said, on principle we have no problems with the way forward that is being proposed by this Government Motion. Certainly it makes sense. Once it is done in the proper manner then it bodes well for the Government regarding its ability to function. So I will await the reply to see if we can get the few little areas that are a little muddy in our minds cleared away and then perhaps we shall be able to go home.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? Does any other Member wish to speak? Does any other Member wish to speak?

The Leader of Government Business.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, I think this is a good day for the country. We made history a short time ago when we presented the 30 June 2003 half year Budget and got it approved without a single figure being changed. Now, I can believe that we are at the brink once more when the Government Motion before the House is passed. It will be the first time that the Cayman Islands will obtain medium to long term funding by means of a note issue.

The Financial Secretary, the Honourable Third Official Member, provided detailed comments on the Motion yesterday. I will take a more stand back view and consider what it will achieve and also dispel any misconceptions about what it involves—or I would hope that I would dispel any misconceptions. I am not speaking to anybody in this House in particular, but to the wider public.

The note issue that the Government plans to execute will ease the annual cost of servicing our public debt portfolio. Government's numerous public debt loans would be fully repaid in 5-10 years if the Government were to maintain the repayment plan set out in the various loan agreements that underlie this debt. Whilst this may be seen as a good thing to have our public debt repaid in 10 years' time, it comes with a price to pay. That price equals or comes in the form of a considerable amount of the Islands' revenue being used to maintain such a stringent repayment schedule. For example, last year, Mr. Speaker, we paid some $27.1 million from revenue to make principle and interest payments on the Government's loan portfolio.

The planned note issue will result in us fully repaying the vast majority of our public debt loans in 2003. The Government will then repay the note holders the money they have lent the Government over a 15-year period. So, the effect of the note issue is to lengthen the period of time over which the Islands repay its debt. This, in turn, means that the annual debt repayment burden on Government lessens. For example, it is expected that from 1 July 2003 to 30 June 2004 the cost of servicing our public debt position—which is the planned note issue—will only be $16.1 million and for the year ending 30 June 2005 the repayments are expected to go down to $15.7 million. As we can see, both these amounts are much less than the $27 million paid in 2002. This means that more revenues can be freed up to finance capital acquisition and capital development. Where necessary, this also means reduced borrowing which means less public debt repayment and more of revenues being put towards building up reserves.

The note issue will also provide the Government with a fixed rate of interest for 15 years, I believe at something like 5.2 per cent. The interest rates charged on Government's existing loans are variable or floating rates and this means that as the interest rates in the market changes then Government's interest costs also change. Interest rates are now at very low level and a note issue enables the Government to take advantage of these very low rates for the duration of the 15-year life of the note.

Currently the Government has 17 loans, all of which have different repayment schedules. This means that a considerable amount of time is spent by the Treasury administering the public debt programme to ensure that all payments are made on time and so on. The effect of the note issue then is to reduce the number of public debt loans to two small loans, which will coexist alongside the note issue itself. I have asked for these. I do not know whether the Acting Third Official Member will have the total of those loans with him. I asked for them, but I do not know what the exact nature of those loans is.

The Cayman Islands Registered Stock Amendment Bill 2003 that was passed into Law earlier allows the Governor in Council to obtain funding by means of a note issue, but, as normal, the Government must first obtain the approval of the Legislative Assembly for any funds to be borrowed. If the House approves this Motion this gives the Government an additional choice of getting these funds by means of this note issue. This option was not open to Government before.

Prior to the previous Bill being passed into Law Government relied heavily upon borrowings from local commercial banks.

Those are the main achievements that will emerge if this Motion is passed.

The Motion and the Bill that was passed into Law earlier by the House are befitting the Islands' maturity and it will undoubtedly enhance and spread its well-known reputation for responsible financial management in the international arena.

I want to dispel any possible misconceptions about what this Motion entails. The passage of the Motion will not give Government unfettered power in the future to execute note issues without reference to the Legislature for approval. Each time the Government wishes to issue securities it must return to the Legislative Assembly and seek its permission to do so. So the Government will not stand to be accused of trying to circumvent the powers of the Legislative Assembly.

There is nothing in this Motion that contradicts or supersedes any provisions of the Public Management and Finance Law 2001. Mr. Speaker, this means that all the provisions in the Public Management and Finance Law relating to responsible financial management remain intact. Thus the requirements in that Law of maintaining a debt service ratio that does not exceed 10 per cent of revenues, revenues having to be greater than expenses, assets having to be greater than liabilities and cash reserves eventually being at levels that can support 90 days of expenditures. These must all continue to be met and this Motion does not alter those requirements.

It is also important to point out, Mr. Speaker, that Government is not going overboard in the amount of funds that it plans to obtain from the note issue. In fact, the size of the planned note issue is in respect of items that the Legislative Assembly has already approved. So the size of the note issue will pay off debts that the Legislative Assembly has approved in previous years plus obtain the $8 million that the House approved on the 7 January 2002 for capital development expenditure. That has been in the Budget for everyone to see since November and has been quite publicised, so I repeat that the FCO (Foreign and Commonwealth Office) approves of the note issue size. On the 25 June 2002 Baroness Amos wrote me a letter on this matter. The fourth paragraph of that letter states, and I quote: "Therefore I would be content for you to go ahead with a note issue of $136 million, the amount required to refinance your existing public debt and to meet your capital expenditure plans."

The C$136 million mentioned in that letter is equivalent to the US$163.2 million that is mentioned in the Motion.

The First Elected Member for George Town raised a matter of pressing needs and what I can say to him is what I said the other day: the Government is not going to spend more than we have. Government will be bringing a budget in June. We have said all along that we will prioritize the sectors that are in the most need. Education is a priority of the Government.

I heard the Member also mention the sinking fund and, as the Financial Secretary said, there is a statutory obligation, meaning that it is by law that we meet the necessary need. So we are not merely saying that it is an obligation that can be changed; it is a statutory obligation, meaning it is a regulation in place somewhere. So, I believe that, in his absence, the Honourable Financial Secretary is correct.

This is a good Motion and, to reiterate, I think that the country is showing its maturity.

The Speaker: Thank you. Does any other Member wish to speak? Does any other Member wish to speak? Does any other Member wish to speak? The Second Elected Member for the district of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I rise only to make a few comments on a Motion that I think has great merit and, I agree with the Leader of Government Business, is making history for this country.

The ability to match the financing period to the life of a project that is being financed, is a time tested financial principle. Debts incurred—such as hospitals that are expected to contribute to the development capacity of this country for 20 years—should be financed with long-term debt. The country should not have to bear the excessive burden of financing them over a very short period, so, in principle, I give my whole-hearted support to the Motion before the House to pursue the issuance of notes as a method of financing.

In the first contribution that I made in this Honourable House, I talked of an amount greater than the $163 million and I am pleased to see that this Motion has come before this House to give reality to what many of us have looked forward to.

I feel obligated, Mr. Speaker, to address two issues that have been raised so far. The issue regarding the difference between what the bond will be issued for and what will be used to refinance existing debt, some estimated $19 million.

The comments mentioned by the First Elected Member for George Town—under normal circumstances I would agree that it is not financially advisable to be borrowing at one rate to be using the funds that are not generating a rate in excess of what you are borrowing. However, these are not normal circumstances. Your general reserves are at a level that cannot sustain this country for any given period of time—a couple of days. Mr. Speaker, to take this money at a time in which we are able to secure a low long-term rate, to put it aside for emergencies (because that is what your general reserve is about) and in this day and age where we are seeing a world that is in more turmoil, is more prone to events that require the flexibility and ability to respond quickly, we need to have these funds. I will not try to attach a rate of return on having that ability to respond to the needs of this country in the event of an emergency, to have a cushion to rest on, to have something to stand on to say that we can deliver to this country a financial position, that in the event of an emergency and in the event of a need, we have these funds available.

It is my opinion that the internal rate of return of having that ability far exceeds the cost of borrowing. So, under these circumstances, it is prudent and good management to take these excess funds, this residual balance from this issue out of a debt at a time that is very advantageous to secure it, to ensure our ability to respond to whatever need may arise—be it a national disaster or a crisis, we will have the ability to respond because the Government will have some $20 million extra put away to deal with such circumstances.

I applaud the Government for taking this initiative, for taking this decision in a day and age where we are being told that our borrowing ability is being limited so that one of the avenues of responding to a crisis is limited. Our financial position and cash flow is becoming tighter and tighter. The ability of having a cushion has a rate of return that far exceeds what is going to be paid on this proposed debt issue.

I was also stunned at the mention by the First Elected Member for George Town that when you go out and borrow funds such as 19 to be put into a general reserve rather than being put in to things, I think he used the example of building schools, that could have a return, I have to say it stunned me that it came-

Point of Order

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: State your point of order.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The Member is misleading the House because I did not say what the Member is saying. If you want to take a suspension and get the Hansard, I only drew an example about these capital projects. I did not suggest at any point that the money should have been taken and put towards schools. I did not say that, Sir.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Mr. Speaker, I fully agree with the Member that what he used was an example and that is exactly what I would like to clarify. He stated it as an example, that to compare the analysis, he compared that if money was being borrowed to put into things such as schools that had a rate of return.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, since your intent has been made could you withdraw what you earlier said?

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Mr. Speaker, I withdraw what was earlier said. I will clarify it. I withdraw any reference that the Member stated that that is what the money should have been used for.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, are you satisfied?

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: The Member made an illustration to demonstrate that money borrowed that has a rate of interest to be paid on it, that if it is not being used for purposes—be it in general reserves that has a return through investments or other forms, or through investment into other projects that had tangible returns—that you had to weigh off the difference between what you were gaining on those funds versus what you were paying on those funds. That was my understanding of what the Member said and if that is not accurate I ask him to correct me at this time.

I am saying that it stunned me to hear that particular Member talk about that when in the year 2001 when his Government went out, when he was the Leader of Government Business and borrowed US$66.6 million of which approximately half of that was being used for recurrent expenditure. I ask him, and I ask anyone else, to tell me how that weighing off then between what you were paying, which was at libor, versus what you were getting back, what was the return? How did that weigh off? Why did he not put that analogy, which is a sensible and a prudent analogy, a proven balance, then? Why did he not use that method of thinking then? Because I heard a whisper of “Why did I convert it to US dollars”. Because that is what we are talking about—a Government bond issue of $163.2 is in US dollars and I would like to say that of that US$163.2 bond issue we must recall that $66.6 million of that is to refinance debt that was borrowed in 2001.

I am sure there were repayments since then that went to that debt. The point that I am making is one that I am sure that everyone in this House can get, including the Members of the Opposition.

The other point mentioned that I would like to articulate on is that of the sinking fund. Mr. Speaker, I am the first to say that in a bond issue with a 15-year term there should be a sinking fund. The ability is in the Law for there to be a sinking fund to allow for accumulation, so that when that balloon payment comes at the end you will have the funds available. However, in the situation of this bond issue, I was happy to learn yesterday that the Financial Secretary, under the option provided to him under this Law, has chosen an alternative route, a route to ring fence annual payments two times a year on the principle, which will be created as a statutory obligation, which does not have to be voted on in this House; it will be automatic; it will be the first claim on Government's revenue.

As a result of that prudent decision, the Financial Secretary detailed yesterday that there will be savings over the term of the loan of some US$67 million. Mr. Speaker, with that option being in place of having money put aside to pay two times a year—similar to how the payments are done now on your existing debt, which I think is quarterly—but allocated in one budget where you are going to have principle and interest repaid during a given year. That is the same format that this Government has chosen to pursue so we are going to have annual allocations in the Budget to cover the repayments and these repayments are going to be statutory based.

I fully appreciate the value of a sinking fund, but there is also administrative cost in maintaining and managing a sinking fund because you would not simply put these funds to one side and allow them to sit. They would have to be administered and invested, so we must also consider that when we are talking about creating a sinking fund for a period of six months, because that is the period you are talking about between your loan repayments.

I only make these comments in the interest of adding some light to an issue that I think is very important to this country. I think it creates a basis from which future capital development in this country should be looked at. It offers us a new avenue of financing for this country. I give the Government my support and the support of the Back Bench Members of the Government for this Motion.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? Does any other Member wish to speak? Does any other Member wish to speak? If no other Member wishes to speak, does the Honourable Temporary Third Official Member wish to exercise his right of reply?

Hon. A. Joel Walton: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

All figures that I have referred to in my presentation where I do not say US dollars it means CI dollars. I will try my best to stick to CI dollars and try to keep the differences in interpretation as much as possible. I will also be reading from some charts which will be difficult so I will try to take my time and reiterate it where possible to explain some of the questions that have been raised from the Members of the Opposition on this particular issue.

There was a question in respect of what was the break down of the proceeds of the note and I do have that information here and perhaps at this point it would be best for me to go back to what it was initially because it is a further question later on that asks, why did we get from where we were to where we are now. Initially, we planned to borrow CI$136 million rounded. $128 million was slated to pay off the majority of public debt loans that were outstanding at that time which was 31 December 2001 amounting to $128 million. The difference between CI$128 million to pay off loans that were outstanding at that date, and the $136 was the $8 million which we had planned to use to finance capital projects in 2002. So when you take those two figures together the $128 million to pay off the majority of the debt plus the $8 million towards 2002 capital projects, that gave us the total of $136 million which is the CI equivalent of the US issue.

Time passed and as expected due to the requirements of the respective statutory instruments that underpin these loans which we were paying, we made payments of both principle and interest so, by the date which we fixed to be Monday 31 March, we expect that we would owe $109 million rounded instead of the $128 million. That then left us with a difference of approximately $19 million or thereabouts. The point that has been discussed is why put that $19 million in general reserve as opposed to simply not taking up that amount. The Leader of Government Business and others have talked about why not to do that. The Financial Secretary yesterday also spoke to that point.

I would just like to add to that we have gone through a process whereby we have fixed this amount. Yes, you can change your mind, but we all know that by putting this money into general reserve we are protecting it. It is there, it is more easily available than having a situation where you need money and you have to go through the whole process of what we are going through right now to get that money. The general reserve fund is a fund that you use in the event of emergencies and emergencies occur very quickly. So I would say to Members—and I do understand their concerns about that defence—that I think we should look at it in the context of the situation we are faced with now internationally and knowing that this money is not going to be used for anything other than this House approves it for. In saying that, I would suggest that it is a wise and safe thing to do at this point.

There is a question about whether we should use the general reserve fund to leverage the Government's position in respect of other loans or in respect of the overdraft limit. I am not aware of any formal arrangements to do that. General reserves stand on their own in a separate fund, be it in the form of cash or securities. They are usually mostly held in US securities. They are usually held in US dollar denominations in investments, which we put through investment managers and they are not used as leverage to support other debts or the overdraft limit, which can go up from time to time.

I answered the question on that as to whether or not we hold general reserves in US and CI dollars. Yes we do. We hold them in US securities, we hold them in CI dollars and cash locally; we may hold them in Canadian as well. It depends on what is available at the time and what is the wisest investment at that time.

There was a question as well about the annual repayments on these notes and I do have some information on that here. Just remember that they have already been given.

There were some questions on the sinking fund issue. We have already had intervention on that. I read the Financial Secretary's notes on it and we spoke about it last night, just to say that this particular structure where we actually pay principle once every six months is exactly what you would want in situations where you have concerns about protecting your payments in the future.

Sinking funds are usually used in situations where you are not making your payments on your principle on a regular basis, that is why the Honourable Temporary Second Official Member asked me why call it a sinking fund, it sounds like you are sinking the money somewhere and when you need it you can go and find it and it is safe. In this situation we are doing exactly that. Every six months by law, we are paying this debt as opposed to waiting 15 years and paying it all at one time. That is what a sinking fund is used for and in those situations where you are not on a regular basis paying your principle amounts therefore you do not want to get caught out some 15 years down the road or whatever the case may be where you have to all of a sudden find $130 plus million.

My contribution is in respect of this particular issue.

I think I have just about covered all the questions. There was one smaller one. The question was how many loans will be left behind after we have done this consolidation. There are actually going to be two small loans of which I do not have the exact figures. There was some stuff that has been in existence for many years, some of them were 4% interest fixed; it did not make sense to do those. The repayment term on those was so short that we did not do that. For example, one of those small ones was one that was taken out in 1977 and it was repayable over 18 years, that was actually the interest fee so at the end of 2001 we still owed $44,000 on it and again because it is interest-free it did not make sense to refinance that so we just left it. It is a small loan and does not cost much in terms of administration so we just left that one. There is another one also which I do not see off-hand but those were two similar loans.

I think I have covered those points where there were questions. I hope it helps the Members to be more comfortable with the issue. It really only leads me to say thanks to all Members who contributed on this particular Motion and the piece of legislation yesterday. It brings us to the end of a very long road and, before closing I would like to take particular note of our Assistant Financial Secretary to Mr. Ken Jefferson who had been working in this particular project now for over a year. I would like to thank him on behalf of the House and also on behalf of the Portfolio of Finance and Economics. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Thank you Honourable Member.

The question is that this Honourable House acting in accordance with section 4(1) of the Cayman Islands Government Securities Law 2002 authorises the Governor in Council to issue securities in the form of notes on behalf of the Government of the Cayman Islands in the principle amount not exceeding US$163.2 million for the after mentioned purposes.

All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed. Government Motion No. 1/03 passed.

ADJOURNMENT

Motion to carry outstanding business forward to the Second Meeting of the 2003 Session

The Speaker: Since we have reached the completion of business could I have the motion?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, if I may.

The Speaker: Yes, Sir.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: There are some questions left outstanding and I think there is also two Private Member's Motions that are left outstanding and I am just inquiring of the Chair if there is a methodology that needs to be employed to make sure that it is carried forward.

The Speaker: Honourable Leader of Government Business I think the Member is asking if we can have a Motion as well.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Any business on the order paper would carry over. Once we agree that it is it will carry over. If you want a specific motion Mr. Speaker, I move that the business on the business papers not completed, be carried over until the meeting in June.

The Speaker: The question is that all business that is left outstanding be carried forward to the next meeting, which will be in June.

All those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed: That outstanding business remaining of the Business Papers be carried forward to the Second Meeting of the 2003 Session.

The Speaker: May I now have the motion for the adjournment.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until a date is named.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do adjourn until a date to be decided.

All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

At 1.23 pm the House stood adjourned for a date to be decided.

OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT
WEDNESDAY
11 JUNE 2003
10.06 AM
First Sitting

The Speaker: I will call upon the Member for the district of North Side to grace us with prayers.

PRAYERS

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office. All this we ask for Thy great Name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen

Proceedings resumed at 10.09 am

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS OR AFFIRMATIONS

Oath of Allegiance
(Administered by the Clerk)

The Speaker: The Honourable Member has not yet arrived and I would ask the Leader of Government Business if he would perhaps move a motion for the appointment to be done at a later stage during today's Sitting.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I move that . . . Madam Speaker, the Member just arrived.

The Speaker: Thank you, Honourable Minister for your willingness to accommodate the Parliament. Please stand.

Mr. Donovan W. F. Ebanks: I, Donovan Ebanks, do swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, her heirs and successors, according to law, so help me God.

The Speaker: On behalf of this Honourable House I welcome the Temporary Honourable First Official Member and we trust that he will have a brief and enjoyable sitting.

Mr. Donovan W. F. Ebanks: Madam Speaker, thank you, and my apologies for being late.

The Speaker: Accepted.
Be seated.

READING BY THE HONOURABLE
SPEAKER OF MESSAGES
AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

Apologies House Visitors

The Speaker: I have received written apologies from the Honourable First Official Member who is off on official duties, and as you have seen, we have just sworn in the Temporary Honourable First Official Member.

I should also wish to take this opportunity to welcome teachers, Mr. Smith and Miss Campbell, from the Catholic school (St. Ignatius Preparatory School) and their respective classes, year 4S and 4C. I trust that as you peruse and listen carefully to today's proceedings your Social Studies class learning about how your government works will come alive and will be forever etched on your memories.

I understand that the Honourable Minister responsible for Planning, who is to lay a paper on the Table of the House, is on his way.

Having spoken to Year 4 class yesterday, I know that they are quite interested in meeting the Members of Parliament including the Official Members, as their examinations are quite important to them. So, at this time I propose, with the leave of the House, to take five minutes suspension so that Members can take this opportunity to meet and mingle with the Year 4 class, their teachers and parents, if necessary. If there are no objections we will suspend for five minutes.

Proceedings suspended at 10.12 am

Proceedings resumed at 10.30 am

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND OF REPORTS

Cayman Brac Report 2003-2007

The Speaker: I acknowledge the Deputy Leader, the Honourable Minister responsible for Planning.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the Cayman Brac Report 2003-2007 prepared by the Sister Islands Ad-Hoc Committee for Sustainable Development dated 22 January 2003.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Would the Honourable Minister wish to speak thereto?

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Please proceed.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, Cayman Brac and Little Cayman have generally developed economically at a much slower pace than Grand Cayman. In particular, Cayman Brac has suffered from a declining population and successive governments have tried to look at ways of encouraging and promoting economic growth there. While various economic and incentive packages are on going to help provide investments stimulus in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman it is clear that much more still needs to be done. In June 2002 Executive Council established the Sister Islands Ad-Hoc Committee for Sustainable Development.

The approved terms of reference for the committee called for the preparation of implementation plans in the following areas requiring development:- Physical (Development Plan guidelines and infrastructure); Socio-cultural; Natural Environment; and Economic.

The chairman of the Development Control Board chaired the Committee and membership was drawn from both public and private sector. The Director of Planning and Cayman Brac and Little Cayman planning staff served as Secretariat for the Committee.

Madam Speaker, it is important to note that while the Committee was established under the Ministry of Planning, the reports considered overall sustainable development and called for a broad range of actions that are spread across other Ministries of Government as well.

The Committee decided due to the short time frame and the more urgent economic situation on the Brac that the initial work and focus would be in the Island of Cayman Brac. The plans for Little Cayman will be undertaken at a date to be fixed by the Steering Committee.

The key recommendations of the report are:

- That a steering committee be formed to oversee the implementation of the policies and strategies;
- That Cayman Brac be provided with efficient, cost effective and suitably scheduled air service that is capable of responding to and meeting the current and future needs of the Island. (This would involve some changes to the Gerrard Smith terminal to bring it up to international standards);
- That Government lead the decentralization initiative by locating some of it's Grand Cayman services to the Brac;
- That the Brac be marketed as a secure and safe location for e-commerce and support services;
- That 'X' per cent of Cayman Islands Development Bank (CIDB) funds be earmarked for the development on the Brac to make financing available to qualified businesses and business persons for start-up and/or expansion;
- That healthcare facilities and quality of services at Faith Hospital be reviewed considering the unique situation (90 miles separation) of the Brac (from Grand Cayman);
- That there be greater security of tenure for those persons who are deemed suitable of being part of the Caymanian community;
- That a Land Use Management System (LUMS), which enables investors and applicants to predict the likely outcome of development applications and designed specifically for the Brac, be adopted by the end of planning period (2007);
- That piped water be available throughout the most populated neighbourhoods of the Brac by the end of planning period (2007);
- The quality of the natural environment be protected through incorporation of best development practices;
- That future developments be designed to replicate and emulate that nostalgic island setting of the Brac;
- That the Bluff be developed sensitively as a premiere upscale residential and safe business area;
- That the Development Control Board's policy as contained in the Development Plan 1997, be replaced by these guidelines instead;

- Adequate road access through the whole length of the Bluff with strategic connections to the ring road should (in due course) be provided for development purposes;

- That land around Creek Harbour should be earmarked for industry so as to avoid any conflicts with potential residential development in this area;

- That the existing landfill site at the foot of the Bluff (Block 97C Parcel 14/1) should be discontinued and the new site on the Bluff (Block 101A Parcel 22 REM 2) opened as a matter of priority;

- That there should be a set of performance standards to mitigate the affects of non-conforming land uses;

- That some historical and cultural buildings and sites be conserved /preserved;

- That eco/nature, diving and health tourism be adopted as the Brac's tourism niche;

- That there be an increased range of educational opportunities to equip the Brackers to participate in the new economy;

- That critical environmental areas be designated for protection.

Madam Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to sincerely thank the hard-working members of the Sister Islands Ad-hoc Committee for Sustainable Development and to congratulate them on producing this comprehensive and thorough report in such a relatively short period of time.

The Ministry of Planning, Communications, Works and Information Technology is currently addressing several of the recommendations, namely:-

- the recent gazettelement of a new road (Songbird Drive) on the Bluff to encourage development and provide access to lands formerly without road access;

- The opening of a new landfill facility and closing of the old site on the south coast is a priority. And I will be making a separate statement on this matter. I can say, Madam Speaker, that I am presently seeking Capital funds in the Budget for the development of the new landfill.

- The proposals to amend the Development Plan 1997 is also being considered as part of the ongoing Development Plan Review and I will also be giving a progress report on this in due course to this Honourable House;

- Government has recognized the unique opportunity provided by our strategic geographic location as well as our current main industries and has been working with the private sector to position ourselves to diversify our economy.

- As a major financial centre in the 21st Century, the need for sophisticated information technology services has joined the traditional requirements for financial and legal professional services. The availability of a sister island, 90 miles away with high-speed fibre optic transmission links and the protection of a 140ft bluff give Grand Cayman a competitive edge. It provides a much-needed service for businesses in Grand Cayman that require off-island secure backup that is still within the Cayman Islands legal jurisdiction. It also gives our business community one additional competitive advantage for attracting new businesses.

Madam Speaker, the Brac Informatics Centre (BIC) has embraced this opportunity identified by Government and serves as a foundation for growing Cayman Brac's potential as a secure and safe location for e-business and e-commerce. Brac Informatics Centre is licensed and regulated as both a Disaster Recovery Centre and Data Centre. From their world-class hardened facility in the Brac they are currently servicing clients throughout the Caribbean as well as North America. BIC services range from the provisioning of private and shared media vaults to 24X7 managed mini data centres for their clients. This is an important step in providing an infrastructure that gives the Cayman Islands an opportunity to compete in this new industry. The Government will continue to support the private sector by taking additional steps such as the development of needed legislation.

Madam Speaker, I am also pleased to report that the Brac has already experienced an influx of business travellers visiting Brac Informatics and has also brought the excitement of potential new technology based careers to its youth. BIC recently sponsored Cayman Brac High School Students so they could participate in the recent Technology Expo and the students spent time in the BIC facility where some will be interning this summer for additional experience. Cayman Brac is also receiving recognition as an e-business location as Brac Informatics presents their Cayman Islands based services at conferences throughout the Caribbean and the North America.

As I have said before, Madam Speaker, the issues facing Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and covered in the Report relate to a wide range of issues and Government as a whole will be involved with the implementation of its recommendations.

In March 2003, Executive Council approved the Brac Report 2003-2007 of the Sister Islands Ad-Hoc Committee for Sustainable Development and at that time directed that it be laid on the Table of this Honourable House.

Madam Speaker, Executive Council further directed that a steering committee be established to oversee the implementation of the recommended policies and strategies contained in the report. The District Commissioner was invited to convene this committee in consultation with representatives from each Ministry and the private sector within Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. The Committee is expected to forward discussion on how best to implement the recommendations and is expected to report back to the Honourable Minister of Health Services, Agriculture, Aviation and District Administration.

The District Commissioner is in the process of assembling the Steering Committee and is expected to provide a progress report in the near future.

Madam Speaker, in closing I wish to assure the people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman that my Ministry and indeed the entire Government is cognizant of the unique situation that exists in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and pledge to continue to do everything possible to facilitate improvement in the quality of life in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Thank you, Honourable Minister.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MINISTERS AND OFFICIAL MEMBERS

The Speaker: I acknowledge the Second Elected Member for the district of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Question No. 18

No. 18: Mr. Lyndon L. Martin asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Planning, Communications, Works and Information Technology if Cayman Brac and Little Cayman are covered under the ambit of the currently proposed National Road Plan and, if so, does the Plan call for the resurfacing of the main roads on Cayman Brac that are now 22 plus years old.

The Speaker: I recognise the Honourable Minister responsible for Planning.

Perhaps I could ask the Minister to give Mr. Connolly just a second to distribute the response.

Honourable Minister you may now proceed.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, Cayman Brac and Little Cayman are not covered under the ambit of the National Road Plan that is currently being prepared. The National Road Plan will address transportation infrastructure on Grand Cayman, and while resurfacing of roads will be addressed as an aspect of management of the road network, this is not the main focus of the National Road Plan. The National Road Plan is being carried out in Grand Cayman for two main reasons, firstly to improve performance of the existing road network with particular emphasis on reducing severe traffic congestion; and secondly to plan and implement future expansions to the network to accommodate future growth of the Island.

For the Brac's future, it is highly unlikely that traffic levels on Cayman Brac and Little Cayman will increase to levels of that in Grand Cayman. Therefore, as the National Road Plan is envisaged to continue in perpetuity, management and planning of a comprehensive road network for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman will be addressed in a subsequent phase and as the demand so justifies.

Most of the main roads on Cayman Brac are sand sealed, which is an older method that was also used in Grand Cayman. While the pavements may be considered old (some 15-20 years), the useful pavement life cycle has not been exceeded, primarily because traffic flows are relatively light. Cayman Brac PWD also carries out routine maintenance and this has helped to prevent rapid deterioration of the road surfaces.

The Speaker: Are there any supplementaries? Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Supplementaries

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I would like to thank the Honourable Minister for his answer. In the answer it was stated that the road system is considered old, however, the useful pavement life cycle has not been exceeded. I would simply like to bring to the Minister's attention that the road that was originally paved was paved with a very thin layer, not the regular recommended thickness so that would consequently contribute to the life cycle and ask that . . . I have not had the opportunity to go through the report that was just tabled but I notice that in the report it recommended some new road systems. So, I ask that the Cayman Brac's report 2003-2007 and its recommended road corridors, in fact, the road around the Bluff be implemented into the second phase of the . . .

The Speaker: Honourable Member, may I ask you to convert it into a question shortly?

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Yes, Madam Speaker, I am asking for the Minister to give a commitment to draw a connection between the Cayman Brac report that was just tabled that has particular road corridors proposed, into the future phase of the National Road Plans.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister of Planning.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, it is quite a convoluted question but I will try to answer it. The Honourable Member stated that the road is sealed with a thin layer. Might I suggest to him that he discusses this matter with the Public Works engineers in the Brac who are better able to assess the quality of the road than him or me. My information is that the roads are still in pretty good shape and I am leaning toward the information I have received from the roads engineers at the Public Works but it is my intention to do a visit in the not too distant future to the Brac, as in Grand Cayman, to examine the roads.

With regards to the report I just laid on the Table of the House he might recall that I mentioned that the new corridors are not intended for the present road development plan but will be looked at as a future exercise and as the demand merits. As a fact, Madam Speaker, the Honourable Member has a private members motion dealing with the situation at the Brac and he can debate it at that time. I would be happy to reply to it.

The Speaker: Supplementaries? If not we will move on to the next question. I recognise the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Question No. 19

No. 19: Mr. Lyndon L. Martin asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Planning, Communications, Works and Information Technology if the current licence for CITN includes any implicit or explicit agreement to broadcast to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister responsible for Planning.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, there are currently a total of 24 channels available to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and one free over the air channel. Twelve (12) are provided by Cayman International Television (Cayman) Network Ltd. (CITN) and 12 by Cayman Television Service (CTS); this compares to Grand Cayman with a total of 36 channels available; 18 provided by CITN and 18 by CTS, with two free over the air channels.

The Cayman Islands Government issued CITN's most current Broadcast Licence on the 27th of April 2000. The Licence was granted under the provisions of Section 10 of the Broadcasting Law (1997 Revision).

The current Broadcast Licence does not explicitly require CITN to provide services to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. The licence gives CITN the authority to establish, maintain and operate a broadcasting station for the purpose of reception and transmission of telecommunications radiated within or outside the Licensed Area. In the definitions of Schedule A of the Broadcast Licence the "Licensed Area" means the Cayman Islands.

It is the Ministry's understanding that there are plans for upgrading the cable service to Cayman Brac in the near future. At that time Cayman Brac and Little Cayman will receive the full range of channels that is currently available in Grand Cayman.

Supplementaries

The Speaker: Are there any supplementaries? The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you, Madam Speaker. In the answer given it was stated that 24 channels are available to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman; one free over the air channel. It is the free over the air channel – and I refer to things like the CITN news. As a person who lives in Cayman Brac, that is currently not available in the Brac. For those who do not have cable, I am asking the Minister to recheck through his Ministry to see if that is currently . . . It was the case but currently it has been suspended. And when it was there it was a rebroadcast, it was taped – not a live broadcast. So, I am simply asking for that to be clarified that the free channel, including news and current day affairs in the Cayman Islands, the CITN broadcast, is available currently in Cayman Brac.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister of Planning.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, I believe that the last paragraph of my answer might have answered some of the Honourable Member's concerns and I will read it again: "It is the Ministry's understanding that there are plans for upgrading the cable service to Cayman Brac in the near future. At that time Cayman Brac and Little Cayman will receive the full range of channels that is currently available in Grand Cayman".

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If not we will move on to the next question.

Honourable Minister we have now reached the hour of 11. Perhaps I can call on you to suspend Standing Orders 23 (7) and (8) to allow Question Time to continue beyond 11 am.

Suspension of Standing Order 23(7) and (8)

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, I beg to move that the relevant Standing Orders be suspended to allow for Question Time to continue.

The Speaker: Thank you. The question is that Standing Order 23 (7) and (8) be hereby suspended to allow Question Time to continue beyond 11 am.

All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed: Standing Order 23(7) and (8) be suspended to allow Question Time to continue beyond 11 am.

The Speaker: I recognise the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Question No. 20

No. 20: Mr. Lyndon L. Martin asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Planning, Communications, Works and Information Technology

if the Ministry has reviewed and adjusted the policy which limits the work carried out by the Government surveyors in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman for jobs valued under $3,000.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, for the past two decades Government has maintained a ceiling on surveys undertaken by Lands & Survey for the private sector on Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. This ceiling currently stands at $3,000 and will be increased to $3,500 at the beginning of the new financial year in July. It has always been Government's policy not to compete directly with private sector surveyors on Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and to undertake partitions of family lands and small family subdivisions only. In the case of commercial subdivisions, private sector surveyors are available to clients in all three Islands.

I would also add that we do receive the occasional query regarding Government surveyors doing private survey work in Grand Cayman. As I indicated earlier, Government does not wish to compete with private sector surveyors. At the moment, there are five (5) private sector survey companies operating in these Islands, all of which are based in Grand Cayman. In addition, the existing Government volume of survey work on Grand Cayman is such that there are no spare resources to allocate to private survey work. Most Government survey work is devoted to roads schemes on behalf of the Public Works Department and development of this country's infrastructure must take priority.

In summary, Government will maintain its policy to assist with private survey work on Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and will increase the ceiling for job values from $3,000 to $3,500. In the very near future, I expect to make a formal announcement in this regard.

Supplementaries

The Speaker: Are there any supplementaries?
The Member for North Side.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Madam Speaker. In the answer the last paragraph says, "In summary, Government will maintain its policy to assist with private survey work on Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and will increase the ceiling for job values from $3,000 to $3,500".

My question is, does this policy extend to persons in Grand Cayman who cannot afford the high surveyor fees?

The Speaker: Honourable of Planning.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, as I said I intend to make a formal announcement and I will certainly take into account the query made by the Honourable Member.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for the district of Bodden Town.

Mr. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. In the first paragraph it says, ". . . undertake partitions of family lands and small family subdivisions only".

Is that service extended to Grand Cayman also?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister responsible for Planning.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, in the absence of my backup administrative staff my understanding is that this applies now to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. But I will certainly look into the matter further.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you, Madam Speaker. My question deals with the increase in the ceiling from $3000 to $3500. Is the $3500 based on some kind of historical average of what the current survey work costs for the type of projects on the Brac residential developments and small family sub-divisions?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister responsible for Planning.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, this recommendation came from the Lands and Survey Department and they have carried out a study and determined that this was the appropriate fee to be charged.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If not we will move on to the next question.

Before I call on the questioner I am going to ask my deputy to deputise for about 10 to 15 minutes so that I can assist with the Year 4 and their teachers continuing their tour of the building and meeting of the staff.

Proceedings suspended at 11.05 am

Proceedings resumed at 11.06 am

[Deputy Speaker in the Chair]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

The First Elected Member for the district of George Town.

Question No. 21

No. 21: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Health Services, Agriculture, Aviation and District Administration what is Government's policy regarding enforcement of the National Health Insurance and Pension Laws.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, the Government's policy is that enforcement of the National Health Insurance Law, 1997 and the Health Insurance Regulations (2002 Revision) must be carried out to the fullest extent possible.

To date, the authority for such enforcement is given in the Regulations which in section 16 permits the Cayman Islands Monetary Authority to appoint inspectors for the purposes of the Health Insurance Law.

Regulation 17 (1) sets out the powers of the inspector and Regulation 17 (2) sets out the grounds for such inspection to be made. The powers of the inspector and the grounds for inspection are as follows:-

Regulation 17. (1) An inspector shall, for the purpose of performing his functions under these regulations, have power-

(a) to enter, without previous notice, at all reasonable times, any premises or place liable to inspection under the regulations and the Law;

(b) to examine the records maintained under regulation 18 and to make such examination and inquiry as may be necessary for ascertaining whether the provisions of the Law are being or have been complied with;

(c) to examine, with respect to any matter under the Law or these regulations on which he may reasonably require information, every person whom he finds in any such premises or place; and

(d) to exercise such other power as may be necessary for carrying the Law into effect.

Regulation 17. (2) The premises and places liable to inspection under this regulation are any premises or place where the Authority has reasonable grounds to suspect that any person who is or ought to be insured under the Law is employed.

Furthermore, Mr. Speaker, section 17 of the Health Insurance Law provides for the Cayman Islands Monetary Authority to determine any disputed claim to a health benefit or a question arising in connection with a standard health insurance contract. In Section 18 of the Law, a person aggrieved by a decision of the Authority in such cases may appeal to the Grand Court.

Mr. Speaker, regarding the Pensions Law, that subject does not fall within my assigned responsibilities therefore I am unable to provide an answer.

Supplementaries

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. I am so sorry that, as I would have deemed to be customary, the second part of the question was not passed on so that I would have been able to get an answer to it. But I will make it a substantive question on another occasion. So, that is not a problem.

Mr. Speaker, can the Minister state where in his answer it says, "To date, the authority for such enforcement is given in the Regulations which in Section 16 permits the Cayman Islands Monetary Authority to appoint inspectors for the purposes of the Health Insurance Law". Can the Minister state how many inspectors have been appointed by the Monetary Authority?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, no inspectors were appointed. The superintendent of Health insurance sought to accomplish compliance under the Law and Regulations in an indirect manner. He obtained the agreement of the Immigration Board to link the granting and renewal of work permits with the requirement that health insurance coverage be provided. The Board does not verify this but there is a penalty for false declaration made on the application form.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I will turn it into a question but I think there is a clarification. First of all I think it is obvious that not every employee in the Cayman Islands has a work permit. In fact, while there may be many work permits in the Cayman Islands there are many employees who do not require a work permit, therefore the answer that has just been given, although it does not even satisfy that end of it, does not capture at all employees who are not with work permits. My question to the Minister then is – as he said the Immigration Board does not verify this – can he state if there has actually been any inspections done or any complaints received and dealt with regarding the National Health Insurance Law?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, the observations made by the Member I think are very correct. Indeed the present situation does not provide the inspectorate service for persons who are not on work permit at all under the present arrangement. The way it is handled goes a small way in carrying out this function. To the best of my knowledge there have not been any inspectors since the Law has been in effect appointed. The superintendent for Health Insurance has taken the attitude, while he was there to inspect the information to look at the information sent to him from the health insurance companies but to the best of my knowledge and information available there have been no inspections carried out in the premises of employers. So, to answer the Member I suppose in summary this part of the requirement of health insurance has not been very well carried out.

Mr. Speaker, I would just like to mention at this time that I expect in this Session of the House to bring a Bill forward which will set up a health insurance commission whose duty it will be to do these inspections and that persons will be appointed to carry out these duties once the House accepts and approves the Law to deal with this matter. The post of superintendent of health insurance, in fact was actually made redundant in the Monetary Authority and this post has been set up under the Ministry of Health. And it is the one that Mr. Mervyn Connolly will be taking up duties in the very near future.

This unit will function as an inspectorate with the full powers that I hope it will get through the passage of a law setting up an insurance commission.

Mr. Speaker, the Member also asked if there have been complaints made and if any has been resolved. I have inquired of the Monetary Authority and apparently there have been many and varied complaints made about the way health insurance is functioning but I am happy to say from that information as well there have been some complaints that have been reconciled.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. In the Minister's answer very early he said, "The Government's policy is that enforcement of the National Health Insurance Law, 1997 and the Health Insurance Regulations (2002 Revision) must be carried out to the fullest extent possible". So, the Minister has stated that is Government's policy. What is the Minister's disposition having explained that while there is this policy it certainly has not been carried out? Is it that this policy is a new policy or is this a policy that the Minister inherited when he took over the Ministry and if so, how are we now in the position that we are in when actually enforcement is to be fair, non-existent.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, this is a situation that I inherited. The largest number of complaints coming into the Ministry come from this area of responsibility.

Since I have been in the Ministry I have been doing my best to get certain amendments to the Law and to the Regulations and to bring into play this situation as it should be. I must state that it has not been the easiest task in the world and the appointments of inspectors has not taken place upon until now. There are two persons within the Monetary Authority as far as I am aware who look after these matters generally. But the inspectors who should be there on daily basis do not at this time exist, sorry to say, and in fact never existed.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. It is apparent from this example that the mere passage of legislation is insufficient to ensure that either government policy or indeed the proper enforcement of legislation, is going to take place.

My question to the Honourable Minister is this: With the creation of the proposed new health insurance commission is he satisfied that that new commission is going to be sufficiently staffed and resourced to enable it to carry out the important function of inspection of employers or businesses to ensure that they comply with the National Health Insurance Law in terms of the provision of adequate health insurance to their employees?

If we get a new health services commission but it is created devoid of adequate resources and staff I believe the Minister will agree we will be no better off than we are now.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister of Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I should make clear what I am attempting to do and that is to remove that whole inspectorate process out of the Monetary Authority. It is my belief that the business of the Monetary Authority should be to look at health insurance companies and to satisfy itself that they comply with the Law and they have the right capitalisation, et cetera.

But the function as the Member has highlighted, that of action inspected in the work place and dealing with complaints, I see that as being a very specialised area. I am attempting to set up a commission solely for that purpose and move it in to the Ministry. At some point when staff has been taken on – which I would wish to happen as quickly as possible – we will have to find location for the office and the rest of the staff to function from. But I believe that as long as health insurance continues to be mandatory in this country, for there to be reasonable and just administration of it we have to have an inspectorate that really functions. And I can assure the Member that it is my intention, once it is set up, to see that it does exactly that.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The Minister has in responding to an earlier question from my colleague, the First Elected Member for George Town, said that he had received reports from the Monetary Authority that there had been many complaints about the administration about the National Health Insurance Law generally. I wonder if the Minister could indicate whether or not he is aware that there have been (and there continues to be) a myriad of complaints about employers not providing adequate health insurance coverage to employees in the Cayman Islands, and that that is causing a major problem generally.

[The Speaker in the Chair]

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: The answer is yes, I am aware of it and it seems to be constantly increasing. It is a major challenge at this time, but it is a challenge which can be met. I can assure the Member and other Honourable Members of this House that if I am given the means of setting up a commission, as I have outlined, the matter will be dealt with.

Right now to the best of my understanding there are two officers in the Monetary Authority who are attempting to handle this along with the regulatory side of things. So it is absolutely unsatisfactory. The health insurance, like with the Health Services – they go hand in hand and they are receiving top priority attention right now.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I know the Minister spoke of a time frame as early as possible to get the inspectors in place and the regulatory body up and going, that is the health insurance inspector who I think he indicated will be Mr. Mervyn Connolly. I am wondering if the Minister would venture to give us a more definite time as to how he sees this going.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister of Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I would not attempt to put any definite time line but if I can have the amendments to the Law and the Health Insurance Regulations and the Law to establish a commission done during this Session I would venture to say that by November there will be a functioning unit in place. I will certainly shoot for that. I see no reason why it cannot be done, in that, the way I perceive the commission to be set up it will be able to function like an authority to hire and so on. That would also give opportunity of speeding up the process.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I thank the Minister for that undertaking providing we can get somewhere with the Law.

I am wondering if the Minister can tell us if his Ministry has received complaints in recent times regarding insurance companies cancelling health insurance or downgrading them to the minimum requirement.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I cannot say that the Ministry has received those complaints. It might be possible that such a complaint came in; there is one of the staff who deals directly with that area. But certainly from the information given to me from the Monetary Authority, they have received such complaints made by the public.

The Speaker: I will allow one more supplementary as I understand from the Clerk that a number have already been allowed.

The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Minister give this Honourable House an undertaking that he will look into that situation because that too, is much rumoured in this community – not much rumoured, it is written from many health care providers to the insured that they will be downgrading to the minimum requirement. And it is possibly in anticipation of a new law.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister of Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I can certainly give an undertaking because these are the things that need to be investigated, verified and corrected.

The Speaker: Moving on to the next question. I recognise the Elected Member for the district of East End.

Question No. 22

No. 22: Mr. V. Arden McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Planning, Communications, Works and Information Technology to give a progress report on the liberalisation of telecommunication in the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, I made a comprehensive report in this House before answering this question but I am sure the Honourable Member for East End would agree with me that the question might have been overtaken by events. I can say to the Honourable Member that liberalisation is on schedule. As a matter of fact, it is three months better than scheduled. It was initially planned for full liberalisation by July 2004 when the announcement was made by me in 2001. So, by April, instead of July, hopefully liberalisation will be kicking in.

I would further inform the Honourable Member that the Cayman Islands will have the distinction of having created some amount of history in the Caribbean, in that, the Cayman Islands have completed this phase of their liberalisation faster than any other island in the region.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, before you sit perhaps you could read into the record the written response.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, the response that I have here which I mentioned is not applicable and that I have not yet laid the progress report. It states: "Having recently made a comprehensive progress report in this Honourable House on the liberalisation of telecommunications in the Cayman Islands, perhaps the Member for East End would consider that this adequately answers his question on this subject. If not, Madam Speaker, I would be pleased to again read this report in answer to this question".

Madam Speaker, the report that I referred to is pretty much what I have just explained to the Honourable Member for East End. If he still wishes to have me read this – I think it is about three or four pages – I would be most happy to ask that this question be deferred so that I can do that.

Supplementaries

The Speaker: Thank you, Honourable Minister. Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, that progress report was made some time ago; I am talking about now. This question was submitted ten days prior to the legislature opening which was then postponed another week. So, I am talking about a progress up until today that the Legislative Assembly opens because I know there has been developments which were announced yesterday on the liberalisation of telecommunications in this country. That is what I was trying to seek from this answer.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, is it my understanding that you would wish to defer under Standing Order 23(5)? Please proceed with your response.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, I have been dealing with this subject for so long that I know it pretty much by heart. Any answer that I would bring in writing I know in my mind what the answer is. To specifically refer to what the Member spoke on (the progress report) I am sure he well aware that as it says, the progress report is not just one for all reports; there are several progress reports. I have given various progress reports on this very important matter and I do not think that he can get a better progress report than what was given yesterday. If he wants a more recent than yesterday I am not able to give it to him but yesterday's progress report states that we have advanced thus far that the heads of agreement have now been signed which is the first step in liberalisation and within one month of the signing of these heads of agreement the main agreement will be signed hopefully by the 10th July. Once that is signed, Madam Speaker, liberalisation kicks in for four major areas: ISP by November 2003, Mobile by February 2004 and International by April 2004.

The Speaker: The Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, certainly it would be in the interest of this Honourable House if that report was laid on the Table, that is, in reply to my question. The report that the Minister refers to having been made yesterday was done through the media. The media does not cover all in any report; it covers what they consider the important parts. The details of that are certainly not covered in a media report. I believe that it is only fair that this Honourable House sees what that report contains in general terms be it through the reply to this written question in writing. And I would respectfully request that that is how my question should be answered.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, with all due respect to that Member when I am answering a question in here I provide an answer. His question is asking me to give a progress report on the liberalisation of telecommunications in the Islands. Whether that progress report is given verbally or in writing, it goes into the Hansard as a progress report. I do not know what section of the Standing Order he is referring to that says that I have to lay on the Table of this House. I referred to it in my answer but I told the Honourable Member that that would have been over come by events and I proceeded to give him a verbal report which is also recorded in the Hansard. He needs no further report, Madam Speaker. And I am not undertaking to provide any further.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, can the Minister then tell us the situation with Cable and Wireless and what other recommendations were discussed other than the one that has been arrived at between Cable and Wireless and Government in the liberalisation process.

The Speaker: Member for East End would you be so kind as to repeat that for me please. I just took cognizance of the last part of what you said.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, the Minister has said that just yesterday he gave a progress report to the country through the media. I am asking him now, what recommendations other than the one that was reached with Government on liberalisation of the service were discussed?

The Speaker: So, that I can understand: are you asking what or if there were other discussions?

Mr. V. Arden McLean: If there were and what were they, other than the rebalancing attempt that was made yesterday.

The Speaker: Thank you. The Honourable Minister responsible for Telecommunications.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, there were a multitude of negotiations that went into this whole process prior to us reaching this stage, much of which are still confidential in nature until we have signed the main agreement. When the main agreement is signed on the 10 July a full report and the main agreement will be made available to the public and the document laid upon the Table in this House.

At this point in time I have provided the Honourable Member with all of the information that I feel I am able to give him on this matter. If he has any further queries on this I would be happy to write them down and listen to them but as far as I am concerned I am not able to provide any further information on this matter at this time.

The Speaker: Final supplementary. The Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, may I then ask the Minister, in the process of liberalisation that was announced yesterday, there were numbers given out by the Press, that is, the rates for residential in particular. Would the Minister say if that represents an increase to the residential users in this country by some 20 to 25 percent?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible of Telecommunications.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, I am not really sure where the Member is going with these queries but the answer to that is no. I am a bit surprised with some of these questions because rather than being put on the grill in this matter I should be congratulated for getting this concluded to date, within three months of the timetable that I had given.

[Inaudible interjections.]

The Speaker: Order!

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Now I have also said to the Honourable Member that I will be making further progress report but he is wasting his time if he is expecting that I am going to do other than the commitment I have already given. He is also wasting the time of this Honourable House.

The Speaker: I acknowledge the Leader of the Opposition. It appears he is giving way to the Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Madam Speaker, I would just like to make this observation before I ask the question. The Honourable Minister has apparently become quite rankled by the line of questioning but I believe that Parliament, the Legislative Assembly and the Members are entitled to know what it is the Government is doing about any matter. We should not have to rely on the media for the report and then come in here and be faced with responses to questions: "You should have read about it in the paper." That is not appropriate at all.

My question to the Honourable Minister is, when is he or is he going to provide this Honourable House with an appropriate progress report so the Members of this House can have the information first hand and ask appropriate questions in due course?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Telecommunications.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, the answer is the progress report will be provided in due course.

The Speaker: Leader of the Opposition, did you still have a question? I did say to the Member for East End it was the last supplementary but I have caught the eye of the Leader of the Opposition hence the reason for me permitting extra supplementaries.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. In the Minister's answer he stated that he recently made a comprehensive progress report in this Honourable House on the liberalisation of telecommunications in the Cayman Islands. The substantive question is obviously asking for a progress report since that one, as time has elapsed. If I understand correctly, the Minister has stated that there was a press conference yesterday and also that a main agreement is to be signed in July and at that point he will bring everyone up to date. I want to ask the Minister if in his view his answer has brought Parliament up to date between his last report and right now, which is what the question was asking. And the certainly the substantive answer does not do that.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister I believe any response would be speculative as you are not in a position to assess the cognizance level of each Member but by all means if you wish to oblige the Member, please proceed.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, if I may.

The Speaker: Certainly

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: To make it absolutely clear, I am saying this question asked by the Member for East End is asking for a progress report. The Minister states in his answer that he recently gave one to this Legislative Assembly. Obviously time has passed since that one which was in another meeting to this meeting. The question is relating to the time between that last progress report and today. I am not asking an opinion but the substantive answer gives nothing of what has transpired during that period. I am asking the Minister if he can state by way of a progress report what has transpired since that period.

The Speaker: Honourable Member for George Town, the Leader of Opposition, I appreciate the clarification of that because I think it now rises above the level of speculation.

Honourable Minister of Telecommunications.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, with due respect also to that Honourable Member I provided all the information that I intend to do today on this question. I will in due course provide further information but I do not intend to comment further at this time.

The Speaker: Are there any other Supplementaries? The Leader of the Opposition.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, may I ask you a question. We just need to understand this because certainly I do not.

The Speaker: Please proceed.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: If a question is asked in this Honourable House do Ministers have a responsibility to answer the question as it is asked or can Ministers say they will answer what they please?

The Speaker: Is that the extent of your question? Leader of the Opposition Standing Order 23(4) says: “A Member of Government may decline to answer a question if an answer would, in the opinion of the Government, be contrary to the public interest”. I therefore ask the Minister of Planning if it is the Government's position that an answer at this time would be contrary to the public's interest.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: The answer to that Madam Speaker, is yes, for the reasons I gave earlier on the confidentiality of the matter at this point. But I have to comment further: I think the Honourable First Elected Member for George Town knows me well enough to know that I am not going to try to in any way bend the rules in this House. I am not going to do what I think should be done and ignore the Standing Orders in this House. To suggest that as a Minister I will do as I please, I think is an insult to me and to this Honourable House. Nothing could be further from the truth. What I do not intend to do is to answer to questions that I do not have the full information on and to matters that are still in a confidential stage. I have provided the information that I think is necessary at this time and I will not be probed into providing any confidential information or anything that could jeopardize the further negotiations in this matter.

The Speaker: Leader of the Opposition.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, the Minister must understand that no one was expecting him to provide information that would not be in the best interest of the negotiations at present. Also, the Minister must hear very clearly that I simply asked a question; I made absolutely no suggestion as to his behaviour. So when he says for me to suggest, I suggested nothing. And he must understand that absolutely clear.

The Speaker: Moving on to the next question, Madam Clerk.

I recognise the Elected Member for the district of East End.

Question No. 23

No. 23: Mr. V. Arden McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Planning, Communications, Works and Information Technology what is the timetable for the completion of the Linford Pierson Highway.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Planning.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, the portion of the Linford Pierson Highway, as stressed by the Member, extending from the roundabout at Bobby Thompson Way to Walkers Road will be constructed in a phased manner, commencing in this current half year. It has been agreed to start this next phase from Walkers Road, as it would provide a greater immediate benefit to the schools in the area. During the 2003/2004 Financial Year the section from Walkers Road, including a connector to the Community College will be built. Construction of the final phase of the project is projected for the 2004/2005 Financial Year.

The estimated cost of phase two from Bobby Thompson Way to Walkers Road (total length is approximately 1 mile) is $5 million. This is a budget estimate developed from the actual costs of Phase One of the Linford Pierson Highway and costs of other similar projects. Madam Speaker, I want to repeat that it is a budget estimate. As per our normal procedures, the detailed cost estimate will be prepared after completion of the topographic survey currently being carried out by Lands and Survey.

Total cost to date for the Linford Pierson Highway including the Silver Oaks Roundabout, widening and improvements near the Lions Centre, and the small roundabout at Bobby Thompson Way is approximately $8.9 million.

Supplementaries

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. It looks like this one is overloaded. But since the Minister has given us the cost of the existing section of the Linford Pierson Highway, I wonder if he can tell us how many miles of the existing section.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Planning.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, it seems that you never win: if you give too little you get complaints, if you give too much you get complaints. Madam Speaker, I do not have that specific information available but I would be happy to provide it to the Honourable Member.

The Speaker: The Leader of the Opposition.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Madam Speaker, in the substantive answer the Minister reports that the estimated cost of phase two from Bobby Thompson Way to Walkers Road which is approximately 1 mile is $5 million. In relation to the other parts of his substantive answer does this $5 million include the land purchases that may have to be involved in that process?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister of Planning.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, the answer is yes.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? The Leader of the Opposition.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Madam Speaker, the Minister also refers to the small roundabout at Bobby Thompson Way, which as we understood prior to this, was a temporary measure. Is it that once this other phase is completed that the right-sized roundabout will be built on the necessary improvements at that juncture.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister of Planning.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, the Honourable Member is quite correct. This roundabout is temporary. I am sorry to inform him though that the two small ones in town will remain as they are.

The Speaker: Leader of the Opposition, did you have a continuing supplementary? The Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The Minister in his substantive answer says that “. . . including a connector to the Community College will be built”. I am wondering if that is continuing through Fern Gardens or is it a connector from the extension right into the Community College. Initially there were plans to go through Fern Gardens up to the high schools. Is that still in the plans for the development of that area?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister of Planning.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, there have been some revisions to the plan. The road corridor now intends to go through part of Windsor Park and then connect on to Walkers Road and go behind the Community College. There will be a roundabout there so as to be able to disperse traffic properly. However, I would suggest to the Honourable Member that if he so wishes he could visit my office and I will show him exactly on the map the road corridor and the connection that is being made.

The Speaker: Are there any other supplementaries? If not we will move on to the next question. The Elected Member for the district of East End.

Question No. 24

No. 24: Mr. V. Arden McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Planning, Communications, Works and Information Technology to give a progress report on the work of the Transport Development Unit including terms of reference and time line.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Planning.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, I would ask patience of the House because this is a very important question and I have accordingly given he respect to it by providing some details.

Madam Speaker the Transportation Planning Unit has been established to address the future transportation needs of the Cayman Islands. Housed at Public Works, the Transportation Planning Unit presently consists of Mr. Edward Howard, Traffic & Transportation Engineer of the Roads Division at PWD and Mr. Denis Thibeault, Transportation/Urban Planner who has been seconded from the Policy Development section (formerly known as the Long Range Planning) of the Planning Department.

In the coming weeks and months, the unit will focus its effort on finalizing the overall structure and time line of work activities for the development and implementation of the National Road Plan, the Long Range Comprehensive Plan for ground transportation infrastructure and strategies to improve the performance of the road network. At the forefront of the National Road Plan is the development of a Master Trafficways Plan. This Master Trafficways Plan corresponds to the Proposed Road Corridors identified in the Development Plan, currently under review by the Central Planning Authority. This new plan will address the road network and other related issues such as the social, economic and development impacts.

Madam Speaker a National Roads Plan Advisory Committee has also been formed with a Terms of Reference as follows:

1. Act as the overall steering committee in the consideration and selection of appropriate and cost-effective solutions to plan for ground transportation infrastructure and strategies to improve the performance of the existing road network and its future expansion.

2. Define and finalize the parameters of a National Roads Plan for a 25 year planning horizon having regard to the following goals:

ACCESS AND MOBILITY - Provide an integrated transportation system that maximises accessibility and includes a variety of mobility options that serve the needs of residents, visitors and businesses island-wide.

TRANSPORTATION AND LAND DEVELOPMENT - Establish guidelines for creating land development and land use patterns that support public transit.

TRANSPORTATION EFFICIENCY - Preserve the Island's transportation system efficiency by creating a roadway network that reduces congestion, vehicle miles travelled, travel times, and improve levels of service.

SUSTAINABILITY - Provide an optimised transportation network that fosters the unhindered movement of goods and services island-wide through the implementation of a street hierarchy system which separates local traffic from island-wide traffic while minimising and mitigating impact on the natural ecosystems wherever feasible. A key element will be appropriate Stormwater Management Principles to be incorporated within the implemented transportation network.

3. Identify and define the barriers (institutional, legislative, physical and economical) which lead to inefficiencies of the existing infrastructure network.

4. Review and assess the current inventory of transportation infrastructure network (e.g. roadways, signage and traffic control devices, parking supply, et cetera) and identify levels of traffic demands and conditions.

5. Analyze the existing population, socioeconomic conditions and land use trends, and develop future growth scenarios for the planning horizon of the Plan.

6. Forecast future traffic growth, considering the effect of changes in population, socioeconomic conditions and land use.

7. Develop and analyze future transportation network and infrastructure alternatives and evaluate each individual alternative against a cost/benefit analysis approach.

8. Design and develop a framework for the implementation of a National Roads Plan divided into a number of smaller Transportation Improvement Plans, namely Master Trafficways Plan, Access Management Plans, District Corridor Plans, and a Central Business District Traffic Circulation Plan.

9. Develop and recommend a framework for project prioritization based on sound transportation planning and engineering principles as well as economics.

10. Identify sources of funding and recommend a Financial Plan for the implementation and management of the Plan.

11. Facilitate a Public Involvement Programme that fosters community understanding and support of the Plan.

Madam Speaker, the timeline for the National Roads Plan to be prepared is June 2004.

Supplementaries

The Speaker: Are there any Supplementaries? The Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I thank the Minister for this lengthy progress report. This is what I really call a progress report. However, I wonder if the Minister can tell us if members of this unit are Caymanian engineers.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Planning.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: The answer to the question is yes. Mr. Edward Howard is Caymanian. Mr. Denis Thibeault is married to a Caymanian since 1994, and the other lady is also married to a Caymanian.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, recently there was an announcement that a roundabout expert had been brought in. What part does this roundabout expert play in this development unit?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Planning.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, my understanding is that the roundabout expert, as described by the Honourable Member, has given a report to the Transportation Planning Unit but that he has already left the Island. I would go on to say that roundabouts are not things to joke about, they are serious road improvement systems used in very developed countries, particularly in the UK. They are used very widely and since the Cayman Islands is not as knowledgeable on this system as we would wish to be we therefore needed to get consultation in the matter. But that gentleman has already left.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, certainly I do not joke about roundabouts; I think they perform their function. Particularly, I have seen PWD build them in Industrial Park and I am very pleased because they have relieved a lot of congestion in that area. Since we are talking about roundabouts I wonder if the Minister would wish to comment on those two little ones that were recently placed in the middle of George Town. How well are they working?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Works.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, I do know that initially those two roundabouts caused some concern, but I am also aware that the PWD has been working very hard to educate the public in the use of the roundabouts. The small roundabouts are not unique to the Cayman Islands. They are used in other countries and we hope that very soon the public will be quite educated in the use of these roundabouts. As I said, the PWD is doing its very best to educate the public on the use of these two small roundabouts.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I wish to say to the Minister that I regard this as an entirely laudable exercise – the development of this unit. But in saying that, it seems to demonstrate a government policy which has accepted, if not, is intended to promote the continued growth of vehicular traffic in these Islands. I wonder if the Honourable Minister can say what consideration is being given by the Government to the development of an effective and comprehensive public transport/transit system for the Cayman Islands. I see in the answer that part of the remit of this Unit is to “establish guidelines for creating land development and land use patterns that support public transit.”

I am not sure if what they have in mind is public transportation or if they simply mean use of the roads by the public in terms of private vehicles. My question is: Is consideration being given by the Government to the promotion of the development of adequate, effective, comprehensive public transportation system for these Islands, thereby minimising the need for significant outlays of money on a continual basis to upgrade the public transit system of these Islands – the road system of these roads.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Planning.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, firstly I would like to thank the Honourable Second Elected Member for George Town for his congratulations on this being a laudable exercise. As he rightly alluded, the additional road network and works done on existing roads is necessary to keep pace with our growth in development. As regards to the Progress report that I just gave the Honourable Member will note that the transportation planning unit has been established to address the future transportation needs of the Cayman Islands which will also involve the ground transportation needs.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Madam Speaker, I thank the Minister but I do not think he really responded to my question as to whether or not Government is giving consideration to the development of a public transportation, that is, a system by which the public can park their vehicles and be transported in a train or whatever . . .

[Interjection]

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: I am trying to determine whether Government is giving consideration to the development of a public transportation system, whatever form that might take.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Planning.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, the answer is yes, that is a part of the terms of reference of the Committee but I would matter to get the Caymanian public to use public transportation. I recall that in times past in discussion it was suggested that perhaps carpooling and other means – may be one car per family and so on – or even reducing the wheel-base of cars to reduce the transportation problem and congestion. So, many issues have been considered. But to directly answer the Member, yes, the terms of reference will include a public transportation system for the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. This is a bit outside the ambit of transportation, but in bullet point under ‘Sustainability’ I got excited when I saw Stormwater Management Principles. I wonder if any consideration is being given to the perennial flooding and the major inconvenience that occur in residential areas like Randyke Gardens, the East, Windsor Park and Industrial Park.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Planning.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, as that Honourable Member knows, this is not a recent occurrence; this flooding has been there for many years and has spanned a number of past administrations including his. This Government has already made progress with the flooding problem. As we all know the situation in Randyke Gardens has improved tremendously since the culverts were put under the roads; a lot of the water is now pumping into the sea. And it is nothing like the problem that we had there at one stage.

The situation in the East as we call it, that is, behind the Funky Tang area, is a situation that has been worsened by the development in the perimeter of that area. What has happened is that those developments have left that area as a sort of a valley and a lot of the water is now pouring into that area. I do know that the Honourable First Elected Member for George Town has a Motion on that and it is of concern to a number of us. We are looking at ways and means now of being able to deal with that problem.

In the last flooding PWD did a fantastic job for which they are to be congratulated. They helped the water to recede in a very short period of time, in the Windsor Park and the central area of George Town, by pumping out the deep wells and cleaning them. We are in the process of adding more deep wells in the area to try to alleviate that problem of flooding when we have rains.

On the larger side of it, however, we are looking at ways and means of doing something similar in the Randyke Gardens area so that we can substantially reduce the problem of flooding in the East and also in the Windsor Park area, off Watlers Road, the Swamp and other areas around the Islands.

The Speaker: Are there any other supplementaries? If not we will move on to the next question.

Question No. 25

The Speaker: I recognise the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

No. 25: Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr. asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Planning, Communications, Works and Information Technology if there has been any considerable increase in construction activity following the introduction of the legislation that was passed to encourage development.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Planning.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, the answer is yes. There was a considerable increase in construction activity following the introduction of the legislation to encourage development. The legislation enacted to encourage development, which I will refer to as the "incentive package" consisted of the following amendments:

1. Increasing building heights to seven storeys along the Seven Mile Beach peninsula and Central George Town, and
2. Reducing Infrastructure and building permit fees by 50 per cent.
3. Reducing Stamp Duty fees from 9 to 5 per cent in the Seven Mile Beach area and 7½ per cent to 5 per cent in all other areas.

The answer provided is based on statistical data for the period November 2001-November 2002, the first year of the concessions. This is evidenced by:

(a) A 48 per cent increase in planning approvals from $168.0 million in 2001 to $248.5 million in 2002;

(b) A 78 per cent increase in value of building permits (excluding Ritz-Carlton) from $128.7 million in 2001 to $229.6 million in 2002, and

(c) Of the 199 owners and agents who were surveyed during the period, 111 or 56 per cent stated that the concessions influenced their decision to build.

Madam Speaker, 111 (or 55.8 per cent of the 199 responses) stated that their applications were a direct result of the incentive fees. This translates into an approved development value of $72.3 million or 57 per cent of the $126.8 million during the survey period as detailed in Table 1 below.

	Owners		Agents		Total
	No.	Value	No.	Value	No.	% of Total No.	Value	% of Total Value
Influenced	51	$33,332,922	60	$38,974,746	111	55.8%	$72,307,668	57.05%
Not Influenced	38	$11,082,895	29	$38,607,760	67	33.7%	$49,690,655	39.20%
Did not Know	6	$911,000	15	$3,823,963	21	10.6%	$4,734,963	3.75%
Total	95	$45,346,817	104	$81,406,469	199	100%	$126,753,286	100%

Table 1: Influence of Concessions on Applications Made, (Owners and Agents) [Please see enlargement on page 214]

Madam Speaker, since the introduction of Heights of Buildings amendment to the Planning Regulations in May 2002, there have been applications to redevelop two sites along West Bay Road. Both developments took advantage of the increased height. These two projects will have a combined total of 69 units valued at approximately $47 million.

There have also been three major commercial developments approved and having taken advantage of the incentives, namely:

- Parc Place - a 77,000 sq ft retail centre along West Bay Road valued at $10 million,
- Bay Shore Properties - a 66,000 sq ft retail centre in Central George Town valued at $8 million, and

- C&W - a new 37,000 sq ft exchange on Shedden Road, valued at $5.7 million.

All of these commercial projects with the exception of Parc Place have commenced construction.

Madam Speaker, overall construction activity in the Islands improved significantly in 2002 compared to 2001. The number of approvals increased by 5 per cent to 1,061 and the value by 50 per cent to $243.9 million.

A total of 224 planning approvals were issued in the first quarter of 2003, an 8 per cent increase from the 208 that were granted in the same quarter last year. This boost also resulted in a 37 per cent rise in value from CI$32,476,188 in 2002 to CI$44,632,603 in 2003.

Approvals for residential development, including houses and apartments, increased noticeably and represented a 27 per cent increase in value from CI$23,656,369 to CI$30,865,820.

Commercial development approvals increased by 57 per cent with the value rising by 14 per cent from CI$5,299,500 to CI$6,021,300.

The Speaker: Are there any Supplementaries? If not, that concludes Question Time.

STATEMENTS BY HONOURABLE MINISTERS/MEMBERS OF THE GOVERNMENT

The Speaker: I have not received notice of statements for today's Sitting.

Suspension of Standing Order 46(1) and (2)

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Planning, could I ask you to move the suspension of Standing Orders 46(1) and (2)?

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, I beg to move the suspension of Standing Orders 46(1) and (2) to allow for the First Reading of two Bills.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Orders 46 (1) and (2) be suspended.

All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed. Standing Order 46(1) and (2) suspended to allow the Bills to be given a First Reading.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

FIRST READINGS

The Registered Land (Amendment) Bill 2003

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first time and is set down for Second Reading.

The Development and Planning (Amendment) Bill 2003

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first time and is set down for Second Reading.

SECOND READING

The Registered Land (Amendment) Bill 2003 (Deferred)

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I believe you have an expressed intention.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Yes, Madam Speaker. I wish to defer the Second Reading debate on these Bills to allow more time for public scrutiny of the Bill mindful of the notice period that should be given on the Bills. So it is my intention to ask for the Second Reading at a later date.

The Speaker: Is that intention also to The Development and Planning (Amendment) Bill 2003? Perhaps we should deal with at the same time.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Yes, Madam Speaker, for The Registered Land (Amendment) Bill 2003 and The Development and Planning (Amendment) Bill 2003 and I so move.

The Speaker: The question is that Second Readings of The Registered Land (Amendment) Bill 2003 and The Development and Planning (Amendment) Bill 2003 be deferred to allow additional time for consultation.

All those in favour please Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed: Second Readings of The Registered Land (Amendment) Bill, 2003, and The Development and Planning (Amendment) Bill 2003, deferred.

The Speaker: I now call on the Deputy Leader of Government Business to move the adjournment for today's sitting.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until tomorrow, Thursday, 12 June 2003 at 10 am.

The Speaker: The question is that the Honourable House do now adjourn until tomorrow, Thursday 12 June 2003 at 10 am.

All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

At 12.32 pm the House stood adjourned until Thursday 12 June 2003 at 10 am.

OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT
THURSDAY
12 JUNE 2003
10.17 PM
Second Sitting

The Speaker: I call upon the Third Elected Member from the district of West Bay to grace us with prayers.

PRAYERS

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Cabinet and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office. All this we ask for Thy great Name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together:

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

Proceedings resumed at 10.20 am

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

READING BY THE HONOURABLE
SPEAKER OF MESSAGES
AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

Apologies

The Speaker: I have received apologies for the late attendance of the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS
AND OF REPORTS

The Speaker: Madam Clerk, I will go to the Deputy Leader of Government Business in the interest of time.

2002 Annual Report of the Central Planning Authority and Development Control Board

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the 2002 Annual Report of the Central Planning Authority and Development Control Board.

The Speaker: So ordered. Would you wish to speak thereto?

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Please proceed.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, Section 53 of the Development and Planning Law (1999 Revision) requires that the Central Planning Authority submit a report to the Governor-in-Council for the information of the Legislative Assembly, which contains an account of activities during the twelve months ending on the 31st December of the previous year.

While the Report speaks for itself and will no doubt be of use to all Members of this Honourable House, I would like to take a few minutes today to summarize the Report's highlights, in particular the following issues:

1. Development activity;
2. Development Plan review;
3. Regulations amending seaside setbacks and building heights;
4. Sister Islands Ad-hoc Committee on Sustainable Development; and
5. Planning Department website.

First, regarding development activity, under the guidance of the CPA Chairman, Mr. Gordon McLaughlin (at the time), and the DCB Chairman Mr. Ernie Hurlstone, the year 2002 was very productive with a substantial increase in revenue collection over 2001.

In 2002, a total of $5.3 million in fees was collected by the Planning Department compared to $1.7 million in 2001. This represents an increase of 391%.

Madam Speaker, Members may recall that to help boost our development industry, in November 2001 this Honourable House approved the following fee reductions:

- Stamp Duty was reduced by half, from 10% to 5%.
- Infrastructure Fund fees, normally ranging from between $0.50 and $2.50 per sq. ft., were reduced by half to $0.25 and $1.25 per sq. ft.; and
- All Building Permit fees, which vary depending on the type of development, were also reduced by half.

I am pleased to state that in 2002, as expected, we witnessed the very positive results of these fee reductions. Not only did we see a rebound in development applications and building starts, but revenues also increased quite dramatically.

Let me illustrate this with a few examples:

1) In total, 1061 applications were approved. Of those, 612 were approved by the CPA, 336 were administrative (in-house) approvals while the remaining 113 applications were approved by the DCB (Development Control Board). The CPA (Central Planning Authority) participated in Grand Cayman's economic rebound in 2002 as the number of approvals was 6% over the 2001 figure. In addition, the dollar value of these approved projects was 58% higher than 2001.

A typical indicator of actual development activity is the issuance of Building Permits. I am happy to say that a total of 605 building permits valued at $242.9 million were issued in 2002, representing an increase of 11% over the 546 permits issued in 2001 and a significant increase of 108% over the permits valued at $116.5 million in 2001.

(2) The Development and Planning Law mandates that a review of the Development Plan takes place every five (5) years.

Since the last full review occurred in 1997, 2002 marked the year for next review. In 2002, Special Issue Committees (SICs) addressed many issues including the following: Coastal Zone Management, Education, Affordable Housing, Historic Sites and Areas, Community and Economic Development, Immigration and Population Growth, Infrastructure and Tourism/Recreation/Culture.

In addition, the CPA conducted a series of public meetings in each district, at which some "popular" issues were discussed in the context of the Development Plan Review, among them the following: seaside setbacks, beach erosion and public access to the beach.

(3) On 6th May 2002, this Honourable House approved an amendment to the Development and Planning Regulations, which increased seaside setbacks. Whereas previous Regulations measured setbacks from Low Water Mark, the amendments now measure setbacks from the High Water Mark. For example, the amended Regulations provide for the following:

- In Hotel/Tourism zones (including Seven Mile Beach), minimum seaside setbacks are now 130 feet from High Water Mark for the first three (3) floors, with an additional 15 feet for each additional storey; the previous minimum setback was 100 feet from Low Water Mark.

- In Low, Medium and High Residential zones, minimum seaside setbacks are now 75 feet from High Water Mark where the shoreline is beach or mangrove or 50 feet from High Water Mark where the coast is ironshore; the previous minimum setback was 75 feet from Low Water Mark for beach front and 50 feet from Low Water Mark for ironshore.

- In Beach Resort/Residential zones, minimum seaside setbacks are now 75 feet from High Water Mark, whereas previously the minimum setback was 75 feet from Low Water Mark.

- In Marine Commercial and Neighbourhood Commercial zones, revised Regulations require 50 feet from the High Water Mark (ironshore and non-ironshore) for the first two (2) storeys and an additional 15 feet for a third storey; previous Regulations required 50 feet and 75 feet from Low Water Mark in cases of ironshore and non-ironshore respectively.

Madam Speaker, all Members and indeed the public, are aware that beach erosion has been the subject of much discussion. The CPA's Annual Report indicates that the revised minimum setbacks I just listed are intended to prevent problems of beach erosion resulting from any future development. It should also be noted, however, that some previous developments were advised at the time of their approval of the proper setback requirements, which some apparently chose to ignore, to their chagrin.

Other 2002 amendments to the Development and Planning Regulations saw building heights increased to seven (7) storeys in parts of George Town's General Commercial areas and Seven Mile Beach's Hotel/Tourism areas. The maximum height in Low, Medium, High and Beach Resort residential zones was increased to three (3) storeys. These changes were to compensate for the increased setbacks to the sea.

(4) In June 2002 the Sister Islands Ad-Hoc Committee for Sustainable Development was established with the approval of Executive Council. The Committee has been charged with making recommendations on the future sustainable development of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. The Committee, comprised of the CPA's Executive Secretary, DCB Chairman and others, met sixteen (16) times in 2002 and examined four (4) broad areas, namely: physical development, socio-cultural development, the natural environment and economic development. The Committee concentrated its 2002 activities on Cayman Brac noting that improved sustainable economic conditions and preserving cultural identities are paramount concerns on Cayman Brac.

In March 2003, Executive Council accepted the Brac Report 2003-2007 of the Sister Islands Ad-Hoc Committee for Sustainable Development and directed that it be tabled as soon as possible in this Honourable House. Therefore, I will be making a separate full statement on this report during this meeting of the House – which, Madam Speaker, as you are aware, I made yesterday.

At this point, I would simply note that Executive Council has directed that a steering committee, convened by the District Commissioner, be established to oversee the implementation of the recommendations contained in the report. I am confident that, under the guidance of the District Commissioner and supervision of the Ministry responsible for District Administration and Government as a whole, this Committee will make great strides toward ensuring the sustainable development of our Sister Islands. I look forward to the Committee's next report.

(5) The Planning Department's website continues to assist the public with development and planning matters such as providing downloadable application forms, listing development requirements and displaying Development Plan Maps and related documents. In 2002, the site received 73,074 hits; the site was particularly active in October with the release of the Proposed Development Plan. For those Honourable Members who have not yet had the opportunity, I would invite you to visit the Planning Department's web-site at www.planning.gov.ky.

Madam Speaker, in closing I would like to take this opportunity to thank the Members of the Central Planning Authority and Development Control Board as well as the Planning Department for their efforts toward encouraging quality physical development and the sustainable economic growth in the Cayman Islands during the year ended 2002.

I would also like to say that we look forward to another exciting year under the new Chairmanship of the CPA, Mr. Al Thompson Jr. Already the first quarter results for 2003 have surpassed the corresponding period for 2002. As of 31st March 2003, a total of 224 planning approvals valued at C$44.6 million were granted, which is an 8% increase over 2002 first quarter approvals and a 37% increase in value. These results are very encouraging and we look forward to these trends continuing throughout the remainder of 2003.

Thank You, Madam Speaker.

Standing Business Committee Report for the State Opening Meeting of the 2003 Session

The Speaker: The Honourable Leader of Government.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to lay on the Honourable Table of this House the Report of the Standing Business Committee for the State Opening and first meeting of the 2003 Session of the Legislative Assembly.

The Speaker: So ordered. Does the Honourable Leader wish to speak thereto?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: No, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Thank you.

I will recognise the Honourable Leader of Government Business for the movement of the suspension of Standing Order 23(6).

Suspension of Standing Order 23(6)

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I move for the suspension of Standing Order 23(6) to allow more than three questions in the name of the same Member.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 23(6) be duly suspended. All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed: Standing Order 23(6) suspended to allow more than three questions in the name of the same Member.

The Speaker: I recognise the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MINISTERS AND OFFICIAL MEMBERS

Question No. 26

No. 26: Mr. Lyndon L. Martin asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Education, Human Resources and Culture if the Education Council or Ministry of Education has identified any educational fields of priority and are there any incentives offered in these fields.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education.

Hon. Roy Bodden: The Education Council continues to recognise the need to emphasise education and health as priority areas for scholarships. Students entering these fields with passes of a minimum of 7 subjects in the international high school examinations at grades 1 or 2 or the equivalent, or students with an SAT score of at least 1250, may become eligible for additional funding.

Supplementaries

The Speaker: Are there any supplementaries? The Member for North Side.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Minister would say if there is any priority for scholarships for those students who are not in the top 20%, to pursue Education and Health on scholarships.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, I do not understand what the Honourable Member means when she says, “. . . students who are not in the top 20%.”

The Speaker: The Member for North Side. Would you care to expound on your question?

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, I am referring to their academic results when they graduate from the John Gray High School. I am certain that the 350 who graduate do not have all of the qualifications to seek scholarships in Education and Health. That is what I am referring to.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, scholarships fall into two categories: local scholarships in which students are rewarded scholarships to study for Associate degrees at the Community College or scholarships to tertiary level institutions abroad.

Most recently the Education Council and the Minister arrived at a policy position, which has been outlined to the Executive Council to Members of the Legislative Assembly in which we are streamlining the process. Currently no student who is eligible for a scholarship is denied. That eligibility depends upon their matriculation level and their acceptance at the Community College, or their acceptance at a tertiary level institution outside of the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? The Leader of Opposition.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Just for purposes of clarity: In the substantive answer where the Minister states: “. . . or students with an SAT score of at least 1250, may become eligible for additional funding.” May become eligible for additional funding – that is where I am going. I heard what the Minister just explained regarding the levels of students receiving scholarships. But I am wondering when he speaks to additional funding, what does that relate to? I just want to make sure that we are clear with what it is speaking to.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, as a result of the report of the Committee which was set up to study the lack of Caymanian teachers and the inability to attract young Caymanians into the teaching profession, the Education Council has implemented a system in which students studying in the field of Education and Teaching, are eligible for an additional cash incentive, which is intended to serve as an enticement so that they can come into this profession. And in some instances this incentive can also apply to students in the Health field as well.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If not we will move on to the next question.

Question No. 27

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

No. 27: Mr. Lyndon L. Martin asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Education, Human Resources and Culture if the Ministry or the Employment Services Centre has undertaken or caused to be undertaken a labour demand survey as to guide training, vocational studies, tertiary educational sponsorship, Caymanisation policies, Immigration policies and the like.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education.

Hon. Roy Bodden: The Department of Employment Relations has undertaken a skills assessment survey, which has the multiple aims of:

1. Establishing the employment/training needs of local businesses;
2. Identifying the specific academic programs and/or occupational areas that are in strong demand by employers and for which they have not been able to recruit sufficient applicants for job openings.
3. Identifying the critical skill shortage areas by industry
4. Identifying the training programs needed by the various industries.
5. Providing accurate and timely labour market related information to satisfy the needs of all agents of the labour market, namely employers, job seekers, career planners, trainers/educators, and policy makers.

It is anticipated that this project will be completed by September 2003 and the collected information will be structured into a database.

Supplementaries

The Speaker: Are there any supplementaries? The Leader of Opposition.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. In the Minister's answer he has said that the Department of Employment Relations has undertaken a skills assessment survey, which has multiple aims. Could the Minister explain exactly how this survey is being done? What terms of reference would cause the survey to be undertaken? Is it being undertaken by staff from within that department, or have any specialists been pulled together to do so?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, the Employment Relations Department in conjunction with the International Labour Organisation (ILO) Regional Office and with modern labour trends is setting up a Labour Management Information System (LMIS), which has as its basis the establishment of a data bank containing this kind of information.

The survey that is being undertaken is being done with entirely local resources, with some consultation, and as a result of training and consultation by and with the ILO Regional Office. Information is being collected from a number of sources including employers and employers' organisations such as the organisations which form the membership of the Chamber of Commerce as well as the high schools and the two colleges, Community College and ICCI and other training institutions locally. When this information has been completed and collated, it is anticipated that it will be stored in the database at the Employment Relations Department and will be available online for all persons who have access to that database – employers and employees as well as any other individual who may have reason to tap in to the database.

The Speaker: The Leader of Opposition.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Could the Minister then state what the next step is after having all of the information put in to the database?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education.

Hon. Roy Bodden: The Employment Relations Department will then inform the Ministry of those areas in which it would seem that the empirical evidence shows that we need to encourage more Caymanians to opt for training into. At which time these could be put into scholarship awarding policies and other kinds of incentives to encourage Caymanians to avail themselves of the opportunities to train in these areas.

The Speaker: Leader of the Opposition.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Could the Minister then state if this would have a bearing on what type of educational opportunities become available locally. Perhaps before completion of secondary level education along the lines of the then known labour needs for the job market.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister of Education.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Most assuredly so and concomitant and as a corollary to this exercise. The Employment Relations Department, which has assigned responsibility for the development of technical and vocational studies will be with the Education Department mounting a technical and vocational trade fair to promote an awareness and to establish a formalised structure where those students interested in these areas can access them at the secondary level and higher.

The Speaker: Leader of the Opposition.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. What the Honourable Minister has just stated will take the interest to the students. But what else I would like to find out from the Ministry is: Is it planned then to ensure that whatever the courses are that we speak to at that time, are available in the public institutions as they may well not be at this point in time.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, a number of initiatives have been discussed and we have been exploring the possibilities to enable our students to avail themselves of this kind of training even when such a training involves training which is not available in this jurisdiction. For example, Madam Speaker, as a result of a visit we made to the Samuel Jackman Prescod Polytechnic Institute, we were promised some scholarships for Caymanians to take up at that institution if and when they become interested.

What we would like to do in the interim, because we believe that this is the greatest effort and this will be most productive, most effective and most easily sustainable, is to redesign the curriculum of the high schools so that a significant number of our students can have access to these courses which are organised in such a way as to maintain their interest even up to the post secondary level.

The Speaker: Leader of the Opposition.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you Madam Speaker, and I wish to thank the Minister for his answer.

Now in the substantive answer the Minister has listed 5 different objectives for the survey to achieve. And when he speaks to establishing the training and employment needs of local businesses I am presuming that it is assumed that such situations are fluid and will change from time to time. The Minister speaks to this particular survey ending in September. Is there a plan to revisit on a regular basis – even if it is at a smaller level—to get a picture of any movement in those demands, which may well be the case as time goes on?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, the Member is absolutely spot on in his assumption. I am happy to say that for the first time in the History of this country we have a thoroughly modern and effective Employment Relations Department in which much of the information we need are at the fingertips and are on a computer database.

The staff at the Employment Relations Department are in regular contact with employers and we know fairly accurately what the training needs and occupational needs are. Of course to be effective the information collected from the survey has to be under constant review. The database allows for it to be under constant review and for adjustments to be made in the various vocations. That is the undertaking that we are going to do so that it will be easy for us to keep abreast.

In addition to that, we now have the capability of persons being able to access information from the Department without physically coming to the Department, simply by using the intranet and going online and tapping into the database and databank at the Employment Relations Centre. So we perceive that this is going to improve and increase the efficiency and the accessibility of the Employment Relations Department significantly.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member from George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Thank you, Madam Speaker. In response to a supplementary from my colleague, the First Elected Member for George Town, the Honourable Minister spoke about the results of the survey influencing Government policy in relation to the redesign of the curricula of the two high schools.

Recognising, as I think we all do, the need for additional training opportunities within the context of the high schools, I wonder if the Honourable Minister could say what, if any, steps have been taken over the course of the last three years to improve access by the less academically-inclined students to vocational training programmes.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, one of the challenges that we have encountered is the fact that we have not been successful in attracting significant numbers of our students and that includes those students whose aptitude, abilities and interest would suggest that they would benefit tremendously from the pursuit of technical and vocational studies because our teaching methodology and teaching techniques have been antiquated and really obsolescent.

We hope that the ITALIC programme will enable us to offer more effective training to our students, because when we visited the Samuel Jackman Prescod Polytechnic Institute in Barbados, for example, all of the studies are conducted with analysers and the latest in computer assisted instruction which removes any stigma of it being purely manual, of it being dirty and of the studies being done by those students who are less intellectual. And so we realise that is the route to go. I have been saying for years that is what we should do.

As a result of that, we are re-examining the curriculum and trying to access this kind of technology so that when we start and we recognise that we will have to start small because this technology is very expensive but we will have to start small and get this so effectively organised that the students once their appetites are whetted and they have embarked on these courses can pursue them to the fullest, even up to the Community College level.

When we were talking and discussing of converting the George Hicks High School into a fully-fledged high school, this was one of the challenges that we came up against. The advice of the school's inspectorate was that we should hasten slowly because the curriculum of the three high schools must be identical. It was in the area of technical and vocational studies that we had the greatest challenge, hence we decided to slow the process down until we could really come to grips with getting the proper equipment that we need to push the curriculum to its maximum so that the students could benefit.

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I thank the Minister for that very comprehensive response and I would like to ask him when, he has acknowledged that the ITALIC programme when it starts will have to take small steps because it is an expensive program. I wonder if he could give us an indication as to when that program is likely to be implemented and to become actually functional.

Secondly, am I understanding him correctly as saying that over the course of the last three years other than the ITALIC program, nothing has been done in relation to the redevelopment of the curricular at the high schools to ensure access by less academically inclined students to vocational programmes and training.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education.

Hon. Roy Bodden: No, Madam Speaker, that is not what I said and that is not what was intended to have been conveyed. We have continued to try to improve the traditional ways that we have been teaching these subjects. But we understand and we appreciate that the traditional ways of imparting and teaching these subjects are no longer acceptable and good enough. Hence we have to find a way of using the latest information technology to get across these concepts and to continue to attract the students in the numbers that we believe makes it justifiable for us to service the needs of the working community.

The ITALIC programme has already started but we are in the phase of training the trainers. It is a five-year programme and we anticipate that when it becomes fully mature, probably in about three years from now, we expect that this technology will be available to students who are studying these disciplines. But it is going to take the better part of two years for us to complete the circle of training the trainers, setting up the portals, getting our intranet system in place and making sure we have the correct classroom space wireless technology so that we can move on a large scale basis throughout our school system.

Suspension of Standing Order 23(7) and (8)

The Speaker: We have reached the hour of 11 am. May I have a motion for the suspension of Standing Orders 23(7) and (8). The Deputy Leader.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, I beg to move that the relevant Standing Orders be suspended to allow for Question Time.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Orders 23(7) and (8) be suspended. All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed: Standing Order 23(7) and (8) suspended to allow Question Time to continue beyond 11 am.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If not, we will move on to the next question.

The First Elected Member for George Town.

Question No. 28

No. 28: Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Health Services, Agriculture, Aviation and District Administration;

- (a) What was the number of staff employed in the Health Services Department when management changed to the Health Services Authority;
- (b) What was the number as at 30 April 2003; and
- (c) Would the Honourable Minister list the positions, which were cut and categorise them by department.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. Mclean: Madam Speaker, on 1st July 2002, when the Health Services Department became an Authority:

(a) the total number of employees transferred were 666. Of this number 596 persons were employed in Grand Cayman and 70 at Faith hospital.

(b) On 30th April 2003, the total number of staff employed by the Health Services Authority was 582. Of this number 518 were employed in Grand Cayman and 64 at Faith Hospital.

(c) Please see attached list of the positions categorised by department that were cut.

[List circulated to Members (but not read into the record) attached as appendix]

Supplementaries

The Speaker: Are there any supplementaries? The Leader of Opposition.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The Minister will note that the question asked for 30th April simply because I was not sure whether to extend it to end of May if the Minister would have been able to have the information available. I just wonder if there is any information available for the additional month since 30th April.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. Mclean: Madam Speaker, there is no prepared information that I could offer this Honourable House or the Member, other than the announced latest situation that the present CEO would be taking up the position of the superintendent of Health Insurance.

The Speaker: The Leader of the Opposition.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. I only asked that question, Madam Speaker, because 'marl road' has it that somewhere between 20 and 30 staff have vacated their positions between 1st May and end of May. I do not know if it is true so that is why I am asking the Minister.

Madam Speaker, can the Minister, in relation to his answer, speak to the difference in the numbers? And would he be able to say if the numbers that are at present, based on the various departments and the numbers that are in those departments, if those numbers are considered to be the optimum number of staff for the quality service that is expected to be provided?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. Mclean: Madam Speaker, this answer is to the last part of the question posed by the Honourable Member: We continue to review the staff levels in the Health Services Authority and we recruit as necessary. In fact right now there are approximately about twenty odd positions that are vacant, that advertisements have been sent out for. And on the second part as to the 'marl road', the 'marl road' has a way of making dead people live and live people dead so the Honourable Member will be aware of that.

The Speaker: Leader of the Opposition.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: That is exactly why I asked the Minister the question to see if I could get verification rather than to grab rumour and walk with it.

Madam Speaker, could the Minister then say if there are some 20 vacancies at present and whether those vacancies are a result of the downsizing and a reassessment? If that is the case, then where is the relationship to the individuals who were made to leave and the posts are then being asked to be filled again?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. Mclean: Madam Speaker, the 20 odd posts that I referred to are posts that exist in the staff complement, but decisions have been taken not to fill them. It was felt that they do not have to be filled. Those vacancies presently being advertised are for staff considered necessary for the operation to be at the required level in those specific posts. There are a few to the best of my knowledge that are new posts – some additional staff in areas such as IT and so on.

The Speaker: Leader of Opposition.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.

Madam Speaker, it is obvious from the answer that the Minister gave that there was a fair reduction in staff from July 2002 to April 2003. In Grand Cayman the number is some 78. Is the Honourable Minister satisfied, based on what obtains at present with regards to the operation of the Health Services Authority, that there needs to be no independent assessment to ensure that staff levels are at their optimum? And that the quality of service, which I am absolutely certain both the Minister and his Government wish to ensure is provided, can be provided with the number of staff that it has at present?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. Mclean: I was just consulting with management from the Hospital.

Madam Speaker, there are some vacancies which are being filled now and recruited. And those are being recruited because it is felt that there is a need for staff there. The filling of these vacancies will create greater efficiency in the particular area for which they are being recruited. But, generally, the staffing levels now at the Hospital are carrying out sufficiently the day-to-day requirements within the organisation.

As for an independent review, it is my position as Minister, at the time, that at some point in the near and foreseeable future I will request and require the Board to get an independent assessment of staffing levels and general efficiencies in the Hospital.

The Speaker: I will allow two more supplementaries. The Leader of Opposition.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, perhaps you would be kind to allow me my final supplementary and then you could allow two more so that my colleagues do not feel that I am taking up too many questions in the supplementary period.

The Speaker: They will see it as leadership.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, my final supplementary—just for clarity. The Minister, I am sure, will understand where I am coming from and understand that the intention is not to cause any discomfort. But based on the questions and answers that we have just gone through, is it fair to extrapolate that it is the considered opinion that as at July 2002 the Health Services Authority in Grand Cayman—I am separating the 6 from Cayman Brac—was overstaffed by 78 members?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. Mclean: Madam Speaker, that is the general accepted belief that it was and that there was need for staff reductions in the areas where these were made.

The Speaker: The Member from East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The Minister has said that is the accepted level of required staff. My understanding from all of his answers seems to indicate that there will be no need for additional staff except the twenty who are currently in new and different areas.

Now I am wondering if the Minister can tell us, even though we spoke of the 'marl road', how many staff members of those remaining have tendered their resignations or have opted not to renew contracts within the last two months—particularly in Grand Cayman?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. Mclean: Madam Speaker, I do not have those statistics that the Member has asked about but I would repeat that generally the staffing level is to a functional and accepted level except where it is necessary to recruit persons.

For example, there are about fourteen persons who had to be employed, or will be employed, to assist for at least 6 months with the implementation of the CERNER information system. This is simply because the people who will be manning the system at the various points are now going through thousands of tests to see whether this works before it goes live, as it is called. Persons have had to be taken on because they have to do the day to day requirements, while the persons who are there full time are completely deployed in different sections. So employment is taking place in different areas.

As for resignations, as recently as last night before I left the office, I heard of an individual who tendered his resignation. I know this person and I am sorry to hear that he has done this.

Resignations in the Health Services Authority have come about for various reasons: Persons have accepted that they do not wish to continue or renew their contracts; some contracts have not been renewed by Government, or the Health Services Authority (HSA) Board, the management of the Hospital. And there are other instances where perhaps for personal reasons people feel disgruntled or unhappy—the usual way in any organisation—and they have chosen to resign and move on to other jobs. I would not want it to be taken that the Health Services Authority is any different from the other organisations in the country, except that it deals with the very specialised area of the delivery of health care.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Minister is in a position to say what were the financial savings with the reduction of the staff.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. Mclean: Madam Speaker, I am advised that it is a savings of $4 million per annum.

The Speaker: Second Elected Member from Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Could the Minister give a rough estimate as to what percentage of those laid off were Caymanians?

An honourable Member: You see? Even we would not go there! They think it is small, you see.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. Mclean: Madam Speaker, of the total reductions 35-40% were Caymanians; some had reached the point of retirement and various factors came into play during the time of the reduction in staffing.

The Speaker: We will move on to the next question.
The First Elected Member for George Town.

Question No. 29

No. 29: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Health Services, Agriculture, Aviation and District Administration to give an update on the Nurse Training Programme mentioned in the 2003 Throne Speech.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. Mclean: Madam Speaker, the Licensed Practical Nurse course administered by the Health Services Authority, started on May 5, 2003. Twelve students started the course - eight were Caymanian. One Caymanian student has already left the program. Seven of the remaining students are Caymanian.

The duration of the course (which is approved by the Florida State Board of Nursing and the Health Practitioner Board) is twenty-two months after which students will be able to work as practical nurses here in the Cayman Islands.

This course will assist the Health Services Authority in securing a reliable source of Practical Nurses. Since there is a shortage of nurses worldwide, the reinstatement of such a program was deemed vital to meeting the Authority's nursing requirements.

Supplementaries

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries?
The Leader of Opposition.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. First of all, can the Honourable Minister state whether the number 12 indicated in the answer is the maximum able to be dealt with, or whether more students can enter the programme at one time? And can he say what type of methodology is employed to ensure that Caymanians know that the programme is available and when it is available?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Health Services.

Hon. Gilbert A. Mclean: Madam Speaker, 12-15 is considered to be the number that can be managed most effectively and out of those that applied the 12 were selected as being the most capable and qualified to do the course.

The Speaker: Leader of the Opposition.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Hon. Gilbert A. Mclean: Madam Speaker, may I just add that the Member also enquired about the methodology used to get out the information that this course was available. It was done on the Government intranet, it appeared in the press and it was also on the radio stations.

The Speaker: Leader of the Opposition.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Obviously then, Madam Speaker, since the number 12-15 is considered the best number to work with, that is working since they had ample applicants that could fill the spots.

The course is 22 months, so my next question is: Does the course begin every 22 months, or is it possible that a course is beginning now and before 22 months are up, another course starts? I am just asking how that works.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. Mclean: Madam Speaker, I am advised that it would run on a 22 months' basis for the technical reason that there is not sufficient bed capacity because part of the training is that these nurses-in-training, need to have a certain capacity for them to train in the process of this course.

The Speaker: Leader of the Opposition.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Based on the previous question that was asked of the Minister regarding staffing levels, and understanding that in the substantive answer to this question: "Since there is a shortage of nurses worldwide, the reinstatement of such a program was deemed vital to meeting the Authority's nursing requirements."

Can the Minister state if it is considered at this point in time that there is satisfactory staff levels, if it is anticipated that within the time this course is finished that the needs would be such that those who complete the course would be automatically hired within the Health Services Authority?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health Services.

Hon. Gilbert A. Mclean: Madam Speaker, I am advised that the Hospital expects that some of the nurses will go on to higher training such as the RN (Registered Nurses) level and also some of the persons once trained will replace expatriate staff now in those positions. That is of practical nursing and vice versa from the registered nurse perspective as well.

The Speaker: The Leader of Opposition.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Is it the policy that once Caymanians afford themselves the necessary training in this area, whether they cease their training after 22 months or whether they go on to further training and qualifications in the nursing field, that individuals who are hired on contract at those levels, would then be replaced by Caymanians whenever contracts expire?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health Services.

Hon. Gilbert A. Mclean: Madam Speaker, that is correct and the intention.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries we will move to the next question.

The First Elected Member for George Town.

Question No. 30

No. 30: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Health Services, Agriculture, Aviation and District Administration, to give an update on the statement made in the 2003 Throne Speech, under the heading "Civil Aviation Authority" about the structure for management of aviation throughout the Cayman Islands being realized in two separate autonomous bodies/organizations.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. Mclean: Madam Speaker, the Civil Aviation Authority (CAA) is a statutory authority incorporated in 1987, with both operational and regulatory responsibilities for all aviation services in the Cayman Islands. The International Civil Aviation Organisation (ICAO) has advocated the separation of operational and regulatory responsibilities in aviation. Failure to implement this recommendation has contributed to the publication of unfavourable reports on civil aviation authorities by ICAO inspection teams in a number of countries. Ultimately such reports can and do negatively affect public perception, and in turn the level of commercial aviation in a country, with consequences for that economy. This provides the principal rationale for restructuring of the current CAA.

Our economic success as a country derives partly from the fact that Cayman has established itself as a leader in aviation standards in the region, and among UK Overseas Territories (OTs) more generally. This has earned us a significant degree of operational autonomy in the field, even though the UK Government continues to have ultimate responsibility for ensuring that aviation services in its OTs are provided in accordance with ICAO standards. In keeping with this responsibility, the UK Government has recently established a new organisation, Air Safety Support International (ASSI), which is designed to provide aviation regulatory oversight in the OTs.

This may be described as the proximate cause for the course of action, which has been undertaken by this government. The fact is that if we do not act to attain the ICAO standard, the powers of the Governor of the Cayman Islands as defined by the Air Navigation (Overseas Territories) Order could be delegated to ASSI, thus removing regulatory responsibility from our CAA. We should avoid this by redefining the structure and responsibilities of the CAA to comply, as far as practicable, with the relevant ICAO recommendations.

On 9th April 2003 the Executive Council accordingly granted approval for the restructuring of the CAA into two entities: a Civil Aviation Authority (CAA) and a Cayman Islands Airports Authority (CIAA), with the view of -having the necessary legislative instruments prepared for Legislative Assembly approval at its September meeting. Under the proposed regime, all regulatory activities will be the responsibility of the CAA, while airport operations, air traffic and meteorological services, will be provided by the CIAA, thereby conforming to the separation of responsibilities recommended by ICAO.

Madam Speaker, I will just add that for years there has been a recommendation from the British authorities that this separation should take place and it has never been done until now.

The Speaker: Are there any supplementaries? If not we will move on to the next. Do you have a supplementary, Leader of the Opposition?

Hon. Gilbert A. Mclean: I thought I had read it all, Madam Speaker, so I think that if I understand the Member across the floor, he is indicating that there is some additional information that may be helpful to Honourable Members to have the handling of the matter set out in the form of a time line as follows:

Executive Council granted approval on 9th April 2003, to establish a Cayman Islands Airports Authority and a restructured CAA.

1. On 29th April 2003 the Ministry issued a general drafting brief to Senior Legislative Counsel. Detailed drafting instructions are to be made available based on the work of a specialist consultant in the field.

2. On 20 May 2003 the CAA approved a resolution for the appointment of a consultant to assist the Authority and the Ministry for Aviation through this process. The Ministry has confirmed support for this approach to implementation.

3. A consultant has been identified and arrangements are being made for the process to begin in earnest by mid-June 2003.

4. It is the Ministry's intention to lay the necessary statutory legislative changes before the Legislative Assembly during the September sitting.

5. It is envisioned that the physical separation of regulatory and operational functions will be accomplished by the end of 2003.

Supplementaries

The Speaker: The Leader of Opposition.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you Madam Speaker, and now that the Minister has said it all, I think that I have to say thanks because the answer is fairly comprehensive.

Just a couple of supplementary questions: Can the Minister say where it is stated that: "It is envisioned that the physical separation of regulatory and operational functions will be accomplished by the end of 2003." As the Civil Aviation Authority is now, there is one body which deals with what these two bodies will be dealing with when the separation is completed, therefore it is staffed at present to deal with both areas. Can the Minister state then, if at this point in time it is envisaged that when the separation takes place likewise will be the situation with staff? And there should be no disruption with regards to staff now presently employed by the Civil Aviation Authority.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. Mclean: Madam Speaker, the Member in the last part of his question is correct. There should be very little need for additional staff. As it presently exists, some staff perform more operational stuff, if you will, and other staff perform the regulatory.

We are fortunate that we have at least three Caymanian staff extremely well-qualified, respected, and indeed even carry out inspections and regulatory work in other countries. So it is no question as to their ability to do that. But that staff will be broken out to do the regulatory part of it and then the operational will be set up. Perhaps the only difference is that maybe the operational people will have to find some housing within the main terminal building as that will be more their area of work and the regulatory will continue in the fashion that it does now.

The Speaker: The Leader of Opposition.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker, and I did get a nod from the Minister that no displacements are expected.

My final supplementary question: Is it safe to assume that as the Civil Aviation Authority is now headed by Caymanian staff that both of these entities will then be headed by Caymanian staff when the separation is complete?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. Mclean: Madam Speaker, as long as it lies within my authority to see that it remains within Caymanian management, it certainly will. I think that we have people presently employed who can continue to do this and that would certainly be my intention.

The Speaker: The Leader of Opposition.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, I crave your indulgence, I did say it was the final supplementary but something else has come to mind. Again for purposes of clarity, we know that the Authorities are treated a bit differently than regular public servants although many of the terms and conditions are very similar of their employment. If I remember correctly, the Civil Aviation Authority for some reason or other is still dealt with as Permanent Pensionable Establishment (PPE) unlike the other Authorities. When this separation is done—

[Inaudible interjections]

The Speaker: Order!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: When this separation is completed, those who move or are hived off to the other area, will that still remain as is, or will that be under different circumstances?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. Mclean: Madam Speaker, the Member is correct that the staff that presently manages the Civil Aviation Authority is seen as permanent and pensionable staff and the Civil Service rules apply.

I can say to the Member that once the separation has come about, there will have to be the sameness of terms and responsibilities of service. And personally, I believe that there should be one country and one Labour Law. I will certainly be recommending that the Labour Law which my colleague Minister for Labour is working on (perhaps it will be in place by that time), it would be that that applies with whatever amount of conditions and necessary for it being a Government body, overall, to be in place.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries we will move on to the next question.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Question No. 31 (Withdrawn)

No. 31: Mr. Lyndon L. Martin asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Planning, Communications, Works and Information Technology if the ad hoc committee on Sustainable Economic Development has produced any findings to date and, if so, when will these findings be acted upon.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, although no Standing Orders provide for the withdrawal of a question, I beg the leave of the House to withdraw this question because it has been dealt with yesterday through the Tabling of the Brac Report 2003-2007.

The Speaker: Do you have a seconder, Member from Cayman Brac, since it is a Private Member's Motion?

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Madam Speaker, I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: Accepted. The question is that Question No. 31 be withdrawn. All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, no.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed: Question No. 31 withdrawn.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Question No. 32

No. 32: Mr. Lyndon L. Martin asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Planning, Communications, Works and Information Technology what is the status of securing owners' permission and/or property acquisition to facilitate the straightening and improvement of Spot Bay Road, Little Cayman.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Planning.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, I have no knowledge of efforts currently being made to secure owners' permission and/or acquisition of property to facilitate the straightening and improvement of Spot Bay Road, Little Cayman. Brief discussions were held in this regard during a previous roads visit, which I made to Little Cayman, however, no immediate action was proposed.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries?

If there are no further supplementaries, I will move to the next question. The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Question No. 33 (Withdrawn)

No. 33: Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr. asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Planning, Communications, Works and Information Technology what are the current setback requirements for building on the beach and how does this compare with previous regulations.

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, even though no Standing Order is provided for the withdrawal of a question, I too would like to ask the leave of the House to have my Question No. 33 withdrawn in light of the fact that the Minister gave such a comprehensive report this morning detailing the answers to my question.

The Speaker: Do you have a seconder?

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Madam Speaker, I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: Thank you. The question is that Question No. 33 be withdrawn from today's Order Paper. All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed: Question No. 33 withdrawn.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time. Is it the intention of the House to take a morning break, or would you wish to proceed? We will take the morning break and I should wish to be back in by 12 pm.

Proceedings suspended at 11.49 am

Proceedings resumed at 12.09 pm

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed. Madam Clerk.

STATEMENTS BY HONOURABLE MINISTERS AND MEMBERS OF THE GOVERNMENT

Progress Report on the Liberalisation and Regulation of the ICT Sector in the Cayman Islands

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Planning.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I have two Statements one is a Progress Report on the Liberalisation and Regulation of the Information and Communications Technology (ICT) sector in the Cayman Islands and the other one on Caribbean Utilities Company Limited.

Madam Speaker, I last formally updated this Honourable House on the progress of the telecommunications liberalisation as part of my response to a parliamentary question asked in June 2002 by the Elected Member for East End.

Much has transpired since that time. The staff of the ICT Authority now number six, following the recruitment of Mr Philip Brazeau, a very experienced telecommunications attorney from Canada, as Head of Licensing and Compliance and Miss Elaine Lueng, a highly qualified economist with many years experience with the Canadian Telecommunications Regulator, as Head of Economics and Regulation. Mrs. Ramona Ritch, previously the Assistant Secretary responsible for ICT matters in my Ministry, has also moved across to the Authority as Human Resource and Office Manager. The Authority moved into their new offices in Alissta Towers in April of this year.

The ICT Authority has assumed responsibility for all radio licensing. In addition to all hand-held and mobile radios, this covers the radios in all vessels throughout the world registered with the Cayman Islands Shipping Registry; radios in all aircraft registered with the Civil Aviation Authority; all Amateur Radios and all coastal marine radios. A new computerised licensing system has been introduced, and a previous backlog of several months has been cleared. Licences are now being turned round within 3 working days. The licensing and regulation of radio and television broadcasting will fall under the Authority with effect from 1 July 2003.

The Authority has also been responsible for the management of the .ky Internet domain for about a year. And, Madam Speaker, I am very pleased to inform the Members of this Honourable House that earlier this month the Board of the Internet Corporation for Assigned Names and Numbers (ICANN) voted to support our application for the official re-delegation of the management of the domain to the Authority. This decision has yet to be ratified by the United States Department of Commerce. But I am confident that by the end of this month this Honourable House will be informed that this long saga will have been brought to a most satisfactory conclusion.

On the legislative front, planned amendments to the ICTA Law include a provision to allow the Board to take into account when considering ICT licence applications the degree of Caymanian participation in an applicant's company, and a provision stipulating that the monitoring or interception of an ICT service requires a court order signed by a Judge.

In the longer term, we are still examining the need for stand-alone Data Protection legislation, both to protect the rights of the individual and to meet the standards required by the European Union States for the transfer of personal data. In addition, the whole issue of Intellectual Property Rights – particularly in the digital world – is being reviewed as this is one of a number of niche areas that might be developed to give the Cayman Islands competitive advantage as an offshore e-business centre.

Madam Speaker, intense negotiations with Cable & Wireless have continued throughout this period. I was delighted to announce on last Tuesday that Executive Council had agreed that I should sign the resulting Heads of Agreement on behalf of Government, and this I did shortly thereafter.

This Heads of Agreement records the main commercial and regulatory principles that will be incorporated into a Main Agreement that both parties are now committed to signing within one month, that is, by 10 July 2003 at the latest.

Because the Heads of Agreement are preliminary, with the details yet to be fleshed out, it would be inappropriate and counter-productive to make the entire document public at this stage. Rest assured, however, that once all the details are finalised in suitable legal format, the Main Agreement will be available for public scrutiny. In the meantime, I am pleased to provide this Honourable House with the following summary of the main points that have been agreed:

On the signing of the Main Agreement (10 July, 2003 or earlier):

- a. Applications for all types of telecommunications licences may be issued, including the resale of Cable & Wireless international services.
- b. Competition for the provision of domestic telecommunications may commence.
- c. New entrants, licensed to provide other services such as Mobile, may begin to construct their networks.

On 1 November 2003 (i.e. 4 months after the Main Agreement is signed)

- a. Alternative Internet Service Providers may begin operation.
- b. Cable and Wireless will standardise their Local (and inter-island) call charges to fixed lines at 9c for the first minute and 2c per minute thereafter.

On 1 December 2003 (i.e. 5 months after the Main Agreement is signed)

- a. Cable & Wireless' Business Line Rental will increase to $30 per month.
- b. At the same time, all international call charges will be reduced on average by at least 40% for residential and business subscribers.

On 1 January 2004 (i.e. 6 months after the Main Agreement is signed)

- a. Cable & Wireless' Residential Line Rental will increase from $6.25 to $9 per month.
- b. Cable & Wireless will introduce a Light User Scheme with a line rental charge of $8 per month and a rebate of up to $3 per month on the cost of local fixed-to-fixed telephone calls. This will be a restricted telephone service package that permits access to the telephone network and emergency services. It therefore will be available only to residential customers with a single line and will not include enhanced features such as "call-waiting" and Internet access. The cost of calls in excess of the $3 rebate will be charged at the normal rate. Full details of the Light User Scheme will be contained in the Main Agreement.

On 1 February 2004 (i.e. 7 months after the Main Agreement is signed)

- a. Alternative domestic mobile telecommunications providers may commence commercial operations, and resell Cable & Wireless international services.

On 1 April 2004 (i.e. 9 months after the Main Agreement is signed)

- a. Competition in International telecommunications may commence. The liberalisation process will be complete, with competition possible in all areas.
- b. Cable & Wireless' Residential Monthly Line Rental will increase from $9 to $12.

In addition, the ICT Authority believes that the regulatory framework contained in the Heads of Agreement, provides a sound basis for the ongoing regulation of the ICT sector, and that there will be sufficient provisions in place to protect consumers, prevent anti-competitive practices, and encourage the introduction of competition.

Madam Speaker, I am sure that Members will note that the agreement includes provision for an increase in business line rental, a staged increase in residential line rental and a restructuring of local call charges. As you may be aware, most of these charges have not increased since the late 1970s, and therefore have been heavily cross-subsidised from other, more profitable services such as international calling. If the charges for these services are not more closely aligned with cost, they would act as a significant barrier to the introduction of competition in domestic telecommunication services. Potential new entrants would see that such services could not be provided profitably, and might therefore decline to enter the market.

Such "rebalancing" has been addressed during the liberalisation process in most jurisdictions throughout the world, including the Caribbean region. To ease the effect upon individual consumers, the reductions in international rates will become effective one month prior to the first residential line rental increase, the residential line rental increase will be in 2 parts with the second coinciding with the completion of liberalisation, and the Light User Scheme will be introduced.

Madam Speaker, I would like to record my thanks to Cable & Wireless, and to those involved in the negotiations on both sides, for the tremendous effort that has been made to bring the negotiations to this point. I am confident that we will have a successful conclusion by 10 July 2003 at the latest.

Madam Speaker, Honourable Members will be aware that until negotiations with Cable & Wireless have been finalised, the ICT Authority is not in a position to accept or consider applications for licences for ICT networks and services that are currently covered by the existing agreement with Cable & Wireless. Nevertheless, it may be helpful for me to state that Government and the Authority have received expressions of interest from over 10 organisations. These range from full-service telephony providers to companies interested only in a particular ICT service or ICT network. As these companies cannot make firm commitments until details of the commercial terms and conditions, including licensing, are available, it would be inappropriate to give further details at this time.

Madam Speaker, I believe that the liberalisation and effective regulation of the ICT sector is vital for the future economic and social development of the Cayman Islands. And that signing of the Heads of Agreement with Cable & Wireless is a major milestone in achieving that goal. I am also pleased to point out that the liberalisation process will be completed within 9 months of the signing of the Main Agreement that is by 1 April 2004. This will be the shortest transition period agreed in the Caribbean, and is three months earlier than the tentative date I forecast back in July 2001. There is, of course, much work to be done to convert these key principles into the Main Agreement. The mutually agreed timescale of one month is challenging, but given continuing goodwill on both sides, is certainly achievable.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Caribbean Utilities Company Ltd. Interim Return for Year Ending 30 April 2003

The Speaker: I believe that you had a second statement Honourable Minister. Please proceed.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, the next Statement is on Caribbean Utilities Company Ltd.

Caribbean Utilities Company Ltd. (CUC) recently presented to Government its Interim Return for the financial year ending 30 April 2003. According to CUC, this Interim Return indicates that an upward adjustment in electricity rates of 3% is due effective 1 August 2003 to allow the company to earn the allowable 15% return on capital employed, provided for under its exclusive franchise with the Cayman Islands Government.

Honourable Members of this House and the listening public as well, will recall that Caribbean Utilities Company Ltd. also raised rates in August 2002 by a similar 3%.

Both of these increases have been strongly objected to by Government, largely due to the global economic conditions and the negative effects on the Cayman Islands. The Leader of Government Business, the Honourable McKeever Bush, recently wrote to the CUC president, Mr. Peter Thomson, outlining in no uncertain terms Government serious concern with the proposed rate hike.

As the Minister with responsibility for CUC, I advised CUC in early 2002 that Government wished to move away from any form of allowable or guaranteed rate of return in their licence. In response to this, CUC submitted a proposal for the extension of their licence based on Government agreeing to 12 conditions. One of these conditions was the freezing of basic electricity rates until July 2005, following the implementation of the 1 August 2002 rate increase.

The matter of the CUC proposal and the framing of a new agreement will involve detailed research and complex negotiations and as can be expected, will take a certain amount of time.

My Ministry initiated a number of strategies aimed at moving the matter forward, the first of which was the commissioning of a Special Audit Review of CUC's operations by the Auditor General. This audit is an essential first step and should provide the basis in furthering discussions with CUC in regards to any new licence agreement. Independent utility specialists also assisted the Auditor General on this operational review. The Auditor General has advised that the final report is due very shortly.

In addition to the above, the Ministry also engaged consultants to provide preliminary advice on the proposal from Caribbean Utilities Company Ltd. and this information has been submitted.

Government also established a Steering Committee to advise me as Minister in matters relating to CUC including the proposal for a new licence. This committee is chaired by the Permanent Secretary for my Ministry and includes both Government and private sector expertise.

The Ministry is also in the process of selecting a reputable and recognised company with comprehensive expertise in utility regulation and pricing mechanisms to provide detailed recommendations to the Ministry with regard to the CUC proposal as well as alternatives to the existing rate of return formula used in the CUC licence.

While these complex discussions are ongoing, and as CUC had implemented the 3% rate increase on 1 August 2002, I wrote to CUC on the 25 February 2003 requesting that they freeze electricity rates until July 2005 as they had indicated in their proposal. On the 22 April 2003, the president of CUC advised that the rate freeze formed part of the July 2002 proposal and was conditional on the successful completion of a new definitive agreement and an extension to CUC's licence. The letter also stated that CUC intended to proceed with a rate increase of 2.5-3% in August 2003.

CUC's Board of Directors' decision to raise rates again effective 1 August 2003 in light of these ongoing complex discussions and despite the fact that the rate freeze until 2005 was included in their own proposal, shows a lack of good faith on the part of the company as no one could have expected that such a major change in the regulatory regime or indeed a completely new licence could have been executed in less than one year. Indeed several of the conditions (12 in all) put forward by CUC cannot be met by Government.

It is also noteworthy to mention here, that CUC as a lead up to their rate increase has stepped-up their public relations efforts to promote electricity conservation and their "energy smart" campaign. This is indeed an ironic situation, as it can be argued that any shortfall or reduction in electricity consumption by consumers is made up the following year in rate increases to bring the company returns back to the guaranteed 15%! If CUC Ltd. seriously wanted to assist the people of Grand Cayman they would have deferred the 3% increase they are now threatening to impose.

Madam Speaker over the past twenty two (22) years, that is between 1981 and 2002, CUC has reached their 15% return on capital only once, back in 1983; Madam Speaker, one has to seriously question why this is the case.

In 1981 Madam Speaker, the rate of return was 6.8%, the change in electricity rate was 9%.

In 1982 it was 11.4% with a rate of return change or an increase of 3.5%.

In 1983, as I said, that was the only year where they had a 15.44%.

In 1984 they had a 11.02% return and had to get an adjustment of 4%.

In 1985 they had an 11.76% return and had to get a 3.5%.

In 1986 they had 13.18% return and had to get a 2% increase.

In 1987 they had an 11.57% and had to get a 3% increase.

In 1988 they had an 11.13% return and had to get a 3.5% increase.

In 1989 they had 11.57% and had to get an adjustment of 3%.

In 1990 they had a 13.02% return and had to get an adjustment of 1.5%.

I could go on and on but it shows that within 22 years of the statistic that I have available to me that they have not but one time reached their 15%. Though I must quickly add that in 1994 when they had a 14.55% return they did not ask for an increase in that year. And in 1998 when they had the same 14.55 return, they did not ask but all other years, Madam Speaker, with the exception of 1983 they had to get an adjustment.

One has to ask the question why? And I think that most of us know the answer. Then again this year, Madam Speaker, they are seeking another 3% increase, it is ridiculous.

Madam Speaker, perhaps the time may be drawing closer to where we should consider opening up the provision of electricity supplies and services to competition as we are doing this year with the telecommunications sector. We are already seeing the direct and positive results of liberalisation in telecommunications, which are lower prices to consumers. And we can expect more diverse and better services to follow as well.

Madam Speaker, no one can deny that CUC provides a reliable service on Grand Cayman. However, the company's profits/returns are determined by the value of their asset base and therefore, quite understandable, the company has a healthy capital investment programme. The greater the value of assets on their books, directly translates into higher returns for the company, as the 15% is calculated on that investment. Madam Speaker, under the present arrangement, we have every right to be expecting great service from CUC.

Madam Speaker, essentially the new CUC proposals call for electricity prices to be tied directly to inflation rates or the Consumer Price Index (CPI). CUC has gone on record saying that electricity rates increases since 1995 have only amounted to 8.8% compared to a 26.4% increase in the general cost of living based on the (CPI) for the same period. While this may be true, we need to examine the other side of the equation to gain a sense of balance. CUC's earnings per share were 95% higher in 2003 than in 1995, and the dividend per share for 2003 was 137% higher than 1995. The share price also increased significantly over the same period.

In my opinion, Madam Speaker, this illustrates that it is not CUC's customers who are the real beneficiaries, but the shareholders of the company. Does this mean that this new proposal from CUC to link electricity rates to the CPI could mean even higher guaranteed rates every year? Obviously, as would be expected, the CUC proposal was put together in the interests of the company shareholders and Government must carefully consider the options before committing to a new licence extending the term to 25 years as proposed by CUC. The current CUC franchise will expire in January 2011.

Madam Speaker, CUC has also recently submitted to Government a Full Allocated Cost of Service Study report from their consultants (R.W. Beck Inc. of Florida, USA), which proposes certain rebalancing of electricity rates, based on the cost of providing service. This comprehensive report also needs to be analysed in detail by Government and its expert advisors. CUC will no doubt expect rate rebalancing to form part of the pricing structure on any new licence agreement.

Madam Speaker, Honourable Members of the Legislative Assembly will be aware of the many issues that have to be considered in this matter, as well as the need for outside expert advice in these important deliberations. I can assure Members that while my Ministry has been concentrating efforts on the liberalisation of the telecommunications sector, our focus and attention can now be turned more directly to the electricity supply monopoly of CUC.

Government will continue to deal with this matter and any negotiations, with careful forethought and deliberate action and at all times with the best interests of the public, paramount in our minds.

Thank you Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Thank you, Honourable Minister.

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 2/03

Cayman Brac's Economic Stagnation

*Withdrawn
Standing Order 24(14)*

The Speaker: I recognise the Second Elected Member from Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, yesterday, 11 June 2003 the Honourable Minister of Planning, Communications, Works and Information Technology tabled Cayman Brac Report 2003/2007 prepared by the Sister Islands Ad Hoc Committee for Sustainable Development.

It would be nonsensical for me to attempt to intellectually debate and expect other Members to debate a motion that seeks for the Government to take note of the stagnation of Cayman Brac's economy without having an opportunity to first review this thorough and very comprehensive attempt to address the same.

Madam Speaker, consequently I invoke the leave of this Honourable House as allowed under Standing Order 24(14) to withdraw this Motion until another Meeting of this Honourable Legislative Assembly.

The Speaker: Is there a seconder?

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr: Madam Speaker, I second the motion.

The Speaker: The Member from North Side.

Point of Order

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: On a point of order, Madam Speaker, to assist the Member. If he withdraws it he cannot bring it at another Meeting; I would think that it would be deferred, if I am correct.

The Speaker: Standing Order 24(14) reads as follows "A motion may be withdrawn with the leave of the House; but if so withdrawn it may be made again at another meeting of the House, after notice has been given as required by paragraph (5)."

I now put the question that Private Member's Motion No. 2/03 be withdrawn by virtue of Standing Order 24(14). All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed: Private Member's Motion No. 2/03 withdrawn.

BILLS

SECOND READING

The Children Bill 2003

The Speaker: Honourable Minister may I ask you to move the Bill prior to commencing your substantive debate please.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, I beg permission to move a Bill entitled The Children Bill, 2003. Second Reading.

The Speaker: The Bill has been duly moved; does the Minister wish to speak thereto?

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Please proceed.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Wha unnah find so sweet over there again? I na take my tablets? Boy—

[Members' laughter]

The Speaker: Order!

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker and Members of the Legislative Assembly, I wish to present to this Honourable House the Children Bill, 2003.

This Bill will repeal the Children Law passed by the Legislative Assembly in 1995. That Law was based to some extent on the Children Act, 1989 of the UK and it is said that it was found shortly after its enactment to be administratively unworkable.

This Bill is the result of a lengthy but comprehensive review of the need for legislation to protect children and to promote their welfare. In reviewing the legislation the Ministry consulted with the Ministry of Education, the Immigration Department, the Police Force and other government agencies that would have functions under the Law.

Part I of the Bill provides for the short title, commencement and definitions. It affirms the principle that the welfare of the child is the paramount consideration for a Court when deciding any question with respect to the upbringing of a child. This is reflected for instance in clause 3 which provides that where the Court is considering whether to make certain orders under the Law it shall have regard in particular to—

- (a) the ascertainable wishes and feelings of the child concerned (considered in the light of his age and understanding);
- (b) his physical, educational and emotional needs;
- (c) the likely effect on him or any change in his circumstances;
- (d) his age,—

Madam Speaker, could I just ask the Member for North Side to give me a bit of possibility to concentrate on reading this information so that she can digest it and so that she does not make any mistakes when it comes to the debate.

The Speaker: The Member from North Side.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, would the Honourable Minister point out what the Member for North Side is doing? I mean, if he is reading his speech and he thinks that I am going to get up and stop him . . . I am not. Let him go ahead.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs would you care to be specific?

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, the Member is again off microphone indulging with her colleague from the district of East End in the psychological game called distraction and I can hear them from here and she knows it is a fact.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: One minute, please. Before I take the Member from East End, I would just remind Members to endeavour to keep as quiet as possible because we are in new surroundings and even from here without the microphones on I am able to hear various conversations. The Minister in his own subjective analysis finds it distracting. I am unable to say whether that is so or not, except but to take his word.

So in order to accommodate the debate I would ask both sides to try to be as quiet as possible and for that to be reciprocal whenever any other Member is speaking as well.

Member from North Side, I have said that trying to be as careful as possible without accusing anyone because I did not find it distracting. But I am not the one speaking. So I am just making a general rule and asking all Members to try to be as quiet as possible because the one who is speaking is the only one who can make that assessment.

The Member from East End.

Point of Order

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker, evidently the Minister has—

The Speaker: Is this a point of order?

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Please proceed.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Evidently the Minister has taken me into this and the acoustics in this place are very poor. Now there is nothing that says that side conversations cannot go on—

The Speaker: Please state your point of order Member.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, the Minister said that we were deliberately trying to distract him—engaged in the deliberate attempt to distract him—and that is not true.

The Speaker: Is it a misleading point of order?

Mr. V. Arden McLean: It is misleading, and he must withdraw it.

The Speaker: Honourable Member from East End the Honourable Minister would only be positively guilty of that accusation if you did not expressly state that it was not by intent. The Chair takes it that there was no intention to distract and therefore I find no need for withdrawal.

Is there another point of order? The Honourable Minister for Community Affairs.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, I shall go back to Part 1 of the Bill, which provides for the short title, commencement and definitions. It affirms the principle that the welfare of the child is the paramount consideration for a court when deciding any question with respect to the upbringing of a child. This is reflected for instance in clause 3 which provides that where the court is considering whether to make certain orders under the Law it shall have regard in particular to-

- (a) the wishes and feelings of the child concerned (considered in the light of his age and understanding);
- (b) his physical, educational and emotional needs;
- (c) the likely effect on him or any change in his circumstances;
- (d) his age, sex, religious persuasion, background and any characteristic of his which the court considers relevant;
- (e) any harm which he has suffered or is at risk of suffering; and
- (f) how capable each of his parents, and any other person in relation to whom the court considers the question to be relevant, is of meeting his needs.

Part II of the Bill, and Schedule 1, provides for a wide range of court orders in relation to civil proceedings affecting the welfare or upbringing of children. The purpose is to provide an effective means of providing help and support for children where there is a breakdown of the family or the children are otherwise in need of help and support. In deciding whether to make any of these orders the Bill provides that a court must have regard to the welfare of the child in the context of the family, but should take account of all the relevant circumstances. The kinds of orders, which may be made by a court, include the following-

- (a) "a contact order" which is an order requiring the person with whom a child lives, or is to live, to allow the child to visit or stay with the person named in the order, or for that person and the child otherwise to have contact with each other;
- (b) "a prohibited steps order" which is an order that no step which could be taken by a parent in meeting his parental responsibility for a child, and which is of a kind specified in the order, shall be taken by any person without the consent of the court;
- (c) "a residence order" which is an order settling the arrangements to be made as to the person with whom a child is to live; and
- (d) "a specific issue order" which is an order giving directions for the purpose of determining a specific question which has arisen, or which may arise, in connection with any aspect of parental responsibility for a child.

The court may also issue family assistance orders under clause 18. Such an order will require that the Department of Social Services make a social worker or other officer of the Department available to advise, assist and (where appropriate) befriend any person named in the order.

The persons who may be named in an order under clause 18 are-

- (a) any parent or guardian of the child;
- (b) any person with whom the child is living or in whose favour a contact order is in force with respect to the child; and
- (c) the child himself.

No court may make a family assistance order unless it is satisfied that the circumstances of the case are exceptional and it has obtained the consent of every person to be named in the order other than the child.

Part III of the Bill, and Schedule 2, specifies the duties of the Department of Social Services to safeguard and promote the welfare of children in the Islands. When exercising any of these duties the Department must always be aware that its role is to offer help to parents and children in the context of the family. The main duty of Social Services is to promote and safeguard the upbringing of children by their families. Any assistance given by the Department may be unconditional or subject to conditions as to the repayment of the assistance or of its value in whole or in part.

The Department will, in accordance with clause 20, provide day care for children in need who are aged 5 or under and not yet attending school or as is appropriate.

Clause 22 provides that the Department will provide accommodation for any child in need who appears to the Department to require accommodation as a result of -

- (a) there being no person who has parental responsibility for him;
- (b) his being lost or having been abandoned; or
- (c) the person who has been caring for him being prevented (whether or not permanently, and for whatever reason) from providing him with suitable accommodation or care.

The Department may also provide accommodation for any child in need who has reached the age of 16 and whose welfare the Department considers is likely to be seriously prejudiced if it does not provide him with accommodation.

Part IV of the Bill, and Schedule 3, deals with the care and supervision of children and give powers for the Department of Social Services to protect children suffering significant harm.

A court may make care orders or supervision orders to safeguard and promote the welfare of these children. Where a care order is made with respect to a child it shall be the duty of the Department to receive the child into its care and to keep him in its care while the order remains in force. It is proposed that while a care order is in force, with respect to a child the Department shall have parental responsibility for the child and have the power to determine the extent to which a parent or guardian of the child may meet his parental responsibility for him.

Under this Part, education supervision orders may be made by a court where a child is not being properly educated. This will allow the Education Department to offer the appropriate support services to ensure the child will be properly educated.

It is also provided that for the purpose of specified proceedings a court may appoint a guardian ad litem for a child. The guardian ad litem shall be appointed in accordance with rules of court and shall be under a duty to safeguard the interests of the child in the manner prescribed by such rules. The types of proceedings in which a guardian ad litem may be appointed, include proceedings dealing with an application for a care order or a supervision order; proceedings dealing with the protection of a child and proceedings in which the court is considering whether to make a residence order.

Part V of the Bill provides powers for a court to make orders protecting the welfare of children in emergencies.

The court may make child assessment orders under clause 45. Where the Department applies to the court for an order to be made under this section with respect to a child, the court may only make the order if, it is satisfied that-

(a) the Department has reasonable cause to suspect that the child is suffering, or is likely to suffer, significant harm;

(b) an assessment of the state of the child's health or development, or of the way in which he has been treated, is required to enable the Department to determine whether or not the child is suffering, or is likely to suffer, significant harm; and

(c) it is unlikely that such an assessment will be made, or be satisfactory, in the absence of an order under this section.

An emergency protection order may be made where a child is likely to suffer significant harm if the order is not made or enquiries about the welfare of a child at risk have been obstructed. An order will authorise the temporary care of the child at risk by the Department as a last resort. There are detailed provisions to ensure that no action under this Part of the Law can be taken without proof that a child is at risk of significant harm.

Part VI of the Bill provides for the establishment and operation of community homes. A community home may be a home provided, equipped and maintained by the Department or by a voluntary organisation. Schedule 4 provides the details of how such homes should be managed and conducted.

Part VII, and Schedule 5, provides for the regulation of voluntary homes and voluntary organisations. A voluntary home means any home or other institution providing care and accommodation for children, which is operated by a voluntary organisation.

Part VIII of the Bill, and Schedule 6, provides for new registration rules and procedures to ensure that children's homes safeguard and promote the welfare of the children they look after. "Children's Homes" are defined as certain institutions where children are looked after outside of the family home. Schedule 7 sets out the circumstances in which a person may foster more than 3 children without being compelled to register as children's home.

Part IX, and Schedule 8, sets out provisions, which deal with the private fostering of children. It shall be the duty of the Department to satisfy itself that the welfare of children who are privately fostered within the Islands is being safeguarded and promoted.

Part X of the Bill, and Schedule 9, makes provision for the registration of child minders and people providing day care for pre-school children. These provisions build on the existing duties of the Department of Education under the Education Law (1999 Revision) to register private pre-schools. They reflect the Government's concern to ensure that adequate arrangements for the care and education of pre-school age children promote the welfare and education of children when they reach school age. A commitment to the care and education of pre-school age children is seen as vital to help reduce the youth problems associated with poor educational achievement and anti-social behaviour by older children.

Part XI of the Bill sets out the Governor's supervisory functions and responsibilities under the Law.

Part XII of the Bill, and Schedule 10, contains necessary provisions to ensure the new Law comes into force smoothly, without disruption to children who are the subject of existing legislation. It supplements the provisions in the rest of the Bill to ensure that this fundamental reform of children's legislation is given the procedural arrangements to make it operate effectively. Amendments and transitional provisions will ensure that the reform of the civil law relating to children can be effectively carried out.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, it is now 1.05 pm. Would you wish to continue with your introductory remarks or would you wish to break now for lunch?

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, before seeking approval of this Honourable House in passing the Children's Bill 2003, I need to give notice of a few Committee Stage amendments. They are very short; we could then conclude this introductory period.

The Speaker: Sorry, Honourable Minister, please proceed.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, in accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 52(1) and (2), I the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Services, Youth, Sports and Gender Affairs give notice that I intend to move the following Committee Stage amendments to the Children Bill 2003.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I accept that notice for the amendments. Perhaps on the luncheon break you could organise with the staff for circulation through the Clerk and for the appropriate leave.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, I think we should take the break now.

The Speaker: We will now break for the luncheon suspension and recommence at 2.30 pm.

Proceedings suspended at 1.07 pm

Proceedings resumed at 2.46 pm

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed. I recognise the Honourable Minister of Community Affairs to continue his debate.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Before we took the break for lunch I was basically at the end of my short presentation of this Bill and I will now seek the approval of this Honourable House in passing the Children Bill 2003.

The Speaker: Thank you. Does any other Member wish to speak? The Leader of Opposition.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, before I speak, if I may just get clearly: these committee stage amendments will be addressed wholly at Committee Stage so we do not need to have any discussions about that until committee stage. I just wish to make absolutely certain of that.

Thank you very much, Madam Speaker. This Bill is a pretty large one; I have not seen one with so many pages in a long time. It is a very comprehensive effort most certainly; it is 188 pages. I noticed earlier when looking through it under the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons, where it explains that the Bill seeks to reform the Law passed by the Legislative Assembly back in 1995. An explanation was also given about the Law being based to some extent on the Children Act 1989 of the United Kingdom but was found to be administratively unworkable here in the Cayman Islands. So this Bill, we are told, is the result of a comprehensive review of the need for legislation to protect children and to promote their welfare.

Madam Speaker, in looking through it I see where that 1995 Law will be repealed, on passage of this Law, as this Law seeks to reform the existing Law. And when we look at the very end of the Bill where it refers to Repeals, it will also repeal the Guardianship and Custody of Children Law (1996 Revision). Paragraph (a) of Section 6(1) of the Education Law (1999 Revision) shall be repealed and also the Juveniles Law, (1990)..

So by that, we understand clearly that this effort is to bring all of these together into one piece of legislation in a clear attempt to relate each facet to the other so that when both the Courts and the Social Services Department have to have dealings with children, whether it is a situation of custody or guardianship or abuse or whatever the like, this piece of legislation is able to be looked at and worked accordingly in law.

Madam Speaker, this we find as a sensible approach. Certainly it is not going to take one of us to be able to extensively look at the entire piece of legislation as you will find going through it that you will always have to reference one section to another. And it is fine for it to be in one piece of legislation, but even that gets a little bit tedious at times. So perhaps you will find Members dealing with various sections in contributing to the debate.

I have a few questions which I am certain can be clarified and maybe there is something that my eye did not catch in some of the questions that I may ask. But I think that it is good if we go through this exercise in that manner so that in case something is not captured, we will be able to deal with it.

Madam Speaker, on page 14 of the Bill under the definition section, we see where the definition of "child" means, subject to paragraph 16(1) of Schedule 1, a person under the age of 18".

And then if we go to page 25 of the Bill, Madam Speaker, section 11 under part 2 orders, with respect to children and family proceedings, Section 11(5) speaks to— "11 (5) No court shall make any section 10 order which is to have effect for a period which will end after the child has reached the age of 16 unless it is satisfied that the circumstances of the case are exceptional."

Now I take that to mean that in relation to section 10 the authors of the legislation are saying that after age 16, no court shall make any section 10 order which is to have effect that will go beyond the age of 16 of the child—and the definition of 'child' is an individual under 18 years of age. I only want to make sure then in so doing whereby the definition takes a child up to 18 (and any section 10 order only relates to the child up to age 16), that the other two years are considered to be not the right thing to deal with it under section 10. It is just a question to clearly understand. I am not suggesting that it is not intentionally done I just do not have a clear understanding exactly as to what that relates to with regards to the definition of a child being 18 and any order under section 10 not going beyond the child's age of 16.

In looking at that, Madam Speaker, I want to refer to section 6 – and this is not a question but just to make a comment – and I am certain that perhaps at least one of my colleagues will go into this in more detail. I think that it is good that section 6 is in there where it gives clarity to the child's status and it does not limit all of the responsibilities and benefits to legitimacy which has always been a question. I am certain that will relate in other areas also.

The Member for North Side, especially, has always championed that there should be no differentiation with regards to the care or the responsibilities of a child whether that child is legitimate or not and also the definition of a child when it speaks to a marriage because the fact is, a child, as we all know, does not decide how he or she comes into this world whether it is from the institution of marriage or not. So the child definitely, I think we all agree, should not be penalised in any way because that child is not from within the institution of marriage.

Now, Madam Speaker, as we go on there are a couple more questions that I would wish to ask and perhaps get clarified. If we look on section 15 of the Bill page 29 and it speaks to a residence order; “15 (1) Where a residence order is in force with respect to a child, no person may-

- (a) cause the child to be known by a new surname; or
- (b) remove him permanently from the Islands . . .”

Then in subsection (2) it speaks to subsection (1)(b) which is referring to remove the child permanently from the Islands; “15(2) Subsection (1)(b) does not prevent the removal of a child, for a period of less than 1 month, by the person in whose favour the residence order is made.”

So we have two situations here: (1) where when a residence order is in force, no person can remove a child permanently from the Islands (2) but the person is not prevented from removing the child for a period of less than one month. That is the person in whose favour the residence order is made.

Now I only wish to speak to this from a practical perspective and subsection (1)(b) is quite understandable that because an individual has a residence order in favour of them with regards to the child, then that does not give that person the right, permission or authority to take the child away and leave the country permanently. But summer holidays are 2 months, the child may be sick and the only point I wish to make is: Is there somewhere in the Law which gives someone the discretion to be able to deal with a situation that is more than a month but is not permanent? And I am not suggesting there is not; I just did not see it.

I see where there could be problems in certain individual cases if someone does not have the discretion to be able to grant that permission. I am not suggesting that this be changed to more than a month. All I am saying is that if this remains like this, there must be some other mechanism which allows for it, because if we do as the old time people would say, 'If we go by the letter of the Law – and only these two applications can be made – then there is no room for anything in between. So perhaps it is something they might wish to examine.

Madam Speaker, if I go to section 72 and we hold section 72, which is page 88, with one hand and go back to our definition section, which is at the introduction. There are two definitions which I wish to look at: One is a child minder and it says, “child minder” has the meaning given by section 72”. The next one is 'nanny' and that says, the same thing – “nanny” has the meaning given by section 72”. There are a couple of questions, Madam Speaker, in section 72(1) and this whole section 72 speaks to a register and registration of certain types of individuals.

“72(1) A register shall be kept-

- (a) by the Department, of persons who act as child minders on domestic premises;
- (b) by the Education Department of persons who provide day care for children under the age of 8 on premises other than domestic premises.”

So I think under these two subsections would refer to a child minder at a home and a child minder perhaps in a commercial setting that is a day care centre with many children involved.

“72(2) For the purposes of this Part-

- (a) a person acts as a child minder if-
  - (i) he looks after one or more children under the age of 8, for reward; and”

That I would take to mean what we would call our helpers at home while the parents are at work the helpers are at home minding the children whether the child goes to preschool or is not of that age but up to the age of 8.

- “(ii) the period, or the total of the periods, which he [that is the way the Law reads but it means he or she] spends so looking after children in any day exceeds 2 hours; and

- (b) a person does not provide day care for children unless the period, or the total of the periods, during which children are looked after exceeds 2 hours in any day.”

So I think this is simply to clarify that if anyone is just stepping in for an interim period that is very short, you would not say that person has to be registered. You are not considering that person a child minder because the length of time is not warranted for that person to be classified and needing to be registered. Now subsection (3) reads, “72(3) Where a person provides day care for children under the age of 8 on different premises that person shall be separately registered with respect to each of those premises.”

I understand from that, that during the course of one day that person may provide day care on several premises but the time is more than 2 hours on each of the premises. So we are following it all right up to there.

Subsection (4) speaks to –“(4) A person who-

- a) is the parent, or a relative, of a child;
- b) has parental responsibility for a child; or c) is a foster parent of a child, does not act as a child minder for the purposes of this Part when looking after that child.”

That means the parent, the relative who has parental responsibility or a foster parent is not required to be registered. That is what that is there for.

Subsection (5) then speaks to – “(5) Where a person is employed as a nanny for a child, she . . .” It is kind of funny in this Law though, Madam Speaker: before it spoke to ‘he’ now it speaks to ‘she’. I guess what it is saying is that all nannies are ‘she’ “. . . does not act as a child minder when looking after that child wholly or mainly in the home of the person so employing her.”

Therefore, it seems that there is an obvious distinction that a child minder and a nanny are in two different categories and I have to assume by the explanation in subsection (5), Madam Speaker, that where a nanny is categorised as not acting as a child minder is because it is saying that a nanny does not have to be registered in the same manner as what has been described as a child minder above. Which would either be someone working in a day care facility at a commercial premises or someone working in a family home whereas we would basically call them a helper.

So there may be something in here but I do not see it and I ask the question then: Are we then saying that these other individuals do not have to be registered, that is the nannies, but the other ones should be registered? I just wish to have clarity in that.

Subsection (6) speaks to, “(6) Where a person is so employed by 2 different employers, she does not act as a child minder when looking after any of the children concerned wholly or mainly in the home of either of her employers.”

Madam Speaker, I am unsure whether subsection (6) refers to a nanny who works in two different homes, although it just says ‘a person’ because if we single out subsection (6) and relate it back up to the above while I am not 100 per cent sure that I am with exact clear understanding. It seems a bit contradictory to me unless subsection (6) is specifically referring to a person who is going to be defined as a nanny. And while it follows subsection (5) it really does not say so and I do not know whether we are to assume that or not.

So section 72, Madam Speaker, it would be good when the Minister is replying if we could just get clarity with regards to whom, and what type of individual will need to be registered once there is passage of this Law.

I do understand from the Law that there will be certain sections: the date of coming into operation will vary and we will know exactly what comes into operation when. But it also will beg the question with this registration, whether it is from the day the law is passed and any new hiring is involved, or whether it is going to be anyone who has a person in such a category employed; whether they are going to be expected to be registered or if it is from here on in. I do not see where that is specified in the Law, so I think we need to get that fairly clear. And the question of registration as to who should be registered and who is exempt from registration, I would wish for us to get that also cleared up.

Madam Speaker, there are other sections to be looked at, but we have decided that each of us will deal with certain sections where we may have questions. As I said, by and large and generally from our side, there is support for the Bill. There are just a few question marks. Let me say very clearly that in a Bill of this magnitude with nearly 200 pages it is obvious that it is difficult putting it all together no matter how closely you look at it; no matter how well you try to cross your t’s and dot your i’s.

I guess we are just taking up our role as sort of scrutineers before passage of the Bill. We will try to be as conscientious as we can with it and if there is anything that needs to be cleared up, perhaps it can be dealt with at committee stage rather than having to be dealing with amendments further on down the line. Although we may well have to do that, because I am not suggesting that we will capture everything at one point in time.

However, I think if we all look at the Bill in that light and work it through its various stages perhaps we will end up with as good a Bill as we can get. And while it might come as a surprise, I truly commend all the efforts that have gone in to the creation of this Bill – notwithstanding the fact that we had a 1995 Law and we were not starting from scratch. I think it is well that that was looked at and the changes have been made to try to make it more workable with all of the problems that they have been having.

The final thing that I would like to say is, it would seem from the manner in which the Bill is crafted that there are going to be some direct legal responsibilities on the part of the Social Services Department – not just parents and everybody else, but the Social Services Department. I see heads nodding so I am certain that they are conscious of it. But I would just like perhaps to hear some comments from the Minister with regards to exactly how it is planned for the Department to be able to grab this piece of legislation once it is passed and be able to fit it in with all of their workings.

Is there going to be any special training needed for staff? Is that in the works? Has it been taken care of? That is just a matter for our information. Perhaps we could get some sort of views on that and when the Minister is winding up he can deal with that.

I certainly wish to commend those who have worked so hard to create this piece of legislation; it is a very vital piece of legislation. Children are near and dear to us and we certainly hope that the laws of our land are doing what they should with regards to the care of these children in one form or fashion in whatever way it is deemed necessary to deal with them for their best benefit. Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? Does any other Member wish to speak? The Member from East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Continuing where the First Elected Member from George Town left off, I would just like to say that I lend my support to the Children Bill that is before us. However, like the First Elected Member from George Town, I have a few areas that I think need some clarification and I offer them as constructive criticisms. Maybe it is just a matter of explanation on the part of the crafters of this Bill: I shall go on and point out those areas and perhaps in the Minister's reply he will give us the explanations.

Madam Speaker, under section (6)(1) of this Bill it says— “6(1) Where a child's father and mother were not married to each other at the time of his birth-

- (a) the court may, on the application of the father, order that he shall have parental responsibility for the child; or
- (b) the father and mother may by agreement (“a parental responsibility agreement”) provide for the father to have parental responsibility for the child.”

Now, Madam Speaker, that is all well and good and I understand those two provisions. But we are here trying to protect our children and many of them will not fall in the ambit of those two provisions. I am very concerned because just a few weeks ago I had a situation where a young lady called me and told me that at the time of registration for her child (who was born out of wedlock) the father was not available to sign the register. When he was available to go to the Registrar, he was unable to put his name on the child's register. Madam Speaker, that is frightening, because we all know that there is no one in this wide world without a father.

While trying to get some information, I was informed that the Births and Deaths Registration Law needs to be revised to allow for that person, a father of a child born out of wedlock, to add his name to the Register or to allow the courts to make an order that the child's father be added to the Register.

Now, Madam Speaker, I said all of that to say that these two provisions here in section 6, while they cover certain aspects and it is voluntarily done, I believe somewhere, whether it is in this Law or it is in the Births and Deaths Registration Law, it needs to be addressed.

I think it is the Affiliation Law whereby if an order is made in court in the first year of that child's life, for support from the father then the father will be held parentally responsible. But we know there are many fathers who do not take up that responsibility and provisions need to be made available to allow the courts to ensure that those children's fathers are registered in a recognised way.

So, I am wondering if another provision should not be placed in here, or wherever the Minister of his Department of Social Services will sponsor it to be put in place. We have to hold these fathers who do not want to be held responsible. We really have to hold them responsible for their children. This is an equal partnership: no one human being can make a child.

Madam Speaker, the other area I want to go on to is section 7(8) and it reads—“7(8) Where on the death of any person making an appointment under subsection (3) or (4) [which is:] ‘(3) A parent who has parental responsibility for his child may appoint another individual to be the child's guardian in the event of his death. (4) a guardian of a child may appoint another individual to take his place as the child's guardian in the event of his death.’”

When we look at subsection (8)(a) — “(8) (a) the child concerned has a parent with parental responsibility for him;” and “(b) subsection (7)(b) does not apply [which is] ‘(7)(b) immediately before the death of any person making such an appointment, a residence order in his favour was in force with respect to the child, the appointment shall take effect on the death of that person.’”

That, in my common layman's term, seems somewhat convoluted when “7(8) Where on the death of any person making an appointment under subsection (3) . . .

- (a) the child concerned has a parent with parental responsibility for him; and
- (b) . . . the appointment shall take effect when the child no longer has a parent who has parental responsibility for him.”

Madam Speaker, what happens to the child who was taken? In a lot of instances the Social Services Department takes children from their parents and do not necessarily appoint a guardian. What happens to that child? Or in the instance where the Social Services Department takes the child because of abuse and the likes and then they appoint a guardian? Does that guardian have the responsibility or the authority to appoint someone else? Because if the parents are alive and there is no parental responsibility on those parents; there is something wrong.

That goes back to what I spoke about earlier in section (6). The parents are there with no responsibility on them. Somehow we need to tie this in to ensure that if those parents . . . And in most instances those parents are alive and Social Services Department has taken over. Somebody has to take responsibility for that child and in most instances Government takes that responsibility. I would like, Madam Speaker, for the Minister to explain how we would get to that point.

Another area, Madam Speaker, is section 8 (5): “8(5) A person who is appointed as a guardian under section 7(3) or (4) may disclaim his appointment by an instrument in writing signed by him and made within a reasonable time of his first knowing that the appointment has taken effect.”

Now, Madam Speaker, when we look at section 8(7) it says- “8 (7) “Any appointment of a guardian under section 7 may be brought to an end at any time by order of the court-

- (a) on the application of any person who has parental responsibility for the child;
- (b) on the application of the child concerned, with leave of the court; or
- (c) in any family proceedings, if the court considers that it should be brought to an end even though no application has been made.”

Madam Speaker, my question there is: Is there any way after a reasonable time that the guardian can bring it to an end? And I may be missing something but there does not seem to be any provision for the guardian who was appointed 5 years ago. A reasonable time under subsection 5 I would think is within months or thereabouts. But I am wondering: Five years ago the guardian accepted and something happened along the way which required that he would like to change that situation. I do not see any provisions there to allow that. Maybe it is elsewhere and I have not seen it.

Madam Speaker, I also take note that under part 2 orders with respect to children and family proceedings. I take ‘family proceedings’ to mean family court which the Adoption Affiliation Law and Age of Majority Law and the likes. But I know we have talked about a family court for a very long time and I am wondering if this is made in anticipation of the soon to be family court which would be quite refreshing and I am sure that we are all looking forward to it. , Madam Speaker, too many things are happening in our country with our children and the time has arrived for us to protect them – thus my reason for supporting this Bill the way I am.

Every day we hear and see through the media the abuse of our children by fathers, friends, foe and strangers. And we hear of them being in prison and still having contact with their victims. Maybe we need to go even a little further than we are doing here. B that is for another debate. I trust that the Minister and his Department who have the responsibility and have witnessed so many of these situations, will soon be sponsoring much more in the area of protection of our children.

Madam Speaker, there are a number of other things that I think my colleague will address in the form of questioning and bringing to the attention of the Minister and his departments in order that we all work together to put something in place even, like the First Elected Member for George Town said, if we need to amend it at times, something will be in place.

And as much as the Minister does not believe that I am capable of doing this, I am going to commend him for his brave efforts, also his staff, and the staff of the Drafting Department, for being prepared to stand up and do something about putting the Children's Law in place in this country. It is long overdue. We have too many little pieces all over the place and we need to bring them together.

Madam Speaker, I give the Bill my support and I look forward to some explanation to my queries when the Minister replies.

I thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Second Elected Member from the district of George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I also thank the Minister and this Honourable House for the opportunity to offer a few comments on this important piece of legislation.

Madam Speaker, this is a Bill for a Law to reform the Law relating to children and effectively to replace the Children Law 1995, which to the best of my knowledge is yet to be brought into effect. It is my understanding that the principle reasoning for that is that it was deemed by those who would have to operate within its constraints and to apply its provisions that it was administratively unworkable.

That, Madam Speaker, I think is something of a travesty and speaks to some fundamental problems in the system of creating legislation clearly either without consultation or without regard to the views expressed during the consultation process. And so some 8 years hence and after no doubt many, many man hours employed in the process we are still at a point where we are debating one of the most critical and most necessary pieces of legislation in this country. A Law that when passed will hopefully have the effect of protecting and nurturing and assisting in the upbringing of the children of this country.

Madam Speaker, for many, many years now we have operated with just the basics of the sort of provisions and authority that is necessary to give the Department of Social Services and the Courts and those who look after our young people and look after their best interest the kind of responsibility and authority that is necessary for them to be able to function properly. We have had a Juveniles Law, which existed for many years until it was amended in 1990 and even in that instance the amendments fell far short of what was generally regarded as being necessary to enable the various authorities within this jurisdiction to administer the affairs of the young people and particularly those who get themselves into problems with the law or who need care, supervision and control.

There is also the question of Guardianship and Custody of Children Law, again a fairly ancient piece of legislation which was revised I believe somewhere around 1996, but again in many instances fell short of what is actually necessary to deal with those questions of custody and guardianship.

What we need and have needed for a long time now, is a comprehensive piece of legislation that is capable of dealing with the myriad of issues that those who deal with family situations and young people in particular, need to be able to effectively deal with the many problems and issues that arise in these relationships and the authority to take action when it is necessary to protect the children, their families, their parents and society generally. That is what I understand to be the general intent and philosophy behind this particular piece of legislation. And that, Madam Speaker, I regard as commendable. Whether or not it is going to be able to sufficiently and adequately address all of these concerns is yet to be seen. I suspect as has been the case with most major legislation that those who have to actually apply and administer the Law and operate within its provisions will find that there are proposals or provisions which do not quite work that would need some adjustments/amendments in due course. But that is to be expected when one attempts as monumental a task as this and where there is no local precedent for such a comprehensive piece of legislation governing the whole question of children and young people.

So, I am not going to attempt to criticize the drafting or to say that I do not think this or that provision would work unless it is something that appears to me to be blatant. I am going to try to address this more on a philosophical basis and to examine as best I can some of the provisions and what they seek to achieve.

Madam Speaker, the first point I want to make – and although the Minister did not actually speak to the philosophy to any extent there are some fundamental shifts in the philosophy behind this legislation relating to young people, their rights and to the consequences of accident of birth in many cases which are contained in this draft legislation. I must say that I am pleased to see them.

I think the First Elected Member for George Town and the Member for East End alluded to the situation in relation to children born out of wedlock. I know that the Elected Member for North Side has long championed this particular cause; it is one that I, myself, have felt strongly about and has championed in another forum for a long time. The whole question of what rights and even what nomenclature should be applied to a young person/child who is born outside the bonds of matrimony. And that stemmed largely from the fact that the Common Law recognised as a child only a child born within wedlock, only a legitimate child. Even that term is one that I dislike to use. Because as the First Elected Member for George Town has said “when a child comes into this world it has absolutely no control over the circumstances under which it was conceived and born. The fact that certain rights and privileges flow from that accident of birth is something that I believe we in this jurisdiction have to look carefully at and decide that a child is a child of God and that should be the only criteria, description, definition that is properly applicable to that individual. This legislation now defines ‘child’ as simply being a person who is under the age of 18 years and I believe that is quite appropriate and something that should have come into effect a long time ago.

Arising from that, Madam Speaker, is also the whole question of parental responsibility in two respects: one is that under the present legislation, or perhaps lack of actual legislation, the father of a child who is born out of wedlock has no parental responsibility or rights to guardianship of that child unless he has successfully made an application to the court and has been appointed as a guardian of a child under the Guardianship and Custody of Children Law. Now, at the same time if that father has been adjudged as a putative father under the Affiliation Law he will have the responsibility of making financial provision for that child. I am not for a moment suggesting that he should not have the financial responsibility for the upbringing of the child, indeed he should. But he should also have, I believe if he is so inclined and/or if the mother and he are in agreement that he should have the parental responsibility for the upbringing of that child

Under this proposed legislation section 6, provides that- “6. (I) Where a child’s father and mother were not married to each other at the time of his birth-

- (a) the court may, on the application of the father, order that he shall have parental responsibility for the child; or
- (b) the father and mother may by agreement (“a parental responsibility agreement”) provide for the father to have parental responsibility for the child.”

Madam Speaker, in both this particular office that I now hold, and previously as an attorney-at-law, I have had to tell fathers on many occasions that they did not have a right to access to their children who were born out of wedlock. They could not insist that the child went to this school or that school; they could not insist that the child go away on vacation with them unless the mother was prepared to agree to it. Or, unless they made an application to the Court successfully to gain guardianship of the child. In the majority of the cases those applications would not succeed unless they could satisfy the court that there was a good reason why responsibility/guardianship of the child should be removed from the mother and vested in them as the unwed father of the child.

Under this provision, as I understand it, those sorts of problems will be less of a problem because it is not a question of having to satisfy the court of the unfitness of the mother but simply of your willingness to accept the responsibility for the parental functions as an unwed father who has a vested interest in the upbringing and the welfare of your child.

In many instances of course the mother will agree because she wants to see her child having a father figure in his life and to be able to relate to his father as his father. And so this, I think is the kind of provision that has long been needed and I am pleased to see that it is within the proposed Bill.

Madam Speaker, also in the Bill is the provision that whether it is the court or the Department of Social Services or whoever it is that is responsible for dealing with the particular issue in relation to the child or children, the paramount consideration in whatever determination is necessary is the welfare of the child. That is important. It is a well known and understood provision that appears in English legislation and is applied in our courts generally in any event when they are taking into account the issues involving the children particularly in the context of divorces.

Before I leave this particular point and turn to the duties of the Department of Social Services I would like to deal with one point which was raised by my colleague, the Elected Member for East End, in relation to the Affiliation Law and the provision in that Law which entitles a single woman who is delivered of a child to make an application to the Court essentially within 12 months of the birth of the child for an affiliation order to be made seeking that the person that she alleges to be the father of her child, be adjudged the putative father of the child and ordered to pay a certain contribution by way of financial support for that child.

One of the consequences of that particular provision is that if the mother fails to make the application within the 12-month period and the father has not supported the child during that period, or if she is unable to satisfy the court that in fact he has that child, can be and often is deprived of the financial support from its natural father for its entire life, certainly for the period while it is still a minor. Now that can have rather grave consequences and I recall having to make an application to defend an application brought by a mother who was in these circumstances some years ago when I was practicing and of course in the provision you do your job. The application failed because the mother had failed to make the application within the 12 month period and could not demonstrate that the natural father had actually supported the child during that 12 month period.

Now in this day and age, when it is quite easy to determine by DNA who the natural father of the child is, provisions like this need to be repealed because it is unfair in the extreme and of great prejudice to many children in this country that the courts are unable to compel the natural fathers to contribute to their upbringing in financial terms if not otherwise.

And so those sort of anachronisms that remain notwithstanding the passage of this particular Bill that is before the House today really I believe needs to be addressed and I would urge the Honourable Minister to use his good office and resources to prepare the necessary drafting brief to the Legal Department to ensure that we address that as we are seeking to modernise the Law generally relating to the welfare of young people.

Now, Madam Speaker, as I understand it – and if I am wrong I am sure somebody will in due course correct my error – this piece of legislation that is before the House for the first time gives statutory recognition to the Department of Social Services and the myriad of functions which it undertakes on a day to day basis. It proposes a formidable range and number of responsibilities for that Department. Now it might well be that most, if not all of these functions and responsibilities, are already carried out by that office. I think for the first time there is statutory responsibility imposed on that Department for the execution of the functions that are provided for in this Bill and I am going to go through some of them.

However, the question which the Honourable Minister did not address in the introduction of the Bill, which I would ask him to address when he winds up, is whether or not the Department of Social Services is adequately equipped; has within its current staffing and other resources and plant the kind of resources that are necessary for them to effectively carry out the responsibilities, functions and duties imposed on that Department by virtue of this proposed Bill.

That is going to be critical. The Honourable Minister has not said either when it is that the provisions of this Draft Bill are going to come into effect. I see, having looked at it, that there is provision to be able to bring in all or some sections/parts of it – to bring them into effect separately. Perhaps that is part of the plan, although I think there may be some difficulty, certainly with some, of not bringing in most of them at one time because the functions and responsibilities are interrelated and the authority is interrelated as I understand it.

Madam Speaker, the duties of the Department are set out under section 19 to safeguard and promote the welfare of children- “19(1) It shall be the duty of the Department (in addition to the other duties imposed on the Department by this Part)-

- (a) to safeguard and promote the welfare of children who are in need; and
- (b) so far as consistent with that duty, to promote the upbringing of such children by their families, by providing a range and level of services appropriate to those children’s needs.”

Under section 18, the section before it there is the responsibility pursuant to a court order for the Department to make available a social worker or other officer to advise and assist and befriend any person named in the order including the children and parents.

Under section 22 the Department is required and authorised to make provision for the accommodation of children. It is bound to make accommodation for children in circumstances where it has been determined that there is no other person who has parental responsibility for the child, or the child is lost or abandoned, or the person who has been caring for him is prevented for one reason or another from being able to do so.

There is also provision in the Bill requiring in certain circumstances the authority to provide secure accommodations for children who are at risk for one reason or another. There is provision requiring them to provide community homes in appropriate circumstances.

And there is a requirement for them to deal with registered children's homes and voluntary homes for children and provisions requiring them to also be responsible for monitoring child-minding and day care for young children.

I am not seeking to pretend that the long list that I have shortly provided is exhaustive of the responsibilities placed on the Department by virtue of this particular piece of legislation, neither do I pretend to know a great deal about what sort of resources they have. But my short dealings with them in the time that I have been elected, has led me to the impression certainly that that Department is under considerable stress to cope with the responsibilities that it now carries out, notwithstanding the lack of this type of legislation.

And so I would ask the Honourable Minister in his winding up if he could address that issue and to say if the Government is satisfied that the Department is adequately staffed and resourced. If it is not, what proposals are there, either in the upcoming budget or otherwise, to make provisions for these and also to indicate to us when does he believe that the Law will come into full force and effect.

The last point I want to make about this, Madam Speaker, before I close, is to say that many of the supervisory functions that are proposed in here are currently carried out by the Grand Court and in lesser instances, by the Summary Court. There has been a long-standing proposal to establish a family court, which would have jurisdiction and resources to deal with the plethora of family issues that are often before these courts and which confront the Department of Social Services and other individuals on a regular basis.

I wonder if the Honourable Minister can say what is Government's disposition in relation to that proposal and how advanced that proposal is. I believe the country as a whole would be better suited and the welfare of the children would be better promoted – the whole environment in terms of dealing with young people. Their issues and family matters are better suited to a stand alone completely dedicated court staffed by people who are on a regular basis in contact with these young people with these issues within the families. They are, otherwise, in an environment which lends itself more to the resolution to these sorts of problems rather than the much more sort of adversarial context, which is present most times when one is in a court, in the Grand, Summary or Juvenile Court.

So I would ask the Honourable Minister if he would address those concerns which I have raised in addition to those raised by my colleagues and I say to him that while none of us expects the Bill to be perfect – we know that there are going to be problems with it – we support the philosophy and we believe it is a substantial advance over what we have now and hopefully over time we can resolve whatever problems there are with it and it will go a long way we hope in addressing the significant social problems and particular problems with young people and their welfare which all of us are aware of in this country.

I thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Thank you. Does any other Member wish to speak? Does any other Member wish to speak? Last call, does any other Member wish to speak?

If not I will call upon the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs to exercise his right of reply, unless it is the intention of the House to take an afternoon break instead. We shall now take the afternoon break.

Proceedings suspended at 4.03 pm

Proceedings resumed at 4.10 pm

The Speaker: We will take the adjournment at this time. I will therefore call upon the Leader of Government to so do.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, before I move the adjournment I would like to intimate to Members that we intend to commence proceedings tomorrow morning at 11 am.

So, Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 11 am tomorrow, Friday, 13 June 2003.

The Speaker: The question is that this House be adjourned until tomorrow, Friday, 13 June 2003 at 11 am. All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

At 4.12 pm the House stood adjourned until Friday, 13 June 2003 at 11 am.

OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT
FRIDAY
13 JUNE 2003
11.39 AM
Third Sitting

The Speaker: I invite the Elected Member for the district of East End to grace us with prayers.

PRAYERS

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Cabinet and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office. All this we ask for Thy great Name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen

Proceedings resumed at 11.42 am

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed: Question No. 36 deferred.

STATEMENTS BY HONOURABLE MINISTERS/MEMBERS OF THE GOVERNMENT

Private Finance Initiative

The Speaker: I recognise the Deputy Leader, the Minister responsible for Planning.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, sorry to interrupt you but I have just received notice that the Honourable Minister for Health has sent his apologies for his late arrival. Thanks for the indulgence.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, I take this opportunity to provide a brief overview of public/private partnerships namely the Private Finance Initiative (PFI). Specifically, I would like to address the following topics:

- The concept of public/private partnerships.
- The principles of public/private partnerships.
- The definition of private finance initiatives.
- The advantages of private finance initiatives.
- The experiences of other countries that have undertaken private finance initiative projects.
- The establishment of Cayman's private finance initiative steering committee.
- The status of Cayman's first private finance initiative project.

Public/Private Partnership

Public/private partnerships are defined as partnerships between public sector organisations and private sector investors and businesses. For the purposes of designing, planning, constructing, operating and financing infrastructure projects that would normally have been provided through traditional procurement mechanisms of the state. Whereas traditional procurement suffers from delay, contractual claims, cost overruns and compromise on plan designs and standards. Public/private partnerships offer solution to these dilemmas.

Public/private partnerships arrangements have advantages for both sectors because such arrangements encourage the shared resolutions of problems rather than the adversarial approach of traditional deliveries. Risk sharing is a fundamental part of the system and allows partners to concentrate efforts on mutual problem solving rather than disputes. Public/private partnerships can take several forms including service contracts, management contracts, leasing, joint ventures and private finance initiatives.

The Principles of Public/Private Partnerships

The basic principles of public/private partnerships are as follows: public sector purchases services, not assets. Public sector specifies service outputs required. Private sector provides the design, build, operation and possibly finance. Risks are identified and placed with the party(ies) best able to manage. Private sector is paid according to performance. Improved value for money.

Private Finance Initiatives (PFI)

Private Finance Initiatives (PFI) are just one form of public/private partnership. The private finance initiative system is fundamentally about the private sector delivering services to the specification and requirements set out by the public sector. Typically, accommodation projects based on private finance initiative schemes involve a contract period of 25 to 30 years with the assets reverting to the purchaser at the end of the contract for nil payment. The private finance initiative contractor will expect to fully recover their capital and financing costs during the operating lease period.

Advantages of Private Finance Initiatives

Private Finance Initiatives have several advantages, among them the following: acceleration of infrastructure provision and implementation. Although the initial procurement period of a private finance initiative project is extended compared to traditional procurement, private finance initiative projects are generally delivered on schedule or ahead of schedule compared to traditional projects. This is due to the fact that once the agreement is signed the private sector concentrates its efforts using fast track design and build technology to get the project completed. The private sector receives no payments until the project is completed. So, this acts as a major incentive that drives early or on-time completion.

Reduce Whole-Life Cost

In many cases private finance initiative projects produce built quality and design which is better than the traditional public sector standards resulting in increased social benefits and more efficient and predictable running cost.

Transfer of development and financing risk to private sector

Risk transfer is a fundamental part of the private finance initiative process where most of the risk is transferred to the private sector. The contractor assumes not only construction risks but also a 25-year maintenance risk.

Assets Handled Off Balance Sheet

Under private finance initiative schemes the public sector purchases services, not assets. Therefore, larger capital projects can be handled off balance sheet. This would allow government to concentrate on providing services without its debts being consumed by large capital expenditures and assets. The off balance sheet decision depends on the extent to which parties bear the majority of property related risks and rewards of ownership. The idea is that the private finance initiative contractor assumes these risks and rewards during the operating lease lifetime of the project. In other words if government were to lease the building for 25 years, at the end of which it had the option to move out of the building with no financial commitment, then the item would be off balance sheet.

Better Incentives to Perform

In assuming ongoing maintenance risks the contractor has the incentive to consider the whole life cost of the project. For example, as the contractor must also include the utilities cost over the life of the building in his bid price the contractor will likely ensure that the building is extremely energy efficient. The performance regimes and payment mechanisms which form a fundamental part of the operation's phases of private finance initiative project therefore provide commercial incentives for the private sector and value for money results for the public sector. The result is a higher quality project that might otherwise be expected in a traditional procurement technique.

Improved Quality of Public Services and Value for Money

Private finance initiatives aim to promote efficiency, improve services and stimulate fresh flows of investment. It offers governments the opportunity to buy services in circumstances where they would previously have purchased capital assets. In so doing the public sector has an opportunity to maximise value for money. Private finance initiative projects offer the public sector the opportunity to become more efficient and economical by learning private sector skills such as management, entrepreneurial flair and capital investment. In working alongside the private sector, private finance initiative projects can help the public sector develop a more disciplined, commercial and innovative approach to its business.

The system also allows government to concentrate its resources on providing services without its debt being consumed by large capital expenditures. The private finance initiative procurement process requires more rigorous analysis and transparency. The private sector benefits from private finance initiatives include increased business and profit which in turn stimulates the economy.

International Experience with Private Finance Initiatives

The private finance initiative is one format for public/private partnerships that has found favour in the UK and other locations in all areas of infrastructure provisions: namely, roads, transport, water, waste, health, education, justice, offices, defence, and technology. The following is a list of countries that have undertaken private finance initiative projects: Australia, Canada, France, Germany, Holland, Ireland, Italy, Portugal, South Africa, and United Kingdom. The United Kingdom alone has completed in excess of 500 private finance initiative deals across all areas of infrastructure provision. Canada and France each have completed over 100 private finance initiative agreements.

Specific examples of these private finance initiative projects include the following: Cold Fox school accommodation project endorsed at UK where in 1997 the agreement was signed to provide 1060 space schools over 30 years. Highway 407 project in Toronto, Canada where private finance initiative include instruction, maintenance, collection of tools and policing of the new highway as well as future extension of the highway. Waste management facilities and plan for Dublin Ireland where the agreement includes strict requirement for long-term waste reduction and recycling and strict adherence to performance standards. Melbourne City links roads and bridges in Australia where virtually all risks were allocated to the private sector.

Appointment of Cayman's Private Finance Initiative Steering Committee

In March of this year Executive Council appointed a private finance initiative steering committee chaired by the Chief Finance Officer of the Ministry of Planning, Communication, Works and Information Technology. The Members of the Committee are as follows: Permanent Secretary for the Ministry of Planning, Communication, Works and Information Technology, Mr Kearney Gomez; Director of Budget Management Unit, Mr. Peter Gough; Assistant Financial Secretary, Mr. Kenneth Jefferson; Deputy Chief Engineer, Mr. Max Jones; Senior Crown Counsel Civil, Mr. Steven Hall Jones; Accountant General, Mrs. Sonia McLaughlin; Economics Unit representative, Dr. Elizabeth Parsan, Office accommodation projects manager, Mr. Jim Scott.

The Committee's terms of reference include determining whether capital projects being considered by Government are suitable for private finance initiative financing. The Committee will also consider and determine accounting treatment methods for private finance initiative projects. The private finance initiative steering committee is working in consultation with the Central Tenders Committee and the public sector investment committee.

Status Report on New Government Office Accommodation Project

Regarding Cayman's first private finance initiative project I would like to highlight some of the key milestones that we have reached on the new government office accommodation project. As of 26 May 2003 I can report as follows:-

The project is on schedule and we are happy about the amount of work that has been completed in such a short period of time. The private finance initiative process commenced with the preparation of a feasibility study and the assembly of a project management team with three full-time staff and one part-time staff namely the following: senior project manager, Mr. Jim Scott; the project architect and manager, Mr. Peter Riley; project architect/manager Mr. Nicholas Johnson; project quantity surveyor, part-time, Mr. Gary Clarke.

The team is awaiting the appointment of an administrator to provide clerical and other support functions. Proponent teams, that is, contractors from the private sector have been identified and after careful analysis the selection committee has identified a short list of four proponents. Technical information that is required to be inserted into the output specification is well underway. This includes survey information and the initial architectural plans that will be used for testing the user-brief and getting planning approval. In addition, the technical advisor consultants have been selected.

An education seminar was held March 3-8 and attended by the public sector and the potential proponent companies from the private sector. Financial and legal advisory consultants have been selected. A team member has already been sent by Ernst & Young to Cayman to commence work on the project. Masons have been appointed as legal advisor and a member of their team arrived in Cayman on 12 May. At the moment these advisors are preparing a public sector comparator and affordability study including an off balance sheet analysis.

They have also commenced work on the invitation to negotiate ITN document. We expect to issue ITN document to the proponents on the 31 July 2003. On 19 May 2003 my Ministry hosted a presentation at the Grand Pavilion where various Members of this House, government agencies and the private sector heard about the principles of private finance initiative as well as an update on the office accommodation project.

Preliminary site clearing and demolitions is scheduled to take place over the summer months pending relocation of existing occupants. The Police club canteen was vacated on the 30 April and the Racket Club will be vacant at the end of June.

Madam Speaker, the next phase is preparing the contract agreement and output specifications so that bids can be sought for the work. This work is well under way and the target is to get the invitation to negotiate sent out to the proponents in July 2003.

- Feasibility study has been completed;
- project team is 85% complete;
- pre-qualification of bidders, completed;
- user-brief information, a survey work topographical office, complete;
- survey work geo-technical office, complete;
- survey work, topographical roads, complete;
- survey work geo-technical roads, underway;
- road work design work, 75% complete;
- road work acquisitions, 90% complete;
- road gazetting 50%, complete;
- initial architectural solutions 90%, complete;
- information technology brief, not commenced;

- security brief, not commenced;
- departmental surveys, 90% complete;
- appointment of advisor consultants, mechanical electrical plumbing, awaiting the CTC approval;
- structural, awaiting CTC approval;
- interior designs, fixture fittings and equipment bids have been received;
- quantity surveyor consultant, appointed;
- financial consultant, appointed;
- legal consultant, appointed;
- output specification, commenced;
- assembly of technical information, ongoing;
- educational seminar, as mentioned, was held between the 3 to 8 March, completed;
- presentation to MLAs, public and private sector, on 19 May, completed.

Madam Speaker, there are 14 stages in the private finance initiative delivery process, in particular, government office accommodation project. We are at the point 8 of those 14 stages.

- Step 1: establish the business case – 100% complete in 2002.
- Step 2: identification of proponent groups – 100% complete in 2002.
- Step 3: assemble project management team – 90% complete on 1 May 2003.
- Step 4: development of user requirements and referent projects – 90% complete on 1 May 2003
- Step 5: to identify advisor consultants – 90% complete on 11 April 2003.
- Step 6: pre-qualification of proponent groups – 95% complete on 1 May 2003.
- Step 7: financial models outputs specification and contact teams – 5% complete on 14 July 2003, hopefully.
- Step 8: invitation to negotiate ITN – 5% complete by 14 July 2003.
- Step 9: to receive the bids by 14 September this year, to be completed.
- Step 10: select preferred bidder and negotiations by 1 February next year (2004).
- Step 11: the contract-close is awarded by the 1 March next year (2004).
- Step 12: the design, construct period, phase one is expected to be completed by 1 March 2006.
- Step 13: the design, construct period, phase two, which includes the Glass House, by 1 March 2007
- Step 14 as mentioned, is the ongoing monitoring and evaluation which will go the full length of the period of the financing process.

In concluding, Madam Speaker, I would like to note that the concept of forming partnership between the public and private sectors is not new. In the last ten years these types of projects have been undertaken in many countries around the world and this trend is increasing. The bottom line is that these partnerships do work and the benefits are being realised by the public and private sectors alike.

To sum up the advantages of the PFI system over traditional methods of delivery they are: faster and accelerated provision of infrastructure; reduced whole-life cost of the project; transfer of risks – that is, development financing and maintenance to the private sector; potential for project to be handled off balance sheet; better incentives for private sector partners to perform; improved quality of public services and value for money.

In the case of the new government office project, the government is contracting for serviced office accommodation over an extended period of not less than 25 years. Among the many general benefits that I have already discussed by entering into a PFI arrangement, this government and indeed the public service, can better concentrate its resources on the delivery of public services instead of being caught up in development, construction and maintenance issues.

Finally, Madam Speaker, I am pleased with the progress to date on our new government office accommodation project and I look forward to this exciting opportunity to partner with the private sector in providing a high quality development as well as giving our economy a much needed boost.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Thank you, Honourable Minister.

The Children Bill 2003

(Continuation of debate thereon)

The Speaker: Does the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Services wish to exercise his right of reply?

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, in dealing with the Children Bill 2003, I concentrated on very legalistic issues so as not to confuse or inflame the Opposition while exploring the Government's philosophy with regards to the protection of children and the improvement of the welfare of families. But of course I intended to give a lecture, which might have to be today regarding why I believe that this particular Bill is coming at this particular time.

Madam Speaker, before I begin to deal with what I consider as the division for the children and families of this country, which this Bill assists with, I would like to deal with a few points that were raised by the Opposition which were very helpful in terms of giving us a possibility to look at some of the legal languages and perhaps some of the interpretations.

Madam Speaker, the first point I will deal with is the concern of the Leader of the Opposition with section 72(1) of the Bill. I assume that the red flags went up on this. Also, Members of the Government Back Bench have brought this to my attention and we had the possibility to discuss this with the Department of Social Services. Therefore, I am prepared at this point to offer an explanation as was asked for.

Section 72(1) says: "A register shall be kept-

- (a) by the Department, of persons who act as child minders on domestic premises;
- (b) by the Education Department, of persons who provide day care for children under the age of 8 on premises other than domestic premises".

Section 72(2) (a) says that- "A person acts as a child minder if he looks after one or more children under the age of 8 for reward."

Madam Speaker, I think what happens with this entire section is that there seems to be some confusion in terms of the definition. What was intended was to make a separation between persons employed in domestic premises in homes, and persons who were hiring their services independently of any kind of permanent job in the home. So, I would be considered a childminder if I said I will mind your child for a fee and I will mind your child in – what I might call – a business or in my home. And it was therefore the desire of the Department to see that persons that offered these types of services to the community were registered by the Department of Social Services.

The word "nanny" – which is because we are dealing with a Bill that emulates one from England – is brought into it in section 72(5) where it says, "Where a person is employed as a nanny for a child she does not act as a child minder when looking after the child wholly or mainly in the home of the person so employing her."

So, it is not discrimination here; it is the introduction of a terminology from Britain into the Cayman Islands that in itself flags up some type of concern. However, what we would do is change the word "nanny" to the word "helper" and if we were to do that, we would see that the Law does not attempt to say that helpers need to be registered.

In any case, this clarification that I am giving at this point will be difficult for us to correct at the moment; it is possible that we will be seeking for this part of the Law not to be brought into force until we have had time to reconsider and restructure the point.

So, to the Leader of the Opposition, we understand exactly where his concerns come from. They are quite legitimate. It is, again, the attempt to introduce a child-minding concept which in fact is a little bit

new. And what we are trying to say is that a child minder is someone who pursues the business of minding children as a commercial enterprise, be it in the home or a business place. Someone I employ directly in my home to take care of my child would be a nanny or a helper. Therefore, those would not, under the Law, be required to be registered.

Madam Speaker, the Leader of the Opposition also had a concern with regards to the definition of "child" in the Children Bill. It says in paragraph 16(1) of Schedule 1 that a child is "a person under the age of 18."

Once the Law defines a child as someone under the age of 18, it then says in section 11(5) that, "No court shall make any section 10 order which is to have effect for a period which will end after the child has reached the age of 16 unless it is satisfied that the circumstances of the case are exceptional."

The question is asked: If a child is 18, why are special considerations being given at 16 years of age? Special considerations are being given simply because at age 16 years the child is being prepared for transition into young adulthood and should, therefore, have a more active part in decisions surrounding his or her welfare. The Law is accepting the fact that although the child is legally not an adult, he is mature enough at 16 to be consulted with regards to decisions that are being made by the Court concerning him.

Madam Speaker, the Leader of the Opposition was also concerned with section 15(1)(b) and (2). Section 15(1) says, "Where a residence order is in force with respect to a child, no person may (a) cause the child to be known by a new surname; or (b) remove him permanently from the Islands without either the written consent of every person who has parental responsibility for the child or the leave of the court."

Subsection 2(1)(b) does not prevent the removal of a child for a period of less than one month by the person in whose favour the resident order is made.

The question would be: Well what happens if the child is on vacation that extends beyond the period of a month? What would happen here? In this regard, Madam Speaker, the Law sees the Court in the position to determine the extent of the time that the child should be allowed to be away. There is no restriction on the Court; the restriction is on the Department to give permission, or for the person with the responsibility to give permission. The Court can give permission.

So, in this case the person would make the application to the Department and they in turn would bring it to the Court's attention. The Court would view the evidence and make the decisions accordingly. So, it would be possible for the child to have that extended time outside the country even under that particular order.

Madam Speaker, the Member from East End brought up some issues and he was looking, I think, at section 6(1) that says, “Where a child’s father and mother were not married to each other at the time of his birth and that the court may on the application of the father order that he shall have parental responsibility for the child; or (b) the father and the mother may by agreement . . . .”

He commended this section but raised the points in regards to the Affiliation Law, which needs to come in line with this particular current philosophy regarding illegitimacy. We are at least working on this issue at the moment with regards to the Succession Law and therefore, I would like to give my undertaking ensure that this issue is brought before the House in this Sitting.

Section 8(5) was also a concern of the Honourable Member from East End and the query was surrounding the guardian’s ability to after five years, or whatever period, to petition the Court to terminate the guardianship as section 8(5) only refers to the person disclaiming his appointment within a reasonable time period after first knowing his appointment. Guardians do have the liberty to apply to the Court to bring to an end their appointment as guardians under section 8(7) as the guardian is a person with parental responsibility by virtue of section 7(6).

In regards to the query from the Elected Member from East End concerning the linkages with the establishment of a family court, this is a matter to be pursued with the Honourable Chief Justice and I give my commitment to continue to pursue this matter as well.

Madam Speaker, the last speaker from the Opposition, the Second Elected Member from George Town, dealt primarily, I believe, with philosophical issues about training, resources and the implementation of the Law. I do believe that in the beginning of his debate there was a suggestion that there were some problems in the system why the 1995 Law did not come into administration; why it was not implemented, why it proved to be administratively unworkable. And I think a criticism was implied of the past Minister who was responsible for that particular subject.

I would just like to say that I have not been presented with any evidence that proves in fact that the Law was administratively unworkable. I do not know where that saying comes from. I read it and I was very careful not to repeat it—because if the Law was administratively unworkable, why did it come as far as it has? At some point there must have been some reason, or people must have been reasonable enough to have been able to discuss it. There might have been issues where people thought the Law was administratively unworkable, I do not know what happened. However, to suggest somehow that the blame should go on the past Minister, namely the Leader of Government Business at this particular point, I take offence to it and therefore I rise to his defence and say that there has been no proof given to me as the new Minister responsible, that this Law was administratively unworkable.

Madam Speaker, I still find it very strange that it took us until 1995 to get a law that would be in keeping with the United Nations Conventions on the rights of the child. We are in 2003 and I am still here trying today to get a Bill passed into law that would put us now in keeping with that particular Convention.

It is important to note that this law does have implications with regards to how resources are allocated in our country. And there are important decisions being made, because at the end of the day the families that normally come in contact with Social Services are people who are of the poorer classes in our society. Therefore, if Government is going to spend money on improving the lot of families it will be concentrating a big part of its revenue and resources on trying to rehabilitate and enable a particular class in the society.

And obviously you need a particular type of government to be committed to this, because not everyone is committed. There are people who will say ‘yes we should help poor people’ because they realise they are the majority and they need their votes. However, when it comes down to practising the philosophy, or walking the walk, there are very few of them who will do so.

I think it is no coincidence that I am the Minister who is bringing a Bill to protect children and to look after the welfare of children and their families. Madam Speaker, as you will note in part of our amendment that will come in the Committee stage, we will not be talking any longer after the 1 July about the Department of Social Services. We will be talking about the Department of Children and Family Services.

So, when I am asked very politely by the Opposition about whether or not there is training that has been made available for members of the Department to be able to deal with the implementation of this law, I have to answer and say that for the last year and a half we have spent our time restructuring the Department of Social Services in such a way that the family will be the main focus, that the system of care will be family driven. That has not always worked easily and it is not completed but it is started and it will be completed and it will assist the implementation of this law.

So the restructuring of the Social Services Department to a department where the system of care will be family driven was a necessary part of the movement towards this Bill. This Bill would really be impotent if there had not been an attempt made since I became the Minister responsible for the Department of Social Services to reform and restructure that Department in such a way that it made the family and children the focus of the services which it delivers.

So, the answer to the question asked by the Member of the Opposition with regards to resources is, the resources are there. The organisational structure needs to be there to make sure that those resources impact the family and children at the points where we need to be impacting them. We need to be thinking about prevention and intervention.

The basic philosophy that drives this exercise . . . I do not want anyone to go away thinking somehow that yes, this is just legislation. It was drafted by legal individuals; we had the involvement of the Immigration Department, the Police Department and all other departments. What a legislation has to have in it in order for it to have meaning is vision, it has to have purpose, it has to be able at the end of the day when it is passed into law to demand commitment. This legislation does so because it is a legislation that is filled with sense: unless we protect the rights of the child we cannot protect the rights of a nation. And I am privileged to move that this Honourable House accept this Children Bill 2003.

The Speaker: Thank you, Honourable Minister. The question is that a Bill shortly entitled, The Children Bill 2003 be given a second reading. All those in favour please say Aye; those against, No.

Before I announce the results I will ask Mr. Connolly to ensure that there is a quorum so that there will be no subsequent questions as to the legality of the vote.

[Pause.]

The Speaker: Now that Parliament is quorate I shall put the question that the Bill shortly entitled, The Children Bill 2003 be given a second reading. All those in favour please say Aye, those against, No.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed: The Children Bill 2003 given a Second Reading.

The Speaker: The House will now go into Committee to consider the Bill.

HOUSE IN COMMITTEE AT 12.41 PM

COMMITTEE ON BILL

The Children Bill 2003

The Chairman: Please be seated. The House is now in Committee.

With the leave of the House may I assume as usual that we should authorise the Honourable Second Official Member to make minor corrections and errors as such as may appear in this Bill?

Will the Clerk state each Bill and read its respective clauses?

Clause 1

The Clerk: Clause 1 Short title and commencement.

The Chairman: The question is that Clause 1 do stand part of the Bill. All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

Agreed: Clause 1 passed.

Clause 2

The Clerk: Clause 2 Interpretation.

Amendment

The Chairman: I recognise the Honourable Minister, as I believe there is an intention for an amendment to clause 2. I have already waived the requisite two days' notice.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, I move that clause 2 be amended by deleting the definition "Department" and substituting the following, "the Department of Children and Family Services".

The Chairman: The amendment has been duly moved. Does any Member wish to speak thereto? If no Member wishes to speak does the Mover wish to add anything by way of reply?

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: No, Madam Chairman.

The Chairman: Thank you. I will now put the question that the amendment stand part of the clause. All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

Agreed: Clause 2 amended.

[The Chairman: The question is that Clause 2 as amended stands part of the Bill. All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.]

Ayes.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

Agreed: Clause 2 as amended passed.]

Clause 3

The Clerk: Clause 3 Welfare of the child.

The Chairman: Is there any debate by any Member? If no debate, I will put the question that clause 3 stands part of the Bill. All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

Agreed: Clause 3 passed.

Clause 4

The Clerk: Clause 4 Parental responsibility for children.

Amendment

The Chairman: Is there an amendment Honourable Minister? Please proceed.

[Pause]

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, I move that clause 4 (2) be amended by deleting the word “not” from paragraph (b).

[Pause]

The Chairman: Honourable Minister, perhaps if the Chair can assist, [please] read the entire amendment as circulated for the purposes of the record. Clause 4(2)(b).

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, that clause 4(2) be amended by deleting paragraph (b) and substituting the following:-

“(b) the father shall also have parental responsibility for the child where he acquires it in accordance with the provisions of this Law.”

The Chairman: Thank you, Honourable Minister. The amendment has been duly moved. Does any Member wish to speak to it?

Hon. Samuel S. Bulgin: Madam Chairman, with your leave, I think the intention here is that the Bill as currently worded conveys a negative connotation that the father shall not have responsibility, and it was thought that some fathers might just read and stop at “not have responsibility.”

In order to express it in a more positive way it was reworded to say that he does have responsibility pursuant to the Law, that there is an agreement or an order. So it is a positive way of expressing the father’s responsibility where the parents are not married.

The Chairman: Thank you. The Chair is grateful for your explanation.

I will put the question that the amendment stands part of the clause. All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

Agreed: Clause 4 amended.

[The Chairman: The question is that Clause 4 as amended stands part of the Bill. All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

Agreed: Clause 4 as amended passed.]

Clauses 5 through 9

The Clerk:

Clause 5	Meaning of parental responsibility.
Clause 6	Acquisition of parental responsibility by father.
Clause 7	Appointment of guardians.
Clause 8	Guardians - Revocation and disclaimer.
Clause 9	Welfare reports.

The Chairman: The question is that clauses 5 through 9 stand part of the Bill. If there is no debate I will put the question that clauses 5 through 9 stand part of the Bill. All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

Agreed: Clauses 5 through 9 passed.

Clause 10

The Clerk:

Clause 10	Residence, contact and other orders with respect to children.
Clause 11	Restrictions on making section 10 orders.
Clause 12	Power of court to make section 10 . . .

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, we have an amendment to clause 11.

The Chairman: Honourable Minister, perhaps we will stop then at clause 10 since you have an amendment at clause 11 so that it could be quickly circulated and we could move on – yes?

The Clerk: Clause 10 Residence, contact and other orders with respect to children.

The Chairman: The question is that clause 10 stand part of the Bill. If there is no debate I shall put the question that clause 10 stand part of the Bill. All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

Agreed: Clause 10 passed.

Clause 11

The Clerk: Clause 11 Restrictions on making section 10 orders.

Amendment

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Chairman.

The Chairman: Yes, Honourable Minister.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: I beg to make a motion to remove clause 11(2) from the Bill.

The Chairman: The required notice has been waived at the Minister's request and I shall put the question that clause 11(2) be deleted. All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

Agreed: Clause 11 amended.

[The Chairman: The question is that Clause 11 as amended stands part of the Bill. All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.]

Ayes.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

Agreed: Clause 11 as amended passed.]

Clauses 12 through 16

The Clerk:

Clause 12 Power of court to make section 10 orders.
 Clause 13 General principles and supplementary provisions.
 Clause 14 Residence orders and parental responsibility.
 Clause 15 Change of child's name or removal from jurisdiction.
 Clause 16 Enforcement of residence orders.

The Chairman: The question is that clauses 12 through 16 stand part of the Bill. If there is no debate I put the question that clauses 12 through 16 stand part of the Bill. All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

Agreed: Clauses 12 through 16 passed.

Clauses 17 through 21

The Clerk:

Clause 17 Orders for financial relief with respect to children.
 Clause 18 Family assistance orders.
 Clause 19 Provision of services for children in need, their families and others.
 Clause 20 Day care for pre-school and other children.
 Clause 21 Review of provision for day care, child mind-ing, et cetera.

The Chairman: The question is that clauses 17 through 21 stand part of the Bill. If no debate I will put the question that clauses 17 through 21 stand part of the Bill. All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

Agreed: Clauses 17 through 21 passed.

Clauses 22 through 32

The Clerk:

Clause 22 Provision of accommodation for children: general.
 Clause 23 Provision of accommodation for children and cease protection or detention or on remand, et cetera.
 Clause 24 General duty of department in relation to children it looks after.
 Clause 25 Provision of accommodation and maintenance by department for children whom it is looking after.

Clause 79	Offences.
Clause 80	Inspection of children's homes, et cetera, by persons authorised by the Governor in Council.
Clause 81	Inquiries.
Clause 82	Research and returns of information.
Clause 83	Departmental failure to comply with statutory duty: default power of the Governor.

The Chairman: Honourable Second Official Member, or perhaps the Honourable Minister, could you clarify whether the intention for that is "Governor" or "Governor in Council".

The Clerk: Clause 83 Departmental failure to comply with statutory duty: default power of Governor in Council.

The Chairman: Honourable Second Official Member I think why I made a query is because section 80, the marginal note says, "Governor-in-Council". Now, this section says, "Governor" so we need clarity as to what it is. I understand the administrative duty being that of Governor.

[Inaudible interjections.]

Hon. Samuel S. Bulgin: The point I was making, Madam Chairman, is . . . subject to any amendment at the revision stage where the word "Governor" appears my understanding is that it is deliberate. That is, "Governor" as opposed to "Governor in Council."

[Pause.]

The Chairman: Some Members are making an inquiry as to what is transpiring for the benefit of information. The Chair has queried the marginal note on page 98 which says, "Inspection of children's homes, et cetera, by persons authorised by the Governor in Council". On page 10, part 11, "Inspection of children's homes et cetera, by persons authorised by the Governor". I am trying to clarify whether it is the intention for that to be in Council.

[Interjection: "That has to be in Council".]

The Chairman: That is what I am trying to ascertain, but obviously I cannot make the amendments so I am seeking for direction.

[Inaudible interjection.]

The Clerk:

Clause 83 Departmental failure to comply with statutory duty: default power of the Governor.

[Pause.]

The Chairman: Thank you for your indulgence. Also on page 98 where it refers to the Governor's supervisory functions and responsibilities, could we have the leave of Members by way of a consequential amendment for the Honourable Second Official Member to insert the words "Governor in Council" and "Governor's Supervisory Function." Because as Members will note there are specific provisions that are administrative which would only be within the ambit of the Governor. Would that be satisfactory?

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Chairman: Thanks, Honourable Minister. The question is that clauses 67 through 83 stand part of the Bill. If there is no debate I put the question that clauses 67 through 83 stand part of the Bill. All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

Clause 92

The Clerk: Clause 92 Restrictions on use of wardship jurisdiction.

The Chairman: I believe there is an amendment.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, I move that clause 92 be amended as follows:- (a) by deleting subclause (1); and (b) by deleting subclauses (2) to (4) and substituting the following:

(1) No application for any exercise of the Grand Court’s inherent jurisdiction with respect to children may be made by the Department unless the Department has obtained the leave of that court.

(2) The Grand Court may only grant leave if it is satisfied that-

(a) the result which the Department wishes to achieve could not be achieved through the making of any order of a kind to which subsection (3) applies; and

- (b) there is reasonable cause to believe that if the Grand Court's inherent jurisdiction is not exercised with respect to the child he is likely to suffer significant harm.

(3) This subsection applies to any order -

- (a) made otherwise than in the exercise of the Grand Court's inherent jurisdiction; and
- (b) which the Department is entitled to apply for (assuming, in the case of any application which may only be made with leave, that leave is granted)."

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Tuesday, 17 June 2003 at 10 am. In doing so, let me advise Honourable Members that Tuesday morning the Budget will be presented and as I indicated, the House will then adjourn until Thursday, 19 June 2003 at 10 am when the debate on the Budget will begin.

Before you take the vote, Madam Speaker, may I take this opportunity to congratulate the Minister of Community Services in this very important Bill and passage thereof today to provide for government services for children and others in need, to make provisions for a children's home, community homes, voluntary homes and voluntary organisations, to make provisions with respect to fostering, child minding and day care for young children and for adoption, for care, protection and the general welfare of our children.

This is important, Madam Speaker. It has been long in the works and I want to congratulate the Minister, his senior staff of course and all those who were involved in the making of the Bill, those in the Legal Department. I also thank the Opposition for their cooperation in this very important legislation.

Madam Speaker, I now move the adjournment.

TUESDAY
17 JUNE 2003
10.20 AM
Fourth Sitting

The Speaker: I will now invite the Honourable Second Official Member to grace us with prayers.

PRAYERS

Hon. Samuel S. Bulgin: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady, Queen Elizabeth II; Philip, Duke of Edinburgh; Charles, Prince of Wales; and all the Royal Family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members, Ministers of Cabinet and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office. All this we ask for Thy great Name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen

Proceedings resumed at 10.23 am

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

BILLS

FIRST READING

The Appropriation (July 2003 to June 2004) Bill 2003

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first time and is now set down for Second Reading.

SECOND READING

The Appropriation (July 2003 to June 2004) Bill 2003

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I beg to move the Second Reading of The Appropriation (July 2003 to June 2004) Bill 2003.

The Speaker: The Bill has been duly moved. I will invite the Honourable Member to deliver the Budget Address.

THE BUDGET ADDRESS

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, it is my privilege to present the Budget for the Year 2003-2004 Financial year on behalf of the Government. In keeping with the practice adopted last year I will share this responsibility with the Leader of Government Business who will move the Budget Debate. In line with the new system of Public Management now used in these Islands the Budget document presented to this Honourable House today is called the Annual Plan and Estimates. This is much more than a name and the document is much more than a budget.

What the Leader of Government Business and I will be presenting today is the Government's plan of action for the next 12 months.

It is a plan designed to support the local economy and create employment opportunities for Caymanians and residents.

It is a plan designed to increase the educational opportunities available for our young people.

It is a plan designed to ensure that health care and social support are available to those in need.

It is a plan designed to improve the efficiency and effectiveness of Government and its agencies.

And most important of all, Madam Speaker, it is a plan that actively pursues our economic and social interest in an increasing complex international environment. The Government knows that we need to influence our own future. We need to chart our own course and be at the helm of our future, not in the cargo hold.

This will require sustained commitment, foresight and effort and the ability to engage constructively and successfully with our international partners including the United Kingdom. It also requires a clear idea of where we want to go and a plan to get there.

That plan is outlined in the 2003-2004 Annual Plan and Estimates. It is a plan designed to set the foundation for the future of our country. It is a plan which as the Leader of Government Business said in the debate on the Throne Speech, "charts a course to achieve our national aspirations".

The Government's Strategy and Key Policy Actions

Madam Speaker, the plan contained in the 2003-2004 Budget is a coherent set of policy actions designed to achieve pre-determined outcomes.

Those outcomes were set out in the 2003-2004 Strategic Policy Statement which Honourable Members are aware established the policy on fiscal parameters on which today's Budget has been based.

The Government's outcome goals reflect the aspirations of the people of the Cayman Islands as documented in Vision 2008. The Government's initial seven goals have been expanded to eleven this year to better reflect the vision documents. The eleven goals are as follows:

1. A strong economy that generates employment, income and a high standard of living
2. A healthy resident population
3. A socially supported resident population
4. A strong Caymanian community and culture
5. An environment protected for use of both current and future generations
6. A well educated and vocationally trained resident population
7. A safe and secure country for resident and visitors,
8. An open, efficient and accountable Government,
9. Young persons positively involved in the community
10. Strong family units; and
11. Economically and socially vibrant Sister Islands.

These outcomes reflect the sort of country the Government is striving to achieve. They also provide the direction for the course the Government has charted and the rationale for the various policy initiatives contained in the Annual Plan and Estimates.

The Government has a strategy for progressing each of these outcomes and the Budget contains a wide range of initiatives to support those strategies. The Annual Plan and Estimates make provision for 43 pieces of legislation, 231 output groups, 13 transfer payment categories, 26 other executive expense categories, 18 equity investments, one sale of government assets, 11 capital acquisitions and 84 capital development projects. In total there are 423 separate policy actions provided for in the Budget.

Over the course of the Budget debate, the Ministers of Government will provide the House with a comprehensive explanation of these various policy actions so I do not intend to cover them all in detail now. However, I would like to provide Honourable Members with a summary of the Government's policy strategies and specific initiatives in some key areas.

Strategies and Key Policy Actions: Economic Development

I will begin with outcome 1: a strong economy.

Of all the Government's outcome goals this is perhaps the most important. As a country we can only achieve the other outcomes – such as good levels of health, education, and social support - if our economy is strong enough to support it. Consequently, economic development is a key policy priority for the Government.

The Government recognises that it is the private sector, not the public sector that is the engine for economic growth. The Government's overall economic development strategy is therefore to establish an environment that encourages and supports private business.

There are three aspects to this enabling strategy: First, creating and maintaining a competitive commercial environment. Second, encouraging new investment and business development. And third, actively supporting and promoting key economic sectors, particularly financial services and tourism sectors.

Let me speak briefly about each one of these strategies.

Business Competitiveness

The Government recognises that in order for the Cayman Islands to be a good place to do business, the cost of doing business here needs to be competitive. A key economic development strategy is therefore to control, and where possible, reduce the operating costs faced by the private sector.

Controlling the Government's own fiscal position is an important part of this strategy and the 2003/2004 Budget is again a fiscally responsible one. It has been balanced without the need for new revenue measures or increasing the level of public debt.

In addition, as previously announced, the Government has decided not to proceed with some fees increases announced in the 2002 Budget – most notably the increase in garbage collection fees. This means that the Government is leaving more money in the people's pocket. This is good for residents and it is good for business!

What's more, while the overall level of government revenue remains steady, operating revenue, as a percentage of Gross Domestic Product, is forecast to decline by 2 per cent compared to 2002. As the level of operating revenue determines the level of operating expenditure, this means the overall size of government is forecast to shrink in 2003/2004 compared to previous years.

The Government recognises that the quality of infrastructural services has a big impact on our Country's competitiveness. Therefore, improving the country's road infrastructure is another key economic development strategy.

We are all aware of the traffic congestion problems in Grand Cayman and its potentially negative impact on business competitiveness. Quite a lot has been done in this area over the last three years, particularly with the development of the Linford Pierson Highway, the Galleria Roundabout and, more recently, the Louise Llewellyn Way. However, much is still to be done.

To provide greater focus on road development the Government has decided to establish a National Roads Authority. The legislation to give effect to this change will be introduced to the House in the early part of the financial year and the Budget makes provision for the purchase of $3.7 million of outputs from the Roads Authority. During 2003/2004, the Authority will construct $13.38 million of roads. This will include $7 million for phase 3 of the Esterley Tibbetts Highway from Galleria to Indies Suites. This is a major initiative to reduce traffic congestion to and from West Bay.

Also planned is $800,000 to extend the Linford Pierson Highway from Bobby Thompson Way to Walkers Road, and $1.3 million for the District Roads programme.

The finance for these projects will be organised by the National Roads Authority in conjunction with private sector partners. This approach reflects the fact that a good road infrastructure is in the interests of both the public and private sectors.

Encouraging New Investment and Business Development

Madam Speaker, the Government's second economic development strategy involves encouraging new investment and business development in Cayman.

A key part of this involves promoting new international investment and business opportunities in Cayman to overseas investors. The Cayman Islands Investment Bureau is undertaking this work, and the Budget makes provision for an additional $1.5 million to fund expanded international promotional outputs from the Bureau. In addition, the Marketing and Promotion Unit is being transferred from the Portfolio of Finance and Economics to the Ministry of Tourism, Environment, Development and Commerce to provide an integrated business promotion capacity.

The Bureau and the Cayman Islands Development Bank are also involved in encouraging and supporting the establishment of new local businesses. The Development Bank will increase its loan portfolio for small and micro businesses by $350,000 over the 2003/4 fiscal year.

The promotion of new investment is being done with the assistance of the Growth Management Board, which is a joint venture with the private sector. This is to ensure that new business proposals are sound and focused in a way that reflects Cayman's competitive strengths.

Supporting Key Sectors: the Financial Services Sector

Madam Speaker, the Government's third economic development strategy involves supporting key economic sectors.

The first of these is the Financial Services Sector, which is heavily impacted by the challenging international environment. The international financial services industry is becoming increasingly subjected to rules and standards that are being established and enforced by external blocs of interest groups such as the European Union (EU), the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), and the International Monetary Fund (IMF).

In addition to these global rules, changes to domestic legislation by one country – such as changes to tax rates or rules in the United States – can have a significant impact on the international market environment for cross-border financial services. This makes the international financial services environment very fluid and constantly changing.

The financial services industry is also becoming increasingly globalised. This means that while Cayman's market is potentially expanding, it is facing increasing competition from other countries that are replicating our service offerings, both in the Caribbean and elsewhere.

The Government accepts the reality of this often externally dictated, fluid and competitive financial services environment. We cannot put our heads in the sand and pretend that it is not so. However, the Government also recognises that Cayman is a major player in the global financial services market. We have the people and skills – in both the private and public sectors – capable of operating in this complex landscape.

The Government's financial services sector strategy is focused on responding pro-actively to the international environment. It is a strategy based on charting the course we want to take, and deliberately navigating our way to it. This means that we need to be active in the international arena and take strong, but measured actions to protect our position.

The Government will continue to pursue a policy of constructive engagement on matters affecting our financial services sector. This includes the application of due process and rule of law test as well as the protection of the Cayman Islands' legitimate economic interests.

As an example of this, the Government recently took a matter regarding the processes surrounding the European Union's Savings Directive to the Court of First Instance in Luxembourg. In doing so we succeeded in establishing that as a matter of EU Law, the Savings Directive cannot apply to the associated or dependent territories of EU member states, and, secondly, that any political commitments to apply the directive are unenforceable.

This policy of constructive engagement also involves the pursuit of negotiated bilateral arrangements with other countries in order to open new markets for our financial services sector. The Budget contains funding for a new output to negotiate up to 15 Tax Information Exchange Agreements with other countries as part of this process. The Government will also continue to ensure that the domestic regulatory framework for financial services remains aligned with legitimate international standards that support a clean, secure and commercial financial services sector.

As outlined in Section 4 of the Annual Plan and Estimates, the Government will be introducing two new Bills to the House in 2003/2004 to enhance the sector's regulatory framework. These are a terrorism Bill and a Bill to provide statutory backing for the body that will replace the Financial Reporting Unit.

The Government will also be introducing new legislation to enhance product offerings. These include an Exchange of Information and Data Protection laws and amendments to the Patents and Trademarks Law.

Overall, the Budget provides $14.8 million for new and existing initiatives related to developing, promoting and regulating the financial services sector. This includes $1.97 million for media and public relations outputs to ensure that our position and interests are actively represented internationally by regular contact with relevant persons in Washington, London and Brussels.

Supporting Key Sectors: the Tourism Sector

Madam Speaker, the Annual Plan and Estimates also contains a range of initiatives to support our other key sector – tourism.

As we all know, the tourism sector is heavily influenced by the external economic and security environment. This creates an ongoing challenge for this vital sector of our economy. However, the market is also hugely diverse and competitive. The Government's strategy involves identifying in partnership with the industry, our market niche and developing a unique tourism product that encourages tourists to come to Cayman.

With this in mind the Government has developed a Tourism Management Policy and Plan. The key elements of this plan are to:

1. Provide a high quality product for visitors
2. Present a distinctive Caymanian experience
3. Adopt a sustainable approach to tourism development
4. Protect and enhance the marine resource
5. Attract a more discerning and higher spending visitor
6. Develop a highly skilled Caymanian tourism workforce
7. Develop eco-tourism on the Sister Islands
8. Organise tourism more effectively, and
9. Research and monitor tourism more effectively.

The Budget contains new and existing policy actions designed to support this strategy, including the cruise conversion programme called "Welcome Back Cayman". It also includes a greater emphasis on Department of Tourism outputs related to travel trade shows, and the continuing development of nature tourism in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Overall, the Budget provides $23.3 million for tourism related initiatives. In addition, provision has been made in the capital development programme for the development of a tourism hospitality training centre.

A number of important tourism related initiatives are also being undertaken by statutory authorities. These are outlined in the relevant ownership agreements that have been tabled with the Budget today.

These include the $30 million redevelopment of the Turtle Farm. The first phase of this project is worth $13 million and will start during the next financial year. The funding for this project will not come from the Government, nor will the Government have to provide a guarantee. These are funds that are being secured by the Turtle Farm through negotiations with private sector partners.

The Port Authority is undertaking new docks and cruise-tourism facility developments. These include the George Town Port redevelopment and West Bay cruise facility and involve a US$26 million investment. The funding for this project is being provided by the Florida Caribbean Cruise Association and the work is to be completed in 2004.

Although not funded through the core Government's budget, these are important tourism development initiatives supported by the Government.

Development of an Economic Plan

In addition to the economic development initiatives I have already outlined, the Government recognises that a longer-term economic development plan is needed for the country. The Government also recognises that this needs to be done in conjunction with the private sector and has commissioned a local firm to assist with this process. The Budget makes provision for this work.

Strategies and Key Policy Actions: Human Capital Development

Madam Speaker, economic development is closely related to another of the Government's outcome goals – goal number 6; a well educated and vocationally trained population.

Human capital development is important not only in terms of the development of the economy as a whole, but also to the future of our young people. In the increasingly globalised economy that exists today, good jobs are directly linked to the level of one's education. Skills are vital and education is the key to success!

The Government's human capital development strategy is six-fold:

1. Promote and support improvement in school facilities.
2. Strengthen local teacher education.
3. Improve information, communication, and technology amongst students and teachers.
4. Enhance technical and vocational education.
5. Establish citizenship education as part of schools' curricula.
6. Expand tertiary education opportunities and facilities.

The Government has agreed a number of important initiatives related to this strategy.

Key amongst these are plans for three new schools: the new secondary school at Frank Sound, and new primary schools at Spotts and West Bay. The Budget includes $600,000 to complete the purchase of land for the new high school. The new primary school at Spotts is to be completed by September 2004, and the high school and West Bay primary school by September 2005. The funding for these projects will be done through private sector partnerships.

The Government recognises that overcrowded classrooms diminish the quality of education and that school accommodation problems are pressing now. The Budget therefore allocates $420,000 for 5 temporary classrooms at George Hick's High School and 2 temporary classrooms at Bodden Town Primary School. These will be completed in time for the 2003/2004 school year.

In addition, a further $1.4 million has been provided for various maintenance, renovation and design projects relating to George Hicks, John Gray and Cayman Brac High Schools; Lighthouse School; and Savannah, George Town, West End and East End Primary Schools.

Madam Speaker, the Budget makes specific provision for a number of new initiatives specifically aimed at enhancing skills. This includes an expansion of curriculum development outputs and a further $1 million to support teachers' computer literacy training and $800,000 for computer software and hardware for schools. These expenditures are part of the ITALIC project designed to improve the information, communication, and technology skills of students and teachers.

The Budget also provides $235,000 additional funding for the Community College to develop a four-year degree programme. This Baccalaureate Degree will be developed in time for the 2004/5 academic year.

Significant resources have also been allocated to provide increased financial support to tertiary students. This includes $1 million for additional Education Council scholarships, additional 15-20 scholarships for Caymanian students attending ICCI, an additional $180,000 in CIDB loans for tertiary study, and $42,000 for two new Quincentennial scholarships.

In total, the Budget allocates $45.8 million in operating expenditure for new and existing initiatives relating to education and human capital development. This represents approximately 15 per cent of total government operating expenditure.

An important legislative measure is also planned. This is the new Education Law, which will provide a major legislative overhaul of the national educational system.

Strategies and Key Policy Actions: Other Outcome Areas

Madam Speaker, in case Honourable Members get the wrong impression from my comments thus far, the Government is concerned with more than just the economy, important though it is.

The Annual Plan and Estimates makes provision for some important initiatives related to other outcomes goals and I would like to touch on one or two of these briefly.

The Government's social support strategy is based around protecting vulnerable groups in society, most notably the elderly, those who fall into the category of least affluent, the youth and families at risk.

The Budget makes provision for $14.88 million of services and financial support for these vulnerable groups, including a $400,000 increase in funding for youth rehabilitation outputs provided by the Children and Youth Services Foundation, an additional $300,000 for prisoner rehabilitation, a $100,000 increase in housing repair and construction support for indigents, an additional $100,000 in financial assistance to students in the Young Parents Programme, and a $50,000 increase in youth aftercare assistance.

In relation to housing needs, in 2003/2004 the Government will continue with the construction of low-cost houses. Two hundred houses will be built over the life of the project and the Government is establishing a new statutory authority called the National Community Housing and Development Trust to oversee the project and administer the low-cost housing loans scheme.

In addition to these housing initiatives, the Cayman Islands Development Bank loans portfolio for low and middle income housing purposes will be increased by $1.2 million.

The Government is also part way through a major restructuring of the Department of Social Services. This involves moving some responsibilities to the Children and Youth Services Foundation and the creation of a new unit to focus on probation and after-care services.

In relation to public order and safety, the Budget makes provision for a number of increased outputs. These include an extra $800,000 for additional community policing, an additional $100,000 for criminal investigation work, and a further $300,000 for additional occupational and recreational safety inspections.

Provision has also been made for capital expenditure for new emergency radio communications equipment worth $1.8 million, a new airport fire truck worth a further $500,000, and $28,000 for the purchase of land for a Bodden Town Fire Station.

In relation to environmental outcomes, the Budget allocates resources for several important projects. These include $300,000 for a visitors centre at Barkers Environmental Park, $750,000 for the Seven Mile Beach re-nourishment project, and $550,000 for the Boggy Sand Road beach erosion project. These projects, while forming part of the Government's overall capital expenditure programme, will be funded from the Environmental Protection Fund.

The Annual Plan and Estimates also includes a number of initiatives designed to recognise, support and develop our own unique culture and community identity. In total $10.2 million has been allocated to various outputs related to this outcome. These include $765,000 for further Quincentennial events, ongoing support for arts and heritage activities and a small amount of financial support for the craft market.

In addition a wide range of community and sports organisations will once again receive funding to produce outputs. $5.6 million has been budgeted for this purpose.

Capital expenditure has also been allocated for the construction of a first floor for the George Town Library.

Strategies and Key Policy Actions: Improving Government Performance

Madam Speaker, before I conclude this portion of my address I would like to mention a number of actions included in the Annual Plan and Estimates designed to improve government performance. These are related to outcome goal 8 – an open, efficient and accountable government.

Madam Speaker, as I said in my budget speech last year, the Government recognises that one of the most important things it can do to support the development of this country is to get its own house in order. For this reason the Government has embarked on a comprehensive programme of public management reform. In many respects this reform programme is more advanced than those in other parts of the Caribbean or indeed in the United Kingdom. This is yet another area where the Government is charting its own course.

A key element of these reforms is the Financial Management Initiative, about which I spoke extensively at the time of the last budget. Since then the reporting element of the reform has been implemented with the first quarterly reports recently being tabled in this House.

Early gains from the financial management reforms are already apparent. The appointment of chief financial officers in each ministry and portfolio is rapidly improving the quality of financial decision-making at the operational level. Improvements at the whole of government level are also evident. The more strategic and performance oriented budgeting system is focusing attention on the outcomes the government is seeking to achieve and the goods and services it funds to achieve those outcomes. This is an infinitely better approach than the one used in the past.

The new budgetary approach is providing much greater policy as well as fiscal control. It is allowing the Government to develop a budget that achieves exactly the fiscal and policy results it wants. The new systems and processes are also improving the Government's ability to monitor and control both expenditure and policy implementation during the year. In addition, the publication of comprehensive quarterly and annual reports allows Members of this House, and indeed individual members of the public to monitor independently the performance of the government during and at the end of each financial year.

Financial Management Initiative (FMI) will be further progressed during 2003/2004, with the introduction of accrual accounting and the development of new performance management systems in Ministries and Portfolios. The next budget that is delivered to this House will be prepared using accrual accounting and in accordance with Generally Accepted Accounting Practice (GAAP). This will be yet another milestone and will give all readers confidence that the numbers are reliable and that the Government has not manipulated the accounting rules to achieve desired results.

During 2003/4 the Government plans to extend its public sector reform programme into two new areas that will complement FMI. These are Personnel Reform and Statutory Authority Reform.

The personnel reform will introduce a modern decentralised system of personnel management to Government with chief officers having authority over personnel matters relating to their ministry within defined limits. The reform will also create a new performance management system for the civil service involving performance agreements, performance assessments, and performance-related remuneration. A set of public service values and a public servant's code of conduct will also be established.

The statutory authority reform will establish an overarching framework for governance and accountability in the statutory authority and government company sector. Among other things it will bring individual statutory authority laws into line with the Public Management and Finance Law.

Bills for a Public Service Law and a Public Authorities Law will be introduced during the fiscal year to provide the legislative mandate for these reforms. In addition the Government is taking action to improve its policy development and co-ordination capability.

The Budget makes provision for the establishment of a new ministry called the Cabinet Office. That Office will be responsible for co-ordinating the development of policy advice across government and monitoring its implementation, as well as providing administrative support to Executive Council and the Leader of Government Business.

Other initiatives underway to improve government performance include creating statutory authorities for Radio Cayman and the Department of Tourism. Work is also in progress to separate the regulatory and airport management functions of the Civil Aviation Authority into two organisations.

The Government is continuing to advance the construction of a new Government accommodation building. The Budget includes $800,000 to cover legal and consulting costs relating to the development of the Public Finance Initiative specification and contract for the building. This project will not only support the local construction industry and save rental costs, it will also significantly improve the efficiency of the civil service by having them all located in a single building.

These public sector reforms are designed to ensure ongoing improvements in the efficiency and effectiveness of the public sector. Over time they will result not only in better decision-making and improved efficiency, but also a more customer focused delivery of public services.

The Economic Environment and the Fiscal Position

Madam Speaker I would now like to turn to the economic and fiscal position.

Economic Position

Madam Speaker, in putting together the Budget the Government had to take account of state of the economy and ensure that, from a macro-economic perspective, the budget supports the achievement of the Government's three key economic management objectives, namely economic growth at or above 3 per cent per annum, inflation at or below 3.2 per cent per annum, and thirdly, unemployment at or below 4 per cent per annum.

Achieving these economic management objectives over the medium term are important to ensuring that the Cayman Islands offers a competitive commercial environment for business. They are also important to achieving the Government's wider goal of generating employment, income and a high standard of living.

For the benefit of Honourable Members and the public, I would now like to summarise the current economic environment and the actions in the budget to achieve the Government's economic growth, inflation, and unemployment objectives.

The global economy expanded by 3.0 per cent in 2002 following a growth rate of 2.3 per cent in 2001. Current projections show a modest acceleration in economic activity to 3.2 per cent in 2003. However, uncertainties still remain even after the war in Iraq and subsequent events in that region. Terrorism continues to be a major geopolitical concern. The Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome (SARS) epidemic is having a negative impact on China and other Asian economies. There is yet to be a sustained increase in business spending. With continuing weakness in Japan and the Euro zone, the world is looking for strength in the US economy, which is projected to grow by 2.2 per cent in 2003.

Despite these volatile times, the Cayman Islands domestic economy achieved a higher level of economic growth and a lower rate of unemployment in 2002 compared to the previous year.

Preliminary results from the National Income Survey showed economic growth at 1.7 per cent for 2002. This rate represents an encouraging rebound from the estimated 0.6 per cent attained in 2001. The unemployment rate declined considerably from 7.5 per cent in October 2001 to 5.7 per cent in April 2002. The Labour Force survey recorded a further reduction in this rate to 5.4 per cent in October 2002.

Consumer inflation increased to 2.4 per cent in 2002, up from 1.1 per cent from 2001. This rate is very modest and an increase is to be expected as the economy strengthens.

The major industries showed considerable resilience in 2002, in spite of the challenging economic environment.

In 2002, the financial services industry recorded healthy growth in key areas:

The Mutual Funds sector continued its strong growth of 17.5 per cent in 2002, with registrations increasing from 3,648 in 2001 to 4,285 in 2002.

The number of insurance licences increased by 10 per cent, from 572 in 2001 to 629 in 2002.

The total number listed issues at the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange reached 710 in 2002, compared to 418 in 2001.

On the other hand, company registrations, bank licences and stock market capitalisation declined. New company registrations for 2002 amounted to 7,016, a decline of 1,440 compared to the previous year. Nevertheless, the net position was still one of growth. There were 65,259 companies on the Register in December of 2002. This represented an increase of 1.2 percent over 2001.

The total number of bank and trust licences fell by 37, from 545 in 2001 to 508 in 2002. This decline largely Class 'B' banks, which were affected by the statutory requirement to establish a physical presence. Despite this fall in the number of licences, total assets in the banking sector rose from US$811.7 billion in September 2001 to US$945.4 billion in September 2002.

Stock market capitalisation declined by around 4.8 per cent to US$36.3 billion in 2002, from US$38.1 billion in 2001. This decrease was mainly due to a fall in the value of the stocks contained in the mutual funds listed on the exchange.

The tourism industry experienced a 21 per cent increase in total visitor arrivals, which rose to 1,877,547 in 2002. This increase was due to cruise arrivals, which rose by 29.6 per cent from 1,214,757 in 2001, to 1,574,750 in 2002. The number of stay-over visitors declined by 9.4 per cent, from 334,071 in 2001 to 302,797 in 2002.

The performance of the real estate industry was noticeably better in 2002 compared to 2001. The total value of real estate transfers increased by a remarkable 57.9 per cent; from $173.5 million to $274.0 million.

The construction industry also showed clear improvements in 2002. Total planning approvals for all three Islands increased by 52.3 percent, from $162.7 million in 2001 to $247.8 million in 2002. This rebound mainly reflected the Ritz Carlton hotel and condominium project, other condominium projects such as Water's Edge and the Meridian, and a small number of commercial buildings.

Looking forward, the forecasts for economic growth for the next three years project gradual improvement; providing for the achievement of Government's target growth of 3 per cent by 2005/2006. While growth is forecast to be a modest 2.3 per cent in 2003/2004, and then 2.8 per cent in 2004/2005, this level is still around double what it was in 2001/2002, when it was 1.2 per cent, and around three times what it was in 2000/2001, when it was only 0.6 per cent. So overall the forecast growth levels represent a significant improvement over recent years.

Despite this, ensuring good levels of economic growth is a key government objective and the economic development measures that I outlined earlier are designed to support this resurgence in growth.

The forecasts for inflation are 2.8 per cent in 2003/2004, 2.9 per cent in 2004/2005 and 3 per cent in 2005/6. Although inflationary pressures are forecast to increase as economic growth improves, the overall position is consistent with the objective of keeping inflation at or below 3.2 per cent per annum. The Government is comfortable with the current policy settings in this regard.

The forecasts for unemployment show a level of 5.6 per cent in 2003/2004, decreasing to 5.3 per cent by 2005/2006. This is a significant reduction from the high of 7.5 per cent in 2001. Nevertheless this forecast level is still higher than the target level of 4 per cent, which hasn't been achieved since 1999.

With this in mind, the Government recently abated stamp duty to support and stimulate real estate and construction activity. This initiative, combined with the economic development initiatives outlined earlier, and the Government's own capital development programme, are all expected to have a positive impact on employment over the next three years.

The Government recognises that our domestic economic performance is highly dependent on the international economic environment, particularly the US economy. There are significant downside risks to the economic growth forecasts and the Government will continue to keep a close watch on the domestic economy and take additional actions as necessary. However, as I said earlier, the private sector, not the public sector, is the main engine for growth. The Government's role is to create an enabling environment.

A very important part of doing this involves running a responsible fiscal policy. In times of lower growth, and therefore lower revenue, it is vital that the Government controls its aggregate expenditure and prioritises competing expenditure proposals accordingly. The country therefore needs to be realistic about what the Government can actually do to influence economic performance.

Fiscal Position

Madam Speaker this brings me to the fiscal position for 2003/2004. The Government has worked hard to ensure that the Budget is fiscally responsible, supportive of economic growth and complies with the principles of responsible financial management. Madam Speaker I am pleased to report that this goal been achieved.

The key features of the 2003/2004 Budget position can be summarised as follows. First, no new revenue measures have been included. Second, an operating surplus of $5.7 million has been achieved. Third, new borrowing has been restricted to $8 million, which is less than the level of debt repayments, and results in a $1.067 million net reduction in the overall level of public debt. Fourth, a debt-servicing ratio of 5.3 per cent has been achieved. This is well below the 10 per cent limit established by the Principles of Responsible Financial Management. Fifth, capital development expenditure has been limited to around $12 million, and restricted to essential projects with long-term benefits. Sixth, cash reserves have been maintained at a level equal to 60 days of operating expenditure, which is two-thirds of the level required by the Principles of Responsible Financial Management and a significant improvement on the past.

Madam Speaker, in terms of specific numbers, the Government expects to collect approximately $309.408 million in operating receipts in the 2003/4 financial year. In absolute terms, this forecasted revenue for 2003/4 is similar to the revenue collected in 2002. As in the past, approximately 70 per cent of operating revenue is forecast to come from two sources: duties and fees.

Total operating expenditure is forecast to be $303.697 million in 2003/4. In accordance with the Strategic Policy Statement, the forecasts include provision for a 2.6 per cent cost of living increase in wage and salary levels for civil servants, together with the commensurate increase in employee and employer pension contributions. This is the first such adjustment since the year 2000.

In nominal terms, the forecast for 2003/2004 expenditure is a little more than the aggregate operating expenditure for 2002. This was anticipated when the aggregate target was established in the Strategic Policy Statement.

Around 86 per cent of operating expenditure is to be spent on funding outputs. This is consistent with the use of expenditure in 2003 (Half) and reflects the fact that the government's dominant activity is the provision of goods and services used by the public.

The net asset activity for 2003/4 is forecast to be a net outflow of $27.409 million. The two largest components, which account for the majority of asset activity, are capital development expenditure and equity investments. These comprise $12 million and $10.6 million respectively.

Equity investments are the additional capital being contributed to organisations owned by the government. The forecast amount of this transaction mostly relates to subsidies for Cayman Airways Ltd and the Health Services Authority to maintain their liquidity in light of anticipated operating losses during 2003/2004.

The net amount of the forecast cash operating surplus and the forecast asset activity is the net deficit before financing. This deficit is the amount that needs to be financed and this financing can come from two sources: either from existing cash holdings or from borrowing. In 2003/4 the Government plans to use both sources of financing.

In line with the Strategic Policy Statement, the Government plans to borrow an additional $8 million in 2003/2004. This is less than the $9.067 million of borrowing repayments that will be made in 2003/4. This means that the overall level of Public Debt is forecast to decrease in 2003/4 by $1.067 million. The remaining $22.765 million will be financed from existing cash and fund balances.

This fiscal position reflects the fiscal strategy outlined in the Strategic Policy Statement, except that the operating surplus is less than planned.

The achievement of a responsible budget position is not just an academic exercise. It is necessary if we are to be self-supporting as a Country. It is a vital part of charting our own course for the future.

Conclusion

Madam Speaker, this Quincentennial Year provides us all with a wonderful opportunity to reflect on our past and the rich history that we have as a country. All of us in this House are enjoying this occasion and the many events that mark it.

It is also important, Madam Speaker, that we look forward and actively plan for the future. The forthcoming constitutional changes are a key part of that process. They will provide us with the framework for a more modern system of government and the ability to have greater control over our own destiny.

However, merely having the opportunity to control our own destiny is not enough. We have to grasp that opportunity. As our seafaring forbears did before us, we need to work out where we want to go and then chart the course to get there. And we need to take account of the currents and winds in doing so.

The Annual Plan and Estimates that the Government is presenting today is designed to set the foundation for the future of this country. It is a plan of action that is based on a clear and deliberate set of strategies. It is a plan of action that sets our own course to achieve the national aspirations reflected in Vision 2008. It is a plan that takes account of the winds of the international environment, but which recognises that we must actively pursue our own economic and social interests in the increasingly globalised international environment. It is a plan that is fiscally responsible and that supports economic growth.

It is a plan that positions the Cayman Islands to chart its own course in the 21st Century.

Finally, Madam Speaker, I would like to say thanks to Peter Goffe and Tony Dale for the exceptional hours spent together with their staff in putting together the Budget documents. I want to say thanks to Mr. Joel Walton, Mr. Kenneth Jefferson, and Ms. Drummond for their input in the Budget Address. I also want to say thanks to Mr. Dale for his input in the Budget Address. I want to say thanks to the Leader of Government Business and Ministers of Council and Members for their input in scrutinising the Budget documents to ensure that they are in a state of completeness as presented today. I want to say thanks to all civil servants whatever their input has been in contributing to the development of the Budget as presented to this Honourable House for the fiscal year 2003/2004.

May God continue to bless the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: Thank you. I now recognise the Leader of Government for a motion to defer the debate on the Budget Address.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I move that the Second Reading debate on The Appropriation (July 2003 to June 2004) Bill 2003 be deferred until Thursday 19 June 2003.

The Speaker: The question is that the debate on the Budget Address be deferred until Thursday 19 June 2003. All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes and Noes.

The Speaker: I believe the Ayes have it.

Agreed by majority: Debate on Second Reading of the Appropriation (July 2003 to June 2004) Bill, 2003 deferred until Thursday 19 June 2003.

STATEMENTS BY HONOURABLE MINISTERS/MEMBERS OF THE GOVERNMENT

Major Strategies and Programmes Emerging In Tandem with the Budget

The Speaker: I recognise the Leader of the Government.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wish to be the first to thank the Honourable Financial Secretary and his team for their demonstrated commitment and success in making financial reform a reality within the public service. Driving change is never an easy task but we are now at the stage of reaping the fruit of our combined efforts. The new budget process is focused on achieving policy and managing finances. It is governed on making the best use of scarce resources and it encourages innovation and addressing needs expressed within our community. This is a considerable achievement not just for the sake of the public service but by extension it benefits the businesses and households whose activities generate the income, which funds government services.

My Honourable colleague, the Financial Secretary, has just outlined the broad framework of policies, which the Government proposes for the 2003-2004 Financial Year. I will now expand on some of the major strategies and programmes which are emerging in tandem with this Budget ranging from a strategy to promote and defend our financial services industry to a strategy to combat, beat erosion and preserve the natural assets which underpin our tourism industry.

Financial Services

Madam Speaker and Honourable Members, I am sure we all realise that the challenges are diverse and complex but I can report that Government has not flinched in facing these critical issues – financial services.

As Honourable Members will be aware, the Government has boldly and staunchly defended the Cayman Islands right to operate an international financial centre within the context of a level playing field. We have insisted that our competitiveness not be impaired by the imposition of unilateral rules which benefit onshore territories at the cost of smaller territories and without, if I may add, any benefit to strengthening any regulatory regimes.

While, the Cayman Islands benefits from being positioned on the side of what is good, what is fair and reasonable and what we know are both legally and morally correct.

Matters in relation to the various international initiatives are continuing to evolve. I would like to address two inter-related areas: Firstly, the European Union's now approved directive on the Taxation of Savings Income. Secondly, the OECD's Harmful Tax Competition Initiative.

On the subject of the European Union, the European Union Finance Ministers approved the European Union's tax package the 3 June. Despite this development I wish to reiterate that Government's resolve and commitment to continuing to closely monitor events.

The Government continues to meet with representatives of the private sector, in fact, there have been numerous meetings over the past 20 months in relation to the various international initiatives. The Government has utilised the feedback, obtained from the private sector in its ongoing efforts to secure a level playing field and to advance the interest of the Cayman Islands.

The process being utilised by the Government in dealing with both the OECD's initiative and the European Union's initiative has a number of components including:

1. Ongoing local consultation
2. Obtaining expert advice from the most knowledgeable overseas advisors which are available
3. Dialogue with other countries.

In relation to local consultation one aspect of the information which has been sought and continues to be sought by the Government is broad feedback from all segments of the private sector relating to,

a) the types and volumes of business currently done in the Cayman Islands which originate in any of the OECD member states and the 10 European states which are likely to become part of the OECD in the foreseeable future which might be sensitive to a tax information exchange agreement; and,

b) the types of business not currently done in the Cayman Islands which but for black list or other legal or regulatory restrictions enacted by any OECD member state might potentially be available to financial and other services providers in the Cayman Islands.

The objective in relation to identifying current obstacles to business is not simply to compile a list of desired one-time changes to other countries legislation which could be used in negotiations but to also compile base-line information to complement general safeguards which are also being designed.

The Government is well aware of the commercial sensitivity of non-discrimination and the need to secure non-discrimination as one element in any negotiations in relation to tax information exchange. During the meetings with the OECD which occurred here in the Cayman Islands in November 2002, the Government demanded and obtained written assurances regarding both the principles of a level playing field and non-discrimination. The language which the Cayman Islands insisted should go into the model which has now been accepted by the OECD in relation to non-discrimination, specifies: "The requested Party may decline a request for information if the information is requested by the applicant Party to administer or enforce a provision of the tax law of the applicant party or any requirement connected therewith, which discriminates against a national of the requested Party as compared with a national of the applicant Party in the same circumstances".

Madam Speaker, in regard to expert advice the Government has acted in previous private sector recommendations and has already taken advice from highly reputed and internationally recognised legal experts in relation to the structuring of tax information exchange protocols and the Government continues to gather individual advice from other internationally recognised taxation law experts in this regard. It is also the Government's intention to retain further expert legal advisors knowledgeable in relation to international aspects of taxation, finance and financial services in any jurisdictions with which any tax information exchange agreement is contemplated.

On another aspect of process the Cayman Islands has for the past two and one-half years been working with like minded countries including the other members of the international trade and investment organisation, the other UK overseas territories, the Crown dependencies and others involved in the OECD and the European initiatives and has no intention of isolation itself in relation to the basic frameworks which are being developed in relation to the tax information exchange process. That being said, Madam Speaker, it is being recognised by all of the countries with which we are co-operating in this process, that model conventions containing tax information exchange protocols, information exchange legislation and over-riding considerations such as non-discrimination are matters that we can work with together, whereas the timing and sought after benefits and bilateral negotiations with other countries are areas in which each country is on its own.

The emerging international ground rules relating to non-retrospective application requirements, for confidentiality requirements for due process, and so on, are all matters that the Cayman Islands have fought hard for and will undoubtedly form part of any tax information exchange agreement.

Draft legislation relating to the actual tax information exchange process which will be required to give effect to the US tax information agreement and which includes safeguards for privacy is currently being developed and it is anticipated that this will be made available for public consultation in the near future.

The final form of this legislation once adopted locally is intended to be offered as a framework which would be available to other jurisdictions to adopt. Similarly, a draft protocol for bilateral negotiations is being developed with the assistance of internally recognised experts and will also be made available for public comment in the near future.

Madam Speaker, the Government's resolve has not changed. We do not intend to support the European Tax and Savings Directive in its current form because it will be detrimental to the financial services industry in this country, it will cause lay-offs and unemployment, it will cause the country to lose revenue and we ask that the United Kingdom Government understand this. For the same way the United Kingdom Government wants to protect their bond market we must protect we must protect our financial services industry. If they move to impose the directive on us we shall pursue all legal options to protect this country from such wonton disregard for our survival and viability as an international business centre in good standing.

Madam Speaker, Government continues to commit necessary resources to ensure the law enforcement agency is fully equipped to meet the unfortunate rise in crimes in recent times. We have confidence that the police will continue to meet the challenge. As a Government we do not intend to tolerate the incidences of crime in our country. The continued prosperity of these Islands is heavily dependent on a safe and secure environment, therefore, the resolution to this rising problem must be everyone's business. If the public has information we would urge them to by all means assist the process.

Madam Speaker, the only remaining punishment for crime, and furthermore serious ones, is incarceration at Northward Prison since the United Kingdom removed corporal punishment and capital punishment for hard crimes. No one can say that this has proved beneficial to these Islands. The Government stands committed to doing everything in our power to preserve the peace, safety and security of these Islands.

Ministry of Tourism
Tourism

Madam Speaker, we are all aware of the significant challenges facing global tourism. This started prior to the 11 September with the decline in the US economy, our most important source market. The US economic decline was followed by the unfortunate events of the 11 September 2001 which was followed by the US led war with Iraq. At the onset of the war with Iraq early this year domestic travel within the United States declined by 20 per cent and international travel from the US fell by 40 per cent. These challenges were compounded by the outbreak of Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome, or SARS, as it is commonly known.

While our tourism industry like others around the world continues to struggle for recovery from these unfortunate events our statistics continue to fluctuate over the past year with moderate and gradual increases in stay over visitors anticipated. The Ministry is taking advantage of this opportunity to restructure our operations and improve our product so that when the expected recovery of global tourism and our tourism industry occurs we will be well positioned to manage that growth. In the meantime, we are doing everything possible to increase stay over visitors including television advertising, which has been non-existence in recent years and new marketing and public relations strategies.

In 2002 the Ministry commissioned a study on the feasibility of establishing a tourism authority. The first phase of the study examining the feasibility of transitioning the Department of Tourism (DoT) into a statutory authority has been completed. It is clear from the study that a tourism authority is desired and will be the most effective structure to ensure collaboration of the public and private tourism sectors. We are therefore, moving ahead shortly with phase two of the plan which will address the organisational structure of the new authority. This phase will involve significant cohesion between the Ministry and the DoT and the industry stakeholders, and there are budgetary provisions to support this project.

Madam Speaker, in March of this year I tabled the new five-year national tourism Management Policy, a policy designed to provide a framework and a clear vision for the sustainable development of the tourism sector. This Management Policy has determined the budgetary provisions with respect to the tourism industry and activities.

Conclusion
And General Consensus Of The Policy Framework

The conclusion on general consensus that came from the policy development process is that the way ahead, laying consolidation and sustainable growth and the need to focus on five strategic aims.

1. In market terms, positioning the Cayman Islands as a distinctive quality Caribbean destination for the discerning visitor.

2. In product terms, concentrating on improving the quality of the experience for stay over and cruise passengers, to deliver a unique distinctive Caymanian experience for which people are willing to pay a premium.

3. In development terms the key recommendation is the need to review tourism zones.

4. In management terms the key recommendation is to institute a provisional cap on the number of cruise ship passengers per day arriving on Grand Cayman.

5. In target terms we are working to restore visitor stay over visitor numbers to pre-1998 levels.

This Management Policy has been called Focus for the Future because it is about repositioning the Cayman Islands' product and approach to meet new demands and a new overall goal. This will require a new focus by all concerned with the industry.

Implementation Of The Recommendations

The National Tourism Management Policy (NTMP) provides a consensual blueprint and charts a course for development of our tourism sector to the benefit of everyone. Unlike the way previous studies have been shelved, we are determined to act upon this report and not to allow it to be relegated to the bookshelves of a few persons for dust collection. The challenge is now implementation and my Ministry and the DoT are therefore preparing to implement the recommendations in the National Tourism Management Policy by establishing certain mechanisms:

NTMP Steering Committee

This would be the overall coordinating body that will provide oversight for ensuring the implementation of the Policy. This body would guide the work of the subcommittees and they in turn would all report to the steering committee. A number of subcommittees will be established: a Human Resources Committee, an Information and Research Committee, Transportation Committee, George Town Port/Cruise Development Committee, Environment Committee, Product and Structure Enhancement Committee.

Madam Speaker, work has already begun on many of the issues raised in the Management Policy and the various sub committees will draw on much of the proprietary work that has been executed by the Ministry and DoT.

In addition to the implementation of the Management Policy for the Cayman Islands the DoT is continuing work on other key objectives such as the recently launched cruise convergent programme which is encouraging cruise ship visitors to return to the Cayman Islands overnight. This programme is designed to take advantage of a golden opportunity. The thousands of cruise ship guests who arrive at our shores monthly and to convert an elite portion of them to return to the Cayman Islands as land-based stay over visitors.

Madam Speaker, the action plans contained in the Management Policy will require the participation of numerous and diverse agencies ranging from tourism association to various cultural educational and environmental organisations to the economics and statistics offices. Managing this process will be no small task but we understand how crucial it is to do this and we are committed to getting our public and private sector together to address our tourism challenges in a meaningful and effective manner. This new Management Policy will be a critical tool to preserving and building our tourism industry and I humbly request that this policy be given the support it deserves, not from the public but from within the House.

Cayman Airways

Madam Speaker, it has been one year since we last had an opportunity to talk about the challenges and opportunities which lay ahead for Cayman Airways, the shareholders' perspective. When the new board was appointed I said that if Cayman Airways (CAL) continued business as usual then Cayman Airways would not have the shareholders support. At that time the Government confirmed its support for the CAL 2002 business plan and indicated that there must be significant reductions in expenditure if the national carrier were to survive. The Government also stated that it was not in a position to fund Cayman Airways at that time beyond the budgeted equity investment of $4 million.

Madam Speaker, I addressed the CAL Board of Directors at a meeting in February of this year. I thank the Directors and the Chairman of Cayman Airways for their commitment and dedication to our national carrier especially at this when the Aviation industry is facing unprecedented challenges. They have all worked assiduously without compensation and I commend and thank them all on behalf of the Government and people of the Cayman Islands for their commitment to ensuring that this national asset has an opportunity to succeed. I believe that their professionalism, their expertise and their commitment are now positively reflected throughout the organisation. They took very seriously the mandate that was given to them last year and it is evident that they have managed Cayman Airways on behalf of the country as if it were their own business with as much passion, charisma and sacrifice.

Madam Speaker, the past year has presented mixed results. The Board of Directors of Cayman Airways has been successful in achieving unprecedented savings. Unfortunately, the airline also experienced a significant decline in revenue due to numerous factors, most of which were outside our realm of control. As a result the gap between expenditure and revenue remain largely unchanged and therefore, it is back to the drawing board.

I told the Board at the February meeting that as they were about to launch into their next round of intense discussions and planning I would like to raise on behalf of the shareholders several factors which at a macro level may help establish parameters for their discussions.

As I have said earlier we recognise that the Aviation industry is facing unprecedented challenges. Since the terrorist attacks at the World Trade Centre we have witnessed bankruptcies with major US carriers. Regional carriers such as LIAT, Air Jamaica, and BWIA still face less than certain futures while their respective governments are still injecting millions and millions of dollars into these airlines to ensure the viability of their tourism industries. This compares to the $4 million that we invest in Cayman Airways annually to support our tourism industry.

Those US carriers that continue to serve our region are increasing the demands for subsidies from regional governments. I believe this is a tangible example of what we had anticipated would happen if Islands were totally reliant upon external carriers to provide air services. I know with certainty that we could expect more of the same while prices to fly to Cayman dramatically increase.

The Government recognises that it will be necessary especially in today's world to invest in air services to the Cayman Islands and that it will serve our economy better if that investment in our national carrier, Cayman Airways. Notwithstanding this, Madam Speaker, this must be viewed against the reality of the Government's financial position which does not allow it to provide an undetermined annual equity investment in Cayman Airways.

I have already spoken to the unprecedented challenges which our financial industry is facing and as this pressure continues more reliance will be placed on our tourism industry to support the same level of economic activity that we enjoy.

It follows then that a stronger and more integrated working relationship will be required between Cayman Airways and the DoT. Cayman Airways must play a more significant role in building tourism for the Cayman Islands as it did when it was first conceived.

The Government as the shareholders of the national carrier recognises the value of Cayman Airways to our economy. But it is important for Cayman Airways to recognise that the Government is facing major challenges in just about all of its sectors and funding is a real issue for all of them. Cayman Airways must therefore compete for funding with many other agencies which also provide essential services for the country.

Madam Speaker, I am pleased to advise that the Government is committed to the long-term support of Cayman Airways provided that the Board of Directors can produce a strategic business plan that restructures the national carrier and establishes a viable operation with a completely new formula, essentially a new Cayman Airways.

In that regard the Executive Council will consider the new Cayman Airways strategic plan on the 24 June 2003, and I will report to this Honourable House shortly thereafter.

I can say, however, that the plan will propose to link Cayman Airways' route structure with the DoT's marketing focus to ensure continued economic viability through a successful and progressive tourism industry. We are proposing additional routes to Chicago and Boston beginning in December this year and February 2004 respectively. This will begin the focus on Cayman Airways new vision to strategically support the tourism and financial services industries.

Madam Speaker, every Caymanian should play their role in keeping the national airline alive. They should not on any other airline travel unless Cayman Airways is not available. That is the duty of every Caymanian and not only every Caymanian outside but everyone of us in this Honourable House. For when we pay money to other carriers flying from this country, when we can pay it to Cayman Airways we are taking from the national coffers of this country. I implore everyone to support Cayman Airways. There was a song the other night at the Byron Lee concert which says, "Raise your flag for Air Jamaica and Air Jamaica Express." Well, I say here let us raise two for Cayman Airways.

Beach Review and Assessment Committee

I wish to turn from discussing initiatives based on preserving our financial and tourism and aviation interest to initiatives geared to the preservation of our natural assets.

Madam Speaker, in January 2003, my Ministry established the Beach Review and Assessment Committee (BRAC). With the primary objective to review, recommend and implement an appropriate plan of action to address the issue of beach erosion. The work of the committee to date has focused on Seven Mile Beach due to the urgent need to address issues in this location. The Beach Review and Assessment Committee interim report April 2003 therefore primarily deals with Seven Mile Beach although some general recommendations apply to all of the beaches in these Islands. The committee will continue to address additional beach management issues in the Cayman Islands in accordance with the original terms of reference.

The report provides a broad range of recommendations aimed at addressing both immediate erosion concerns and preventing future erosion problems through changes and development policy.

A summary of the main recommendation is as follows: The rating of High Priority Short-Term Solutions represent recommendations that must be implemented and possibly completed within two to six months of adoption of the interim report. Immediate action in these areas will temporarily alleviate problematic erosion conditions.

The main High Priority Short-Term Solutions are as follows:

1. Removal of specifically identified and inappropriately sited rock and rubble obstructions along Seven Mile Beach.

2. Conducting an immediate trial for government initiated spot nourishment of heavily eroded sections of Seven Mile Beach utilising sand sources stock pile on the Island from previous construction projects.

3. Conducting an engineering feasibility study in preparation for a beach nourishment programme during the next major erosion event and as a central component of the strategic beach management plan.

The rating of High Priority Long-Term Solutions represents recommendations that should be implemented within two to twelve months of adoption of the interim report, and that will have a long-term impact on erosion issues. These recommendations represent changes in development and planning policies that will directly benefit beach management.

The main high priority long-term solutions are as follows:

1. Establishment of a Strategic Beach Management Plan which will form a dynamic comprehensive policy and management tool for all beaches of the Cayman Islands.

2. Establishment of the Historic Vegetation Line using suitable archived aerial photography as the bench mark for determining set backs on all beaches.

3. Preparation of a Coastal Set Back Category Map that will detail cite specific set back distances for all coastlines on Grand Cayman (beginning with Seven Mile Beach) as well as the Sister Islands.

4. Immediate implementation of a policy of opportunistic nourishment (return of stock pile beach sand from previously approved development and any sand removed from the beach ridge during the construction of new foundations, seawalls and pools).

5. Establishment of a permanent beach management fund with an initial deposit by government in the (2003/4 financial year and in subsequent years from private and government funding mechanisms to be determined at a later stage.

6. Amendment of development and planning regulations and/or Central Planning Authority (CPA) policies such that all repair of coastal structures damaged by storms and hurricanes shall require Planning permission in accordance with established policies and recommendations.

The rating of Intermediate Priority Long-Term Solutions represent recommendations that should be implemented within 12 months of adoption of the interim report. And that will have a long-term impact on erosion issues.

The main intermediate priority long-term solutions are as follows:

1. Amendment of planning regulations to include a requirement that heavy vehicle access is maintained to the Seven Mile Beach between future buildings considered for Planning approval to allow heavy equipment access to the beach in the event of a major beach restoration effort.

2. Encouraging developers and residents to use native beach vegetation to assist beach stabilisation both before and after storm events.

3. Amendment of section 31 of the Development and Planning Law 1999 Revision to prevent the practice of sand removal from all beaches.

4. Continuation of the current Department of Environment and Lands and Survey beach monitoring programme and the incorporation of this data into specific beach management plans as part of the strategic beach management plan.

Madam Speaker, it is important to note that the committee considered several options for the recovery and repair of sections of Seven Mile Beach affected by erosion, including the introduction of various engineered beach stabilisation structures. The committee's consensus established that beach stabilisation structures would be uncharacteristic of the Seven Mile Beach aesthetic and experience and that no scientifically proven system has been identified to date. Based on the advice of the consultants, beach nourishment (mechanical placement of sand) was considered the most viable option. Further, the consultants advised that at this stage a full-scale nourishment project is not required on Seven Mile Beach. Instead, it was recommended that spot nourishment of heavily eroded areas is the most likely scenario that should be explored further and prepared for.

It is key that everyone understands that Beach nourishment is not a 'one-off' solution; it will need to be repeated at intervals. For this reason the committee has recommended the establishment of a beach management fund. It is equally important to note that beach nourishment is an engineered structure and as in any operation of this magnitude there is potential for damage to the environment.

Prior to deciding to undertake this option, an engineering feasibility study accompanied by an environmental assessment is required. These studies would consider the viability of sand sources, make recommendations on acceptable methods for obtaining, transporting and distributing the sand on the beach as well as cost estimates for the programme. Restrictions on methodology or on source selection necessary to protect the environment would be determined as a part of these studies.

The possible inability to retain sand on beaches that have been nourished at considerable expense is an issue that will draw criticism as there local advocates of utilising sand retention structures comprising a range of structures, including groins and breakwaters, with potential for retaining sand at specific locations on the beach. Given the lack of supporting scientific information the use of sand retention devices is not recommended by the committee for the Seven Mile Beach area, north of Crescent Point. However, Sand Retention Devices may form suitable options for other beaches in the Cayman Islands not yet considered by the committee.

In the recent past coastal construction setbacks have been based upon tidal datum – the elevations of either high or low water mark. Although these elevations are well established and easy to survey they do not represent fixed points on a map. The intersection on high tide on certain sections of Seven Mile Beach has been shown in Department of Environment (DOE)/Lands and Survey Beach Monitoring profiles to vary more than 200 feet perpendicular to the shoreline in a single year! This means that setbacks based upon measuring the beach at its widest could result in buildings in the water when it is at its narrowest.

On the other hand, Madam Speaker, Nature has provided a firm reference point for the maximum expected erosion line at any particular point on the beach in due form of the Historic Vegetation Line. Dense vegetation and large trees take considerable time to become established and their presence indicates that erosion has not occurred to that particular point in the past. While this line can seldom be determined on the modern shoreline of Seven Mile Beaches because of development-related modifications, it can be established through the careful interpretation of pre-development aerial photography.

At this stage there is no recommendation for actual setbacks, only a recommendation for using the Historic Vegetation line as the baseline for determination.

Madam Speaker, there seems to be some confusion or misinformation in regards to walls that have been built on Seven Mile Beach that may have caused the shifting of sand. I can say that during the term of this Government there were no walls built and that we increased the setbacks by 30 more feet rather than the 100-foot setback given by former Governments. This was done to protect the environment.

Crisis Readiness: An Investment In Our Future

Madam Speaker, as you know, we are aware of the growing number of world crises. Our economy, our reputation in the global community, and our relationships with key stakeholders have been directly impacted by more frequent and severe challenges such as globalisation, the Asian financial crisis, the tragic events of 11 September 2001, corporate governance failures around the world, natural disasters and more recently SARS.

The question that I have pondered as Leader of Government Business is, what if something happened that resulted in thousands of people losing their jobs—what plan is there to address such a catastrophe. I recognise that we needed such a plan with solutions.

The new reality of risk demands a new standard of leadership on our part. We must bring to these challenges a vision – a new approach and shared commitment that will raise the bar of excellence for government and business alike.

Such crises in the Cayman Islands could wreck tourism, devastate the economy, destroy existing revenue streams, and shrink the government's revenue base. This would destroy businesses and in turn cause social deterioration from massive unemployment. Any or all of these consequences could jeopardise government and businesses ability to deliver public services to our residents and visitors.

I am therefore, proposing to implement A Cayman Islands Crisis Readiness Programme. This programme will enable public and private organisation to better prevent, prepare for, respond to and recover from all kinds of potential threats including:

- Natural disasters (example, hurricane or earthquake)
- Financial services threats (example, imposed external legislation)
- Industrial accidents (example, oil spill)
- Technology failures (example, damaging power outage)
- Public health threats (example, SARS)
- Terrorism of some kind (example, bombings)
- And others (example, accounting scandals)

To this end, the Government intends to enter into an agreement with Marsh McLennan group of Companies who will work closely with the Cayman Island's Government and business community to develop and implement the following four-part programme:

1. Crisis Readiness Review

The success of any crisis management planning effort depends on an understanding of key organisational and cultural issues. Each organisation is different, with unique structure, culture, processes, and people, all of which influence crisis management capability. Through structured interviews and reviews of selected policies and documents, March McLennan will determine what issues need to be understood and addressed as part of improved Crisis Readiness planning.

2. Hurricane Preparedness Simulated Exercise

A simulated exercise will help assess and validate the Cayman Islands hurricane preparedness. March McLennan will design, develop, conduct and evaluate a discussion-based exercise for a proposed Hurricane Response Team. The Team will be challenged to talk-through their response and recovery actions based on a hypothetical crisis scenario(s). The hypothetical scenario will challenge the crisis communications and human impact capabilities. Participants will include Hurricane Committee members and selected others. The simulated exercise is designed to observe and benchmark the team's management process(es).

March McLennan's simulated exercises place strong emphasis on measuring Crisis Readiness capabilities, understanding of and ability to respond to human impacts, clarification of team member roles and responsibilities, notification and activation procedures, response strategies, and individual roles and responsibilities. Simulated exercises provide a training opportunity for team members to strategise responses, sharpen decision-making skills, and strengthen team cohesiveness.

3. Crisis Readiness Education and Training Seminar

Marsh McLennan will conduct a 1½ days education and training seminar for selected government and business leaders. The seminar will be designed as an interactive workshop that provides an overview of Crisis Readiness initiatives in government and business as well as insights into world issues that can create a potential crisis environment for a country like the Cayman Islands. The seminar is intended to provide participants with training and dialogue with key government and private sector individuals in crisis management, emergency management, human impact, and crisis communications.

Seminar participants will be provided the opportunity to enroll in March McLennan's Crisis Academy prior to attending the seminar. Course offerings will include:

- Foundations of Crisis Management introduces participants to discipline's philosophy, terminology, methodology and relationship to other fields.
- Foundation of Emergency Planning introduces methods for identifying and assessing hazards and vulnerabilities that require an emergency response plan.
- Foundations of Crisis Communications offers guidance for effectively reaching employees of agencies and companies as well as the media, financial markets, and residents/visitors to the Islands.
- Foundations of Humanitarian Assistance provides an introduction to processes and basic tools needed to deal with the physical, financial, and social-emotional impact of a crisis.

This blended e-learning and instructor-led approach will provide participants with a solid appreciation for the best practices (foundations) needed to respond to and recover from a wide range of crisis triggers. It can be individualised and personalised based on the findings of the Crisis Readiness Review, Hurricane Preparedness Tabletop Exercise, and participant job function/title.

4. Real-Time Crisis Consulting Support

If/when a crisis should occur that impacts the Cayman Islands, March McLennan's Crisis Consulting Practice will, upon request, provide the government with real-time management support, including the guidance that agencies may need in order to respond quickly and effectively. This service can be initiated by calling March 24 hours per day, 365 days per year.

I am proposing this new public-private partnership to enhance the existing crisis readiness capabilities of government and businesses in the Cayman Islands. By working closely together, our government and business community can begin to integrate and leverage our ability to efficiently respond and quickly recover from a wide range of potential crises.

We need to create this Partnership because we know that, the government can the business community cannot undertake this crucial task alone. We must join forces. By committing to this partnership effort, we acknowledge our responsibility to resource this initiative and to build the trust that will be needed to carry it through.

After this assessment has been conducted, a report will be made to the Government with suggested solutions and action plans as to how to tackle any given disaster. Then the Government, and our partners in the business community will meet, discuss, plan and strategise, to ensure that we are prepared to meet the challenges ahead, whether man-made or those laid down by a higher authority, so that the people of the Cayman Islands can continue to prosper and maintain our standing as the leading provider of financial services and a safe, serene and sought after tourist destination.

We pray to God that we never have such a disaster but we must be ready with an alternative in the event that we find ourselves in such a predicament.

I now turn to short policy statement on the various Ministries.

Ministry of Planning

Telecommunications

The Government is aware that the quality and cost of infrastructural services has a major impact on our country's international competitiveness. It has therefore been actively working towards the deregulation of the telecommunications sector. As recently announced by the Minister of Planning, Communications, Works and Information Technology, this process is to be completed by July 2004. It is expected to result in an overall reduction in telecommunications cost across the economy, which will benefit our people directly as well as indirectly by reducing the costs of doing business in Cayman.

The Ministry also announced the Government's intention to renegotiate the contract with Caribbean Utilities Company Limited (CUC), the objective being to secure lower rates for our people.

A New Roads Authority

Madam Speaker, the Government is very pleased to announce its intention to create a Roads Authority in July of this year. The Honourable Financial Secretary has already made reference to this in his presentation and I will now give some additional details. The existing Public Works Department (PWD) Roads Section will be converted to constitute the new Authority. This umbrella framework will ensure the desired result connected to financing with respect to roads design, development and maintenance.

Madam Speaker, the Authority will look to innovative methods of funding its capital development programme and during this financial year it is intended that the Authority will execute the following major capital development projects/programmes:-

- |   |             |
|---|-------------|
| a. District Road Programme  | $1,300,000 |
| Road Programme of reconstruction and/or resurfacing of existing roads throughout Grand Cayman and the Sister Islands: |             |
| West Bay  | $300,000   |
| George Town   | $400,000   |
| Bodden Town   | $300,000   |
| Northside   | $150,000   |
| East End  | $150,000   |
| Cayman Brac and Little Cayman   | $580,000   |
| b. Roads: Settlement of Gazetted Claims Compensation fund for property owners   | $2,000,000 |
| c. Traffic Improvement Programme  | $895,000   |
| Eastbound lane Selkirk to Marina Drive  | $350,000   |
| Upgrade McField Lane  | $150,000   |
| Hirst Road/Shamrock Road Intersection   | $395,000   |
| d. Main Road Resurfacing  | $580,000   |
| BT – Midland Acres to Breakers  | $450,000   |

Madam Speaker, this represents a capital development programme of just over $12,000,000 for necessary road works.

A more substantial presentation will be made on the structure, operations and funding of the Roads Authority by the Minister responsible when the enabling legislation is debated during this Meeting of the Legislative Assembly. I trust that all Members will support this new initiative and will understand the need for its creation.

Ministry of Education

ITALIC Programme

Madam Speaker, The National Education Plan was reviewed and expanded as the plan for 2000-2005. This has directly lead to the implementation of ITALIC – Improving Teaching and Learning in the Cayman Islands. Over a five-year period Government will spend close to $6 million on this worthwhile programme for education.

ITALIC is now in the pilot, six projects are being piloted in our schools. All schools are involved in at least one pilot. The Education portal has been established to allow intranet and internet connection to and between all schools; e-mail for students and teachers is being put in place; schools are developing their own web sites; teachers are developing their own web-pages.

Through web-based courses some teachers are developing lesson plans which can then be evaluated and available in lesson-banks. Such lesson plans must meet the standards laid down by the National Curriculum for government schools. It is anticipated that all teachers will be trained in these methods by the summer of 2004.

We will shortly be piloting wireless computer carts in schools. This will give every child access to a computer and the internet.

At the same time Information Technology Policy which includes internet use policy, and technology support policies are being developed. These draft policy documents are now being reviewed by the appropriate personnel.

The Ministry will soon be tabling a new Education Law.

Build new Primary and Secondary Schools

Madam Speaker, the Government has identified property off Poindexter Road in Spotts for a new primary school. The school will be ready in September 2004.

Additionally, land in the Frank Sound area for a secondary school has been identified and a purchase price is being negotiated. It is expected that construction on this school will begin in 2004 for occupancy in September 2005. The new West Bay Primary School will also begin next year for occupancy in September 2005. The funding for all three schools will be obtained using the Private Financing Initiative methodology.

Employment Relations Department

The Employment Relations Department has been re-organised into units: the compliance and regulatory unit, the conciliation and mediation unit, the job placement unit and the human resource development unit, which includes the Investors in People programme Unemployment continues to be a challenge, although the unemployment rate has decreased from the high levels of 2001/2002, there are still 450 Cay-manians registered as seeking work, with only 35 persons placed in the last five months.

A working Group to establish a National Technical and Vocation Education Board has begun to meet. The new Technical and Vocational Educational Training (TVET) Board will advise on policy, approve the certification and the standardisation of TVET programmes and recommend long- and short-term training courses as well as scholarships and grants for this important sector.

In keeping with regional and international initiatives, the Ministry's thrust on TVET links it to employment and life-long learning. The TVET policy will highlight that technical and vocational education is much more than an option for the non-academic student, but a real plus in this increasingly technological and globalised world. It will also link the training initiative to the findings of the Skills Audit presently being carried out by the Department of Employment Relations.

Culture

The development of a National Cultural Policy and the establishment of a National Cultural Commission under United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organisation (UNESCO) guidelines has begun. Various focus groups have been held so that the policy framework can be established.

The long-awaited New History of the Cayman Islands is now with the prints, and will arrive on Island over the summer with a planned launch in September.

Ministry of Health Services

The Ministry of Health Services is committed to ensuring a healthy resident population within the Cayman Islands. Health, as is defined in the Constitution of the World Health Organisation: "is a state of complete physical, mental, and social well-being and not merely the absence of disease or infirmity." Maintaining rates of preventable diseases within the World Health Organisation standards will remain a priority. The Public Health Department will organise health promotion activities to emphasise the positive aspects of life-style that can reduce or prevent the onset of cardiovascular disease and cancer. Integrated approaches will be used to prevent and reduce the incidences of non-communicable diseases such as diabetes and hypertension. The Medical Officer of Health will continue to monitor and ensure vaccines and essential drugs are used in a timely manner for the greater good of the public.

Current policies will be reviewed with the aim of administering, in a more cost-effective and efficient manner, the health care benefits for civil servants and other eligible persons for whom the government has accepted responsibility. A new Health Insurance Law is in process. Work on establishing a centralised database will be completed and the collection of relevant data/statistics will remain a priority.

Aviation

Madam Speaker, redevelopment of terminal facilities at Owen Roberts International Airport, and provision of purpose-built airport facilities in Little Cayman are intended. The contribution of such amenities to the successful selling of the Cayman Islands as a comfortable tourism and business destination is well established. They must be kept up to date with evolving needs.

Parallel with this will be the restructuring on the Civil Aviation Authority, to place operational and regulatory responsibilities under two separate entities. This will keep Cayman in its position of standard-bearer in both safety and security arrangements for our air traffic passengers, as well as for cargo.

District Administration

Madam Speaker, close attention will be paid to ensure that all initiatives undertaken across the entire public sector will have appropriate parallels within District Administration, which operates as a microcosm of the Government as a whole. Working in cooperation with other Ministries, funding will be provided for projects to diversify the economy of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and support ongoing social development. In particular, an emphasis on nature tourism will serve to spearhead immediate development efforts.

Ministry of Community Services

Restructuring of the Social Services Department

Madam Speaker, over the years the Cayman Islands has grown from the "the Islands that time forgot" to one of the major financial centres of the world. As many of our people were not equipped to handle this rapid development, many found themselves seeking temporary and permanent financial assistance from the Department of Social Services. Some of those people in many instances are simply just in need of restraining or retooling. Like the saying goes, "Give a man a fish, you fee him for a day, but if you teach a man to fish you will feed him for a lifetime". It is time, Madam Speaker, that we focus on restraining and retooling our people so that they can all secure jobs.

In keeping with the Broad Outcome number 10 in the 2003/2004 Strategic Policy Statement – that is Strong Family Units, the Ministry of Community Services will continue to restructure the Department of Social Services to make it more effective and efficient. The main focus of the Department of Social Services will be the stability and strengthening of the family unit and in keeping with this, it will be renamed the Department of Children and Family Services as of the 1 July 2003.

Other plans for the department include in philosophy and focus and this will be implemented to better understand and address the root causes of people needing Temporary Financial Aid. By helping these adults become more self-sufficient, they will be in a better position to care for their families financial and emotional needs. This approach will reduce the number of repeat clients and reduce the likelihood of people becoming dependent upon financial assistance. An additional section of the department will focus on the Poor Person's Relief for the elderly and disabled.

The Affordable Housing Initiative

In keeping with the focus on a Strong Family Unit, the Ministry of Community Services, on behalf of the Cayman Islands Government, is spearheading the Affordable Housing Initiative. This process began earlier this year and it is anticipated that the homes would be available for sale in 2003/2004.

The management and sale of these homes will be administered through the National Housing Trust that has already been established and which will be managed by a Board.

Conclusion

Madam Speaker in concluding my remarks, I will state without fear of contradiction that this Government has faced unprecedented and very arduous challenges during its term. The world has never been in such a state of uncertainty. National economies have never been in poorer conditions except, perhaps, during World War II. Therefore, our challenges are diverse and complex, but I am pleased to report that my government has not flinched in facing these critical issues. No one need believe that preparing this Budget or budgets for this country have made revenue forecasting difficult. Additionally, expenditure is not always easy to reduce even when you prioritise.

I have met every challenge head on. I have not shirked my responsibilities nor do I intend to do so for the only thing I fear is fear itself. No one can deny, Madam Speaker, that my Government has faced these challenges with vision, courage, determination and relentless energy. The budget is structured so that it ensures that we are protecting the interest of these Islands, building our major industries, facilitating foreign and local investment, encouraging local businesses to grow, giving our people a change to become entrepreneurs, enabling our people to secure employment, so that they can secure their future, pay their bills and feed their families. We are taking care of our senior citizens and veterans where we can. It is our will to overcome these challenges, and with God helping us so we shall, Madam Speaker. If it is the will of our people, I can assure them that my Government has many miles to go before we sleep.

Finally, Madam Speaker, I wish to again sincerely thank the Honourable Financial Secretary and his staff in the Budget and Management Unit for their hard work in preparing this Budget for presentation this morning. I would also like to thank all my colleagues for their efforts in the preparation thereof. I want, especially to thank my Permanent Secretary and other staff in my Ministry for their very hard work especially over this past weekend, and consistent dedication and commitment to their responsibilities.

I thank you, Madam Speaker, and I thank the House for their indulgence.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker: Thank you. Before calling on the Honourable Leader, I would wish to also welcome back the Honourable First Official Member to the Honourable House and trust that he had a productive visit. I now recognise the Honourable Leader for the adjournment motion.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Thursday 19 June 2003 at 10 am when we will begin the Budget Debate.

The Speaker: The question is that the . . . I recognise the Leader of Opposition.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Madam Speaker, before the adjournment I would crave your indulgence to allow me to register the Parliamentary Opposition's strong objection to the short time in which we have to prepare our response to the Budget Address and the address which accompanied it by the Leader of Government Business.

Madam Speaker, it was bad enough when we learned that the Budget Address would have been delivered this morning and we would have had to respond on Thursday morning when we were thinking that in following with what has become new tradition, we would have heard an address from the Honourable Third Official Member and one from the Leader of Government Business, and we would have had the Annual Plan and Estimates. But we have before us and have only seen this morning for the first time—besides the Appropriation Bill and the Loan Bill which is understood because it relates to the Budget Address and the accompanying address by the Leader of Government Business—the Annual Plan and Estimates which is 327 pages long. We have the purchase agreements for Statutory Authorities, Government Companies and Non-Government Output Suppliers which has 631 pages. We have the Ownership agreements for Statutory Authorities and government companies which has 242 pages. And of course we have the Annual Budget statements for Ministries and Portfolios which has 567 pages. Madam Speaker, those four documents I referred to are separate and apart from the Budget Address and the other three documents.

The total number of pages is 1767 pages. Let me say again: 1767 pages. One might want to say that you do not have to look into these documents to be able to do your Budget response but for those of us who read the Honourable Third Official Member's Budget Address or listened to him, he referred to these documents in his Address which means for us to come with any informed response we have to examine these documents. Therefore, it puts us in more untenable circumstances and we just simply wish to register our strongest objection that we should be able to have sufficient time to peruse all of these documents carefully to be able to prepare a response.

Madam Speaker, the other thing that needs to be recognised is the Government, both elected and official arm and their back bench supporters are in the box at this time because they have presented a Budget which they consider to be the best budget given the circumstances which is reasonable. But the Opposition is not wanting time to peruse these documents to look for arguments to go against what has been presented; the Opposition's job is being outside of the box giving different perspective to what has been presented, if a different needs to be taken. So, it leaves us in circumstances which, regardless of the midnight oil which needs to be burned, almost seem untenable at this time for us to be able to prepare an informed contribution and response by Thursday morning. We therefore, wish to register our very strongest objections to the short time in which we have to prepare.

The Speaker: Thank you. I recognise the Leader of Government.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I heard what the Leader of the Opposition has said. The Opposition is going to have the balance of today, tonight, tomorrow and tomorrow night to prepare themselves for debate. It is not necessary that they have to rise first so they will have even more time to make their speeches. I suggest that the only thing they need to do is to look at the Annual Plan and Estimates.

That is the meat of the Budget and that is what we are going to spend . . . it says what the plans are. I do not believe that will put them in an untenable position. The important thing is when we go to examine the Budget and that is several days yet to come. Before we get to Finance Committee they will sit down and pick to pieces and peruse as is usually done. They will have all that time to study the estimates. We do have a problem and it is not their fault that we are late but we do have a timeline set by Law.

Members must understand the situation that the country is facing with our Budget. They must understand it. There is no need for anyone to talk about building up the reserves and you must be doing well. That is just part of it. They must understand that. And so there were difficulties and thank God that we are able to present here today. As I said they will not have to go through 1767 pages. If they look at what the Financial Secretary said in his speech and look at what I said, that should give them sufficient information to debate. I am only replying to what was said by the Leader of Opposition.

Madam Speaker, I can say no more but that I believe, while it is not the longest period, it certainly gives them time to prepare. I would ask that they co-operate. This is the country we are talking about.

The Speaker: I have noted the concern from the Leader of Opposition and the response which I gave indulgence to so that there would be equality of presentation of the concerned and an immediate rebuttal thereto. There is an existing motion on the Floor and it is within the will of the House I now put the question for a vote.

The question is that this Honourable House be adjourned until Thursday 19 June 2003 at 10 am. All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes and Noes.

The Speaker: I believe the Ayes have it.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, could we have a division please.

The Speaker: Certainly. Madam Clerk.

19 JUNE 2003
10.19 AM
Fifth Sitting

[Deputy Speaker in the Chair]

The Speaker: I would invite the Second Elected Member for George Town to say prayers.

The Speaker: Mr Ebanks, please come and sign the oath.

PRAYERS

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal Family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office. All this we ask for Thy great Name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen

Proceedings resumed at 10.22 am

[Deputy Speaker in the Chair]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS OR AFFIRMATIONS

Oath of Allegiance

Mr. Donovan W. F. Ebanks
(Administered by the Clerk)

Mr. Donovan W. F. Ebanks: I, Donovan Ebanks, do swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, her heirs and successors according to Law so help me God.

The Speaker: On behalf of this Honourable House I welcome the Temporary Honourable First Official Member. I would invite you to take your seat. Members, please be seated.

READING BY THE HONOURABLE SPEAKER OF MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Speaker: I have received apologies for the Honourable Speaker who will be attending the Session a bit later.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

SECOND READING

The Appropriation (July 2003 to June 2004) Bill
2003

Commencement of the debate on the Budget Address delivered by the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for the Portfolio of Finance and Economics on Tuesday 17 June 2003

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Mr. Speaker, in opening the Budget Address on Tuesday of this week the Honourable Third Official Member, the Financial Secretary, reiterated what he called the Government's outcome goals, which are in keeping with Vision 2008. Chief among these was an open, efficient and accountable government. He went on to say: "These outcomes reflect the sort of country the government is striving to achieve".

In concluding the address the Honourable Third Official Member went on to note that it is also important that we look forward and actively plan for the future. He said: “The forthcoming constitutional changes are a key part of that process. They will provide us with the framework for a more modern system of government and the ability to have greater control over our own destiny”.

As we laboured deep into the night over the last 36 hours to prepare for this debate in the unreasonably short time permitted by the Government I have wondered whether the Honourable Third Official Member, the Leader of Government Business, and the UDP Government really understand the irony of these statements made in the present context as is so often the case and sadly too. There is a seeming disconnection between what the Government says and what it means. I ask, how can Government claim to be open and accountable when it will not permit adequate time for the Opposition and the people of this country to properly peruse and scrutinise the Budget before proceeding with this debate? How can the Honourable Third Official Member speak in reverential tones about laudable outcomes when he knows full well that the process that is presently engaged in by the Government is bound to have, in my view, precisely the opposite effect? For that matter how can he look forward with joyful anticipation to forthcoming constitutional changes which he claims will provide us with the framework for a more modern system of government, and at the same time not be concerned to be a part of a Government which by its actions repeatedly denies the legitimate role of the Opposition to act as scrutineers of government policies and actions?

The Honourable Third Official Member has attempted to put philosophy and initiatives which have driven the process resulting in the current Budget squarely into the context of the on-going constitutional debate. He is right to have done so although his view is clearly out of sync with that of the Government. You see, the open, efficient and accountable government to which the Honourable Third Official Member speaks requires a level of maturity that is glaringly absent from the United Democratic Party (UDP) administration. The achievement of those goals requires more than hollow words; it requires the acknowledgement of the Opposition's right to participate in the entire process of government. It demands that the Government facilitates and not frustrates the Opposition in discharging its duty to scrutinise. And yes, to criticise the Government's policies and conduct and to offer another perspective. It necessitates acceptance of the Opposition's right to accurate information and to sufficient time to consider and assimilate that information before being required to debate it. Unless the Government of these Islands comes to understand these fundamental democratic principles, and until the basic tenets of procedural fairness are enshrined in our constitution, our quest for a modern democracy and for the open, efficient and accountable government of which the Honourable Third Official Member has spoken will continue to lie just beyond our grasp.

I submit also that giving the Government greater control over our destiny, as the Honourable Third Official Member has suggested, and which we agree with in principle, without at the same time ensuring that the basic building blocks of democracy are enshrined in the new constitution of these Islands will lead to even greater disregard of the role and purpose of the Opposition, whoever the Opposition is at the time, and to the risk of the creation of an elected dictatorship. At all costs, we must guard against the dangers of this very grave and real possibility.

I know the Leader of Government Business will respond by saying that the practice of permitting the Opposition a mere one day to reply to the Budget Address is common place elsewhere in the region and around the world. What he will not, however, detail is the easy access to information which all elected parliamentarians in those countries enjoy; few parliaments in the region still retain an archaic system where simple research information has to be sourced through a maze-like process within the bureaucracy of the public service.

The current United Democratic Party administration has repeatedly closed the door to those who are not members of its inner circle, including the general public and also the parliamentary Opposition, preventing them access to information of any kind that could be used to demonstrate the negative attributes of its stewardship.

If the information you seek is part of the Government propaganda; such as the ever increasing number of cruise ship arrivals, then perhaps you could even access that information at three o'clock in the morning. However, if you asked how many of these visitors actually disembark the ships and where and with which businesses they actually spend their money, you would then discover that vital information is not so forthcoming at all.

It is amazing how the Leader of Government Business has made a deliberate effort to apparently copy and adopt all the negative aspects of governance in other countries. He has adopted this system of providing a one-day break between presentation of and debate on the Budget from at least two Caribbean nations, namely Barbados and St. Kitts and Nevis. What he has not said, however, is the low depths to which the standard and quality of debate in those parliaments have deteriorated as a result of that practice.

I take my role and function in this Honourable Legislative Assembly very seriously. I come here not to perform for the gallery, grandstand or listening public but to contribute purposely to the process of development in this country.

This debate should and ought to be about more than either party wanting to score political points. The parliamentary Opposition would have loved a period in which we could research the proposals of the Government, discuss them with resource persons in the Cayman Islands and elsewhere and formulate a response and appraisal that could be useful in helping to shape the thinking and the policies of this Government and ultimately the country. We would also have loved to discuss these proposals with our constituents and with members and well-wishers of the People's Progressive Movement from across all three islands that make up the Cayman Islands.

I say, with deep regret, that we are headed down a wrong and very possibly destructive path when the Government believes that the people who sent us here as their representatives no longer deserve or are entitled to the right to be consulted on such crucial issues.

The People's Progressive Movement, when we are elected to office, will ensure that there is adequate time between presentation and debate for Members to consult their respective interests and resource groups before proffering opinions and ideas on the fiscal policies of the Government. I say that for it to be on record.

Budget debates in some countries are opportunities for parliamentarians to grandstand and curry the favour of constituents. Some parliaments around the region do not even need a half-hour break to commence debate on a Budget simply because for them the Budget debate is that time of year when each member gets on television and outlines the many street lights he has erected, the number of roads he has paved, the number of football teams he has sponsored and perhaps the amount of children's parties he has sponsored. This has not been the practice of successive Members of this Honourable House and I submit that it should not be adopted now.

For me the Budget debate is that time of year when we examine in detail the draft policies and programmes, which, it is intended, will be pursued by the government of the day for the ensuing period of one year. These policies are taken seriously by residents and visitors and especially potential investors. When you deny Members of this Chamber the time to review and evaluate these measures you are robbing the citizens and the residents of this country the opportunity to benefit from an incisive look at the policies and programmes that will govern and influence their confidence in this economy over the next twelve months.

It is time that the Leader of Government Business and his administration step up to the plate and understand that politics and the administration of government is about more than one-upmanship and foxing or outfoxing an opponent. I am interested, at this point, in ensuring that every dollar spent by this country is spent with prudence and to the betterment of the people we are elected to serve. I have never been and will never be a part of the politics of tearing down and dehumanising individuals just for the sake of that same one-upmanship. Therefore, while elsewhere a Budget debate is a time of year when the public can look forward to a few days of political sparring I would have hoped that the Leader of Government Business would have been strong and principled enough to recognise that is not a culture that we in the Cayman Islands would wish to adopt.

As elected representatives we have a country to build and a people to mould and the sooner the United Democratic Party Government understands that the better it will be for these Islands. Therefore, I can assure this Honourable Chamber and all within the hearing of my voice that I will use the time afforded me wisely and I will attempt to assess the package as delivered by the Honourable Third Official Member on merit and in a constructive manner, whatever level of criticism there may be in my contribution.

In the present political and economic climate I can well understand the Government's reluctance to allow us the opportunity for close scrutiny of the draft Budget. I certainly do not condone it although I understand their motivation for so doing. Even in the limited time which we have had to peruse and consider this document, which is supposed to be the Government's principal instrument of policy, the degree of flawed thinking, misleading impressions on sound fiscal policies and lack of proper prioritisation that are apparent to me is cause for great concern, and, I submit, even alarm to the people of these Islands.

The Honourable Third Official Member delivered what purports to be a balanced Budget and has alleged that the Government is running a responsible fiscal policy. He assured the country that the Budget is fiscally responsible, supportive of economic growth and complies with the principles of responsible financial management. The principles of responsible financial management that he speaks to are those in the Public Management and Finance Law.

The assertion that the Budget is a balanced one, in my view, is a false assertion, and the assurance the Budget is fiscally responsible, in my view, is not so. Yes, the balance sheet presented to the country by the Honourable Third Official Member does show that the Government's current revenue stream exceeds its expenditure, however the reality is that that position has been arrived at, in my view, by ignoring the true actual and potential liabilities of the Cayman Islands Government. It also does not take into account the significant off balance sheet obligations, which we have been hearing about, that the Government has committed to and is proposing to commit to and it significantly understates, in my view, the true public debt.

The mirage of a balanced Budget has been achieved by deferring Government's obligation to repay the public debt in the short term and by transferring the responsibility for borrowings for major capital projects from central Government to various statutory authorities for which Government is ultimately responsible. It has also been assisted by the adoption of Private Finance Initiative (PFI) arrangements—the new buzzword—to fund major government capital projects off balance sheet.

In short, Mr. Speaker, the perception that the Budget has been balanced has been created because, in its preparation, the Government has ignored the philosophy and principles underpinning both the Financial Management Initiative and its companion, The Public Management and Finance Law. In doing so the Government has also contravened the guidelines for borrowing set out in the United Kingdom's (UK) Partnership for Progress and Prosperity document.

Lest anyone on the other side is in doubt I will demonstrate this in short order however at this point I am compelled to comment on the irony of this situation. You see, in a speech delivered at the Chamber of Commerce luncheon on the 28th of last month, the Leader of Government Business spoke, in glowing terms, about the merits of the Financial Management Initiative and The Public Management and Finance Law. He reiterated the United Democratic Party Government's commitment to the philosophy and principles underlying both the initiative and the legislation and acknowledged that this had contributed a great deal to the improvement in the public sectors budgetary situation. Among other things he stated and I quote: "I am determined to keep these Islands out of any more direct borrowing".

I did not understand what he meant then however I certainly understand it now. He went on to say: "I am not going to allow us to get into a debt spiral which has the possibility to devalue our currency and would endanger future generations".

What the Leader of Government Business does not appear to grasp fully is that it does not matter whether the borrowing is direct or indirect. What matters is that Government is ultimately responsible for the public debt of this country whether it is incurred by central Government or one of the many government authorities or companies. The adverse consequences of the debt spiral of which he has correctly spoken apply whether the money is owed directly or indirectly by the Government. The Leader of Government Business appears to only regard short term and direct borrowing as being of significance, thus it appears that the Government has engaged in a process that has effectively mortgaged the future of this country for another quarter of a century and has tied the hands of not only the next administration but of successive future governments to come. Insidiously, this has all been done under the pretext of a balanced Budget which, again, I submit, presents a grossly misleading picture of the state of Government finances.

First of all, I should remind Honourable Members of this House and the public that in March of this year the Legislative Assembly passed the Cayman Islands Government Securities Law and the accompanying Government Motion, which authorised the Government to create and issue registered securities totalling US$163.2 million, for purposes including the financing of capital expenditure, debt consolidation and the reimbursement of debt consolidation. The whole purpose of that exercise was to give Government some breathing space in relation to their debt repayment schedule. In short, it permitted Government to refinance the public debt and allow Government to lessen its annual debt service, by some $12 million we were told at the time, and to make this cash available for other purposes since these payments all come from general revenue.

The Government also seized the opportunity at that time to place $22.5 million of this borrowed money into general reserves.

Therefore, it is important for us to realise, when we talk about responsible fiscal strategies and policies, that of the C$28 million in our general reserves as at June 30 this year – $22.5 million plus whatever little bit of interest has accrued since then – is money borrowed by the Government that will have to be repaid over the course of the next 15 years. It is also important that we understand that this exercise also had other important, significant ramifications. While freeing up this $12 million annually and increasing general reserves by $22.5 million it also extended the life of the public debt by approximately eight years. And, Mr. Speaker, by the time the debt is retired the Government will have paid at least $20 million more than it would have paid had it left the loans with the original terms.

Thus, when the Honourable Third Official Member brought the piece of legislation and the Motion, and he spoke to how there was around $60 million being saved not by doing it as a bond issue but rather as a securities issue, which in real terms is simply a loan because it is being paid back principal and interest on a quarterly basis, which is my understanding. The Government may have saved $67 million over the period of this debt compared with the possible bond issue where only interest was paid up until the time the debt is retired. The fact is that in re-arranging the debt it extended from the terms of the various loans that we had to the 15-year period and if it is extrapolated, given a reasonable rate of increased interest over that period of time, we will see that at least $20 million more will be paid by the time that debt is retired.

Hence, Mr. Speaker, while this refinancing package has assisted the Government to present a Budget with a purported operating surplus and allowed it to sing its own praises about having reduced the debt service ratio to 5.3 per cent it has also had the effect of saddling the country and future governments with a long-term public debt.

In his Budget Address the Honourable Third Official Member stated that one of the key features of the 2003/2004 Budget position is that a debt-servicing ratio of 5.3 per cent had been achieved which is well below the 10 per cent limit established by the principles of responsible financial management.

I will now go on to show that not only can this not be correct and I will say this again; not only can this not be correct but it is also going to cause big time grief in the next Budget to come. In his Budget Address the Honourable Third Official Member boasted that new borrowing has been restricted to $8 million, which is less than the level of debt repayments and results in a $1.06 million net reduction in the overall level of public debt. Clearly, this has only been achieved by another of the Government's fiscal innovations, if I may call them that. Perhaps a more appropriate term would be fiscal fictions. I hold a view that the Government has perfected the ruse of creating statutory authorities and transferring to them the responsibility for borrowing to fund major capital projects off-balance sheet. This allows the Government to pretend, as it has done in this Budget, that it is only borrowing $8 million when in fact the true borrowing greatly exceeds that sum.

A perfect example, Mr. Speaker, is the proposed creation of a National Roads Authority announced in the Budget Address by the Honourable Third Official Member. This Authority will construct $13.38 million worth of roads during 2003/2004 year according to the Honourable Third Official Member in his Address. He also states that the financing for these projects will be organised by the National Roads Authority itself in conjunction with private sector partners. I do not know whether that means simply a loan arrangement from private sector people who have that kind of money to lend or whether it means a PFI as explained by the Honourable Minister for Planning in his statement to the Legislative Assembly a few short days ago.

This means that this borrowing will be off the Government's balance sheet. Although I could not spend all my time looking for it, I want the world to know that I gave it a good look in the document and I cannot find anywhere. I wish for the Honourable Third Official Member to tell me and this country who will be paying for these capital projects if it is not central Government. I can only think that either one of two things will happen once these road works are done, and this public/private arrangement is made:

1. There will be a debt, and it has to be paid, and that debt will be serviced from Government's general revenue; or
2. There is another innovative thought that is possible. The National Roads Authority would have to create and generate the necessary income to service the debt. If the former is the case, as I said before I have searched far and wide, and I see no provision having been made in the current Budget for the service of this debt, and if the latter is the case there is only one source from which the revenue can come and that source is the general public.

Therefore, the Government has said that it is only borrowing $8 million, which is already allocated in the Budget, and that there will be no new revenue measures. Since that is the case, I ask the Honourable Third Official Member again to tell me and to tell this country how the National Roads Authority is going to fund $13.38 million worth of road works proposed in his Budget Address.

When I was listening carefully I just simply assumed that there was some reference somewhere to show how this thing was going to be repaid even if the attempt was for it to be off balance sheet. I hold the view that the Government has created this National Roads Authority and hived off the borrowing for the capital works on roads to this Authority in order to present a balanced Budget. That is my view, and if I am out of sync, out of whack and making no sense then let them explain to me. They have ample time and there are many of them.

I want to reiterate that for public/private sector financing to be arranged in this manner, that is, off balance sheet, is wrong in my view. By so doing it creates the false impression that a Budget is balanced when in fact this is not the case just as in this same case now. This is especially so when in this case there is absolutely no evidence, as I have said, anywhere that I can find which shows how the debt will be repaid.

You know something, Mr. Speaker? If they know any different now they better show me because I have looked and I have asked others to look and we cannot find anything. I tell you what really burns me; it burns me to know that the Government would present this Budget and the presenter would speak to how balanced it is, without giving me any time to look at it and check it out, and then take me for a fool that I do not have the understanding to see what is going on.

You know what Mr. Speaker? I have been at the receiving end many times before, I will be on the receiving end again however when they are finished doing their job on me, they must answer the question!

Further, the provision of roads is, by the Government's own admission, not the type of capital project for which a Private Finance Initiative scheme is appropriate. In a statement that I referred to earlier made by the Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications, Works and Information Technology, to the Legislative Assembly just a few days ago, he said among other things, and I quote: "Under private finance initiative schemes the public sector purchases services, not assets. Therefore larger capital projects can be handled off balance sheet. This would allow Government to concentrate on providing services without its debts being consumed by large capital expenditures or assets. The off balance sheet decision depends on the extent to which parties bear the majority of property related risks and rewards of ownership. The idea is that the private finance initiative contractor assumes these risks and rewards during the operating lease lifetime of the project. In other words, if Government were to lease the building [and in this instance I think he was referring to the Government accommodation that is being proposed which is supposed to be the first Private Finance Initiative engaged in by the Government] for 25 years, at the end of which it had the option to move out of the build- ing with no financial commitment, then the item would be off balance sheet.”

Now that is a building. Therefore if a PFI scheme such as that explained by the Honourable Minister is going to be employed by the National Roads Authority I would wish for the Honourable Third Official Member or the Minister (either one or both) to explain to me and the country how that will work. I would assume if it is not that kind of arrangement then the public/private partnership would simply be a matter of a borrowing arrangement except the difference would be that it would not be a recognised financial institution.

As the Honourable Minister stated in the excerpt to which I just referred in PFI schemes the public sector purchases services and not assets. Therefore, my question is if it is then intended that the new roads to be built in 2003/2004 by the National Roads Authority will be vested in the Private Finance Initiative contractor, and the National Roads Authority will simply purchase from the contractor the services the road will provide? I do not think so however we would like to know, and I believe the people of this country would also like to know.

The Government may be wondering what I mean when I say that their proud pronouncement of a current debt service ratio of 5.3 per cent is going to cause much grief in next year's Budget. I will explain now.

The Public Management and Finance Law 2001 to which the Leader of Government Business and the Honourable Third Official Member often so lovingly and respectfully refer, defines, and I quote from that Law with your permission, Mr. Speaker. In the definition section there is a terminology called “entire public sector” and it defines that terminology to mean, the Legislative Assembly, the Executive Council, ministries, portfolios, statutory authorities, government companies and the Audit Office”.

Now we need to look at another definition because the entire public sector includes government companies. We want to make sure we understand what “government companies” means. In that definition section it also defines government company to mean: “(a) a company in which the Government has a controlling interest; and (b) in respect of each such company, includes all subsidiary entities of the company;”.

Section 14(3)(c) of the same Law reads as follows: “entire public sector borrowing [which includes all of these agencies that I just spoke about] “should not exceed an amount for which the sum of interest, other debt servicing expenses and principal repayments for a financial year are more than ten per cent of entire public sector revenue (calculated using generally accepted accounting practice) for that financial year.”

This section of the Law, as I read last night, comes into force 1 July 2004. That is when the next Budget has to be in place. Next year's Budget will have to comply with the provision I just read. What this means is that when considering the debt service ratio for the next Budget—even though there has been no consideration or nothing forthcoming in words in this one, and although on more than one occasion I have heard the Honourable Third Official Member begin to practice the things that are coming into effect prior to that so we can get used to it, I hear nothing about this one—it will be necessary to include all of the statutory authorities and Government companies. As a few examples: the Civil Aviation Authority, Cayman Airways, the Health Services Authority, Cayman Turtle Farm, the proposed National Roads Authority—the one that we do not know how it is going to work—and the Water Authority, just to name some of them.

The indebtedness of these and all other Government authorities and companies certainly has not been taken into account by the Government in the preparation of this year's Budget hence the debt service ratio 5.3 per cent of which the Honourable Third Official Member has boasted about really does not reflect the true picture when you take those into consideration. I submit that this picture would not have been so pretty had the indebtedness of these entities been taken into account. Mr. Speaker, so that it is absolutely clear, I am not suggesting that any one of these entities are bordering on insolvency or anything like that, however many of them are either in the middle of major capital works or are about to engage in major capital expenditure. For instance we hear of the Turtle Farm undergoing a $30 million redevelopment programme and we speak to Cayman Airways financial position. We know the Water Authority is doing major capital works, the Minister for Health and Civil Aviation announced not so very long ago that within a year from then there would be some major capital works going on with the Civil Aviation Authority and on and on.

The Government now has one year's advance notice and you know, Mr. Speaker, I cannot believe for a second that in preparing this Budget that the process is in the box and all of this is not considered because next year's Budget is going to come and they cannot wait until it reaches there to start to deal with these issues. Nevertheless, the Government has one year's advance notice to ensure compliance with the Public Management and Finance Law when preparing its next Budget.

It would be interesting to know and perhaps this is a good challenge for the Honourable Third Official Member to use the resources in his Portfolio and to tell us what the Government debt service ratio would be if the indebtedness of the Government authorities and companies was taken into account. I do not know, I have not a clue to be able to bring it to any semblance of reality because I do not know all of the figures. However, I would be curious to know. When considering this, other things that have to be considered include when borrowings are going to take place and for what period of time.

The Honourable Third Official Member can rest assured that coming up to the next year's Budget there will be careful scrutiny by the Parliamentary Opposition as to how well Government complies with both the spirit and letter of the Financial Management Initiative (FMI) and the Public Management and Finance Law.

As I have alluded to earlier the Honourable Third Official Member and the Leader of Government Business have endorsed this Budget and stated that it is fiscally responsible and complies with the principles of responsible financial management. I want to say here and now that I disagree fundamentally. If I were not afraid that I would be stopped, I would want to use the word sham but I am not going to use it, Mr. Speaker and if I were to, I would have used it very advisably.

The Honourable Third Official Member has told this House, and it was outlined in the (APE) Annual Plan and Estimates document, that this Budget has a projected surplus of $5.7 million, Mr. Speaker, how can the Member and the Government for that matter, possibly describe a projected Government overdraft as a surplus and expect on perusal that we would take it seriously? That is exactly what they have done and I am going to demonstrate this to this Honourable House and to this country that this is what they have done.

Let us examine the financing and reserve statement on page 316 of the Annual Plan and Estimates. Under the section of General Bank Balances, the forecasted figure for 30 June 2004, the end of the new fiscal year upcoming, is a negative balance, or an overdraft, of almost $11 million. Mr. Speaker, this means that the cash position through the fiscal year will have moved negatively by almost $27 million. The existing overdraft facility is $15 million and this means that by year end the Government will be operating in overdraft with just over $4 million of that facility remaining because the overdraft projected will be close to $11 million, yet there is a projected year-end operating surplus of $5.7 million. Thus, we are going to have a surplus of $5.7 million however we are going to have an overdraft of $11 million.

What is most interesting is when we look on page 283 of the same document, under Table 1, which shows the Summarized 2003/2004 Forecast Cash Financial Statements, the Strategic Policy Statement (SPS) for 2003/2004 which was Tabled in this Honourable House in December of last year, showed a projected operating revenue for the fiscal year upcoming 2003/2004 at $317.12 million. Six months later (that is now) the newly forecasted figure in the Annual Plan and Estimates for the same period is only $309.408 million. That is a decrease of almost $8 million; all in six months.

In December the Government was confident that they would raise over $317 million. Six months later they are not so sure, therefore they readjust the figure and it is down by $8 million. In that same table under the heading Operating Expenditure the SPS target given in December, on the expenditure side of things, was $293.58 million. This was the one tabled in December, however six months later in this document, that we just got a few days ago along with the other four totalling 1767 pages, the newly forecasted figure for that same period is $303.697 million. On the expenditure side it shows an increase of almost $10 million. Within six months the forecasted figures for 2003/2004 on the revenue side is down by $8 million and on the expenditure is up by $10 million.

When we examine the figures that I just quoted, we have moved from a projected Operating Surplus of $23.54 million down to what is projected by the Honourable Third Official Member in this document as $5.71 million with an $11 million overdraft; none of these other figures ever talked about overdraft. This figure is what the Honourable third Official Member says the Government has achieved through a Budget that is fiscally responsible. In six months, Mr. Speaker, the projected Operating Surplus for year-end 2003/2004 has entered a slippery slope and decreased by $17.5 million in the projections.

If we are to simply look at those figures and say that that is any indication of a trend, and the year-end projected bank balance is only $4 million shy of the overdraft limit, I say here today that we are in trouble.

Let us look at it in real terms, if projected revenue drops even slightly over 1% then either we stop writing checks or the checks will bounce, or we will tap into general reserves which the Government created the majority of by borrowing anyhow.

Worse yet, as is suggested in the two six months set of figures, if expenditure were to rise by even an infinitesimal amount then we have trouble on our hands.

Now, if the Honourable Third Official Member chooses to say that I am speaking out of context or that I am incorrect then let him show me the inaccuracy of what I just said because I used every figure from the document which he tabled and I know that the Honourable Third Official Member knows that while I am not a qualified accountant I understand, I know he knows that. Unlike what others have said in this Honourable House, I know my limitations; I hope they know theirs.

Things are not well, Mr. Speaker. That is not the end of the sad story.

I noticed in the Budget Address the Honourable Third Official Member states that cash reserves have been maintained to sixty days of operating expenditure, which is two thirds of the level required by the principles of responsible financial management. What wonderful things these principles are and I am so glad that they walk with them, sleep with them and talk with them every day and we need to keep doing that.

Then he says, Mr. Speaker, that this is a significant improvement on the past. Let us examine how he arrives at this figure. On page 299 of the Annual Plan and Estimates, Table 14, Compliance with Principles of Responsible Financial Management, the principle that I am speaking to under this Table is, cash reserves should be no less than estimated executive expenses for ninety days. The 2003/2004 forecasted financial statements project cash reserves at 30 June 2004 to be $49.8 million.

He has a little qualifying thing in there in brackets which is how he justifies what they have done. He qualifies cash reserves as cash held in reserve and funds. He says that they total $49.8 million which is equivalent to 60 days expenditure, 90 days expenditure being $74.9 and when you check what one day's expenditure is and you divide into $49.8 million you will get something like 60 days.

Under the degree of compliance it says, "... does not comply but cash reserves now two thirds of the required level."

He says so in his address.

Let us now examine what comprises this $49.8 million of cash reserves. On page 316 of the Annual Plan and Estimates we will see under the Financing and Reserve Statement that there are three figures, which make up this amount. There is the General Reserve figure of $28.337 million of which $22.5 million is borrowed funds. The next figure is Other Reserves which is $3.318 million. That figure, which refers to Other Reserves, is made up of the Student Loan Reserve Fund, the Natural Disaster Fund and the Housing Guarantee Fund. The third figure called Fund Balances is $18.156 million and that figure comprises the Environmental Protection Fund, the Infrastructure Fund, the Road Development Fund, which was the result of a Private Member's Motion in this Legislative Assembly, and the Capital Development Fund. All of these Funds and Reserves are dedicated for specific purposes otherwise they would not have been created. Outside of the first figure of $28.337 million, which is General reserves, as I said albeit mostly consisting of borrowed funds, every other single one of them is made up of dedicated reserves and funds.

I am certain in my mind that the monies in these reserves and funds are there for specific purposes otherwise the funds and the reserves would not have been created. It is obvious that they were created for those reasons in the first place. I am also confident that the terminology "cash reserves" referred to in section 14(3)(d) of the Public Management and Finance Law were not intended to include dedicated funds and reserves.

Now, I did not write the Law; I was certainly a part of the debate on it and I did my best in understanding it and participating in the process right to voting for it however that is not what I understood it to be and that is not what I understand it to be now. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, if we take away the borrowed funds out of the General Reserves and the dedicated funds and reserves there would only be $5.83 million left in cash reserves which is just under 5 days expenditure. Let us not do that because even though this $22.5 million is borrowed money it is in General reserves, therefore we accept that. Let us use the $5.837 million and the $22.5 million which totals $28.337 million in the General Reserves as outlined in this document. When we work that across it equates to just less than 24 days expenditure. I do not know what is make or break; whether it is 24 days or 60 days. Neither of those comply so why dress it up and expect me to say yes, that is how it goes? I know you understand what I am saying Sir, I know that.

Why try to make it look like, for all intents and purposes, we have 60 days expenditure in cash reserves when in truth and in fact, at best, we only have less than 24 days of expenditure and cash reserves? If I follow this I can really go as far as to say, if they really wanted to make sure that they had 90 days why not take the Public Service Pension Fund? That is a dedicated fund; why not include that in the figures? I am not suggesting that they should, I need to make that very clear because somebody will go out of here now and say that is what I said.

While not suggesting anything about the Public Service Pension Fund, I am saying that if we are using these other dedicated funds, at what time will we decide to use something else? I am saying that the majority of this money is for dedicated purposes and should not be added. One might say if we had an emergency you would have to use the funds however, Mr. Speaker, the principles of which we speak are not looking at what you should have in cash reserves, which is 90 days of executive expenditure. The whole purpose of that Law, and that section of the Law, is for us to strive to really have 90 days of cash expenditure in cash reserves! All we have to do is to say that we are working towards it and we are doing the best that we can, even though we sometimes borrow money and put in the General reserves; that is okay we will eventually pay that back. However, do not tell me that the Environmental Protection Fund, the Housing Reserve Fund, the next one and the other one should be included in that.

I say that clearly this country is not in any way near the healthy fiscal position that the Government and the Honourable Third Official Member is trying to persuade us that it is in.

I have my job, they have their jobs. I have mine and I have not lost the will or the know how to do it. Indeed, I say that we are in dire straits because, in addition to its generally poor stewardship, apparently the Government is now firmly committed to a number of significant projects which will more than—this is a guess now—triple the financial obligations of the country in the long run because as there is plenty of marl road talk going on therefore we are not quite sure what will be and will not be done and I do not want to commit myself to say that is what will be done.

The Government is doing this by way of balance sheet borrowings and I want the Government to understand that I do not profess to have the best knowledge of this PFI and off balance sheet borrowing. I was very happy and I went to the presentation that the Minister invited us to and I have listened to what the Minister has said in his statement and I see different movements. I do not want to come across as if Private Finance Initiative means bad, that is not what I am trying to say however from the very time that they had the presentation—and the Minister will remember that because he was joking with me that I am mischievous—still have a huge problem understanding this off balance sheet business.

I did a little bit of research and I understand that the UK, listed in the statement that the Minister made, likes to do that. The UK Government, our mother country, does it all the time and they are having tremendous problems over there and you can tell them that I said so because I told the representative here a few days ago. They are having tremendous problems about it. His Excellency, the Governor at the presentation, made a comment similar. You see there is a problem with this off balance sheet thing. The picture can look wonderful and rosy whilst in truth there can be tremendous short-, medium- and long-term obligations, which tie down the revenue stream for extended periods of time. If you are not careful, what could look like a most healthy position, when you check the obligations you have and what you have to make monthly payments for a long time to come, dries up the revenue, so that you are not able to do what you should do as a country. That is where I have the problem.

Thus, when we speak about the Private Finance Initiative, whether it has its merits or demerits, I am not going to argue that because I am certain that there are instances when a Private Finance Initiative works in a win, win situation. I do not have any problem with that, however I must tell you the truth Mr. Speaker, I really do have a problem with this off balance sheet business, for the same reasons that I just explained.

I would like to do a bit of tracking from the 2001 Budget right up to this Budget that is being presented and when I am through I am sure you will understand the relevance.

The Special Report of the Auditor General on the State of Public Finances presented in 2001 gives a clear picture of the Cayman Islands Government's true position at the time of the 2000 General Elections. It provides some real insight into the state of affairs the Government, of which I was Leader of Government Business, inherited when we assumed office in mid-November 2000. The long and short of it, because I know that is not the debate that we are in to, is that the Auditor General's Report shows that at the time of the General Elections leading into December 2000, the Government was running a deficit after loan financing of some $45 million. The reality which we faced when we assumed office was that the Government, there and then, as we walked in cold, was unable to pay over $22 million worth of suppliers and employee payments. Those employee payments that I refer to included some increases in salary that were due 10 months before that. We had to immediately increase the overdraft facility from $4.5 million to $15 million to make an attempt to honour some of these debts.

Even at that year-end, with the overdraft facility up to its limit, the year still closed out with over $22 million worth of supplier's payments not being made. 2000 was an election year, consequently the 2001 Budget Address was not delivered until sometime during the second quarter of 2001 and even then only after months of battling to try to bring recurrent expenditure somewhere in line with some semblance of reality compared with the projected revenue.

In addition the economy had seen a tremendous downturn and although we knew that we had to bring some revenue measures then, Mr. Speaker, we tried to be both sensitive and sensible about it. The revenue package that was brought was proposed to total $19 million however because approval would not be granted for the Budget until well after the first quarter we knew we would not be able to collect some $12 million of this during 2001 since this portion represented increased fees relating to the financial industry and, as all of us know, their annual fees are always due on 1 January thus the majority of those are paid within the first quarter. We could not tell them, after the fees were paid, that they had been increased in a retrospective manner and ask them to pay again.

The end result was, Mr. Speaker, in order not to repeat the mistakes of the previous Government and to be truthful about the financial position of the country, some $54 million had to be borrowed of which $28 million went to balance recurrent expenditure and the remainder to fund capital acquisition and capital projects. Most of the capital projects had either been started or committed to by the previous Government. We were also faced with relatively large numbers of people being laid off if we had chosen not to proceed with the capital side of the Budget. That was the catch-22 we were in. As it was we had to do major re-prioritisation, otherwise borrowings would have been significantly more.

The second Elected Member for West Bay is the Chairman of the Public Accounts Committee, which is charged with the responsibility of scrutinising the reports of the Auditor General, including the report I just mentioned. Your good self, Sir, are a member of the Committee and so is the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. You have all had the full benefit of understanding the Auditor General's entire Report I have referred to. Perhaps from here on in I might not hear, especially from the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, talk about this $54 million that I, Kurt Tibbetts, borrowed, which put the country in so much debt, because he understands the position that we were in. If I do hear him I will have to conclude not only is he not what he purports to be with his academic qualifications, but he also lacks basic understanding; or perhaps both. We will see.

The next year the new Government, which also comprised three Members of the Executive Council of 2000/2001 Budget namely: the current Leader of Government Business, his Deputy and the Minister of Education, produced a Budget with a $55 million package. In addition, during that year they would have also had the benefit of collecting the $12 million from the 2001 revenue package, which was uncollectible in 2001, for reasons which I have already explained. The point is, if we had even produced a $75 million revenue package in the 2002 Budget, more than $50 million of that would have been uncollectible because that would have been somewhere near the amount that would have related to the financial industry which had paid most of its annual fees prior to the Budget being approved. It does not matter, the revenue package in 2001 could have been $200 million, the vast majority of it would have been uncollectible. That is the point I wish to make.

I need to say here that while we were battling with the preparation of that same 2001 Budget — and many of them will remember — the same three Ministers who are now in Government did not come to me to tell me of any alternate suggestions to what we had to do given the circumstances we were faced.

I am going to ask, especially the Honourable Third Official Member, that close attention be paid to what I am saying so that if all that I am saying is really out of whack he will certainly have his turn to tear it apart and show me up for my limitations that I might not know that I have.

To move on to where we are now, $8 million has been borrowed and, by refinancing and consolidating existing loans, the Government is supposedly now paying close to $12 million less on annual basis for debt repayment. For this Budget the Government also intends to borrow another $8 million. This does not include any off balance sheet activity such as the National Roads Authority mentioned earlier and its proposed $13.38 million worth of road works.

I am not excluding any off balance sheet activity. When we add up all of these figures: there is $55 million revenue package; $12 million that would have had to be paid in, projected in 2002 that could not be collected in 2001 on the 2001 revenue package; there are two sets of $8 million borrowings, if we include this Budget; and there is $12 million that is an amount less having to come out of general revenue to service debt. So that is 12 plus 12 + 8 plus 8 + 55. That is a total of $95 million, Mr. Speaker.

One can easily say that for this Budget 2003/2004 Budget that the Government has access to some $95 million more than was available in 2001. In real terms, this means that if the present Government had been working on reducing recurrent expenditure they should have had a much larger operating surplus than is projected, that is, $5.71 million, with no need to borrow $8 million for capital expenditure, or, by year-end to use up $11 million of the overdraft facility out of the total of $15 million.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, is this is a good time to take a break?

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Proceedings suspended at 11.48 am

Proceedings resumed at 12.10 pm

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. The First Elected Member for George Town continuing.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you Mr. Speaker.

When we took a break I was speaking to the present Budget and how in my view, it purports to be what it is not, that is, a balanced Budget. There are other fundamental problems with it as well; the Honourable Third Official Member came to this Parliament on Tuesday with what in my view can best be described as a sound-bite Budget. It was a package of little flirtatious offerings in which he sought to create an economic rainbow and in which the Government seems to be simply throwing money at all life's problems. Wherever it is perceived by residents of this country that the Government is slipping up it seems the strategy here is to say that x amount of money will be channeled in that direction. It looks like the thinking here is that once money is thrown at the problem, the problem is automatically solved. This Government came to office with the promise of fast-tracking the delivery system; it said that the previous administration was going too slow and that they would simplify Government and make things happen quicker and more easily for and on behalf of the people.

I think that perhaps someone needs to tell the Government they have been the Government for two years and the country still awaits the benefits from these grandiose promises.

Every economic presentation this Government has made to this Chamber speaks about the desirable Cayman Islands; the Cayman Islands that sits like a rainbow before us. However it seems it is always just beyond our reach. When he delivered his address two days ago, the Honourable Third Official Member presented some architectural renderings of what the Cayman Islands is intended to look like under the present administration. Again it seems to me that this Government is about drawings and designs, no real actual construction and certainly no occupation by the residents of this country.

For two years all we have been told is what the Government intends to do to remedy the deteriorating conditions under which we work and live in the Cayman Islands. After two years in the driver's seat the Government is still at the point of providing schematic drawings for the development of this country. For two years the Government has been giving snapshots of what the ideal product would look like believing that on the basis of a sketch on paper the product will be sold.

I spoke a little earlier of the sound-bite approach to governance where the proposals, as presented by the Honorable Third Official Member, sought to reflect knowledge of the problems and which proffered an ultimate solution. I submit that the Government has still not said to this country how they propose to go about solving the many problems and the many challenges. They have still not provided the road map of how they will simplify Government and allow for the trickling down of benefits to the ordinary citizens of this country. For example, the Government speaks to Social Services and the fact that more money will be channelled in this direction. I ask the question, is the money being properly allocated and utilised? Almost two years into the tenure of the current Minister he is still talking about the restructuring of the Department of Social Services. I have to ask the question, when is the process going to be completed? Mr. Speaker, I am certain we all worry about crime and particularly violent crime which are at unprecedented levels and families and young people are at greater risk than ever. We see and hear about it daily.

Finally, we have passed the Children Law, which gives tremendous powers and authority to the Department of Social Services to deal with family issues except again it seems quite evident that there are insufficient resources allocated in this Budget to ensuring that the Department can do the job mandated by current circumstances and the new legislation.

The point is that simply throwing money at a situation does not always solve the problem because careful thought must be given as to how that money is spent to bring about the best results.

The Honorable Third Official Member spoke of a princely sum of money being spent on education and the provision of additional accommodations for students and teachers. Of these last ditch efforts to remedy the omissions of the past few years, it almost seems too little too late.

The Government, in my view, has still not set forth a clear and coherent plan for moving public education in the Cayman Islands to a higher level. All we hear about are the Laws that will be passed, the institutions that will be established and in this present Budget, the money that will be spent. To date, I think precious little has been said on the creation of programs and curricula that will be pursued for effective, positive and meaningful change.

So far the only tangible evidence of reform or even evolution appears to be the proposed Improved Teaching and Learning in the Cayman Islands (ITALIC) program, which is yet to come on-stream.

It is nearly three years since the Honorable Minister has taken charge. What has been done to improve the physical facilities in which our children and young people are taught? We have known that the country needs at least two new primary schools and a new high school for several years. In fact, when the current Minister was my colleague on the Back Bench, we clamored at, cajoled and ultimately prosecuted and condemned the former Minister of Education, Mr. Truman Bodden, for his failure to allocate sufficient resources to the development of an adequate physical plant which would be capable of accommodating the growing number of persons requiring educational instructions in these Islands.

The problem right now is even more acute than it was even ever then, and I hold the firm view that, because of a lack of timely action and prioritisation by the Minister and his administration, we are now being asked in this annual plan and estimates, to approve $420,000.00 for temporary school classrooms for our children. How temporary is "temporary" and when will the permanent accommodation that is required be built?

I think that it is nothing short of a national disgrace that a Government will approve the borrowing and spending of $30 million for the redevelopment of the Turtle Farm—let us get it straight Mr. Speaker, I have the greatest respect for the turtles and I like the meat too—however, when we compare that and see that we now only have temporary classrooms for some of our primary and high school students in the country it really makes you wonder. Why should our children be relegated to temporary classrooms hastily thrown together to address the chronic overcrowding problem? Mr. Speaker, for this coming September the George Hicks High School has 1,046 registered students, not including how many may come or attempt to come from some of the private schools. This problem has been obvious to us for years.

I have to conclude that it is improper prioritisation of Government's limited resources, which I referred to earlier in my debate. I see from the Budget Address that it is now proposed that the Spotts Primary School will be ready for classes in September of next year. I notice that I have not heard any announcement regarding the award of a contract or when construction will begin. I would think that if that is going to happen it needs to be on the road pretty quickly. Another primary school for West Bay and the proposed high school in Frank Sound are slated for completion by September 2005. I also noticed that all of these projects are to be done via the Government's new found answer to all of the country's fiscal challenges, private sector partnerships, and I am assuming that this will be off balance sheet too. If the primary school in Spotts is going to be ready, Mr. Speaker, I would have thought that construction would have already commenced. I hope that the process will allow for it to happen because contrary to what the Government might assume, even when I do my job to criticize, it is not that it is my will that everything must go wrong since I know the people of the country would suffer if that were the case.

Clearly, Mr. Speaker, this Budget seems to drift towards virtual governance where all life's problems will be addressed and resolved in the context of spread sheets and computer printouts. There is little or no political thought or input in the policies of the Government. What you have here are technocrats sitting before computers and juggling figures to ensure equitable distribution of financial resources. Wherever a problem has been identified in this country it seems to me the tendency of the Government, obviously through the Annual Plan and Estimates that is before us, is to allocate additional funds and the problem will be solved. What I see clearly from this Budget is that the technocrats in the Portfolio of Finance are doing their work. They are juggling the figures and coming up with the money. What I see lacking tremendously is the political insight into what has to be done and how it should be approached for it to be accomplished.

In my reply to the Throne Speech earlier this year, I spoke about the impending crisis with provision of health care in this country. I remarked that residents of these Islands are understandably losing confidence in the integrity of our health care system and that staff morale at the Cayman Islands Hospital was at an all time low, and that staff were considering leaving en masse. My statements were met by a press release from the Health Services Authority who described what I said as disingenuous.

Mr. Speaker, I stand here today (and I stand by what I said and asked in March in this Honourable House) and I say again that the provision of health care in this country is being compromised by underfunding by the Government. One might quickly say "You cannot have your cake and eat it. The Health Services Authority was costing too much so we are doing everything we can to cut the cost". That is what we all want but it has to be worked through properly. And you know what? I made the statement that I pray for the Minister regularly—and I mean it—because I know the challenges that he faces.

[Inaudible interjection]

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, should the Minister of Education decide to write me a prayer I will look to see what that is to see whether I should pray it.

What I was trying to say before that attempt to make me lose my train my thought, is, while I stand up as Opposition and speak to these problems with the Health Services Authority, it is a real problem that affects all of us. The exercise is not solely who to point the finger at although, however one may wish to look at it, there are people who have responsibility, even when that is an inherited responsibility with several problems to deal with. The Government has to have a very serious look-see at what is happening there.

There are a million different things that need to be looked at; therefore, while I stand by my words, I would sincerely hope that the Government finds the ways and means to remedy the situation. Not only is staff morale even lower now but staff are also leaving en masse and what was marl road talk two weeks ago is now a reality. I know a career civil servant, a bright young lady, of 17 years, and she is not 40 years old yet and she has left the Health Services Authority because she simply could not deal with the situation any more. I did not make that up. I am not in the habit of doing that.

The focus of this Government has to be to portray undertakings and achievements in the context of money saved and money spent. There are exceptions to that principal or thought process and one of them is health care. Beyond a certain level the question has to be asked about simple, good old patient care, about patient satisfaction. Are we going to say that it does not matter what it does to staff morale? There is a bottom line that is a financial objective and if it ruins the whole situation once achieved then tell me, what really has been achieved? I dare say that there can be over-focus in certain areas and lack of it in other areas that really matter. What about the respect for the views and recommendations of the professionals who we have spent considerable sums training?

In summary, I say that the crisis of confidence in health care has not been addressed with any clarity or conviction in this Budget or any previous pronouncement of the Government. The Budget of sound bites is disappointing from the dual perspective of what it states and what it omits. One is amazed, for example, that no reassurance is given to this country of the resolve by Government to prevent a reoccurrence of the Euro Bank and the Financial Reporting Unit (FRU) fiasco. Clearly, this issue is no longer occupying the front page of the local newspapers therefore the Government adopts the position that it is no longer an issue. This is the essence of what we mean by sound bite management.

The simple promise to create another FRU by another name as is done in the Budget Address is not enough. The Government needs to understand and appreciate the crisis of confidence that was created in the domestic and international market place as a result of this scandal and its implications for the future image and integrity of the Cayman Islands as a trusted financial services centre. The country and indeed the international community need the assurance that we will simply not be jumping out of the frying pan into the fire in replacing the FRU with a similar entity by another name, as has been promised by the Government. What is needed is the assurance that the systemic weaknesses, which became glaringly apparent in the course and aftermath of the Euro Bank debacle, will be addressed and that a similar situation will not reoccur.

Time would not permit me to detail all of the other concerns of the People's Progressive Movement with respect to the drift that has overtaken several key sectors of our social and economic landscape. In my view, there is nothing in this Budget to stimulate business activity among the indigenous Caymanian population.

The feeling of alienation, among our young people in particular, is real and I see it, feel it and live it daily. And it is growing. The Government has proffered no sound bite on this vital issue of enfranchising our indigenous people because it does not appear a topical issue at this time.

Tourism is our number one employer and no comfort can be drawn from the sound bites advanced by the Government in this Budget. There are some fundamental issues relating to the future direction and continued development of our tourism sector that this Government needs to address, regardless of all that has been said, and continues to be said, thus far.

The Government continues to ignore the advice given in its own tourism development plan with respect to the negative impact of huge volumes of cruise ship visitors on the environment, the community and the number of stay-over visitors. Indeed, judging from what has been said, by the Honourable Third Official Member and the Leader of Government Business, the Government seems intent on a course of action to encourage even more cruise ship visitors. The Government is supporting and promoting another cruise ship facility in your district, Mr. Speaker, and again we wonder, with all of the additional numbers, are we really going to get further ahead in that sector or is the price going to be much more than we would wish for it to be. It seems like the Government is pursuing this course of action despite the overwhelming evidence across the region that concomitant with an increase of cruise ship visitors is a drop in the number of stay-over visitors. Statistics prove that and on reflection it is easy to understand why. The people of this country are not keen on maintaining the status quo where the most that they can wish and hope for are low-level supervisory jobs in this vital tourism sector. We are developing a product but the growing question is - and it has been floating around for a long time but it is really hitting home to many people now - for whom are we developing the product?

Passing reference was made by the Honourable Third Official Member to housing and the attempt by this Government to address the concerns of residents. The People's Progressive Movement have deliberately adopted a wait-and-see attitude to this housing development because we see some mixed signals being transmitted and we certainly do not want to get embroiled in the middle of a situation where, either by perception or inadvertently, we might have any bearing on the success of the project and the benefit to the citizens of the country.

We are growing increasingly concerned at recent revelations. There was an article in a newspaper yesterday where it purports that the development is being built almost entirely by foreign nationals who do not even speak English. Our concern there is we would hope that this is not so when there are still a significant number of Caymanian workmen who are unemployed.

I know that the Leader of Government Business will suggest that not all issues could have been discussed or addressed in the official Budget presentation and that the Budget seeks primarily to reflect the fiscal policies of the Government. However, I do not think so and I ask the question, can we continue to separate economic from social issues? Can we continue to give a blind eye, a deaf ear and a silent tongue to the issues of youth? Our young people, particularly young Caymanians, are feeling increasingly marginalised and abandoned by the system. We wonder how so many youngsters go astray but limited resources are being devoted to addressing the concerns of our young people, and their various needs. I know the Minister will have his time however, I believe that planning must go beyond Northward and other forms of penal and institutionalised care. Crime and violence—

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I just want to remind you that you have 10 minutes remaining.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Crime and violence is as much a social as it is an economic issue for us here in the Cayman Islands. Growing incidents of anti-social behaviour simply can no longer be brushed aside as reflective of a new era in which we live.

I believe that this country needs a Government that clearly understands the connection between alienating our young people from mainstream economic activity and coping with the likely consequences of anti-social behaviour. For all its claims to a social conscience, the Government does not seem to understand this correlation, even with the Minister himself who continues to spar about being the Government's social engineer.

I conclude within the time frame allotted by reiterating the point that this debate is more than a photo opportunity or a necessary legal requirement. The Budget debate is part of our social, cultural and political experience. It is eagerly looked forward to and viewed by the citizens of this country and the Government would be well advised against tinkering with its format and very existence. Providing an inadequate and unreasonable time frame for the Opposition, and others, to assess and comment upon the Budget as presented is not funny. In fact, it is not fair and it does not reflect anything other than an attack by the Government on democratic traditions that many of us still hold dear.

The comments of scores of Caymanians suggest that the Government may have committed a blunder by shutting out the public from the process.

Clearly, the administration does not wish to hear what others have to say about this package before its inevitable passage into law. Not only were the Opposition denied adequate lead time to evaluate and prepare a reply but other key stakeholders, such as the Law Society, the Bar Association, the Chamber of Commerce, and other organised bodies, were also shut out of the process, to the best of my knowledge. For by the time they access and evaluate the presentation by the Honourable Third Official Member it will probably have already seen passage into law. Residents of this country have to guard against this obvious slide towards a type of dictatorship where one man does as he likes with little or no regard to the views, wishes and concerns of the people of this country.

I think that this Budget attempts to quail certain levels of public outrage. It seeks to throw state resources at some of our chronic socio-economic problems. It would appear to me like it seeks to hoodwink the people of the Cayman Islands into believing that all is well on the economic front. Like Longfellow, the People's Progressive Movement is warning that things are not what they seem. I know that I will be the butt of criticism and ridicule from the other side however if anything I have said can serve to sensitize and enlighten the residents of this country to the gravity of the problems that we confront as a nation then this exercise would certainly not have been in vain. Although I have my doubts about being listened to I would urge Members on the other side to temper their personal attacks on Kurt Tibbetts with their focus on some of the real and burning issues affecting the governance of this country and the confidence level of its residents.

It does not please me when young people say to me that they have lost all hope in the system. It does not make me feel good when business persons of several years' standing say they are just about ready to throw their hands up in despair and throw in the towel. I say, Mr. Speaker, this country needs the return of a caring and sensitive Government, a Government that listens to its people, a Government that sees itself as an agent of change for and on behalf of the people that it is elected to serve.

I submit that this Budget, as it is presented, simply serves to mislead the public of the Cayman Islands into believing that finally something beneficial is being done to address the social and economic problems of this country. Throwing money at situations will not resolve them by itself. Painting economic rainbows will not make life any better for the residents of this country.

I call upon the Members on the other side to speak from their conscience and not to merely toe a party line that is clearly out of whack with the reality of what obtains here in the Cayman Islands. Just as throwing money at our problems by itself will not resolve those problems so too I wish to warn them that neither will attacking and criticizing the People's Progressive Movement and myself for merely highlighting the short-comings of this package and the ill-conceived policies and dangerous practices of Government.

I would urge the Members in this Honourable House to clinically analyse this document before us and if it does not go to the route of addressing the social and economic concerns of the residents then let us magnanimously agree to some major amendments before it is passed in law. I do not have that much confidence that that will happen and I can hear, from in between when we took the break, that there are individuals who cannot do otherwise than take things that I have said personally. If that is how they choose to deal with it they will have to deal with it. I have said what I have said based on what I have heard, and the short time that we have had to try to scrutinise the documents handed over to us. I stand by what I say and if there is anything that I have said that is incorrect in fact then I simply wish to be told so. I must warn that if there is an attempt to say that what I have said in any instance is not factual there must be facts to show that my facts are not facts. Otherwise, it is not going to rest there and we will continue to press on as the Opposition, the People's Progressive Movement, to make sure that the people of this country are made aware of anything and everything that they so deservingly should know.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Honourable Members we have reached the time for the luncheon break. We will resume at 2.30pm.

Proceedings suspended at 12.51 am

Proceedings resumed at 2.47 pm

[Madam Speaker in the Chair]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Does any other Member wish to speak? The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I crave your indulgence as navigating around these new quarters is somewhat difficult.

I rise to offer some comments in my contribution to the Budget Address as delivered by the Honourable Third Official Member on Tuesday. It would be remiss of me to not say at the outset that some of the comments made by the Leader of the Opposition would obviously need to be replied to.

Firstly, I would like to congratulate the First Elected Member from George Town as Leader of the Opposition because for some time in this House there seems to have been some confusion about that and no-one seemed to want to be called the Leader of the Opposition; it is very good that we now have an established leader of the People's Progressive Movement. That is something that all of us who believe in the very basic tenets of democracy welcome. It is very important that any government have, on the other side, members who are going to criticize what the Government does. I think for parliament to reach its fullest potential and for the people to reach and aspire to their highest level we need to have an opposition which not only criticizes but offers a different perspective and offers alternate solutions.

In my humble opinion we have just had two full hours of entertaining whining, complaining and saying what is believed to be wrong and so awful about the Government's policies and performance, yet offering the country no tangible solutions. It is easy to say that the town is falling apart however what is a lot more difficult is to come forth and say here is what should be done at this precise moment.

The Government has done its job. The Government has, on pages one to 25 of the Annual Plan and Estimates, clearly outlined the Government's philosophy, the plans that the Government has in place for this year to meet those objectives. Behind that there is a Budget that shows just how available resources will be allocated to assist in reaching those objectives.

I also have to note that the First Elected Member for George Town did a very skillful job at trying to plant in the minds of Members here and anyone who would be listening to these debates that anyone who came behind him and offered any disagreement would be attacking him personally. I do not believe in attacking personalities however a lot of what the First Elected Member for George Town said presents a picture that is, in my humble opinion, not factual and technically incorrect in a lot of instances. In other instances a lot of his opinions are certainly not shared by me, and I dare say Members of the Government. He gets up for two hours and criticizes everything that the Government does and proposes to do and then implies that when anyone comes behind him they will be attacking him personally.

I believe that on Tuesday the Honourable Third Official Member, and the Leader of Government Business, clearly outlined the goals and aspirations that the Government has to the country. I believe that the eleven broad outcome goals provide a framework for us to be able to manage and, on behalf of the people, deliver the type of society that the Cayman Islands would desire to have. The Broad Outcome goals of the Government are:

1. A strong economy that generates employment, income and a high standard of living.
2. A healthy resident population.
3. A socially supported resident population.
4. A strong Caymanian community and culture.
5. An environment protected for the use of current and future generations.
6. A well-educated and vocationally trained resident population.
7. A safe and secure country for residents and visitors.

8. An open, efficient and accountable Government.
9. Young persons positively involved in the community.
10. Strong family units.
11. An economically and socially vibrant Sister Islands.

Much was also said by the First Elected Member for George Town about how there is a disconnection between those broad outcomes and the Budget. The Leader of the Opposition also clearly outlined his belief that the Government has done a very good job at ultimately mismanaging the situation; not being able to come forth with any tangible solutions.

Now, before addressing the specific points outlined by the Leader of the Opposition I would like to take a step back and remind us that the 11 broad outcome goals of the Government are supported by specific outcomes which, in turn, have been supported by way of a Budget that goes to continue to address and strive toward attaining these broad outcome goals. Certainly one could not expect that one Budget or even two Budgets would allow us to achieve these broad outcome goals. I would dare say that we are, as a country and as a Government, continually striving toward these broad outcome goals. These are goals themselves which are extremely broad although they try to show the country whom we are. We identify with the people through these broad goals. We give the country our broad vision.

I have heard nothing from the Opposition about their broad outcome goals. What are their broad outcome goals for the Cayman Islands? To do nothing? To criticize? Madam Speaker, that is what we continue to get. And yes, as I said earlier, that is part of their responsibility however the most important part of their responsibility, which is continually shunned, is to provide an alternative. When the Leader of the Opposition gets up I expect that he is going to show the country how he would lead it if he were the Leader of the Government. For me to sit here and not have the Leader of the Opposition clearly show us their vision, to merely pick point by point items that they think are currently challenges for the Government, quite frankly, falls way short of what I believe the people of this country expect and demand from leaders and leadership.

At the end of the day—whether it is today, tomorrow, a year from now, ten years from now—anyone sitting in the Opposition will have challenges, as the Government is currently facing, that they can get up and raise a red flag and say, "See, here is a problem."

I think the people of this country clearly understand that life will never be perfect. We will never be in a situation where any government has absolutely nothing to worry about, where everything is hunky-dory. Where there are no issues in the ministries or portfolios, therefore nothing to criticise or question as to why a challenge is there. Challenges will always be here for us. However, the difference between effective leaders and those who do nothing is being able to agree and establish broad outcome goals. For example, being able to back things up with specific outcomes that will allow those broad outcomes to be reached, then, crafting a Budget that allows attaining those goals.

The United Democratic Party is not saying that the 2003/2004 Budget is the be-all and end-all; it is not. I dare say that for all governments in the future you will never have one Budget that is the be-all and end-all. However, if you look over the last 18 months since the United Democratic Party has been in Government, the people of the Cayman Islands will be able to easily identify the ground work for a Government that provides hope and one that allows them to be confident about the future. There will always be those who complain, there will always be someone who is not making it quite right: whether they are business persons, students, housewives, executives. Life is never perfect and surely as we search the community we are going to find a business person here or there whose business is struggling for whatever reason.

This Government is not about false hope because the impression given by the Leader of the Opposition is that if they were the Government no-one would have any problems. All the youth would be happy, no one would be disillusioned, and no business person would have problems and challenges. I say to the Leader of the Opposition and his Members and to the country that is false hope. I think the people of this country recognise that this is impossible. We will never attain that level. I am an optimist although at the same time one has to be practical. One has to be realistic. That is what this Government is; practical, realistic and honest. We are going to say to the country that this in our view is a good Budget; this is a broad vision that protects their interests and the future generation's interests. Importantly, we are not going to say that everyone's life is all of sudden going to be perfect because life will have its challenges. Indeed, every Government is going to have issues to face, there will be fires to be put out.

When we look at the Budget Address, presented by the Honourable Third Official Member on Tuesday, we see a clear outline of those 11 broad outcomes and a very comprehensive overview as to how the Government seeks to work toward achieving those broad outcomes. We are also man enough to speak about the challenges that we face as a small Island community within our Budget Address and be open about them.

I would like to ask Members for their indulgence by going back to dealing with an issue that is easily sensationalized and manipulated and would allow people to get the wrong impression. The Leader of the Opposition went to great pains to outline his belief that the Budget is not a balanced Budget and he said that what he is saying is as he understands it, and then he said that the Honourable Third Official Member knew what he, the Leader of the Opposition, was talking about. Most people who have been in this Chamber know when I speak that I have many words however I try not to waste them. To put it bluntly, in my humble submission, the Leader of the Opposition does not know what he is talking about. In my humble submission, the Leader of the Opposition needs to get someone to teach him Accounting 101. In my humble submission, what the Leader of the Opposition and the People's Progressive Movement should have done was to get on the phone and call someone on the Government Bench and ask them these basic questions; ask them if the Budget is balanced and to show them the balanced Budget. It is quite clear this new style of Budget document is a monumental improvement over what existed two and a half years ago when I first came to these Honourable Chambers. It is quite easy to follow. I am quite alarmed that the Leader of the Opposition would get up and say that the Budget is not balanced and then pull into the equation capital expenditure, and talk about capital expenditure and balance sheet activity and use that as his basis for saying that the Budget is not balanced.

Government has two elements in its finances: operating activities and balance sheet activities, much like the private sector has profit and loss activities, and depending on the entity some of them even refer to it as operating activities. Some call the balance sheet statements of assets and liabilities. Depending on the entity it could be a statement of financial position. However, let me use the phrase that most people are used to: profit and loss. Madam Speaker, when you are looking at profit and loss, a deficit would be analogous to a loss; a surplus is analogous to a profit. Therefore, when you are trying to determine whether or not there is a surplus position one cannot use capital expenditures and throw them into the equation because capital expenditures are spent with the view of getting some return from them. For example, if the Government builds a school the return is a well-educated population. If the Government builds a hospital the return would be to provide health services to the resident population. If the Government builds roads the return is infrastructure so that its citizens can get around. Those are capital expenditures, not operating or recurrent expenditures. Those are the types of expenditures that have always been, whether under the accrual system or the cash system of accounting. Ever since the Leader of the Opposition has been in this House he has had to differentiate between recurrent expenditure, statutory expenditure and capital expenditure. To get up and confuse issues by talking about capital expenditures and saying those reasons would lead him to believe that the Budget is not balanced is an inaccurate statement.

When the Leader of the Opposition started to speak about roads and projects that could be done under a private financing initiative, if he had said that whatever the interest element of a payment would be you could count those toward your operating activity, then I think we would have agreed. However, that is not what was said hence it needs to be very clear to the public that we have a Budget that has operating receipts of $309.4 million, and we have recurrent and statutory expenditure of $303.7 million which gives us an operating surplus of $5.7 million.

Madam Speaker, to have a surplus in the environment in which we operate in Cayman, in my humble submission, is a noteworthy achievement. It is an achievement that should be looked at and given credit for. We are country that deals purely with indirect and consumption-based types of revenue measures. We are not a big industrial country that levies taxes on properties and incomes where governments have many resources available. I believe that in the last 18 months the United Democratic Party has surprised the Opposition and many people. I think it is fair comment to say that many people thought that whatever good this Government would have done, one of the things I heard as a comment was, "Well, we know they cannot manage the resources, they are not going to be able to manage the Budget process, they are not going to be able to handle the fiscal responsibilities that go along with being a government". However, at the end of the day, despite how controversial the 2002 Budget was, we see that we were honest with the community. When you are straightforward with the community, when you put together a Budget and recognise that at some point you need to adjust your revenue base, if for nothing more than inflation, and you do what needs to be done on the revenue side, you reap the rewards.

I clearly remember the Opposition saying, during the 2002 Budget, that we were going to chase away all the financial institutions; all the class A banks were going to leave; all the class B banks were going to leave; all the insurance companies were going to leave; all the registered mutual funds were going to leave; all the law firms were going to shut down; all the accounting firms were going to shut down; everybody was going to close up shop. Eighteen months later we were able to produce a balanced Budget. I found it quite amazing that the Leader of the Opposition could now use as his excuse for the debacle of a Budget that he put together when he was Leader of Government Business that he could not raise any revenues because most of the banks and trust companies had already paid their fees by the time the Budget was passed. I will remind him and also the country that by the time we passed our Budget a lot of people had paid their fees already as well, sometimes a small inconvenience, and we acknowledged that during the Budget debate. I clearly remember saying that we recognised there were going to be some difficulties because we know, for example, that certain law firms and other service professionals bill their clients before January of the year. They bill them in September/October/November to get the cash in the door so that they can pay their fees on time. We knew that that was the case however we accepted that they were going to have to go back to their clients and get additional funds because we were not going to let pride cause us to have a Budget that was some $55 million short – pride, fear, whatever it was. I can honestly say I was a "supporting Back Bench Member" of the 2001 Budget he spoke about; however I was not called into any Budget meeting to decide how we were going to get and fill the $55 million vacuum. I clearly recall being called to the Glass House with a stark position presented, hands thrown in the air saying there is nothing else to do; we have to go and borrow the money.

Time has a way of making certain things come out and it has come to my knowledge that since that time there were meetings with the private sector with the then Leader of Government Business (now Leader of Opposition). Basically, the private sector said to him that they would give him loans of preferential rates, being the best they could do. That is what the financial industry said to him. At least, that is our understanding. "We cannot endure any fees at this point in time, we can give you some loans at preferential rates and you go and sell it to the public."

To hear these feeble excuses as to why this country was asked to accept a level of borrowing that, if not the highest, was certainly one of the highest in its history; the borrowing to fund recurrent expenditure was certainly the highest in its history, the reason being that nothing could be done because everyone would have paid their fees by then. Well, if that was the case why it was not said then? Why did the leadership, which seems to currently and miraculously have been acquired in the last 18 months, not allow him to come forth and show the country the broad outcome goals, a vision? I think those who listen with a fair mind and those who remember and look back can quickly see why the Motion on 8 November 2001 will go down as a Motion that helped save this country financially. The current Leader of Opposition was bankrupt of ideology then and he still is. And Madam Speaker —

The Speaker: Is that your opinion, Member?

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: That is my opinion, Madam Speaker. In my humble submission the People's Progressive Movement offers no solutions, no hope for this country. It is my humble submission that what we have heard from their Leader as a start-off to the Budget Address is the usual: whining, complaining, criticizing, no solutions, and no leadership. I find it amazing that the Leader of the Opposition could say that a successful government is one that is in tune, is well-connected with and consults with the people; is one that should present a Budget that leaves adequate time to be consulted.

I have a pretty good memory; I do not recall in 2001, when the Budget with the extraordinary high level of borrowing was going to be presented, the then

Leader of Opposition saying, "Guys, we need to have a public meeting once the Third Official Member has presented the Budget Address.". No public meetings, Madam Speaker. No consulting with the public then. I warn this country to look out for wolves in sheep's clothing. Anyone can get up and talk the talk however what I go on is how you have behaved in the past. For one whole year he was Leader of Government Business and I challenge him and his colleague from George Town, the Second Elected Member, to show the public one public meeting that they had. One! Yet they get up and talk about open and accountable government and they talk about all these good fancy, frilly things. Just what the current Leader of the Opposition has done in the past so shall he do in the future. I believe that if when a person is given the responsibility of Leader of Government Business to present such a disastrous Budget and not have a public meeting on it drives to the vein of the types of behavior we are talking about. It is hypocrisy, I say, hypocrisy. Hypocrisy!

We hear about shams; now that is a sham because I believe in keeping life simple. I say this to the public, I say this to my Honourable colleagues, I say this to even his current Members on the Opposition, I say to all of us and especially to them — we must preach to the unconverted — I say to them who are sitting there today: can they truly sit there and believe anything that their leader says? Can they believe what their leader says when he talks through both sides of his mouth, when he talks of all these noble attributes yet when he was Leader of Government Business for one whole year he did not practice them? I ask them, can they believe him?

It is very important that we keep things in perspective and I think it is very important for me as an elected representative to remind people of what the facts are. It is easy to get up and talk all the fancy, frilly stuff however I believe that one's behavior and one's practice is what is most important.

We have a practice of having a minimum of quarterly meetings in the district of West Bay. We have meetings on important issues. Any issue that comes up that is important we take it to the people. Our record is unblemished in that regard. Thus, I find the line of language that the Leader of Opposition used quite offensive because I think his behaviour proves beyond the shadow of a doubt otherwise. I know it does.

Getting back to the Budget itself, there were claims by the Opposition that the Government is stifling democracy because they did not have enough time to prepare and if I am to predict their style when each of them get up there will be a recurring theme. They will all get up and say the same thing; the Government did not give them enough time, the Government is going against the fundamental principles of democracy, they will talk about elected dictatorships. What reminds one more of an elected dictatorship? The behaviour of the current Leader of Government Business who meets with the public, who, just last night, entertained the legal fraternity because he cares so much about the issues and problems being faced by young Caymanians attorneys in this country. What type of behaviour is more important? When a leader takes that time out of his busy schedule, and arranges those types of forums for young people who are very disillusioned, to talk to them and show them he cares — there are many young people in the legal fraternity with major law firms who are currently very disillusioned who have no real tangible opportunities for promotions — does that sound like a dictator?

A dictator is a person who singly is able and behaves in such a way to make all the decisions. He is a man who meets with his public quarterly, he is a man who would even go to the public and takes polls on major issues like Cayman Airways and come back to Finance Committee and carry out the will of that poll. Is that a dictator? Or is a dictator the type of leader who gets up in this House and says one thing yet when he was Leader of Government Business had not one single public meeting. Madam Speaker, I say, shame, shame, shame. I say shame on the Leader of the Opposition because that, in my humble submission, was the beginning of an elected dictatorship.

Yet another reason that the Motion on the 8 November 2001 was so important to this country was to free the country from the reins and the shackles of an elected dictatorship, from a leader who refused to have meetings with the public. I believe the public, as time passes, will see more and more the wisdom of such a change.

I want to address the issue of time and how much time was needed to effectively offer a Budget contribution to the Honourable Third Official Members Budget Address. The Leader of the Opposition said he did not have enough time yet he got up and made, I believe, a comprehensive critique of the Budget. As I said I do not agree with his opinion, I do not agree with the logic, I do not agree with his claim that the Budget is not balanced.

There was mention made on Tuesday that there were some 1700 pages in all these documents. The Leader of the Opposition has been in this House long enough to know that in debating the Honourable Third Official Member's Budget presentation and the Leader of Government Business presentation directly after that, one needed to reread those documents and one needed to look at the crucial elements of the Budget. Madam Speaker, we will be getting into the detail of outputs when we go through in Finance Committee, on an output group basis. Therefore, one does not have to go through all the outputs at this stage. This is not the stage that we critique the outputs and the outputs make up 90% of the pages in the document.

I would beg to say, in my humble submission, as I look, for example, at the Annual Plan and Estimates which is 326 pages long, the crucial pages are one to 25, which outline the Government's broad output goals and the specific goals to meet those; and pages 273 to 326, which has fewer than 60 pages. I beg to offer in my humble submission, that those four elements, pages 1 to 25, pages 273 to 326 and the two addresses is all Members would need to be able to critique and analyse the Budget. On Tuesday he made reference that the Government and its supporting Back Bench would have had intimate knowledge of the Budget. That is not so. I saw pages 273 to 316 for the first time when the Budget document was delivered to me on Tuesday as well. Those are some specific points and show information in different formats. That is all they are. All we dealt with was the overall position and whether or not the overall position in a broad sense was going to allow us to achieve the goals that we had set.

The critique that the Opposition would offer would only be to analyse the information that I outlined and they could then look at it and say "That is the position of the Government and that is how they want to achieve this. Well, we do not agree with this outcome." I did not hear him say he disagreed with any outcome of the Government. I find that amazing; the Opposition thus far has not disagreed with one of the eleven Government statements. It must be a solid vision; it must be a vision that is shared with the public that is good for the country. Otherwise, they would have said that it was not. All we heard was that the Budget was not balanced. I think we have clarified that issue, that the Budget is balanced. In fact, I would recommend to the Leader of the Opposition and his colleagues that they read page 293 of the Annual Plan and Estimates because that clearly outlines the different types of activities, financial and economic, that the Government engages in, in summary form, the results and how they will be funded. Table 8, page 293, if you may permit me to read, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Please proceed.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: In Table 8, Forecast Financing Activity, the first item is an Operating Surplus of $5.711 million. Then we come to Net Asset Activity of $27.409 million. Madam Speaker, that is what I was referring to earlier when I spoke to the issue of what operating activity is and what balance sheet activity is. For the benefit of the Members of the Opposition—I might also cross-reference—that $27.409 million detail can be found on page 316 of the Annual Plan and Estimates, which clearly shows all the capital activity of the Government, that is, Net Asset Activity. For Government to discharge its duty successfully we cannot just have operating activities. We could have easily said, "Ok, that is it, we have an operating surplus so we will do nothing else as a Government and stick the $5 million in the bank and try to draw some interest on it." However, the country needs critical infrastructure development.

One of the elements of the $27.409 million is $12 million of capital development including major buildings, and so on. There is also $5 million of capital acquisitions. We currently need to upgrade our radio system, for example, the 911 emergency services. I am reliably informed that this has been overdue for some 10 years, and which Government is doing it? The United Democratic Party Government. You have to spend money on the equity side. That is investing. We also have, making up that $27 million, $10.6 million of equity injections. However, since the Leader of the Opposition appears to be so hopelessly lost when it comes to accounting terminology and how accounts work. I need to explain, for example, when the Government pays over $4 million to Cayman Airways it is allowing it to operate and that is an equity investment. In other words, we, the Government, are the shareholders of Cayman Airways and we are buying additional shares in Cayman Airways. If we do not the Airline cannot operate, plain and simple.

The country has told successive Governments that Cayman Airways, while a luxury, is something they want, something they see as desirable. I also believe that successive Governments, including this Government, have evaluated the situation and recognise that to be in the tourism business, having predictable air service that is not subject to things like strikes of pilot unions and stewardess unions in the United States and wars and threats in other countries that we need to have it ourselves, we need to be able to bring our guests to the Cayman Islands if it winds up that we are the only way for them to get here. Those activities do not contribute to a deficit position; they are balance sheet activity.

Madam Speaker, continuing with Table 8. This shows a position of negative $21.7 million. If you sum the $5.711 million, which is the Operating Surplus, plus the Net Asset Activity, on the asset side of the balance sheet. If we deduct that from the surplus we then come down to a negative position that has to be funded. Added to that is the balance sheet activities on the liability side of the balance sheet. That is loan repayments. We have another $9 million of loan repayments, which brings us to a position of having to fund $30.8 million.

Just below Table 8 we have a section called Financing Sources. To fund that $30.8 million we are going to use Existing Cash Balances of some $16.1 million. We are going to have a Temporary Overdraft Drawdown of some $5.06 million, some $1.6 million of the Environmental Protection Fund is being used and I think it is mainly to do with the beach erosion project. There is some New Borrowing of $8 million which fund that entire $30.8 million. That is the clear outline of the actual Budget position of Central Government.

We also heard much talk about the roads authority and the fact that the Government is trying to hide borrowing activity in the roads authority. Let me just back up by saying that no one professes that a statutory authority is the solution to any problem that we have in Government. In other words, you cannot just take any governmental department agency, make it a statutory authority and everything is going to be alright. History has proved that statutory authorities and government-owned companies provide the Cayman Islands with the best possible management decision-making process that is not laden with the bureaucracy that stifles central Government, and not just our central Government but central governments all over the world have the same problem.

In case anyone doubts me they need to sit and have a conversation with any controlling officer about how difficult it is, for example, just to reassign a civil servant, not even talking about firing a civil servant, it is not simple. Yes, people on the outside will look in and say it is simple; you should be able to go to the Public Service Commission and make your request to the Governor and everything will happen briskly and you will be able to adjust to situation and re-allocate people and resources as you need to.

Well, Madam Speaker, it is easy to say, however bureaucracy is something that this Government and all governments are going to continue to face and yes, we are going to try to come up with ways to make it more manageable. For example, one of the things the Leader of the Opposition did not pay any credence to in the Budget document was the legislative action that Government is proposing for the country to assist us in achieving our objectives. The Honourable Financial Secretary went to great pains to outline all of them in Budget Address. It is not only in his Budget Address but it is also on pages 27 to 30 in the Annual Plan and Estimates. Nothing was said that showed any real thought to them being able to give an alternative.

The Government, for example, has a Broad Outcome goal that I mentioned earlier. Number 1: "A strong economy that generates employment, income and a high standard of living."

There are many specific items in the Budget that we propose to undertake to allow us to strive towards meeting that outcome. Nothing was really said about that nor was anything said about the laws that we are going to have to enact.

We are going to amend the Statistics Law because for businesses to operate they need accurate information. What a shame it is that in this day and age, 2003, when a person goes to open a small business they cannot have greater access to critical types of information that would allow them to be able to model and plan their businesses as efficiently as they should. Let me give an example Madam Speaker. Right now, if you wanted to open a restaurant there is no data bank that allows you to know what your salaries as a ratio of income should be. Why? We have a weak Statistics Law; we have a weak collection of statistics in the Cayman Islands. In fact, collecting information is so difficult that the Chamber of Commerce has even tried to collect information from its members and, to be quite frank, has not met with the greatest of success. How are you going to have a strong economy that generates employment, income and a high standard of living if entrepreneurs and business managers do not have access to information, not specific information about their competitors but, about the industry in which they operate? If I am going to open a restaurant and my Budget says that 28 per cent of my revenues are going to be spent on salaries and remuneration although the industry average, which there is no access to, is 35 per cent I am probably doomed to fail or at least struggle immensely before even getting started. Madam Speaker, these are the types of specific things that the Government is undertaking to assist businessmen and entrepreneurs.

Broad Outcome 2: "A healthy resident population". There are going to be amendments to the Pesticides Law, the Environmental Health Law, the Drinking Water Quality Regulations, and the Food Hygiene Regulations. Are these not important initiatives by the Government? Are these not the types of initiatives that should have been critiqued? I take it to mean that if it was not critiqued they must have agreed with it. This is the meat that fleshes out the skeleton that is called a vision. To just dress up a vision and not have any idea as to how you are going to get there would mean you cannot get there. I say that this Government has vision, courage and we understand the issues.

The only Law that I heard made mention of was the Children Law and that was just a passing reference to say that the Department of Social Services, in his opinion, was not equipped to deal with the obligations under that particular Law. What he failed to say is that every administration in this country will continue to face the challenges of going against the established bureaucracy. In a perfect world the people elect the government, the majority in the government controls the executive council, the executive council meets and sets policies, the civil servants follow those policies, people then judge you on the results of those policies. That is a perfect world and a perfect theory however I know that even the Leader of the Opposition will admit that we are miles away from operating under that perfect theory. I know that the Minister responsible for the department, mention was made that he has been trying to restructure the department for almost two years. What I would like to know from the Leader of Opposition is since they have all the answers why did they not come up and tell us how they would go about it differently? Madam Speaker, the Minister will be able to defend his own position but I can safely say—

The Speaker: Honourable Member, you have one hour remaining.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I can safely say that I know the Minister has tried and he continues to try.

However, the public has to understand that the theory does not work perfectly, and it is not within our sole discretion to make changes to allow the system to work perfectly because ultimately the Governor is responsible for the civil service and he reminds us of that.

In fact, during the constitutional talks any mention of administrative responsibility whether it was here, speaking with the Governor, or the past Governor, or in the UK and speaking with members from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, the first response you always get, "Oh, you cannot politicise the civil service". The guard automatically comes up. I am not saying that the civil service should be at the whim and fancy of Government. I am not saying that there is not need for a separation. However the Honourable Third Official Member spoke at length about the decentralisation of the civil service and the law that is going to coincide with The Public Finance and Management Law, the new Public Service Law. Those are important initiatives that would allow, not just this Government but any future government to hopefully have a much greater possibility to make fundamental changes when they see that something is not right.

As I go through our broad outcome goals I see the specific targets that the Government has set. For example, on page 15, there is an overview of the key policy actions of the Government. It follows the line of all the broad outcome goals. It includes a commentary of the situation at hand and it outlines the new initiatives.

I know his one year as Leader of Government Business produced no results for this country. When the Leader of the Opposition gets up and when he speaks he always finishes by saying, "Oh well, I know they are going to come back and attack me, Kurt Tibbetts." Let me make it clear, I have no personal problem or ill will towards the Leader of the Opposition however my job as a responsible representative is to debate and offer the truth. It is quite easy to manipulate statements in the Budget document. It is quite easy to proffer opinions that are not well founded.

Therefore, Madam Speaker, I find it amazing that the Leader of the Opposition could go through an entire two hours of Budget address and not mention the strides that the Government has made in the area of telecom's liberalisation. That is a key part of producing a strong economy that generates employment. It is also a key in producing a higher standard of living. All of us pay the onerous rates, the ridiculous rates that Cable and Wireless charges us. He then made no mention of the Government trying to take on CUC to reduce their rates.

If the Leader of the Opposition was truly offering a balanced perspective—he did not have to get up and praise the Government, no one asked him to do that—he would have mentioned it, he would have said he recognised that these strides are being made however they are there to criticize and offer no vision, no hope, no solutions, no actions, and, Madam Speaker, no action leads us in a disastrous state.

The Government, whether people want to admit it or not, is the hub of a community. That is not to understate the value of the private sector and the fact that it generates more employment opportunities than the Government. Nevertheless the Government is the key; it is the hub in the wheel, if you like. Yes, the private sector makes up many spokes and covers the majority of the tire and that is the way it should be because that is where we want most of the money, in the private sector, so that they can make efficient business decisions that do not get burdened down like the civil service does; that is not inefficient like the public service, naturally, is.

The public service in every country, Madam Speaker, is less efficient than the private sector in all modern countries. I can make that comment with great confidence. However, this Government has a key role to play. It is a key social agent in education, policing, health care, putting money into the Health Services Authority, control of mosquitoes, providing capital to Cayman Airways, when many business men would say shut it down based on a few business decisions.

The impression left by the Leader of Opposition was that all Government was doing was throwing money at problems, yet, it would appear to me that he did not read them because these 26 pages were not mentioned in any great detail in his presentation. I would have thought the vision of this Government would have been dealt with and our vision shown to be wrong and their vision better.

However, they have no vision, in my humble opinion, therefore they had to pick apart numbers, they had to try and create a deficit out of a surplus, they had to try to play their hocus pocus magic and try to change the impression of the people that would be contrary to the Government.

He started off by saying the Budget Address and the Budget debate is all about what is best for the people and not about scoring political points. Then he turned right around and all he did was try to score political points. That is all. It was two hours of political one-upmanship. No solutions, no vision. I heard nothing said about all the new initiatives on page 16, for trying to improve the economy or the provision for more support from the London office to the Investment Bureau.

The Honourable Third Official Member outlined that we were funding close to $1 million of additional money to ensure that the London Office and the Investment Bureau here in Cayman and the Office in New York did their work efficiently and effectively to provide good business investment opportunities for the Cayman Islands. Every country needs foreign investment. The Cayman Islands dollar does not stay as strong as it does simply because the Government wants it to. There has to be demand for Cayman, there has to be demand for the Cayman Islands dollar. How do you get that? Well, we proposed in the last Budget to create an investment bureau and we are well underway to get that up and running. We have an investment office in the London representative's office. We have an investment office in the New York Department of Tourism office. I heard nothing to say that this was the wrong move therefore I can only assume that the Leader of the Opposition, having read through the first 26 pages of Annual Plan and Estimates, having seen the vision of the Government, and how they are going to meet that vision, that he agrees with everything and that he has no better solution. In my humble submission, to simply come here and talk about problems that Government faces wastes time. The Government will always have problems. Suppose, for example, we had a situation where a number of teachers left one particular school in the middle of the school year that would be a crisis. Would the Leader of Opposition get up and say it is the Government's fault? I think so. Those are small elements and there are problems. As I said earlier, every government will face problems. The community and the society will have challenges from now until the Lord comes.

He said that he praying for the Leader in charge of Health Services and that is good that he is praying however I really wanted the Leader of Opposition to challenge the Government position, challenge the Government vision, and say why we were doing the wrong thing philosophically. I think the Government is the best alternative for the people of these Islands. I think the majority of good thinking people, once they have heard all sides of the story and for those who take the time to read the Annual Plan and Estimates will agree. We acknowledge that we are not perfect; we acknowledge that there will always be crises that we are going to face as a country and as a Government. You manage the crises as you go along however you must have a vision and attached to it must be tangible and measurable goals.

We, as a Government, are allocating an additional one million dollars to negotiate bilateral tax agreements with various countries to ensure that our financial services sector is able to survive because that sector offers so much opportunity for Caymanians. Yes, there are Caymanians in that sector and all sectors face challenges and issues relating to employment and promotions, and the like.

At the of the day, I think all of us would agree that they would rather have a job and be able to afford this standard of living than to go back to the smoke pan days and have no job.

It is important that the Government spends that one million dollars, I think it was $1.06 million. It is important that we increase the lending capacity to small businesses because we all know on the Government Bench that small business is the backbone of any economy, and Cayman is no different. In fact, without anticipating it, we even have a Motion coming before this House that calls for the creation of a Small Business Act. Legislation specifically geared to assist small business owners is what is envisioned there.

In a speech by the Leader of Government Business there was a policy statement entitled Leveraging the Cayman Islands Finite Resources to Overcome Infinite Challenges. I heard nothing. That statement had vision, that statement offered hope. I have heard no hope offered by the Opposition.

We then go on to list all of the existing initiatives that promote economic development and the high standard of living. To speak of a few we have the on-going promotion of the financial industry, setting up the adequate regulatory regime at the Monetary Authority, the continued marketing of the Stock Exchange, the continued promotion and support that we are offering for the Shipping Registry, the continued operation of the Farmers Market, the continued Government support to the Farmers Market, the continued evolution of the Human Resources Department that deals with labour disputes, job placement, employer/employee support, and the Investors in People Programme.

I heard nothing mentioned that these were not good initiatives therefore I take it that the Leader of Opposition is in fundamental agreement with the vision of the Government and with how the Government is going to get there. However, he had some specific problems and some specific issues that he wanted to air and there was a lack of understanding as to how a surplus position is arrived at. I think once we have outlined, sorted and got past those problems, due to a lack of dealing with the meat of the Budget and the strategies behind the Budget, I can only assume that we are on the right track.

"A healthy resident population" is broad outcome number 2. The New Initiative is the new output relating to the provision of mammograms that will be purchased from the Ministry of Health Services, Aviation, Agriculture and District Administration. Again, a key initiative.

[Inaudible interjection]

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: The initiative is being enhanced, Madam Speaker.

[Inaudible interjections]

The Speaker: Order!

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: The Opposition is obviously now seeing the vision of the Government and that we are doing the right thing. Madam Speaker, I hear some grumblings on the other side however I will continue.

For a socially protected resident population again the Government offers its solutions. The Government speaks to the new initiatives that it is going to put in place to deal with the unusually heavy rains and flooding that we have had. The Government speaks directly to increasing the funding for housing repairs for indigents, and although I agree with the Leader of the Opposition that you cannot just throw money at a problem, when a person's roof is leaking, when they are getting drowned inside their house, money is what it takes to fix the roof.

The Government recognises that there is a balance. Yes, the Government will continue to try and train and retrain people so that they can improve their lives and hopefully be able to fix their own roofs. However, we have to deal with the reality that we will always have poor people in Cayman, we will always have poor people in this world, we will never get to that wonderful, blissful state that the Leader of Opposition seems to hint at where everyone is wealthy and has all the resources and services they need and the Government really could just shut down and not have to provide any more services. Madam Speaker, that day is not going to come, that is just the reality of life. It is important that the Government recognises that and it is important that the Government has a vision and has specific goals to address these problems.

There was mention made of the increased crime. Yes, the Government is deeply concerned and outraged. The Government encourages the people of this community to help rid ourselves of violent crime because it is not just the police, the courts or the Government that are able to solve this problem. We need assistance from those who have knowledge of crimes, for example. To simply catch those who perpetuated an act today does not solve the problem of the new criminal that has come on stream. However, I think we will agree that, for the criminals who are out there, we do need to have in place a system where those persons will inevitably and in most instances have to be removed from society and hopefully rehabilitated. I will leave it up to the Minister responsible for Prisons and for Youth to deal with the specific objectives within his Ministry. These issues do exist and they are clearly stated in the Budget in black and white.

Broad outcome 4: "A strong Caymanian community and culture". I know that over the past five months I have not had so many people tell me that they have not felt so good to be Caymanian than they have over the last five months, because of the Quincentennial activities. We have taken a period of time, to mark our 500th year discovery to reflect and, as Caymanians, to organize activities, come up with creative ways to honour ourselves and to come up with ways which allow us to feel good about who we are. If you are going to have a strong community, if you are going to have a strong culture, people must feel good about who they are, people must be encouraged to remember who they are and to remember where they have come from. And Madam Speaker, if we look at the activities of the Existing Initiatives and the New Initiatives on page 19 of the Annual Plan and Estimates document we again see the Government's move to ensure that this becomes a reality. I am not going into detail on each one because time does not permit but, for example: "The Government is also conscious of the need for the a centre for local crafts and music, where visitors can see the work of local artisans and listen to local music. The Government intends to establish a venue for a local craft market and assist in its operation."

I heard nothing from the Leader of Opposition that would suggest he disagrees with that so again the Government must be on the right track. There must be something good in the vision of the Government and the key initiatives that the Government has established to allow it to work toward meeting those broad goals.

To get back to safety, it is important for the community to play its part in solving crimes and to assist the police. The Government also recognised that there was a need to fill some of the unfilled posts in the police service hence the Government has provided, almost $1 million in total in new funding in that area. Life can easily become a vicious circle. Life can often allow us to argue around and around because I may talk to one person and they speak about health and health services being the most important thing. I may speak to someone else and they may say education is the most important thing. Someone else may come along and say education without health would lead nowhere. Someone else might come along and say, "Well, you have your education, you can have your health but if it is not safe then it is all for naught". Therefore, as I continue to go through these Broad Outcomes and the New Initiatives of the Government we will see that we address all those facets; we will see that the vision of the Government addresses all those key areas of life.

The environment is very important. The balance between development and preservation is one that every country grapples with. In a perfect world, going back to truly biblical times, we would all be farmers and hunters, we would all gather what we needed, we would all live in our huts and that is how life would be, and we would only use what we needed. However, life has changed tremendously since those times and development is a real part of every community and the decisions that the Government has to make. There is a balance between the person who wants to build a hotel but may need to clear mangroves to do so and those are the balances that will have to be continued to be made. Again, the Government has shown its commitment that, notwithstanding the need for development, it will endeavour to do its best to protect the natural environment.

The development of the Barkers Environmental Park is something that I believe every citizen of this country, irrespective of their political persuasion, would agree is an initiative that is key to maintaining and supporting the environment for future generations. Many of us are going to be able to enjoy that national park.

The Leader of Government Business, on Tuesday, spoke at great lengths of the Beach Erosion Study and all the work that is being done in the area of beach erosion. Again, this is a crisis that we as a community and as a Government have to face. We have a long-term vision, we are dealing with these specific problems however what matters most, I believe, to the people of this country is a long-term vision and a Government that continues to work toward this through specific and attainable goals.

Broad outcome 6: “A well-educated and vocationally trained resident population”.

The New Initiatives and the Existing Initiatives that the Government is undertaking to reach that outcome are outlined on page 21. The Leader of Opposition said that the only thing he heard about since the current Minister has been responsible for Education, the Honourable Roy Bodden, was the ITALIC Project.

However, there are other initiatives; there are other things that have been going on. If we just look at the current Budget and the current Annual Plan and Estimates statement we will see that the Minister is having a re-design of the Professional Practice Course to improve the integration and legal skills and principles. The Government is also going to be addressing the issue of local and overseas scholarships and a mentoring programme is going to be established in conjunction with the Chamber of Commerce.

The Government is actively working, as we speak, to ensure that the infrastructural requirements of the new schools that we need are met. And yes, I would agree with the Leader of Opposition the timeline is very tight and certainly to get the schools built by next September is going to be a challenge but life—as I have said, at least ten times now in this address—is full of challenges. We simply have to work and not shirk our responsibility. Like I said earlier, we are going to see challenges in every one of these areas because every government that is going to exist is going to have challenges.

However, to make the comparison that the Leader of Opposition made, that the Government was spending $30 million on the Turtle Farm and only having temporary schools is a misleading one. The Turtle Farm development is a private sector partnership and therefore it would naturally flow that the funding is going to be provided by the private sector without a government guarantee. Of course, many of the economic benefits will flow to the private sector partners. That is how life is. We, as a Government, are not necessarily interested in ourselves being entrepreneurs, we would much rather leave that to people who are skilled in that area. That is why you have private sector partnership at the Turtle Farm. The outcome that we envision is an attraction that continues to build our tourism product, an attraction that residents would be proud of and would want to go and see, that teachers would take children on school trips to visit.

Therefore, that was a very misleading analysis because the Government is not spending money willy-nilly on turtles and not spending money on students. Madam Speaker, the two projects are distinct and separate. I will leave the issues of education for the Minister responsible to deal with nevertheless I thought it was necessary to clear the air on that particular issue.

I know someone will get up and ask “What about the priorities?” In the perfect world, that the Leader of Opposition painted, this Government would be able to address its problems in the order of priority however life does not work that way. When the private sector comes and offers their assistance with the Turtle Farm, to provide capital development, without a guarantee from the Government, and to allow us to have a world class attraction, what are we going to say to them? Are we going to say “No” and tell them to find some other place to invest their money because we do not want it in the Cayman Islands because we are just going to focus all our attention on the Hospital and the schools? The Turtle Farm needed to be done at that particular time and the Leader of Opposition tried to paint a picture that the Government had prioritized turtles over students. Nothing could be further from the truth.

There is an added benefit of the Turtle Farm project. Government is going to be able to share some of the economic rewards as well, which again would provide money to a Government-owned company. This would allow that company to operate and not have to come to central Government for funds, and in fact, hopefully be able to contribute to central Government by way of a dividend of certain funds, and monies.

Thus, Madam Speaker, at the end of the day the Government has all these problems to deal with and they are dealt with vigorously. We have education and health services and safety of our resident population as our top priorities. However, when other opportunities come up they have to be dealt with; everything that is going on has to be dealt with. That is what effective leadership is, it juggles the puzzle and it continues to fit the pieces in. Sometimes you have to put a piece in place and there are a few other pieces around that are missing however this is a Government with vision and common sense. It knows where to put those pieces.

We gave the Opposition all the information they needed to critique, debate, agree and/or disagree with the Government. We were very specific. We could have easily produced a document that had the broad outcomes and nothing else and then each got up and spoke about the specific initiatives; however we put everything in the document.

The Leader of Opposition got up and, I reiterate, just talked for two hours about the challenges that the country faces and did not deal with whether or not he agreed with the vision of the Government and what he would do differently. Nothing was said about that very important aspect of this debate.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, you have 23 minutes remaining.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The Government is committed to this form of open and accountable governance. I can honestly say that under the system that existed when I was first elected in November 2000, it would have been extremely difficult, almost impossible, to be able to offer meaningful debate with two nights and a day of work. However, as I outlined, when you leave out all the details that we are going to be dealing with in Finance Committee and you focus just on what it is that we debating here, which is the address by the Financial Secretary, and you deal with the information that supports that address, this was by no means an unmanageable task. I found it quite easy to set aside four hours to go through this material and to be able to deal with those points I wanted to.

Broad Outcome 9: “Young persons positively involved in the community.”

I am pleased to say that the Government continues to recognise that young people are indeed our future; they are the future leaders, teachers, preachers, policemen. The Government continues to spend resources to come up with programmes to work along with the churches and other social agents to try to ensure that we are able to cater to and deal with the social problems we face.

In our Budget we see $10,000 going to at least 15 to 20 churches for their youth activities. That is direct money from Government to a social agent, one that all of us in Cayman accept as an important social agent; our churches. None of that was mentioned. Nothing was mentioned about the Cadet Corps and the training programme. Nothing was mentioned about the youth rehabilitation facility that is coming on stream. Nothing was said, of any substance, as to how we are dealing with the youth development whilst ensuring that we coordinate it with key youth organizations.

I sat here for a reason and that was to listen intently to make sure I did not miss a thing that was said. I believe that I still have a fairly good memory.

Broad outcome 10: “Strong family units.”
The Government recognises that Cayman has —

The Speaker: Honourable Member, sorry to interrupt but we have reached the hour of interruption and I will call on the Deputy Leader to move the appropriate motion.

Moment of Interruption—4.30 Pm

Suspension of Standing Order 10(2)

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, I move that we continue the debate until the speaker, the Second Elected Member for West Bay, has completed his debate—I think it is another 13 minutes—after which I will call for the adjournment.

The Speaker: The question is that the Honourable House continue its proceedings until the current speaker has concluded his debate on the Budget Address.

All those in favour, please say Aye. All those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed; Standing Order 10(2) suspended to allow the Member to conclude his debate.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Thank you, Madam Speaker, and I thank the House for its support for me to conclude.

We, as a Government, recognise that there are many challenges that families in the Cayman Islands face. That is why the Government continues with its initiatives to support battered women and children and children from the homes of battered women, and continues with the initiatives as outlined in the Crisis Centre. That is why the Government continues to have national parent training courses and workshops. That is why the Government promotes the month of the child and has numerous activities during that month that, again, try to empower families with the types of information and the types of skills they need to raise a well-balanced family and well-adjusted children. Training programmes relating to the empowerment of women and the strengthening our families continues to be supported by the Government. Madam Speaker, residential homes for children and the provision of those homes are key to children who wind up in homes that cannot ably raise them in a manner that the majority of the population feel is a manner that would allow the person to be a well-adjusted, law-abiding citizen of the Cayman Islands.

Again, the Budget is full of the specific objectives that the Government has, and continues to have. Nothing was offered to challenge this so I can only make the assumption that the Leader of Opposition agrees with the vision of the Government and the manner in which the Government seeks to achieve its vision.

I would like to end by clarifying a matter raised by the Leader of the Opposition. He made a statement to the effect that this Government should have $95 million more in funds available than he did when he was Leader of Government Business. The way that fuzzy math was explained to this House was that the Government borrowed $8 million in 2000, he borrowed $55 million when he was Leader of Government Business, and two sets of $12 million over the 2001/2003 period, which comes to a total of $95 million.

The problem is that money has long been spent and the last time we had a full year Budget, which was 2002, there was much said by the current Members of the Opposition that we were going to destroy the financial industry, that the fees were too burdensome. The Government believes we made the right decision that has allowed us to put this country on a solid footing in terms of its finances.

When one looks at the various sections of the Budget and understands that this Budget is fiscally responsible; it provides a $5.7 million surplus. This Budget also shows the Government's commitment to investing in this country. That is why we have the equity investments in the Health Services Authority and the equity investment in Cayman Airways. That is why we have the capital projects and that is why we are proposing an authority to run the development of roads. I think we all agree that when we put activities of Government in a statutory authority they are run more efficiently. I think we would all agree that the Port Authority, the Civil Aviation Authority, the Water Authority are all run more efficiently than central Government because people have the possibility to make decisions that are more business-like. Therefore, with the provisions of roads we see that as a key.

There was mention made of the financing initiatives and how those would be shared with the private sector when it comes to our roads. I would just say, because time is out, that certainly there are many models around the world where the private sector assists in building roads. The Cayman Islands is not the only country that is going to do this. There are many countries that have and certainly other speakers who will come behind me on the Government Bench will expound upon that particular point more.

When I look at the objectives and the vision of the United Democratic Party Government, I am very pleased that I can stand here and say that the Leader of the Opposition did not address the vast majority of our crucial objectives. He knows that these objectives are well founded, very much needed solid programmes that will allow us to achieve the vision, the leadership, the way forward that we are providing for the people of the Cayman Islands. Madam Speaker —

The Speaker: Honourable Member, you have 12 minutes remaining.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Madam Speaker, I would just like to end off by thanking Honourable Members for listening to my contribution to the Budget. I would like to thank the Honourable Third Official Member for delivering sterling Budget Address. I would like to thank all of his staff as well for all the hard work they have done. I think that I have provided some answers and some light to the Leader of the Opposition and to the Opposition as a whole and to the public of the Cayman Islands. There were some fundamental misunderstandings of how Government accounts for its monies; there was a fundamental lack of understanding as to what a Budget deficit or surplus was.

I would like to say that it is quite thrilling to have a Budget that has vision, is founded in good policies and is fiscally responsible. That is the most important thing that can be delivered to a country by its Government. I thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Honourable Deputy Leader.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until tomorrow, 20 June 2003 at 10 am.

The Speaker: The question is that the Honourable House be adjourned until Friday, 20 June 2003 at 10am. All those in favour, please say Aye. All those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

At 4.37 pm the House stood adjourned until Friday, 20 June 2003 at 10 am.

OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT
FRIDAY
20 JUNE 2003
10.32 AM
Sixth Sitting

The Speaker: I will call upon the Honourable Third Official Member to grace us with prayers.

PRAYERS

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal Family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office. All this we ask for Thy great Name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together:

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

Proceedings resumed at 10.35am

READING BY THE HONOURABLE
SPEAKER OF MESSAGES
AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

Quorum

The Speaker: Please be seated. I observe Honourable Members that there is not a quorum in the House it is now 20 minutes to 11. I would direct the Serjeant to have a quorum in this House, as there are Members in the precinct of Parliament that can make up a quorum. I will do an in-House suspension for five minutes at which I time I would want this Honourable Parliament to commence its Business, which is of paramount importance to this country.

Apologies

I would say that I have received apologies from the Leader and Deputy Leader of Government, the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs. Thank you.

Is this now quorate?

STATEMENTS BY HONOURABLE
MINISTERS/MEMBERS
OF THE GOVERNMENT

The Speaker: I have received notice of a statement from the Honourable Minister for Community Affairs. He also did call to tender his apologies for late attendance, therefore, I will call on the Leader of Government Business to make a motion for it to be set down later on this morning if it is still his intention to deliver the statement.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, the Minister is unavoidably late and I do believe that he intends to make the statement. I would move that this can happen at an appropriate time at the end of today rather than breaking any Member's train of thought.

Motion to Defer Statement

The Speaker: Thank you. The question is that the statement that is intended to be made by the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs be made at the close of today's business.

All those in favour, please say Aye. All those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed. The Honourable Minister has permission to make his statement at the close of today's business.

SECOND READING

The Appropriation (July 2003 to June 2004) Bill 2003

Debate on the Budget Address delivered by the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for the Portfolio of Finance and Economics on Tues- day, 17 June 2003

(Continuation of debate thereon)

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?
The Honourable Minister responsible for Education.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to give my contribution to the Budget debate and I shall largely confine myself to the portfolios within the Ministry to which I have been assigned. Before coming to that point I would wish to preface that contribution by some general comments which are applicable to the debate which has transpired thus far.

I listened very intently to the Leader of the Opposition as he got up to give his perspective on the Budget. I wondered after listening to him for a while whether the Honourable Leader of Government Business should not take back the title he once bestowed upon me, and give it to the Leader of the Opposition. Because it seems that the Leader of the Opposition has become a chef of flowery language.

I really wondered if the gentleman had lost his sense of reality; I wondered if the gentleman did not realise that for one year he was the Leader of Government Business; I wondered if the gentleman did not realise that many of the prerequisites were put in place at that time. I wondered if he forgot that he has to assume some responsibility for the courses of action, which have to be taken at this time? It never ceases to amaze me the hypocrisy that sometimes transpires in forums like this and before it is all over I am certainly going to do my best to set the record straight.

I believe that the Government did its best in delivering this Budget. Of course, it is not perfect, it was never intended to be and were it perfect I do not know what we would do. However, under the circumstances, Madam Speaker, all and sundry, can associate with the objectives the Government has set for itself and the outputs, which it has set to purchase.

I do not believe, with all due respect to the lady and gentleman on the other side, that under the circumstances they could do any better and I am really alarmed. I am going to say this at the outset because I heard a newsreader this morning on Radio Cayman, and these people ought to be a little more careful of how they exhibit their prejudices. I was surprised that in addressing certain people that their title was not used and it seemed to me that proper respect for the office was not accorded. I know that we are all human and we are prone at times to letting go but these people ought to remember, like the rest of us, their positions are vulnerable and so when they speak, if they do not respect the office holder, they should be careful to respect the office. Enough said.

It is the duty of the Opposition to stand up and criticize the Government. It is the duty of the Opposition to point out the shortcomings of what the Government is doing and I would expect that the Opposition would do that. I would implore, indeed, I would encourage them to do that. However, they must do so in such a way that the facts are not deliberately distorted or contorted, that the correct, deserving and accurate impressions are given because it is no good to accuse the Government of one-upmanship when the Opposition is playing the same game. We have been in this arena long enough to understand that, "Why should the Opposition make the Government look good when it is the objective of the Opposition to one day become the Government?"

I want to say from the outset that I respect the position of the Opposition, I respect the fact that they are critical of Government policies, they have to be! That is their role and their responsibility however it must be done within accepted and civilised Westminster practices. Otherwise they are doing themselves a great disservice and great disfavour.

It really does not matter to me at the end of the day if they acknowledge me as a friend or not; I have survived and existed, no twin and no triplet.

The Cayman Islands are perhaps in their most challenging time. The world economy is not doing us any favours and for years now we have had to embark on a series of belt-tightening exercises and we have had to prioritise in ways we have not to prioritise before and it is difficult because it is not a position to which we were accustomed. Thus, at a time when it seems society is placing an increasing demand on the political directorate for services, it is of critical importance that the Government prioritises its action.

We have embarked on new financial management initiatives, Madam Speaker, and I am reminded that from 1995 a proposal was made to go this route; we have just started now. It is difficult because it is a learning exercise. It is still largely experimental; we are feeling our way. When we juxtapose that against our economic position the challenge of doing excellently is even greater and that is the challenge in which the Government is trying to come to grips with and is trying to find a suitable and credible way forward.

We have demands from society for improved and increased social services, educational services and health services. At the same time we have contraction because of international pressures from the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), the Financial Action Task Force (FATF) and from the administering power itself.

I believe that we have done well to present a Budget a little over $300 million, which deals fairly with all the challenges and demands with which we are faced. I would caution against anyone who paints pictures in glowing terms and thinks that the solution just lies in a simple change of players or a simple switch.

There is no differing ideology. I believe, between the Government and the Opposition, it is just perhaps a matter of differing priorities, and even among the priorities there are no significant differences—I am sure. Therefore, anyone who gets up and tries to project the notion that by a simple change of players, the ills of the country will be remedied, is indeed purporting a false remedy.

What we are talking about is no change in the ideology, no change in direction. We are simply talking about a change in philosophy; a change in leadership. I was not the architect, however as I understand it, since the question was posed on the other side, the difference came because of inertia and inaction. People wanted movement and there was no movement! Rip Van Winkle, had fallen asleep and would not wake up. That is why the change was made since the question was posed. That is why it was made!

[Inaudible interjection]

I have had three years and have not done anything? I hit the ground running. I am glad the Member interjected at that point because it gives me an opportunity to really tell the aspiring Education Ministers the challenge that they will face, and they will get their chance. I just hope when I hand it to them they can appreciate it and they know what to do with it and that the past is no indication of the future.

When I came to it, it seemed the Ministry of Education was faced with a myriad of intractable problems. I did not set about finger pointing and blaming anyone; I did what I thought needed to be done. I set about implementing programmes that I thought would bring improvement to the education system, that I thought would have beneficial effects for the students. Two of those programmes were started with no provision in the Budget. I went to the Chamber of Commerce and said, "I have been talking about a mentoring programme, would you help?" Hence, we implemented a mentoring programme. I thought that youngsters needed leadership and direction because they were gravitating to criminal gangs. I thought a Cadet Corps would be a very important and positive alternative and so I did. You can check the records, Madam Speaker, there was no special provision made. I contend I hit the ground running.

For years people have been talking about something to improve teaching and I have been saying that we need to make greater use of information technology. As a result of that we launched the ITALIC (Improving Teaching and Learning in the Cayman Islands) programme, a $6 million project over five years with IBM as our strategic partners, financed, Madam Speaker, by IBM. This project, at its maturity, will culminate in every child in the public school system of the Cayman Islands having access to his or her laptop computer during school hours.

Madam Speaker, I have not done anything?

Hon. Roy Bodden: I can go on, I can go on but I say if an educator cannot lead education then who can? Which of them can? Tell me? It seems like every cook thinks that he or she can govern!

[Inaudible interjection]

I do not want this to degenerate into self-righteousness because trust me they cannot win any war against me. My record in here speaks for itself and if anybody believes that they are not going to have a fight, trying to steal the constituency from myself and the Minister of Health; be ready for war!

[Inaudible interjection]

You better try to save yours. When you do 16 years then you can talk.

The Speaker: Members please direct comments through the Chair.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Perhaps I can refer you to a proverb: "Boast not he that is putting on his armour as much as he who is taking it off."

I was saying that we have the ITALIC programme. We continued the implementation of the Millett Report restructuring the Education Department, strengthening the Department by appointing people to posts which were not filled.

We had a look at the curriculum. I initiated the idea of turning the George Hicks High School into a fully-fledged high school and we had widespread consultations. The reason why no more progress has been made to date is because we are building a third high school and the experts informed us that it was of critical importance for the curricula of the three high schools to be identical; there should be no significant differences and as a result of that it would be wise for us to ensure that we have that in order before we progress further.

Work continues on the national curriculum although I must say I am not at all happy that the pace is not faster than it is, however I understand the contingencies. The contingencies are that the plans were laid in place and that there was no provision for substitute teachers. As a result the teachers who are working on the national curriculum still have the responsibility of teaching full time classes.

It was a pity that we have not yet developed in this country a pool of substitute teachers who can be used in situations like that so that when we give assignments to the regular classroom teachers we do not have any break in the instruction.

The school's inspectorate has completed his first round of inspection. It has even inspected some of the private schools, I am moving now towards bringing the private schools into the ITALIC project because it is of critical importance that the public school system and the private school system are in tandem.

Therefore, when I hear self-appointed people stand up and talk nonsense I wonder where their plan is. Where is their plan? I have not heard any alternative, I have heard criticism however I have not heard any alternative. Anyone can criticize and, Heaven knows, I know because I spent 12 years on that side. I do not mind taking the criticism if it is constructive, however if someone sets up to destroy me then it is my nature to be retaliatory. I am not a gentleman! I refuse to turn the other cheek!

The physical facilities of the public schools need significant improvements however when I assumed office I did not point fingers, I did not lay any blame, I quietly set about trying to address the problems as best I could with the financial resources that were available. I am proud to say most recently that the Executive Council has given approval for the building of three new schools.

One new primary school, to be built on Poindexter Road just a little to the south of Patrick's Island, is expected to be completed by September 2004. Even as I speak Members of the Ministry staff are in negotiations with persons representing the contractor to get this thing sorted out. Once the process of construction has begun there can be no interruptions. Following that, the high school in Frank Sound, that the Member for North Side supported and was one of the earliest advocates for, as well as another primary school in West Bay, is to be completed in September 2005.

I note that the Leader of the Opposition poked fun at our having to resort to temporary classrooms. Well, Madam Speaker, I can assure you that these temporary classrooms are needed. It is not a situation that I feel happy about however it is a situation that we have to confront; we have to deal with that. In so doing I ensured that aesthetically the classrooms are no less pleasing to the eye than what we have permanently structured now. They have the same comforts, the same safety features with the same accommodation levels of what we have in place. We need them because there has been a basic weakness in our educational planning. There is an absence of statistics and projections that allows us to accurately deal with the enrolments and any ballooning in those enrolments! That, Madam Speaker, is one of the weaknesses I have addressed in my tenure of three years.

We will now have statistics and projections that will allow us to take care of any enrolment, or any balloons in enrolments, and we will have contingencies built in so that even if there are unanticipated consequences — unanticipated consequences being significant movement of pupils from the private to the public system — we will be able to accommodate them. However, Madam Speaker, Rome was not built in a day.

I could not have done some of these things if I did not have a background in educational administration and if I were not an educator with years of hands-on experience. These things are not accomplished by dreamers; these things are not accompanied by chefs of flowery language!

I say without fear of successful contradiction that, God willing, when my tenure is up I will pit that against anybody's and if the judge is impartial he will have to say Minister you gave a good account of yourself.

It is not about me but about the future of the Cayman Islands and I say again that I hear the screamers. However, when they get it I want to see what they are going to do with it! This is what they told me when I was in school, the difference between mediocrity and superiority is that the superior person hits the ground running. I came with my plan! From day one, when I sat down after being sworn in, and, after consulting with the Government and getting their approval, I knew the direction in which education had to move in this country because I know that education for the Cayman Islands must be, like Napoleon said the conscript army was for France, "the vitality of the nation". I can boast proudly that the public school system is not inferior to any private school system. Indeed in many areas it is superior.

The business about the shortage of Caymanian teachers was something that I moved immediately to address by commissioning a study and we are acting upon that study now because education is one of those areas which gets preference in the award of scholarships. We are moving to implement our own teacher training programmes at the Community College beginning in September 2004. As we speak we are negotiating with a respected university to work in collaboration with them so that we can train our own teachers in such a way that they will benefit from experience in another jurisdiction.

Therefore, I do not see the accuracy in saying that the Government has not made significant achievements in education. We have worked to improve the physical facilities. We had some unanticipated setbacks with the George Town Primary School, which leads me to say that we are in the process of developing a long-term plan for that school because we realise that there is a basic weakness. I am happy to say that in all these significant developments I kept the Members apprised. I invited the Leader of the Opposition and other Members including the Government Ministers to George Town Primary School. We visited the site and I explained to them what we are trying to do. I am glad that no one can say that they were left out of the loop when it came to dealing with these problems.

The John Gray High School will have to be dealt with because the school buildings have exhausted their natural life. They are termite ridden and in serious state of disrepair; it does not make sense to spend good money patching and doing temporary repairs. We had a significant setback with the George Hicks School where we had to replace major portions, whole blocks of some buildings. We had to deal with unanticipated events and occurrences while at the same time servicing normal demands. This was handled responsibly because the children suffered no major inconveniences and we managed this within the budget that we had. Of course, we had to make some cutbacks.

In the area of scholarships a record was set when we awarded 61 scholarships to tertiary level institutions overseas. We are embarking on a major change again and I had my officers come and give a presentation to all Members of this Honourable House, so that they could understand the direction in which we are all moving. Therefore, in the event that there is a successor who is new, they will have the option of following the philosophical direction or changing it as they see fit. However, no one can claim; they were denied any or lack of information, any knowledge of what was being done or that the Minister was not forthcoming.

I, Madam Speaker, will take criticism; I have never set myself up as a paragon of virtue, however, I will only accept criticism, which is fair and just. I am not so chivalrous that I will let anyone dump any scented material on me that I do not deserve to have dumped on me.

[Inaudible interjections]

You cannot call me your friend and expect to kick me and spit on me and strike me down. I do not want those kinds of friends. You know what kind of relations I like. "You know what happen Mister? I do not have any use for you, so you stay on your side and I will stay on mine. Okay?" I appreciate those kinds of people. I say for the rest of time I have here I would prefer not to deal with some people and I want them to know I love them as much as they love me. Okay?

Before I leave the matter of Education I want to turn to some challenges that I think that we all have to come to grips with. It falls to the Government to set the tone, the example and to ensure that the proper resources are in place. It falls to the Opposition, as the watch dogs and the gatekeepers, to ensure that the Government is minding its 'P's and Q's' and that these things are in place. Perhaps most importantly, to the wider society as the arbiters, the gatekeepers and the proving grounds for the products that come from education.

We send our children to get educated and we tell them that they need to get educated because education is the prerequisite for jobs in society and most of them do very well. They go away, they get educated but what do they return to, Madam Speaker? They return to a society in which far too many of them encounter problems getting employment by being told that they need experience.

In the meantime, we continue to grant work permits in alarming numbers and we have a growing problem in our society. A problem which the sooner we come to grips with the better it will be. For if we do not come to grips with it one of two things will happen. One, and the most obvious and perhaps the easier, of the two is that the young people whom we send abroad are soon going to begin voting with their feet and will exercise their option not to return. It is a phenomenon common to Island societies where many of the young people when they get educated move away. I am saying that the Cayman Islands cannot afford that and I am saying we need to arrive at more coherent policies in our immigration and the granting of work permits whereby our people quite rightly can be ensured of positions for which they are qualified in our society (the public service as well as the private sector) and that gives me the opening to say something else.

One of the things which this Government has done, in recognition of this levelling of the playing field, as it is so often described, is that we have removed the bond from some of these people coming to work in Government and have structured it in such a way that the obligation is to return to work in the Cayman Islands and if they get a job with the Government that is fine. However the Government will have to bid like any other interested party (or if they have been working in the private sector or in some cases they may choose to be entrepreneurs and work for themselves) because, Madam Speaker, the Civil Service was becoming bloated and many of the young people were frustrated because there was no room for upward mobility.

Therefore, we believe this is a much better system. Certainly, from the cursory feedback that we have received we believe that the vast majority are satisfied with this. However, it goes beyond that, it goes to this point; entities operating within these Islands should have an obligation to seriously consider young Caymanians who are qualified and returning home. If I had the time and if I were so disposed I could read a litany of ills committed against these young Caymanians who have difficulty accessing jobs whilst work permits continue to be granted.

I see some ridiculous advertisements prior to renewing a work permit. There should be a law against that kind of advertising, because right away you know that there is a prejudice so you need not apply. They tailor and craft advertisements to suit people whom they already have in their employ. In the meantime more and more of our people are frustrated and I have said to the Government that the physician needs to heal himself in many cases. I believe that the Government is prepared to do that. This is not a matter for the politicians, however the administrative arm of the Government is doing its best to ensure that, where possible, young Caymanians get their fair share and the playing field is level.

It is absolutely necessary that we offer training particularly in technical and vocational areas however our investigations have found that we were not successful in the past because we were going about it in the wrong way. We need to introduce these subjects earlier in school, possibly the last year of primary school into middle school and high school. We need to change the focus and the way that these subjects are taught. That is why we are focusing so much on information technology because many of these subjects are now taught using information technology.

Later this year we will be having a technical and vocational trade fair in which many of this country's major entities will have booths where our young people can whet their appetites and can learn what it takes to get into these areas. We are strengthening the teaching of these subjects at middle school and high school and gearing the Community College to deal with them at post-secondary level. This is an exercise that will take some time before the full reports are obvious because we have to start from the very beginning. There is a need to change the philosophy, to change the method by which we were approaching this subject.

The Permanent Secretary and I visited the Samuel Jackman Prescod Polytechnic Institute in Barbados, perhaps the ideal in the Caribbean for teaching technical and vocational studies at the post-secondary level. The Barbadian Government invested a significant amount of money in information and communications technology. Analysers and all kinds of modern equipment that costs tens of thousands of dollars are available to students. When you go into the workshops the floors are sparkling clean, the walls are clean, there is no oil, there is no one with dirty fingers, dirty clothes or greasy hands; a purely scientific method. It was done that way because, like the Cayman Islands, Barbados also experience a stigmatising of these kinds of vocations.

Therefore, we will have to invest. However we will have to caution against investing all these millions in a laboratory to begin at that level without first laying the proper foundations to ensure that the students have the proper orientation and initiation into these subjects. We must begin from the very beginning and that is what we are trying to do because it will be folly to invest in this kind of equipment if our students do not have the orientation towards that. The only way to do that is to ensure that they have the foundations from middle school up through high school level.

We are working, in the Employment Relations Department, to change and professionalise many of the attitudes of our people and we have done well. We have restructured the Department. I am happy to say that relations between employer and employee are not as adversarial as it used to be because the focus now is on arbitration, conciliation and mediation. We have significantly reduced the backlog of tribunal cases and we are working to bring them to a manageable point. The occurrence now, Madam Speaker, is significantly less than it was and, all and sundry will admit that there is greater confidence in the department and the staff now than there was because we realise that there needs to be a change of attitude.

To further augment this change we have introduced the "investors in people standard", where employees in both the public and private sector . . . We just launched the pilot project and we have a tremendous outpouring of interest from the private sector.

We have representation of some of the major firms in business and commerce in the private sector in the Cayman Islands as well as significant representation from the public sector on this pilot. We are enthusiastic about that because the standard is an international standard and we know that it can only serve to improve the quality of the Caymanian employee. We offer a referral service and we offer good training to Caymanians.

We worked in close liaison with the Fluor Daniel construction company at the Ritz Carlton and we were successful in getting from them a commitment to not only train but to credentialise some Caymanian workers and they have been doing that.

A few days ago, the Director of the Employment Relations Department, the Senior Compliance Officer and I went to celebrate the milestone of one million hours of accident-free construction. Madam Speaker, it is a record of great significance and the majority of the workers were Caymanians. I stood up and challenged them when I had to and I was successful in ensuring that the Caymanian worker was not only hired but was given an opportunity to be trained and to be credentialed and the relationship is going well.

The relationship is going well and the Caymanian worker is welcomed and the partnership is an excellent partnership; we are making strides Madam Speaker. We are moving towards the kind of system at the Employment Relations Department where the website can be accessed so that there will be no need to come to the office if someone has access to the computer and not only do we do that but we offer other services as well.

We offer assistance in reference writing; services in counselling, department, dress, appearance, and attitude — all of these things where necessary. We do regular inspections of construction sites and offices. We are assiduous in following up complaints of layoffs, constructive dismissal, unfair dismissal and other complaints from employees. However, Madam Speaker, we are fair and impartial to ensure that in all of the dealings we have the respect of both parties. I want to say that although we are successful, it is a situation with which I am not entirely happy because a tripartite system should exist in which there is the employee, the employer and the Government in the middle. I say again, in any democracy and civil society organisations should rise up to represent the employees.

Categorically and unequivocally, I call for workers to organise themselves in unions. In this, I have no apology because for the system to work in its ideal that is how it should be.

The Employment Relations Department must be a neutral entity in any dispute and sometimes we find it difficult because we have to be impartial. To sit in judgement in a situation like that is most challenging and most tenuous.

There seems to be in this country, an oligarchy (I hope is suffering the death rattles) which has a most obscene opposition to any worker organising themselves in a manner in which they can represent themselves. Madam Speaker, it is an antiquated notion that unions are militant and disruptive; they are designed to represent the interests of the worker and right now employers have their union, so why should employees not have the same kind of representation?

I will speak about the Labour Law before I conclude my debate. However, I am going to dwell more on the essence and importance of employees having some kind of representative body other than depending on the Employment Relations Department, which should be neutral.

We are trying to help those who are coming in to the labour force by working on a summer employment programme for our students. We have restructured the Department so that we now have a health and safety officer; someone whose responsibility it is to ensure that people practicing in certain trades and professions are equipped to avoid accidents and injury. We are trying to change the attitude of the worker from one of lethargy, uncaring, arrogance to one of teamwork, partnership and respect. In so doing, we also demand the co-operation of the employers for an attitude of responsibility, respect, co-operation and leadership.

If the Cayman Islands are to remain a jurisdiction of excellence we must find a formula to work together as partners. Sometimes, Madam Speaker, I have to take unpopular stands, I have to call people in and let them understand in no uncertain terms that we will brook no slackness, no insolence. We will not accommodate constructive dismissals, unfair dismissals and advantages. There are, Madam Speaker, still many challenges to be met.

We have circulated the proposed Labour Law and later in this Sitting, I intend to table the drafting instructions, which were arrived at as a result of widespread consultations and feedback from some elements in society. I regret that there was little or no feedback from employees, but we did our best to solicit their dispositions and to try to find out their concerns, to include those and to be as fair and unbiased as we could be. We realise that when the new law comes must be seen as being fair and impartial. What is significant about that is it will be a law under which the civil service will also fall, which adds to the importance of it being conclusive, comprehensive and fair. It is a challenge, Madam Speaker, of which I will say a little more later.

In culture we have made strides, first by reassessing the amounts of money that we dispense on the various areas within the portfolio. We have succeeded in creating a new awareness among entertainers and the musicians association. In the past, we gave them a small grant and they were pretty much left to fend on their own. We have succeeded in organising them in a way where they are now not so dependent upon the Government and have taken great and significant strides to help themselves. Most recently we were the sponsors of a seminar dealing with intellectual and property rights; preparing them to be more self-sufficient, to benefit more and to protect works that originate with them.

Later this year I hope to enhance that by bringing a resource person from Jamaica to follow up on that seminar which was offered under the auspices of an expert attorney from the University of the West Indies. Hence, what we are doing is taking a closer look at deriving the best value for the monies we are dispensing. We are preparing these organisations to be much more self-sufficient and much less dependent on the Government for handouts because it is necessary, under our new Financial Management Initiative, to ensure that the outputs which we set out to purchase are those outputs we end up with in the long run.

The Cultural Foundation continues to do well and we are in the process of embarking on a cultural policy because it is necessary.

The National Gallery and all the organisations that fall under this are doing excellent. I believe that the Ministry is deriving good value for the monies that we spend and we dispense with on these organisations.

Most recently, the National Gallery arranged a trip to Cuba where one of our local artists, the photographer, Mr. Patrick Broderick, worked in collaboration with a Cuban photographer, Roberto Salas. An exhibition of great excellence; Dos Visiones (Two Visions) was opened, in which Mr. Broderick went to Cuba and Senor Salas came to Cayman, to do some photography. That exhibition was opened with great fanfare in Havana and, as Minister representing the Cayman Islands Government, I participated in that opening. It got rave reviews. Later it will be opening in New York and it will be opening in London in December.

Our young artists continue to achieve excellence and the Ministry and the Portfolio continues to support them. We are getting good value for the monies we are spending and I am satisfied and I am pleased with the resurgence and the appreciation of art and culture in the Cayman Islands. It is as if there is a renaissance. People are realising the value in these things and that is good, if only from the point of view that people recognise and realise that there are other important vocations. That everyone need not aspire to be white collar, particularly in a time when it seems our financial area and industry is shrinking as a result of forced attrition from outside sources.

I have visited exhibitions of art by school children and the National Children's Festival of the Arts, which has just celebrated 21 years of existence. That is a prime example of the plethora of young people we have whose standard can be displayed anywhere in the world whether it be regionally or internationally. We continue to do well.

The Cayman Islands too must take advantage of the myriad of other cultures represented here because the Cayman Islands, although a microcosm, is cosmopolitan in the sense that we have almost every nation represented here. We need to take example of that because culture is dynamic, it is ever-evolving and ever-growing and we have to find a way to assimilate and to take advantage. That is why I am happy the Quincentennial Office is having the celebration this weekend, where all of the other cultures represented here will have an opportunity to exhibit and highlight aspects of their culture. It is only by so doing that we can eliminate prejudice and ethnocentricity; that we can have an appreciation not only of what we stand for but of what others represent. Thus, the Portfolio of Culture is also doing well.

Later this year, the 'History of the Cayman Islands' will be available and, although it would seem to have had the gestation period of an elephant, I am sure when the final product arrives it will be worthwhile. I would hope then that the product becomes a starting point for other researchers and academics to enquire into this entity called 'Caymanian' and it will inspire them to explore, research and to write about themselves. I believe, as a reader of history, that the best representation of what Caymanians are, would be derived from Caymanians themselves; no disrespect to eminent academics from outside.

The Ministry of Education, Human Resources and Culture has been accorded a significant amount of money in the Budget to carry out their programmes. However, this is to be expected because this is a Ministry concerned with development of society's people, its human capital, and it only stands to reason that the monies accorded it in the Budget be of significant proportion. Therefore, it can afford the Ministry and, by inference the Government, to develop its people to the fullest extent.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, you have one hour remaining. Would you like the morning break now or do you wish to continue?

Hon. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. This would be a convenient time for the morning break.

The Speaker: We will take the morning break for approximately 15 minutes.

Proceedings suspended at 11.39am

Proceedings resumed at 12.07pm

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Continuing the debate; the Honourable Minister of Education. Before he rises to continue I wish to give apologies for the Honourable First Official Member, who timely submitted them, which I omitted to put on the record this morning. I beg your apologies.

The Honourable Minister of Education.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I wish to begin drawing my contribution to a close by sharing some of the initiatives for the future, which the Ministry has embarked upon.

I want to begin with the movement of the Community College to a University College. We have $235,000 of additional funding in the Budget for this because some time ago I received a proposal from the Board of Governors of the College. It was a proposal which I studied most diligently, taking several factors into consideration some of which I have already shared with Members of this Honourable House. However, I will reiterate this one because I think that it is of paramount importance.

Ever since I came to the Ministry I was concerned with the Government's ability to sustain the number of tertiary level scholarships that we were awarding to our students to study abroad. Upon doing some calculations, I realised that, unless we made special dispensation, we were likely to arrive at a point within five years where we would find it difficult to sustain the ever-increasing numbers, therefore something needed to be done. It would be most impolitic and most unacceptable if we were to find ourselves in a position where we had to cut the number of scholarships; therefore we had to find a creative and acceptable solution. It was, Madam Speaker, most timely and appropriate that this proposal should have come from the Board of Governors of the College.

It has been decided by the Government that the College should be allowed to pursue this and it is now in the hands of the Board of Governors and the president of the College. I will say that the proposal is to offer only the most popular courses to the Bachelors degree level: teacher education, business studies, accounting, business management and finance. Ideally, it will be structured in such a way that our students have residence abroad at the affiliated college or university with whom the University College of the Cayman Islands is associated.

I believe that this is a wise and sensible move. It certainly is a move that will enable the Government to continue to award scholarships at the levels and at the rates which it has in the past. At the same time it allowed us to change the policy so that the Government now gives, albeit in a limited number to begin with, scholarships for our students to study at Masters and Doctorate post-graduate level. I believe that this again is a wise and sensible move because many of our students have first degrees in areas and disciplines where those first degrees now are little other than entrance into the various vocations and professions and it is necessary to have advanced degrees.

For the other disciplines we will have to continue to give scholarships at the baccalaureate level to our students to go abroad and I would hope that gradually we can take greater advantage of the facilities at the University of the West Indies, which we currently only utilise, it seems, for the study of medicine.

I pledged that at the end of my tenure, God willing, I would leave the country with a modern Education Law. I am happy to say that, even as we speak, I am studying the draft of that Law. It will be based on a number of new and significant developments, not the least of which is the new Finance and Management Initiatives, and on all of the advances which have taken place in information and communications technology.

It is necessary to have a new law because I would like to leave a written code of conduct for the students in our school system. I would like to have incorporated in the Law the rights and responsibilities of both teachers and students, so that it can be clear to all and sundry, what their rights and responsibilities are. I would like to more clearly articulate the role and function of the Chief Education Officer. We also have to take cognisance of a new phenomenon for which we are getting more and more applications, that is, for people to home school their children. We need to set out clear criterion and standards. I would like to see articulated in law the association of the private schools with regard to the Government and public schools.

I hope to circulate the drafting instructions for study, consultation and for public consumption and I would hope, towards the end of the year, this could be brought back to the House in a Bill form. I believe that this will be of crucial significance because I have found certain situations rather awkward and tenuous. For example, the Minister of Education sits as Chairman of the Education Council. I believe that is an awkward situation and I believe that the Minister and his Permanent Secretary should be removed from that Board and should be in positions where they can offer themselves as a court of last resort. Some other provisions need to be made because we have to take into consideration the demands of civil society.

We are also bringing the new Cadet Corps Law which governs the establishment and the running of the Cadet Corps and all of the responsibilities that the instructors will have.

I say, with a sense of accomplishment, that to do this the Government deserves credit for doing this because the Government sees this Ministry as a flagship, perhaps of the same significance as the Ministries of Health and Social Services, because we are service and people oriented. These are the three flagship Ministries which our people rely on for access to education, health services and opportunities, and to be a buffer against all of the shocks and pitfalls we experience in a growing and dynamic society.

In conclusion, I believe that the Budget as presented by the Government is a good Budget under the circumstances. Certainly in the Ministry for which I have responsibility, I believe that we have been comprehensive, thorough and as fair as circumstances allow us to be. I believe that the Government deserves credit for what it is trying to do. By the same token, I recognise the right of the Opposition to take the stance that they have taken and certainly after 12 years on that side I cannot blame them. It is their responsibility to make the Government look like it does not know what it is doing. However, I am happy to say that I am part of a Government which is assertive, cognisant of needs and is dynamic. I believe that we can be justly proud of our accomplishments and I am sure that the Budget will bear out that we are responsible and that we are catering to the needs of our society.

I say, Madam Speaker, that in all that I have said, and as stern as I have been, I respect the Opposition and I wish them well. However they have some time yet to go before they can replace us as Government. I am watching them and they need to marinate a little longer. I hope that they are not doing what the marl road has them doing; trying to go in the closet and bring out old ghosts that we buried a long time ago.

[Inaudible interjections]

The Speaker: Order!

Hon. Roy Boddén: Madam Speaker, that seems a good note to end on; all parties are talking again. I think that it is time for me to sit down. Thank you.

The Speaker: Thank you Honourable Minister. Does any other Member wish to speak?

The Honourable Minister responsible for Health.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In times past the only thing that I had the opportunity of doing was to talk in the Legislative Assembly, as I spent most of my Parliamentary career as an Opposition Member. Since I have been part of the Executive I have done much less and perhaps it is time that I should change that particular mode and get back to talking again.

On such an important issue as the National Budget, I think that it is extremely important that I should offer some views on it and comment on a few areas for which I hold Ministerial responsibility.

I had the opportunity to listen to some of the debate of the Leader of the Opposition and, as I listened, I thought he did an extremely good job to put across one point of view that would stick if another point of view was not offered. Therefore, that is one of the reasons I think it is important to speak on this Budget.

The country ought to know, and we in this Legislature know, that this is the first time that we have a budget of this type; at least a 12-month budget. We started out the half-year from January to June and we are told that the Treasury will be closing the books on the 25th of this month. Therefore any bills or any other financial transactions will actually come to a close at that time. We are now entering into a new phase, a new world, a new mode of accounting and, irrespective of the fact that the Budget is made up of four rather large documents, never before in the history of the Cayman Islands has there been so much detail and information on the finances of Government. I think that it is good for the benefit of the public. I do not know how many would be interested but I suppose the accounting firms and some others would be interested in getting these. I am not sure how many copies the Finance Department has produced, however we have the Annual Plan and Estimates which is the document that largely contains everything. Then there is the purchase agreement and I found it very fascinating myself to note some of the things that are in this purchase agreement book.

I did not know, for example, that the Government gave a subsidy, or a donation, or contribution or whatever to the Cayman Islands Domino Club. However, this book here has left nothing out as to where Government money goes. It clearly shows that $2000 is given for the year and what the Domino Club is expected to do and to produce.

For those people who are computer wizards, unfortunately I am not although I would love to be, there is a website— www.gov.ky— that people can actually go to and see these documents. It is very fascinating and, when we talk about transparency, never before in my career have I seen so much information. It is all there, and I have been around the Legislative Assembly for quite a long time. I think it is interesting, from the point of view of information, that transparency is here and readily available for any and everyone to see.

I wish to compliment the people that worked at putting these documents together and I would not try to name who they all are because no doubt I would leave out someone. However, I can think of three that I have seen around every so often: Mr. Kenneth Jefferson, Mr. Tony Dale and Mr. Gough. I think that they really deserve a lot of thanks for having prepared these documents. I am sure that there were others behind the scenes; however I just mention those three because they were there to explain what was happening when we needed information on something. We are now in a situation where it is no longer possible, as in the past, where money for various pet projects could be hidden in big bulk amounts. Now it has all been broken out and it all clearly shows what the situation is and I think that is good for everybody.

The Leader of the Opposition spoke at considerable length about the fact that they were not given sufficient time to prepare. I would have been fearful if they had more time seeing the amount of things, which he was able to cover in what he delivered yesterday. Therefore, I do not really agree that there was not sufficient time as it is so well detailed now that it is easier to find the things you might want to find or believe that you need to know about.

I could say to the Opposition that, believe it or not, much of this information has been put together by the Budget Unit and they have been working on it for weeks and months and it was only in its very last stages (in the last process really) when the Executive Council had to decide finally from a political perspective to do this, to really go with this project or that project. Then the political decision had to be, if that is done, do we borrow and if we borrow how do we go about it and that was the final stage. I can say to the Opposition that we the Government did not have a long time with this Budget.

As I look around, Madam Speaker, I see Mr. Bodden from the Budget Unit. He is obviously involved because he is here making sure that he takes any notes and observes any changes and so on which might be made in the course of the debate and the Finance Committee which will follow. Therefore, I say that the Budget is truly what it states itself to be. One cannot hide anything anymore in it hence the Budget is exactly what it claims to be.

Another thing peculiar to this Budget is that it is now in Law and it has to be completed by a certain time or then we will be in breach of the Law. The timeline of our new fiscal year begins on the 1 July. To the best of my knowledge and belief that is a timeline that we are working towards and we need to have the Budget completed by that time.

It was not easy to come up with this Budget. It was not easy for this Government, back in December of last year when we came to the House, when we were forced to institute certain revenue measures that had never been instituted to such an extent before and we all knew that we were not gaining political popularity by doing so.

This Government simply found itself in a position where the cash flow (that has always been the friend of the Cayman Islands) was no longer there. The reality was that the country needed certain money to be able to carry on the business of the country and that was the only way forward. We all, in this Legislative Assembly, should be aware of one thing. That is, the United Kingdom Government is more obtrusive and into the financial process of the Cayman Islands more than ever before. That is a fact; that is my way of stating it and it is a fact and it is that strong at this time.

We have regular visits from economists for the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) to see what we are doing, to see how we are doing it and to tell us we cannot do it. We are not free, as was the case before, simply because the cash flow coming into the Cayman Islands Government is not happening anymore; it is not there. It would be foolish to say that business has not slowed down in this country and I dare say that unfortunately there will be more of it. Irrespective of political claims that are made, we know that there is a major slowdown, some say recession, in the United States. We are a reflection, largely, of what happens there.

Our financial services have been affected by certain requirements of the European Union, the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) and so on. Again, it would be untrue and foolish to say that has not affected us. It has affected us in a way where people feel uncertain or unsure about investing their money because they know, like we do, the goalposts keep changing and uncertainty is not the best friend of investment, as we have seen over the years.

The Opposition Leader also spoke of the Private Finance Initiative (PFI) that has become very popular for the Cayman Islands to pursue. This is because it is money which people, who are wealthy, have and wish to invest or loan or however one wants to put it.

The thing that appeals to me about this particular process is that it does not require the Government to go and give any guarantees. It is money that is available to people, and people are satisfied to the extent that they will invest their money to build that building or to deliver that particular service at their expense. It is their money; they stand to lose it. Once the Government agrees on a particular course of action, a particular building or particular service then those people take their capital and they invest it.

They build or do whatever, and the Government then can lease or buy those services or that accommodation. They stand to lose it if the Government is not in a position to maintain its position or its lease and, like any contract, there has to be a clause where the contract can be broken. Otherwise, in the same natural fashion, as the laws of contracts go, there will be certain penalties. However, it frees the Government itself from attempting to borrow money, in the normal sense of borrowing, yet it can achieve getting the service or having use of the accommodation by having the particular building built.

The Government actually cannot borrow much more money because we will be hitting that magical 10 per cent mark over which we cannot borrow. However, if the money is available elsewhere; it is a means that has been used in the United Kingdom and in many other countries, then that is a way we may go to get what we actually need and still be in a position to pay for them through an agreement and manage on an annual basis.

My colleague, the Minister of Education who spoke earlier, told the Government that the country desperately needs three schools. I believe that and, most regrettably, conditions have fallen behind where this need for schools has built up over a period of time and now we have got to face reality which is, as we say in Cayman, "either or either". This has not happened this year or last year; this is something, which the Ministers before him did not address and now we have come to the reality that it has to be done.

Therefore, Madam Speaker, I have done my best to inform myself as to the PFI system. The Minister of Planning has invited outstanding experts in the field from the United Kingdom who have given seminars and I think that the Cayman Islands is as about informed as we can possibly be and certainly we have contact with people who are specialists in the field. From my own perspective as a Member of the Executive Council I would have to rely on our legal people to ensure that all the i's are dotted and all the t's are crossed. However it is, and it would be, a contractual situation should the Cayman Islands Government choose to go into the field of private finance initiatives.

I stand here, Madam Speaker, and I know of no other way that is presently open at this time except that way. For if we were to borrow right up to the fullest of the 10 per cent that we can borrow, that would only yield us so much and there it would end. Therefore, do we do that or do we go and attempt to use a source, which is coming to us and offering to us another way of doing business? I say, Madam Speaker, it is wiser on our part to become part of what is happening right now in the real business world because it offers us considerable opportunity.

There is another matter — the creation of a Roads Authority which the Opposition Leader spoke to and he raised the question, "How would it be financed?" The idea of a Roads Authority has been around now for at least a decade if not more. I recall the now Minister of Education and I brought a Private Member's Motion to the Legislative Assembly about six or seven years ago asking that this be considered and it was turned down. We brought it, therefore it was automatically rejected and we were not unaccustomed to that, to say the least.

However, a Roads Authority is something I believe could be good for this country. It would be like any other Authority, a statutory Authority, which would have its autonomy to the extent that it is given by the Government. As for the whole concept, this has been talked about for years; this present Government is prepared to do something about it, to let it happen. Naturally, if we want to do a certain amount of roads that would fall within the responsibility of the Roads Authority.

The Government would say to the Roads Authority, "This is the amount of roads we wish you to build for us this year." Then the Roads Authority would say to the Government, "Well, that is going to cost you $10 million. How are you going to pay for it?" The Government might say to the Roads Authority, "Well you go out on your own behest and seek funding up to that amount." There is such a thing as buying the service on those roads so the Government would pay the Authority like it pays for other services, "You have built us $10 million worth of roads therefore it is going to cost us $500,000 - $800,000 which we will have to pay you over the next 10 to 15 years." It is a way of doing business.

What the Minister of Education and I suggested, when we brought the Motion several years ago, was that certain funds which now go to central Government could be earmarked and paid into the Authority. As I recall we suggested that money from vehicle licensing, motor oil and, we went as far as to say, the taxes from gasoline could go into the Authority. The taxes from gasoline would have been considerable and I am sure that the Financial Secretary would possibly allow that a percentage could go there.

I believe that we have decided this Authority is necessary and could serve the country well. What we have to do now is to decide what percentage, of any revenue that is presently coming in to Government, would be put there to start it; what the Budget could afford this year. After that, the Authority would be expected to become self-sufficient and only the Authority could go on to borrow where necessary. It is a way, Madam Speaker, in my opinion, of refining the ability for us to provide roads in the country, which everyone needs and wants.

I do not think the argument from the Opposition to try to raise an alarm about what will happen if there is a Roads Authority can be supported. If an attempt was being made to hide something then it could never have been brought into the forefront as it presently has. Therefore, it is a matter of this House being informed. This House would have to agree, at some point, with the changes and the revenue which would be paid into it and it would function like any other Authority.

At this point, Madam Speaker, I would like to briefly refer to one of the documents produced for the Budget this year; the Ownership Agreements.

The Speaker: Please proceed.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: I will just read briefly from the preface of it because I think that this it is very important for the people who are appointed to Authorities to know and for the whole country and certainly the Legislative Assembly to understand.

On page five it says; “Although Statutory Authorities and Government companies are legally separate from the Government, they are all owned by the Government on behalf of the people of the Cayman Islands. This ownership relationship exists regardless of whether ownership is reflected in the form of shares or a formal capital holding. Like any owner the Government expects the organisations it owns to perform with agreed boundaries. The purpose of the Ownership Agreement is to specify the ownership performance that the Executive Council and the Board of each statutory authority or Government company have agreed the authority or company will seek to achieve during the 2003-2004 financial year.”

I read that because I am responsible for some authorities as well (as I have been dealing with them) I get the distinct impression that the relationship between a Ministry and some authorities does not seem to be clear. Authorities sometimes seem to believe that they are a Government unto themselves. It is important that authorities understand that they are a part of the whole Government process and are set up specially to give more flexibility. They can achieve more efficiency by being outside the civil service's centralised role. However, the Government which sets them up is the authority which gives them policy direction and expects them to perform and produce the outputs which the Government then buys from it. That seems to be missed by some and I thought it was important that I should raise that particular point Madam Speaker.

I have been given the responsibility for certain subjects—

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, would this be a convenient time for the luncheon break or would you wish to continue?

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: It would be fine if you choose to break now.

The Speaker: Thank you. We will now take the luncheon break and reconvene at 2.30 pm.

Proceedings suspended at 12.50 pm

Proceedings resumed at 2.43 pm

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed.

Continuation of the debate on the Budget Address.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Health with a remaining time of one hour and 31 minutes.

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

When we took the suspension, I was about to comment on subjects named in the Ministry for which I hold responsibility. I would like to first comment on the matter of the Health Services.

I wish to make one clear statement and that is, for the first time ever — I have been a Member of Executive Council about 16 to 17 months — that time is now. I have had no executive responsibility for Health Services except during the past 16 to 17 months. I did not make what the Health Services is or was in 2002; I found it the way I did! I found it that way after there had been about seven different Ministers that I can think about. I did not ask the Governor to assign the subject to me but he did. I did not run from it. What I have done is attempted to do something about the situation that obtains in Health Services.

Everyone in the world can criticise, everyone can theorise. However, not everyone can do or have the courage or the know-how and all the other stuff that goes with doing. I have attempted to do something about the Health Services.

The first thing that I did was to change it from a Department to a Health Services Authority. It was a major struggle because there were Members in that Department who did not want that change; they did not want it for their own reasons and of course they had their detractors outside encouraging them to resist change, but it changed!

The reason I wanted it to change was because if there was going to be any change of the culture within that Department the management had to have certain flexibility to do something about it that it could not have as a Department: including recruitment of staff, termination of staff, hiring of staff and everything that is done in the normal way in the private sector, which is changed if we are looking at it from the civil service perspective.

A Board was appointed and the Law gave the Board certain responsibilities and duties and I, as Minister, made certain requirements of the Board. Now I am not saying for one minute that the most perfect are on the Board but certainly I think the people who were appointed to that Board are among some of the best that you can choose and find in this society of ours. I am not saying that every decision they made was the right one, or that there was not a better one which could be made, but they made decisions. Many of those decisions were good.

Among the things that the Board had to do was to look at the number of persons working in the Authority and it was found that in some areas it was over-staffed. There was duplication of work and effort and so on. There was a certain production in staff levels. I am not saying that the decisions were perfect or the numbers that were reduced were the perfect numbers, that there could not have been some less or perhaps there could have been some more. I cannot say; I do not have that ability, the time or whatever to be in that position to do so. What I really do find terribly disgusting is that no one seems to find anything that is good about the Health Services Authority and seldom does any such thing come from the Opposition in their comments about it.

What I want to bring to the attention of the House is the largest hospital in the Cayman Islands is the Cayman Islands Hospital. It has the most doctors, it has the most equipment, it has the most nurses, and the most ancillary staff. Everything that you want to look for is in that hospital. There is another smaller hospital, well-equipped too, and there are some clinics but the Government is the main provider of health services in the Cayman Islands. It is an obligation that past Governments right on to this one has taken most seriously.

Change, Madam Speaker, is never easy. Particularly, when you are trying to bring about that change but you are changing a culture, a state of mind: "I did it this way." Of course, no Government in its right mind is or political leaders are going to refuse putting money into health care. One of the reasons is that everybody needs it sooner or later. The unborn needs it and certainly do those who are getting closer to the grave.

When fate brought me along, I came at a time when the money was not there to dump into it anymore. We had to come to the reality that there were costs and those costs had to be identified. We had to try to find the ways and means of containing the costs and expenses.

I am not going to stand here and criticise any of the doctors. In every profession in life you have good and you have better persons. I do not have the means to access that. I judge a doctor if I am sick or whatever and I go to him or her and they give me certain medicines, I feel better and they are very nice and genial. That is how I judge them, they made me feel better and I think most people do it that way. I am not in the position to make that assessment nor do I believe any Minister in the past has been in that position either. That we have too many doctors or we have too few, I really cannot make that judgment.

I say that too in regard to Cayman Brac where every so often there is someone on Radio Cayman, who has no qualifications whatsoever to judge a doctor. By saying, "This doctor is no good and that one is absolutely perfect" and so forth and they should have done this when this patient went to them. My question is, "Well, if you know what the doctor is supposed to do, why do you go to the doctor?"

In all truth and frankness I think that the country on the whole ought to grow more appreciative of what the Government has done over the years up until now in terms of providing health care services. The majority seem to think that salvation and healing of a divine level lies in the United States. It is interesting to know, the World Health Organisation in its ratings of health care systems, France is number one and the United States is down to about 37.

The doctors are a major problem, and we are talking of costs. The effort in the Budget just passed and the Budget now is to find a means of collecting for the services that the Hospital gives and to give the best health care.

Added to that, you have to add the ambulance service that the Government provides which is not covered and does not pay for itself. However the Government says it is needed. I believe it is needed; I am doing everything to see that it can continue that way.

The clinics in each district? Madam Speaker, the people of the Cayman Islands ought to understand that there are county areas and cities in this big, wide, wonderful world where you drive miles or a few hours to get to health care. Ours is about 15 to 20 minutes away from any given district. We ought to get into the real world where this is concerned and understand what is happening.

The Health Services Authority has made some major strides in what I like to term phase one; restructuring, finding redundancies and all the rest of it. It has saved a calculated $4 million alone in that. Services (to the best of information I have) I believe are being offered in a more timely manner. I am here to say that there are certain sections that have not improved even though effort has been made and even though I complain to the management, it takes time for that to happen.

You hear that we do not have this or that specialist, we do not have the next specialist. Madam Speaker, I am not a medical doctor, however what I have learnt since I have been in the Ministry is a specialist doctor is just that, a specialist. They have spent more years over and beyond the time when they qualify as a Medical Doctor (MD) to become a specialist. They continue to be a specialist because they must do a certain amount of procedures in any given year. If you are a cardiologist you have to fix this number of hearts or do whatever you do to them; you have to do that if you want to stay rated as a specialist.

That is why I have tried to get across in answering questions here, particularly in relation to the Brac, where you had an obstetric/gynaecological (OB/GYN) specialist and an excellent doctor. He wrote to say he loved the place and was not complaining about the salary, he left because he would lose his specialist standing and his skills, because there were so few requirements for his specialisation.

I envisage, hope for and I am trying to work towards getting a situation where we can have specialists in the hospital for the areas of disease that are most prevalent in the Cayman Islands: cardiologists, specialists in heart disease, diabetes and so forth and so on. However, it is quite impossible for us to have specialists in every single area. There will be occasions when we must refer persons overseas and it all comes back down, Madam Speaker, to a question of money.

I have had to remark since I have been there that it appears to me that there seems to be a general outlook that "My body is mine to do with in any which way that I choose to use it and abuse it, and when it gets sick it becomes the property of the state." Government then must fix it. Government must patch it up or pay to patch it up after I have destroyed it. Madam Speaker, we need to change our mental outlook on this whole process; to become more conscious of the need to keep ourselves well, to get regular checkups and to eat properly. I am not here to say that anybody must not drink, but if you drink, drink with moderation. If everything is done with moderation we will be a healthier society.

We talk about cost. We have a system of immunisation in this country. So many countries of the world do not have immunisation. We hear of the World Health Organisation or Pan American Health or some other aid helping them with immunisation. Cayman has it free and guess what the Government is being criticised for? For giving it free. The Government is being criticised for giving immunisations free to every child in this country, to keep them well.

We have to start getting it right because we have it all wrong in the way we look at things. I am not prepared to accept that, I as Minister, or for that matter any Minister before me, ever for one minute knowingly wanted to give anyone's child an immunisation to harm them. It is foolish! We want to do it to make them well so that they do not get diseases. That is the kind of foolishness that is rampant in this society. I will not accept any part of such accusations because it would take a fool and I am not a fool. I will do whatever I can to see that Health Services are what they should be in these Cayman Islands.

I am not telling anyone, or trying to defend a situation where, a doctor could not have behaved better or been more polite or helpful from a verbal point of view, of course these things happen. It happens with nurses. It happens everywhere in every business. I think that we have to move away from this forever complaining and criticising position. I would make it absolutely clear, Madam Speaker, I certainly do not accept that I created the problems which exist in the Health Services in the Cayman Islands. I am trying to do something to correct them, Madam Speaker.

To say that at the Hospital, the only focal point is to make money through the risk of injuring people is a terrible thing to say and the Leader of the Opposition suggested that in so many words yesterday. That is wrong, it is unfounded, it is untrue and whether or not that is the mentality of one or two or three or four associated with the Health Services Authority, it is not the predominant or prevailing management view.

When I found the Health Services the way it was, statistics were the one thing they did not have, and the health insurance companies were using that for an excuse to charge any kind of cost or premium for their insurance coverage. During the past six to nine months certain statistics have become available because of more focus from a financial point of view and I would just like to update Members here on a few things.

From the month of January to June for civil servants and dependants, public revenue paid $2,753,663.00. For indigents, the people who have given up their bodies now to the United States in many instances, the Government paid $3,413,560.96. For those children, the Health Service and myself are getting criticized for trying to help and immunize them, the Cayman Islands Government has paid $1,399,845.34, for the six months; 180 days. The month is not over yet, but based on the others that would be what is paid out.

The Government has paid $1,784,306.82. for veterans and seamen and among this group fall persons who are non-Caymanian Prisoners, which are an expensive item, although oddly enough it is one of the lowest costs and this must be because they are contained and kept under certain discipline, cost $101,783.53.

Cayman Brac and Little Cayman Faith Hospital have cost $1,417,328.52 because the Faith Hospital by population and by the paying patients do not get near the cost of operating it. Simple facts, however the Government does not say "Forget about it and we are not going to provide the health care", it is done.

Public Health investigations: $1,032,751.50.

Health research and promotions: $175,996.47.

Personally, Madam Speaker, I think that we need to get more promotions out there to try to get across a message to people about their health. How important it is that when their health is gone it is really gone; they are unhealthy and they are sick. Part of what I envisage for the Health Services Authority is to improve information to persons.

Women are smart individuals. They look after themselves better than men. It is the men who need to get wise I think; not to say that I do not support the idea of getting the message out to women as well.

Pensioners, people who have worked and are collecting pensions from Government. Government is still covering them. Pensioners and dependents for the half year cost $796,087.61. The Government is even paying the Pines Retirement Home $56,000.00 for the half year to care for older citizens, who also get the attention of nurses and doctors. That makes the total of $12,931,294.68 for this half year.

At least now we know the categories, we know the amounts, which put us in a better position for getting health coverage. We are gaining a little ground on the health insurance aspect of things in that we have the statistics now.

We have to move that on and here is where the Cerner Information System will come in. We will know how many diabetics, how many heart patients, and how many others there are in the various areas. It is working towards a 21st century situation.

Let me give this Honourable House some more statistics that were not available until now and which the public and the people who criticise do not think about, although these things have happened in the past eight or nine months.

The number of civil servants, which were seen up until May, was 7,496 at a cost per individual of $79.23. Pensioner and dependants: 407 persons at a cost of $395.55. Seamen and veterans: 853 at a cost of $369.00 per person.

On this particular aspect I want to say that the seamen being the older persons in our society have always been proud people, hard working people. They collect their funds and their fees within their organisations and they very proudly pass them on to the Health Services which are helping them. They are helping the Health Services the Health Services are helping them therefore I really want to make that point.

There were 109 indigents that were seen at a cost of $514.82 per person.

The costs are escalating however again we know what they are now. Those are things that I believe we should be happy about and those credits should be given to the people who have brought the situation to where it is now.

Just this morning I had the pleasure of going to the eye clinic which has as you know was been supported over the years by the Lions Club of Grand Cayman and they have presented the clinic an ultrasound machine and it is something to see the picture that this machine can take of the eye and it is something which the Ophthalmologist there, Dr. Foley, is extremely pleased with. It has helped him immensely and I must say that that Doctor has done a magnificent job here in these Cayman Islands. I hope that he will long be with us irrespective of the situation at this point in time. Personally, I will state here in this Honourable House that I would like to see Dr. Foley here with us a very long time from now and I hope that he would so choose to be.

Health insurance; again we are talking costs and budgets and so on. The Health Services Authority now is delivering services for Government. Government is buying certain services from it. Each civil servant must now bill Central Government for the service they have provided and they must be properly invoiced and the Ministry will then pay them in monies which have been provided. That is an improvement since the new form of budgeting. It is no more cutting loose $3 million and they do with it what they want, with little or no accounting, it now has to be properly invoiced.

Madam Speaker, allow me also to say at this time, that KPMG is at the Hospital now working at doing the financials and it has been at my insistence to have it done. It cannot continue any longer the way that it has been and we should have them soon! The Auditor-General has also played his role in it, set out what he wished to see and it is now ongoing. These are things that we need to understand and appreciate and those who would criticise should be paying tribute to the work in these areas.

On the question of health insurance, that is another area that I found, I did not create it. I found it and I believe the Law skewered its obligations too much on the side of the health insurance companies. On the other hand there was not enough protection for those who were insured. How do you bind a people in a country by making it mandatory that they must have health insurance? If they do not take it out they are in breach of the Law but how then do you bind them? They pay their premiums each month to a health insurance company, who the doctors and the hospitals and so on distrust so much, that when you take your card or your signification or identification to them, in many instances they will say, "Oh no, I am not taking that from that insurance company, you pay me and you go and collect from your insurance company".

Madam Speaker, that was never the intention of the law. It is wrong in every shape and form. And I say today—as I have said before—that cannot be allowed to continue. If that insurance company (that is supposedly offering insurance to people) is so poor or so undercapitalised or not capitalised at all that they cannot meet those obligations, where there is trust, certainty between that company and the doctors and the hospitals and all the rest of it, then they do not have any business offering health care coverage. That is my position.

There are amendments which I have been fighting for a long time to bring to the House. They are still being dealt with by the Legal Department. I want to bring to this Honourable House during this session, amendments to the regulations which are going to demand the Insurance companies assume their rightful responsibility and duty; to demand that the people who are insured assume their rightful responsibility and duty. There is also a bill which I proposed to bring; to set up a commission that will be the over-arching regulatory body to see that everyone, the insurers, the people who buy the insurance, the Government, everybody does their part. If we are going to have mandatory health insurance it has to be fair.

Madam Speaker, I also wish to say that since I have been Minister for Health, the insurance companies use any word that I say in here as an excuse to raise the premiums. I guess that they have got their pencils ready right now but I want them to know they are not going to win the war. They are not going to be able to continue escalating prices on people simply in anticipation of: "If Government requires to do this it is going to be this much more." They are not working from any statistics, they just do it! The Law says they have provided you people by law who has to keep buying at the prices that you sell and there is no way of negotiation their prices. That is going to change, that cannot continue!

I believe that the support is across the board in getting this done, I certainly hope so and I have had pledges from both sides of the House. However, it is something that has to be done. The other thing that I want to do before this session of this House is over, I want to table the KPMG report that has been done on health insurance. I also want to table the Mercer Report which, commissioned by my immediate predecessor in office, is a most comprehensive and revealing document. I feel strongly enough about this to make it known here that I wanted to table that report about eight or nine months ago and I had official obstacles put in my way so I could not do it.

Now I wish to make it clear that it was not the three Official Members over to my right; it was several rungs above their level in the overall design of things. However, I think it is important, Madam Speaker, that the Honourable Members of this House and the public, have the picture of what the provision of health services is all about. That is, the role that Government is playing in providing a cross-section of categories of persons and the role that is played for the provision of health care for its employees. It is important that the country knows and, collectively we can look at the reality of this situation and try to do something about it. Madam Speaker, if you do not see the Mercer Report come here you will know that my effort has been thwarted.

Again we are talking money and again I did not make this situation but I found it and I have not run from it. The question of Agriculture, the other subject for which I am responsible, and I believe that money spent so far on agriculture has been for a good cause. I think more and more we should understand that even in a small way, we should grow something or try to produce something for ourselves that we can eat. Our food source is largely from overseas and there are many things to be conscious of. Mad cow disease; is one of the things that we fortunately do not have here, however we get meat products from elsewhere. It is a question of our health. If we raise some cattle, pigs, goats or whatever here we are doing something for ourselves and there is an appreciable amount of food production in terms of meats and so on in the Island. We also are doing quite well with fruits and some vegetables and I certainly would advocate that the Government continues to provide money to assist with agricultural development.

Now there is a problem, Madam Speaker, and it is going to come to the forefront sooner than later and I might as well just let the cat out of the bag here because really it is not my cat. It is the public's and Government's cat and the public might as well know about it.

The Farmer's Market is something which has from forever been a problem. It has been a problem, I think, as best as I can understand in terms of its management, which has not been all that it could have been in terms of managing money. There are numerous stories of farmers who send their meat products or their crops or whatever and weeks or a year later they do not collect for the stuff that they have sent to the Market. The money is never sufficient, it seems and it is my understanding that it has never been really fully capitalised. I also understand that what happens in many instances is farmers can get very good prices for their prized fruits and other foods at some of the supermarkets and the supermarkets pay them instantly. You bring your stuff and they pay you and you go on your way. It is the less high-quality stuff that finds itself on the way to the Farmer's Market in some instances.

Now if we are going to buy, most of us want to get the best so we go and buy it at the supermarket and that is where we usually shop anyway. If we are going to do the shopping at the Farmer's Market various things must attract us. We must get the high quality there too, we must be trying to find a better price as well but this has not happened in all instances. Right now — and I do not wish to give any numbers here and so on —I understand that the Farmer's Market is in dire financial straits and that it has major problems and those problems are going to fly right up in my face here sooner or later.

It is true when I try to do something about it I guess I will be criticised for that too. Obviously there has to be strong medicine administered to that situation to fix it and I will not come to this Honourable House today to let us give it another cash injection and leave the management the way that it is. I will not do that, Madam Speaker. I will bring whatever facts there are that I have on it through this Honourable House and lay them on the Table so everyone knows and we will take it from there. I do not assume or call it my problem; it is a problem for the country because it impacts the Budget and the revenues of this country that we are talking about now.

On the question of Aviation, after many years of it being recommended by United Kingdom Government, I have separated the regulatory from the operational side at Civil Aviation. Civil Aviation is one of the Authorities that do extremely well in terms of revenue and we are yet to work out a formula by which so much money can be sent into the Central Government. Although it does pay money in now; it would be better for everyone to work out a formula to do that and I have every belief that this would be done.

Civil Aviation has reached a point (the buildings that is) where it is not accommodating the numbers we are presently dealing with. There has to be some expansion there, and again, Madam Speaker, I do not know that it would be the best thing to attempt to borrow in the normal way as the Government has been doing or to send the Authority out to shop for funds that Government should underwrite or guarantee. As I understand there are specialist entities in this field with lots of capital who will offer to build buildings, to make improvements. Their business is offering this type of service. Around the world this too would fall, I believe, sensibly within the realm of what is now the acronym PFI (Private Finance Initiative). It is something that I would be looking to.

It is a self-funding situation, Madam Speaker, so I think keeping the cost within sensible limits is one way forward. I would point out that costs are involved from a security point of view. The whole world is becoming obsessed with security at the airports and rightly so it is impacting our situation. If we do not offer a certain degree of security such as screening and x-raying very soon, countries, particularly the United States are not going to allow any aircraft into their countries. Of course our life moves between the United States and the Cayman Islands everyday. Therefore, that is one of the areas where we are very likely to see and are seeing costs.

Lastly, Madam Speaker, I would like to comment on the other subject for which I have responsibility — Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. Madam Speaker, if I knew the answer to let Cayman Brac take off and develop, I would do it this instant. I do not know what the answer is. Various recommendations have been made and many have been tried and applied. As Speaker and as a representative of the two Islands, Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, you will understand this, I know.

There has been most recently a report produced by a Committee set up there and I think that it offers some good suggestions and these are things which we can follow. In the meantime, I am able to say that the Government is extending concessions to Cayman Brac again and the Islands will continue to benefit from these particular concessions. I can say to this Honourable House that the Honourable Financial Secretary has put forward this submission to the Government and it has been approved so that situation will continue to help.

For many years Government and most of its Laws give concessions where it takes off 50 per cent of the charges for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. These are things which we do because we are one people, we are displaced by land mass or by sea separating the three atolls but we are one people. These are things which we believe can help and so this is what has been happening.

Medical care continues on the Brac and there are doctors who have been found and were engaged for the population. The ratio is outstanding and they will be there to provide health care to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. From my own personal perspective, I would just like to say that I am doing my best now and I will continue to do anything and everything to help the situation but I have no miracle programme that I can use. I can but try to work with the representatives of the Brac and with the Government of which I am a part to try to find ways and means but there is no clear-cut answer.

The world economy is where it is, the three Islands are what they are. The majority of commerce is within this Island (the larger of the three) and we have to continue to work to try and share it as best we can. Certainly this year's Budget provides for a number of roads on the Brac and these will be started in the immediate future and, Madam Speaker, I think that is as much as we can do at this time.

How do we get investors to go and invest in the other two Islands like they do in Grand Cayman? I do not have an answer to that, I think it becomes something that all of us need to try and find a solution to or work towards ultimately getting it to where we would like it to be.

In closing I would just like to say that there has never before been such a Budget that is so open and transparent. There has never been a Budget that has been in much detail. There has never been an instance where it has been more innovative than it is now — for example with the fact that we are looking at the possibilities of PFI and the innovation of setting up a Roads Authority. Madam Speaker, the Budget that we are debating did not come about easily and it was hundreds of hours of hard work and I think that it is one the Government of the day can be proud of and the people of the Cayman Islands should be assured that there has never been a time before when more information on the Budget is available to them. It is not the case that it is not available. It is a matter of them going and getting it and making use of it.

Thank you Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Thank you, Honourable Minister. Does any other Member wish to speak? Does any other Member wish to speak?

The Third Elected Member for the district of Bodden Town.

Mr. Anthony S. Edén: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I too stand to give my contribution to the Budget Address delivered by the Honourable Third Official Member a few days ago.

I followed with interest the dynamic and enlightening speech by the last speaker, the Honourable Minister of Health. He certainly gave us some good information and I certainly look forward to this type of debate by the other Ministers. I am pleased to know as one of the Elected Members for Bodden Town that the three of us have been able to speak, with one coming right after the other. I will have to disappoint my good friend, the Second Elected Member for West Bay, when he said about us complaining of the short time of the Budget and some of the nice things that he had to say about how things are going. Sometimes I have to wonder if all of us are living on the same Islands.

As I looked at the Financial Secretary's debate he listed five areas where it was designed as a plan to support the local economy and create employment opportunities for Caymanians. It is a plan designed to increase the educational opportunities available for our young people. It is a plan designed to ensure that health care and social support are available to those in need. It is a plan designed to improve the efficiency, and effectiveness of Government, its agencies and most important of all, it is a plan that actively pursues our own economic and social interest in an increasingly complex international environment.

I agree with these things but, Madam Speaker, I look back at the Cayman Islands National Strategic Plan, Vision 2008, the very first strategy. I am not saying that this is not being addressed but it is my opinion that we, as Legislators and as residents of these Islands, need to be spending more effort on the drug problem of the Cayman Islands.

I have said this to a number of my other colleagues. This is an area that seems to be going on a rampage like a cancer we need to deal with in a concerted effort; not only as Legislators, Madam Speaker, but the entire population of these Cayman Islands. I mentioned the very first strategy in Vision 2008 and we know there were hundreds of people that had input in this document from way back in 1998/1999:

"We will develop and implement a policy of zero tolerance for crime and drug abuse"

We know that those two deplorable existences in our society go hand in hand because it has been said that at Northward Prison over 60 per cent of the inmates are there because of drug problems, drug use, drug pushing, whatever.

Just to mention, Madam Speaker, with your permission, a number of the action steps as advocated back in those days; included establishing age appropriate curriculum guidelines in the schools, appointing a drug representative in each school, increasing the size of the Police Force and Customs Department, to provide more undercover officers and national border patrols, to institute air, sea and land cover by aircraft and fast patrol boats to work along with enforcement. Madam Speaker, I know in the past your feelings and the problems and difficulties that we saw, I am referring specifically to this cancer creeping into Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. We tried and I know you have tried so many times to get some support to increase whatever needs to be done by law enforcement. It is coming to a stage now that I honestly believe (as I said earlier) we make a concerted effort. We must spend more money on this.

The problem we are dealing with here is something very difficult for all of us to fathom, especially when we come to those who deal with cocaine and crack. It affects a part of the brain that is almost sub-human; it is a part that once an individual gets started is very difficult to cope with. This is why the great importance of demand reduction of starting earlier in the schools. The Pride Project has gone a long way and I am glad to see it was started in the primary schools. I also know that the Lions Club of Grand Cayman had a project called Quest. I am saying these are the areas I am not being critical of the actions being taken now. What I am saying is we must make an all-out, concerted effort, as Legislators and Caymanians, to deal with this problem. I have said before and I will say it again; it has the greatest potential to cause major problems to the citizens of these Islands.

We are dealing and have had to deal with OECD, FATF, Constitutional discussions on advancements and the tax savings initiative. These are all a part of it but if we do not get the drug problem solved, all of this will be academic. Madam Speaker, as we look in the papers day after day it is not necessarily coming from us on this side, it is the citizens of this country that are expressing their concerns. It has been suggested that the last few killings in the district of West Bay were possibly drug related. This is what I am talking about. We have to do our best and deal with this cancer.

As I move on, as I said earlier, my good friend the Second Elected Member for West Bay, while not overly critical, commented about our speaking about the short time . . . I think someone figured out that we had 36 hours to look at the Budget on this side. Going back to Vision 2008, strategy 8, action plan 2 it said that:

"To ensure that public finances are managed prudently and that disclosure and reporting standards provide timely, relevant, reliable and understandable information to legislators and the community."

Yes, Madam Speaker, the two documents that he and others have suggested could be read in a couple of hours but, Madam Speaker, this very morning my good friend, my colleague from Bodden Town, mentioned looking at the tremendous amount of information. I think that document was 630-something pages long and I have been with many colleagues here from that side and on this side and when I looked at over 1760 pages of information and if we have to cross reference, as most of us sometimes do just to understand the principle. I measured the height of those documents; they are almost 5 inches high. If we are here as responsible representatives what is a day or so of giving us a little bit more time?

The Honourable Minister for Tourism said how much time? You see I am not speaking for the Opposition when you look at what the people say and with your permission, I would like to read just a couple of lines from the Compass of Tuesday the 17th.

The Speaker: Please proceed. Order!

Mr. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you. This is what I am talking about Madam Speaker; historically, the country's Budget and the Financial Secretary's Budget Address have always been delivered to the Legislative Assembly on a Friday with the actual debate on the Budget's contents beginning on the following Wednesday. This convention was adopted for a good reason; it allows Members of the public as well as all Members of the Legislative Assembly (MLAs) a reasonable opportunity to study the contents of the Budget.

MLAs on the Government Benches have traditionally not needed any time to study the Budget; they are usually privy to its ingredients well before its delivery. You see, Madam Speaker, as I said earlier we sat on both sides. Opposition MLAs on the other hand will not have enjoyed that privilege and do need a reasonable length of time in which to peruse its pages. On the other hand, the people who have not really had the privilege of fully studying the document in any depth before debate begins are the hard-working ordinary members of the community whose daily hours are not their own.

Finally, it says, in the interest of democracy . . . This is what we all talk about so much. I so fondly remember sitting on that side and as I look at many of my colleagues there and I know holy hell would have been raised if some of them were still here and this had happened. I am not complaining about the situation but we tend to have short memories. In the interest of democracy all citizens should have a reasonable amount of time go over the Budget in order for their comments can be passed on to their MLAs who in turn have a fair opportunity to examine them before presenting their views and concerns on the document to the House. It is hoped that such a time frame for the Budget Address and the Budget debate will recur. The people's right to examine and comment on the document must be respected. That is what I am talking about, Madam Speaker. These are the little things, that if we do not comment on and let people be aware that we have concerns (and they are concerns) they will just slip by.

In the second part of the Government's Strategy and Key Policy Actions, the eleven goals, I am speaking specifically of numbers 4 and 7: "A strong Caymanian community and culture, a safe and secure country for residents and visitors." Madam Speaker, it seems like we are importing some of these cultures. Once again with your permission, I would just briefly read from the Cayman Net News editorial dated 4 June.

The Speaker: Please proceed.

Mr. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you. "Cayman's Changing Morality.

"In recent months, the question of morality has been raised over a number of events in our beloved Cayman Islands, impacting particularly on issues that clashed with our traditional culture.

"There was the whining and grinding and scanty dress of Batabano. Then there were topless women sunbathers on Cemetery Beach. Most recently, the Leader of Government Business advocated legalised gambling in the form of a national lottery, and we heard tales of public ganja smoking at a concert.

"At conflict are the traditional values of the Cayman Islands and the values of an ever-developing, sophisticated and multi-cultural country that counts people from other lands as half of its inhabitants.

"Gone are the days when the Cayman Islands was largely isolated from the rest of the world except for some reading materials and tales brought back to the country by its many seafarers.

"As recently as the 1970's, most people in Grand Cayman adhered to traditional values of family, faith and humility. Times have certainly changed."

How true, Madam Speaker.

I was looking again at an article in the Caymanian Compass from last month. It was actually a letter to the editor where it indicated that one of the service clubs sponsored a junior carnival for adolescents and young people. The writer was talking about the kind of music. I think the terminology used was "pornographic" and it was just unbelievable trash or words to that effect. Madam Speaker, I wonder who was monitoring this, whose responsibility was this? I am not saying that as Legislators we have to be in these areas. What I am trying to do is sensitise us as legislators and Cayman as the public to what is happening; the culture that we are getting into, the type of music. Once again with your permission I would like to read a few lines from another editorial of Friday to Sunday, 23–25 May.

The Speaker: Permission granted.

Mr. Anthony S. Eden: “Music should reflect Caymanian culture. We have heard quite a bit of commentary about last Friday’s well-attended concert at Pedro Castle billed, ‘Some kind of Blue’. Someone told us the musicianship was excellent and others said the food was fabulous. That pretty much sums up the positive remarks we have received. On the negative side we have received a fair amount of comments including; comments of foul language, obscene gestures, confrontational lyrics, public ganja smoking and that the music was very loud.

We have also heard that many people left early finding the musical genre either offensive or not to their liking. However, we do find ourselves baffled as to why the Cayman Islands (Department of Tourism) DoT has decided to champion this particular kind of music. For one thing hip hop music in particular espouses ideas very much against our own society’s predominant values.

I draw this example, Madam Speaker, because I am sure that sponsoring some of the entertainment that comes here has been done innocently. However, are we sure that this is what our young people should be involved in? I do not need to be a nuclear physicist to know that this kind of music influences and pressures our young people, not to mention the television.

This is where I take my hat off to the Second Elected Member for West Bay. In an earlier debate in the Legislative Assembly he talked about R-rated stuff on television at certain times when young people are there. I do not think, to my knowledge, anything has been done about it. No government can, and we Legislators cannot, legislate morality but we need to look and monitor. We should not be surprised about our deteriorating family structure when we see what is happening. We have to be careful. Young minds are easily moulded.

Another situation also reported in the paper was about a young Caymanian, who was attacked by a gang. They thought that this young man was a tourist. It so happened he was a Caymanian. As one of my colleagues said, he was a Caucasian and when some of the people were questioned the comment was made that they thought he was a tourist. This is frightening because — and there have been minor attacks on tourists in the past — the day that a tourist is seriously injured or killed in the Cayman Islands and the State Department decides to issue a travel advisory against Cayman we are going to be in some difficulties.

As I am saying Madam Speaker—

The Speaker: Honourable Member, sorry to interrupt but I am going to ask my deputy to deputise for a few minutes. I will not ask for a suspension we will just change Chairs.

[Deputy Speaker in the Chair]

Mr. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you and welcome, Mr. Speaker. I beg for anticipated mistakes in the event that I should use the wrong gender

[Laughter]

However, it is good to have you in the Chair.

One of the areas that I wanted to touch on and I know a number of us were invited to meet with the University of West Indies (UWI) Chancellor, Sir Shridath Surendath Rampal. In his revelations, Mr. Speaker, he talked about the free trade of the Americas and the World Trade Organisation and the possible serious and grave impact that may have on these Islands when it is fully implemented by the super powers that surround us. I am sure I do not need to bring this to the attention of the Government. I certainly hope this will be dealt with, because in listening to him there could be some very difficult times ahead if an agreement is not come to with the Mother country. I am not sure about the Mother country any more, Madam . . . Mr. Speaker we are almost treated as bastard children in recent times. However, Thank God, we are weathering the storm and if we all work together we can get through these difficult times, but all of us must be involved. One side cannot do it by themselves, we have to work together. This is our Cayman. These are our Islands and if this gets away from us . . . I thought the mosquitoes were gone but they came back last weekend, a couple of weeks early. Nevertheless there is no way for us to go.

Just to speak briefly on the National Roads Authority. In speaking with the Leader of the Opposition after what he was saying to me this morning in regard to that Authority, was that the 220,000-plus would be seed funds in there. He did not see where the $13.83 million was in the Budget for that when it comes along. I am sure we will hear more details on that as we go. Once again the possibility, as said earlier on, the off balance sheet dealings. Mr. Speaker, if I am lost others have been lost with me and I served on (Executive Council) ExCo with some of those in the past but these things happen and it would be a funny world if we all thought the same way. Once again, I am not trying to be critical I am just trying to come to something that is good for Cayman! This is our country! You have one point of view, I have one and it will not necessarily agree but as one speaker said earlier we all want the same thing and the best thing for these Islands!

Yesterday I spoke briefly to the Minister for Roads and I saw about the development by Hirst Road in the paper. I am not complaining. I just wondered why I had not been notified of it and he indicated to me that it was a slip-up and I take that for what it is worth. I would remind him I am still the representative for the people of Bodden Town. It was a photo op and I still roll along, I take the good and I take the bad. I am pleased to know that this has been going on and it has been on the drawing board for a long time, even when I was in government. It is good to see it coming to fruition and I thank the Honourable Minister that this is happening because all of us who come from the east in the morning know what the congestion in that tall tree area is like.

With your permission, Mr. Speaker, I would like to congratulate the Bodden Town Quincentennial committee led by Ms. Mary Lawrence and the sterling work done by Nurse Josie Solomon who sold so many of the pavers for the Bodden Town monument; also the dozens of persons who helped with them. I know the Minister of Community Services was there last night. The exhibition was absolutely incredible and I invite all of my colleagues in this House to stop by for a short while. I think the exhibition ends this weekend as there will be a graduation there next week. I think it was the greatest display of memorabilia, history and culture ever done in these Islands. I certainly take my hat off to those. I know my colleagues feel the same way as they attended most of these functions.

Mr. Speaker, just to touch briefly on the Health Services. I was grateful for some of the information that was shared with the Legislative Assembly, however there are still some concerns there and this has not necessarily been since the Minister has taken over. I am sure he is aware of some of the disgruntled and very unhappy staff. I am speaking specifically about some of our young Caymanian doctors who came back and had to deal with the medical director. They have been very disillusioned and what I am going to do now, going into my 12th year in Parliament, I will be old enough to say, through you to him, Mr. Speaker, to look at removing the Medical Director. I call for his resignation because I understand the type of management that he runs within the Hospital is why — and he does not have to agree with me — the Minister is having so many headaches in this management and personnel area. Dr. Heap.

An honourable Member: Tell him heap to fire in on him.

Mr. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, the marl road has even indicated to me that when he was a Chief Medical Officer (CMO) and eventually a Medical Director that he did not even visit the tertiary care places to see some of the services that are available. How in the name of Moses can you have someone running your institution that does not know what is available?

[Inaudible interjections]

Mr. Anthony S. Eden: I leave that to the Minister and I know his resolution in these things. When something is pointed out and he understands he will act. I am pleased to see that Mental Health, which was in the plans from way back, will be opened shortly. It is a very critically important area in the development of the Hospital.

The Dental Clinic has been a headache from the time Jesus was on Revera Beach. Trying to get an appointment there, and I do not have to point this out to him because I know some of this still exists; the slow and long drawn out time it takes to get an appointment.

Health Insurance, as he touched on earlier. The Minister has put a tremendous effort into Health Insurance with, at times, little support from his United Democratic Party (UDP) colleagues to quorate committee meetings. Anyway, we look forward to this amending legislation which will come down here soon.

In retrospect, I wonder if it would not have been better to have left Mr. Ezzard Miller's health insurance plan in place and build on that instead of stopping it in 1993.

An honourable Member: I did not go in until 1994.

Mr. Anthony S. Eden: For the Minister of Tourism's information, I said, In retrospect I wonder if it would not have been better that we had not left Mr. Ezzard Miller's health insurance plan in place and build on that.

I am not afraid to admit there are problems in the Law brought down here and it continues to be. The abuse of the utilisation of insurance by the people, and not to mention the insurance providers. The people once again, the companies refused to try and educate, and let them know how things should be done because this was a novel thing to the Cayman Islands. I think with what is coming from the present Minister should alleviate many of the problems. Mr. Speaker, I am fully convinced that health insurance is a great necessity especially in cases of catastrophic sickness.

In wrapping up, with your permission once again, I want to read a few paragraphs from a publication from your district, Wesleyan Christian Academy. This goes back to how I started and I guess will continue to be branded a right-winger but so be it. These are things that I feel I have to point out and some of these areas are so touching because the first article was by a student. It said, "What a shame". This will carry you back to where I started about the family and the social problems and so on. He opens with a quote from the Bible, Habakkuk 2:15, "Woe unto him that giveth his neighbour drink, that putteth thy bottle to him, and makest him drunken also, that thou mayest look on their nakedness!"

It goes on say: "It is a shame that the liquor licence is so high in our Islands, we know the dangers, physically and spiritually; the accidents, the broken homes, the crying children and the lost souls yet there are more licences being granted all the time. Now it has not engulfed bars and restaurants but also children's entertainment".

This came out when the application for the Stingray Bowling Centre was in.

"It was brought to my attention that the Stingray Bowling centre, a place where many children have come to love and look forward to going with family, school or church groups, has applied for and has been granted a liquor licence. I sincerely dislike acts like these and I will name a few: It is another place to buy liquor and where there is drinking there is almost always smoking and where that lethal combination is present, most parents do not allow their children to go in.

"I do not have a father who drinks, but I know some children whose fathers do. I also know that when they go out to drink they do not stop at one or two beers, they will drink their entire pay day right away and then there is the family relying on the earnings of the mother only.

"Children who become accustomed to a drinking environment will likely become drinkers themselves and therefore the drinking cycle is prolonged. With these reasons before us I strongly admonish all Christian parents to take a stand against this act".

In that same article, Mr. Speaker—and I would like to table this little publication. It is entitled, "True North, the Little Compass Pointing in the Right Direction".

I continue to read. This was by Mr. Case, the Principal. I think we all should listen keenly to this, I think he has hit this one right on the nail head.

"This is a time of great change in the Cayman Islands. We hear of new docks, new fees, constitutional reviews, new laws and new political parties with new government leaders. We are looking for new answers to age-old problems, new methods and new ideas for solving those problems. We have new technology, new schools and new programmes. Talk about the future includes discussion of new civic centres, new high schools and new parks. We anticipate new seven-storey condos, new jails and more community development projects.

"Here at Wesleyan we anticipate a new church building, the buying of new property and new school buildings. We will be getting a new principal, a couple of new teachers and some new students. New computers will be purchased with the latest technology and new materials will be ordered and new paint will be applied to needy areas of the school.

"While we rejoice and anticipate the changes taking place I believe it is time to sit down, take a big breath and reflect. Many times when new things come our way we make way for them by throwing away the old. So very true of what is happening here in Cayman today; the morals, the standards that we lived up to in the past.

"I would like you to consider some old things we cannot afford to throw away while bringing in the new. First of all we cannot afford to throw God out of our culture. This country has a great heritage of Christian principles and Godly examples that have been passed down for generations; the history of our culture, including churches, family and Christian living

"Batabano, carnivals and other such activities are new items that have been brought into our culture. We cannot afford to throw out the Holy Word of God, the very foundation of all political decisions, laws and constitutions must be word of God. There is nothing wrong with a Bill of Rights as long it is built on God's word. While bringing in a new constitution, we do not have to throw out the word of God. Right and wrong are still judged according to the Bible which supersedes any law of man. We cannot afford to throw church out while bringing in new programmes. Civic centres, community projects, movie theatres and places of entertainment must not replace the church. While the pleasures gained through entertainment may last for a moment the experiences gained through going to church will last a lifetime. We cannot afford to throw away the family while bringing in new ideas and methods for solving the problems of our society. The very reason our society is experiencing its problems is due to the dismantling of the family".

We hear that everyday and we have seen it all around us, we are touched by our families. None of us are exempted from this.

"Whatever our family structure; whether a single-parent family, a two-parent family or a family where other relatives are raising a child, we must take the responsibility of raising the next generation seriously. As a parent I am held responsible for training and rearing my own children while trying to solve the problems of our youth by establishing youth night clubs, community youth hangouts, places of entertainment and even wholesome programmes such as church youth groups, a youth place or some other new programme. We have begun to delegate the responsibility of raising our children to other groups of individuals. Do not throw away the family.

"Although I have only scratched the surface in mentioning the changes coming to these lovely Islands, I trust you have been given something to consider. Every time you see a change being proposed take a look and see if something of value is being thrown away in order to bring in the new item. Not all change is bad, in fact, there are many changes that are desperately needed. It is up to you, the Christian community, to set the standard by which the necessity of change is measured".

As I sit down, and I am not doing this to be critical, I think it is incumbent on me as a legislator to express my concerns. We look at the paper every day and what I have said here today echoes what is being said in the public. I will close with this brief sentence: Our greatness lies not in being strong but in the right use of our strength. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?
Does any other Member wish to speak?
The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. As I rise to make my contribution to the Budget Address of 2003-2004 year, I am reminded of what John F. Kennedy said:

“Economic policy can result from governmental inaction as well as governmental action”.

I wish for a moment to ask you to picture this amazing picture with me: the Leader of Government Business is standing in bathing trunks at the end of a jetty in East End. There are five or six persons in the sea who are in difficulty and appearing to succumb. They are clearly not able to help themselves and appeal to the Minister for help. As they shout in desperation for help the Minister shouts back, “Don’t worry I am stationing lifeguards here next week”. That is the picture we have.

The people of this country waited for the last two weeks in anticipation of the Budget Address which was to be delivered by the Third Official Member, as he had done on so many occasions in the past. They waited to see if the Budget would at long last address the issues of concern to them and offer some salvation. Those who were still interested in this annual event sat glued to their television sets and tried to follow the less-than-exciting presentation of the Third Official Member. Somewhere in there I thought that I was alone in being lost after the first four or five minutes. However, I was somewhat stunned to receive an e-mail from a friend that very evening.

[Certain words were ordered by the Honourable Speaker to be expunged from the record]

The dilemma that exists with the current financial Budget is that it is difficult to determine what actually constitutes the surplus. Is this a cash surplus, a phantom surplus or a combination of both? What exactly is it? If this surplus is real why do we have to borrow additional funds? It is ironic that items are being removed from the Government’s balance sheet yet they are still in control of the Government. Government’s funds must still be used to keep these entities afloat. Is this transparency in accounting or is it manipulation of financial data [Certain words were ordered by the Honourable Speaker to be expunged from the record] In order to create —

Point of Order

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: Can I hear your point of order?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I have sat and listened to the Member talk — [Certain words were ordered by the Honourable Speaker to be expunged from the record] for quite a while and I was wondering where he was going. [Certain words were ordered by the Honourable Speaker to be expunged from the record] Is the Member comparing that situation to the presentation of this Budget? If that is what the Member is saying, then I want to know because he must prove what he is saying.

Hour of Interruption—4.30 pm

The Speaker: Honourable Member, can we have some clarification as to where the comparison was being drawn?

Before, we move forward, Members, we have reached the hour of interruption. Can I have a motion?

Suspension of Standing Order 10(2)

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, as we have given notice and as Business Committee has decided we propose to go at least until 8 o’clock. I would move that Standing Orders 10(2) be suspended in order to continue up until 8 o’clock.

The Speaker: The question is that his House do continue until 8 pm.

All those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed: That the Standing Orders 10(2) be suspended to allow proceedings to continue until 8 pm.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, can we get some clarification as to the intent being used in the comparison you were making so that the Chair can make a ruling?

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Mr. Speaker, at the outset I said that I had received an e-mail from a Caymanian that evening. Now, that e-mail was explaining his interpretation of what is going on in his country. I was merely reading the words from the e-mail that I received from my friend.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, in the interest of relevance to the debate we need to know whether you were trying to draw an analogy or trying to say that the situation of the existing Budget is similar in comparison to Enron. What was the point of the e-mail?

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Mr. Speaker, I did not get it that this Budget is the same as— [Certain words were ordered by the Honourable Speaker to be expunged from the record] because [Certain words were ordered by the Honourable Speaker to be expunged from the record] was a company. I think what was being drawn to my attention was the fact that this was what happened [Certain words were ordered by the Honourable Speaker to be expunged from the record] and at the end of this we will see how this gentleman comes to a conclusion with regard to Government and how Government must operate.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, if the reason is not to draw a comparison then it is not going to be relevant to this debate. If it is going to be used to draw a comparison then I would warn the Member to be careful. As you said, it is a situation where that company was found in contravention of laws and found liable and criminal. In fairness we need to know if it is a comparison because if it is not the question of relevance comes into play. If it is that you are drawing a comparison with the activities of Enron and the activities of the current Budget we need to know if that was the intention.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Mr. Speaker, it appears like the Government at all times refuses to accept certain responsibilities. I will just move on_____

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: No! Mr. Speaker, on a point of order. I raised the point of order because if he is comparing— [Certain words were ordered by the Honourable Speaker to be expunged from the record] to the Cayman Islands Budget that was presented by the Financial Secretary of this country, then he has to prove where that is correct. Or otherwise, that it be withdrawn and struck from the records of this Honourable House. Furthermore, if he has a document that he was sent that he is reading into the record of this Honourable House, I am therefore asking that that record be laid on the Table of this Honourable House. That was what he did; read it into the record.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, can you either make the comparison or we will ask that the record in reference to Enron be withdrawn.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Mr. Speaker, I am merely telling the story of a company that failed.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, that would have no relevance to this debate if you are just doing a story. If it is not relevant to the debate I will ask that the reference to Enron be withdrawn and struck from the record. Unless, the Member is willing to make the comparison and show the relevance to the Cayman Islands 2003 Budget debate.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I will withdraw the relevance to Enron. However, when it comes to relevance in this House so many have stood here and have heard—

Point of Order

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order. The Member raised a matter to which I raised the objection under the Standing Orders. You have asked him and he has given an order since. Either that is complied with or I am asking the Chair to direct. Also, Mr. Speaker, I have asked that Honourable Member to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the document he was reading.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, the ruling that I have made is that either you do or withdraw—

[Inaudible Interjections]

The Speaker: The order from the Chair is that the reference to Enron be withdrawn and that it be expunged from the records. You may continue Honourable Member.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, I am asking—

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker—

Point of Order

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: I will hear your point of order.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: The Member, as other Members have read from documents into the record, no one questioned but it is my right (any Member's right) to ask that that document be laid on the Table of this Honourable House.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, you did challenge the reading of the record and we have ordered that it either be clarified or expunged. Since it has been removed from all records in Parliament I will not request it. I just request that all references to the letter that was made and all statements referring to Enron be removed from the record of this House.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, are you saying that the matter that he read into the records of this Honourable House verbatim is being expunged? Is that what you are directing the Clerk to expunge?

The Speaker: All references made to any e-mail and references made to Enron should be expunged.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, kindly.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, if you would continue.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Mr. Speaker, as I continue on this debate it is quite ironic that the Government sees it necessary to call Members on relevance on this side of this Honourable House. Especially the Leader of Government Business, he loves doing that: relevance! We sit over here and let everyone do as they please and the Chair (your good self Mr. Speaker and the Speaker of this Honourable House) gives so much latitude to everyone in this Honourable House.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, could I just break a minute here to explain. When you make reference to the latitude that was given, latitude was also given to you until a point of order was brought. So, let us not make the assumption that the Chair in any way is restricting your latitude. The restriction came on a point of order which you have the ability to bring as well.

Honourable Member, you may continue.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Mr. Speaker, I thank you Sir, but the intent was not that the Chair was restricting me. I do apologise to you if that was a misunderstanding of what I said. My contention is that the Government continues to bring points of order on relevance and other matters as soon as a Member of the Opposition rises. The Chair allows debate to go on and as soon as the Government sees something that they do not like they jump on their feet. However, that same Caymanian who expressed some concerns to me is one of those Caymanians who was waiting in anticipation to hear what innovative mechanisms the Government would be proposing to assist young Caymanians to start their own businesses. Many young professional Caymanians are out there with aspirations of working for themselves and they are unable to do so.

Mr. Speaker, the Government must understand that the Opposition is not alone in questioning the manner in which they are financially running this country. The public is also questioning it. Many residents are sceptical particularly of these off balance sheet financial commitments the Government is negotiating with private individuals and entities. I understand that Government is going to defend themselves. Many years ago while following politics in this country and in particular we will all remember Motion No. 3/90 whether we agreed with it or not.

I particular remember the then Minister for Education in his address on that same Motion saying, the Opposition must be allowed to have its say that Government will always have its way. If it was not that way the tale would be wagging the dog, but the Government should not curtail the 'say' of the Opposition. We have heard in here that the current Opposition opposes just for opposition sake with no alternatives. However, I want the Government to tell us how we are expected to propose alternatives when they do not tell us what they are doing and how they are doing it. I think the Leader of the Opposition called it sound bytes; that is exactly what it is. It is nice to put on paper but nothing of any consequence comes of it.

Mr. Speaker, those same young Caymanians out there are concerned that they have no way of ever being anything other than an employee. We heard the Minister for Education talking how Caymanians coming back into the workforce out of college or otherwise, have no way of getting involved in this country. That is so true. We see the United Democratic Party Government constantly talking about creating an environment for the people of this country so they can get employment. Those are the buzz words in the UDP camp.

Mr. Speaker, the Third Official Member in his Budget Address said, "Key economic development strategies therefore to control and where possible reduce the operating cost faced by the private sector". I agree with him that we have to ensure somehow that that is done. Somehow we have to control the operating cost in this country, but that control and reduction should not only mean that it is for the foreign investor to come to our country. It should also translate into an environment where young Caymanians can succeed.

I have looked through the Budget Address, and yes, the Third Official Member has said that the Government proposes to spend an additional $1.5 million on promoting new overseas investments and business opportunities in the Cayman Islands over the next year. Then for new local and small micro-businesses it is only an additional $350,000. That tells me that the Government is concentrating more on attracting business which will give our people 'jobs'. This is fine, I have no arguments with that but we know what those investments are.

Let us look at the Ritz Carlton: hundreds of millions of dollars of investment. Can we honestly say that spending $400,000 per year to assist the young Caymanians who want to start a little business to do the maintenance at Ritz Carlton because we cannot spend the hundred million. Can we honestly say that that is sufficient to give them the encouragement? I spoke earlier about the high cost of doing business. That has to be driven down because $350,000 cannot start that many businesses. I am amazed that the Government will contend that they are doing so much for the people of this country.

More and more as I look at our young Caymanians coming back here, they are coming back qualified. They are not even satisfied anymore with a first degree, they refuse to come home and work with a first degree now. They do not even come home to get work experience after a first degree; they continue their education and go to post graduate degrees. That is what we want. We hear the Minister of Education talking about the many scholarships that we give to our people. Let us give them all, everyone that applies, let us get them educated, but let us create the environment in this country when they come back they are not for the rest of their lives subjected to working for someone else.

Mr. Speaker, not everyone will want to go out and do businesses but those who want to do it have no chance because you know, Mr. Speaker, and we all know that to start a business you have to mortgage your mother, your father, your sisters, your brothers, your family estate; whatever you have is going to be mortgaged. The lending institutions in this country are taking no risk other than with a car that is properly insured. I hear the Second Elected Member for West Bay and he is right. Not everyone can be a businessman. However, I warn that any country that does not have a vibrant middle class ownership of that country, the country is going to fail. It will be forever catching up with those who are less fortunate. It will try to play catch up for the rest of our lives and our children's lives! For sure, if I cannot get into the middle class bracket then my children cannot get there. My children will be down there where they will be a burden on the government of their time. That is what I am trying to show.

Mr. Speaker, we do not only talk about the Cayman Islands Investment Bureau. That is fine, quite innovative and in England, in Cayman, in America, because from day one our economy has been built on foreign investment. The time has come to create an environment where the Caymanian who wants to share in this success can do it. How many times have we (ask anyone of us in this Honourable Chamber to name the many times they have) heard Caymanians saying who are we developing for? Mr. Speaker, you think that is said because the buildings are going down? That is part of it. There are saying it because they are not sharing in it, there are no opportunities and as a country we must make those opportunities.

Reading from the Budget Address: "The Bureau and the Cayman Islands Development Bank are also involved in encouraging and supporting the establishment of new businesses if Development Bank will increase its loan portfolio for small and micro-businesses $350,000 over the 2003-2004 fiscal year".

"The promotion of new investment is being done with the assistance of the Growth Management Board which is a joint venture with the private sector. This is to ensure that new business proposals are sound and focused in a way that reflects Cayman's competitive strengths". I want to know, Mr. Speaker,—and the Government needs to answer this—does that extend to a little young Caymanian who wants to start a little cottage industry? Is that assistance also given to him or her? That is what we need. We will develop a vibrant middle class if we assist along the way. The Government says we criticise – I am saying this is what the Government needs to do.

For too long our people have not shared in the success and for too long our stock market has been measured on how much construction we can do. That is it! If we see the buildings going up we are wealthy, we are vibrant, the economy is good – and then we have to import people to do the work. Then people come to our country and start landscaping or the maintenance business. Why do they come here and do that? We all talk about how Caymanians are fronting for this one and that one. If Caymanians are fronting for someone they are doing it because they cannot do it for themselves. We do not support them. There is no mechanism in place to allow them to go in to the Growth Management Board and sit down with their ideas—because there are many ideas out there____.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, could I beg your indulgence so I could switch chairs with the Speaker.

[The Speaker in the Chair]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Please continue the Honourable Member for the district of East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, (please forgive me if I slip there) I was saying that we are not providing the environment where Caymanians, if they so choose, can have their own businesses. Where are the soft loans for these young Caymanians who want to be businessmen, who have these brilliant ideas but they do not have the ability to borrow the monies to do it? It is Government's responsibility to start prioritizing and having the mechanism in place that if those Caymanians so choose they do not have to front for someone for 10 per cent, they can own 100 per cent of it. The mechanism must also guide these people along the way. Provide soft loans for three years and in the mean time watching them; five years - soft loans. That is a concentration that we have to start thinking about.

The Leader of Government Business spoke in his Policy Statement of how the country developed so fast and so many Caymanians were ill-equipped or are ill-equipped to deal with that fast pace. They are now temporarily seeking financial aid, and we have to get them off it. I agree with him, he talked about . . .and lest I be stopped again, Madam Speaker, just let me read from page 28 of The Policy Statement, "Madam Speaker, over the years the Cayman Islands have grown from the Islands time forgot to one of the major financial centres of the world.

As many of our people are not equipped to handle this rapid development, many found themselves seeking temporary and permanent financial assistance from the Department of Social Services. Some of these people in many instances are simply just in need of retaining, retraining or retooling. Like the saying goes, "Give a man a fish you feed him for a day but if you teach a man to fish you will feed him for a lifetime". It is time, Madam Speaker, that we focus on retraining and retooling our people so that they can all secure jobs". Jobs, again! Jobs, jobs, jobs! Nothing to say that we as a people are going to further put mechanisms in place to try and retain some of the wealth that is going out of this country from the small businesses. Jobs created with one hundred percent Caymanian ownership will also create jobs.

Madam Speaker, I contend that the Government is . . . while I am critical of the Government in this regard, I must point out that successive governments have failed to identify or even think much less try to plan, to put the mechanism in place to develop the middle income in this country so that it can be retained here. We need it to stay here but our problem is—all of us—that we do not want to see the Caymanians with it. The more rich Caymanians we have in the middle class or well-to-do Caymanians in the middle class the better it is for us. If they are not sending their wealth out, it stays here. It is going to be better off for us and the time has come for us to address it and use government's resources, the people's resources to assist in that regard. I do not know when the UDP Government is going to start but I would encourage them not to get caught up like the rest of governments. Let us move towards looking at these Caymanians in the same way that we look at the big investors when we try to attract that to keep our economy buoyant.

Madam Speaker, the Leader of Government Business talk about retooling and retraining of these people and he used the old cliché about giving a man a fish, feed him a day, and I support that but Government must go further. I want to see the programmes that they have put in place for the retooling and retraining. Let us see them.

Point of Elucidation

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Madam Speaker,

The Speaker: Do you have a point of order, Member for West Bay?

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: No, Madam Speaker, I have a point of elucidation.

The Speaker: Will the Member give way?

Mr. V. Arden McLean: No, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Please continue.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, I am not going to give way on that because the Leader of the Opposition laid out a lot in asking questions of Government and they have not yet been explained. The majority of the Government Bench have already spoken. So why do I have to give way? As a matter of fact the same good gentleman (the Second Elected Member for West Bay) went to great lengths to try and get political mileage out of this same thing but he fell woefully short of how the UDP Government will achieve their goal. I did not hear anything about that. Maybe the Leader of Government Business, when he gets up to debate, also the Third Official Member when he winding up, will let us know how it is going to be achieved.

The Speaker: Please refer to the Third Official Member Honourable, Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Yes, Madam Speaker, that was a slip.

The Second Elected Member for West Bay also went on to say that these programmes cannot be measured in overnight success. However, I contend that the UDP nights have turned into days and then weeks and then months and now years and we are still at the planning stages when it comes to the implementation of tangible results for the masses. Select few!

[Inaudible interjections]

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Select, few! Masses, No! The select few is benefiting from the UDP Government. Masses, No!

An honourable Member: Preach on brother!

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, I will now show how the masses pay under the UDP Government Administration; for the success of a select few. The Leader of Government Business went on in his Policy Statement to explain how his government has completed the deregulation of the telecommunication industry and the result will be indirect and direct savings to the people of this country.

Madam Speaker, as you will recall the Minister responsible for Communications refused to answer a question submitted by me requesting an update on the deregulation process on Wednesday, 11 June 2003. The Minister then under privilege made the statement on the same subject on Friday, 13 June 2003. In that statement he outlined the heads of agreement reached between Government and Cable and Wireless. Now that I have had the opportunity to review these heads of agreement it is painfully obvious that the UDP have again succeeded in negotiating millstones around the ordinary man's neck.

Madam Speaker, in the Minister's 8-page progress report he outlined the six main points of agreements reached between Government and Cable and Wireless. I now beg your indulgence that we look at these agreements objectively and try to find out where the real savings are and where the real increases in rates are.

[Inaudible interjections]

The Speaker: Order.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, I am referring to statement made in this Honourable House by the Honourable Linford A. Pierson, OBE, JP, Minister of Planning . . .

The Speaker: Member for East End, please refer to him just as the Minister as he made it in his ministerial capacity.

[Laughter]

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I was just reading from the statement; but I will.

From that statement after laying out first the reasons and the likes, he . . . and I will show that the Minister was being very unfair to me when he replied that he had already given me an update on this subject. He admitted in his statement and I read, "I last formerly updated this Honourable House on the progress on telecommunication liberalisation as part of my response to a parliamentary question asked in June 2002 by the Elected Member for East End . . ." Then he went on to read the statement. So, Madam Speaker, it was one year to the month that I asked the previous question.

Madam Speaker, I now turn to those six heads of agreements and the Minister statement says, "On the signing the main agreement, on the 10 June 2003:

- a) Applications for all types of telecommunications licence may be issued including the resale of Cable and Wireless International services.
- b) Competition for the provision of domestic telecommunications may commence.
- c) New entrance licence to provide other services, such as mobile may begin to construct their networks.

Madam Speaker, I am not an accountant, therefore if I am wrong the Minister is here and I am sure he can correct me. However, I am going to apply it the way I know, then the Minister can correct it, if I am wrong. The next head is on the 1 November 2003, four months after the main agreement is signed,

- a) Alternative internet services providers may begin operation.
- b) Cable and Wireless will standardised their local and inter-island call charges to fix lines at 9 cents for the first minute and 2 cents per minute thereafter.

Madam Speaker, let us just stop at that one and look at it for a minute. Currently, the charges for local calls within Grand Cayman is 9 cents for the first three minutes and 3 cents for every three minutes thereafter. What that says to me is that for the first three minutes you pay 3 cents per minute, after that you pay 1 cent per minute. If I am wrong someone needs to tell me so.

Government has negotiated with Cable and Wireless. I contend and I submit – at 200 per cent increase on the first three minutes and 100 per cent on every minute thereafter. Madam Speaker, maybe I need to repeat that: 200 per cent increase on the first three minutes and 100 per cent on every minute thereafter.

From Grand Cayman to Cayman Brac that is much more expensive as it is now. It works out approximately 27 cents per minute from Grand Cayman, to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, vice versa.

I will read b) again; "Cable and Wireless will standardized their local and inter-island calls charges to fix lines at 9 cents for the first minute and 2 cents per minute thereafter". If that is the case between Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac then we have gotten some relief, so to speak. However, my concern is that theoretically, we have increased residential cost for telephone in this country by 100 per cent. Let us use—

Point of Order

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: Madam Speaker,

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay, what is your point of order?

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: Madam Speaker, the Member is misleading the House. For him to say that we have increased residential calls he would have to say what portion of residential calls they make on an international basis. If he is saying that in increase residential calls, residential calls would make up all calls that I make from my residence. He is misleading the House in saying that there a significant increase when there is no way of him knowing, depending on my make up of my international calls and my local calls. He cannot say what the increase to my residential calls would be.

The Speaker: Elected Member from West Bay, are you endeavouring to make a distinction between the terminology of residential and local?

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: Yes, Madam Speaker. What I am saying is that when he says that residential cost on the Island has increased . . . he cannot make that call unless he knows what the mix of local calls . . . when I say local calls he also has to know what the local calls that I was making to the Sister Islands before he can say what the increase would be.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End, I understand the Fourth Elected Member for the district of West Bay point of order. Technically speaking the Chair would find you misleading the House if it is your intention for residential to incorporate local and international. Could you indicate what you intended to imply by the utilization of the terminology 'residential'.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, there may have been a slip of the tongue. It is not residential bill; it is the residential rates per minute.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End, that is for Grand Cayman only or for the country? I think it was two points the Member for West Bay said were misleading. Could you clarify please?

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, I explained that when I said that between Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac and Little Cayman the rates are currently approximately 27 cents per minute. If this extends to that it means that it is a reduction in the rates. I am talking about the rates per minute. Earlier I said the residential cost of phone but not the bill. I am talking about rates. My contention is that the rates have gone up by 200 per cent in the first three minutes and 100 per cent in every minute thereafter in Grand Cayman.

The Speaker: That is for the local rates, and that is your assertion, yes?

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Yes, Madam Speaker. I further went on to say if that is extended to the rates and be the rates between Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac then the rates will be much better because that rate was a separate rate altogether. It has always been a separate rate.

The Speaker: Thank you. The Chair would wish to rule and then I will acknowledge the Member for West Bay. The Chair has accepted that the Member for East End did not by intent wish to mislead the House but it was more of a Freudian slip. I would ask the Member for East End in the future to be specific, now that there is a distinction made referred to Grand Cayman when it is so applicable and to refer to local rates as opposed to residential rates. Thank you.

The Fourth Elected Member for the district of West Bay.

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: Madam Speaker, while I respect your ruling that the Member did not intentionally mislead the House, I would like to bring to your attention that I also have in front of me the statement that he made that; if it is meant to include the other; I have a difficulty with him not being able to understand. It says, "Cable and Wireless will standardised their local and inter-Island rates". So for him to say 'if it applies' it is misleading because I have a copy of the document and it clearly states 'and inter-Island call charges'. He was really intent on not misleading the House he would not have had reason to say 'if'.

The Speaker: Thank you, Member for West Bay. I think the Chair has made it clear that the facts are as being represented that the Member has to refer to the local rates if it is intention not to mislead the House.

Please proceed Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I am going to say this, it is my considered position, and I submit that the residential cost in this country to use a phone is going to increase. If the rates have increased then I see no reason why the cost is not going to increase if you use the phone. I—

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Point of Order

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: Madam Speaker, another point of order.

The Speaker: Please state it.

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: Again, the Member is trying to mislead because he is still saying 'if the rates have increased'. He just clearly said that the rates have increased in some instances but have decreased in other instances. Now he is saying that if the rates have increased the residential cost will increase. That would happen only if there had been an increase. Since he has acknowledged that there has been an increase and a decrease he cannot make the assumption that rates will increase. Unless he knows specifically that everyone makes more than one type of call than the other.

The Speaker: Thank you. Elected Member for East End, in my opinion the statement you just made would fall in the category of speculation which would be tantamount to a rebuttal position. I believe that the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay has rebutted that presumption and I would ask you to refrain from making a conclusive statement, unless you have evidence to back it up or you are willing to say it is an opinion, purely.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I will—

The Speaker: My Clerk is informing me that Radio Cayman needs to change tapes so could we have your indulge for a few moments. I would be grateful.

[Pause]

The Speaker: Order. We can reconvene. The tape has now been restarted.

The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Continuing on this same subject I understand how the Government in their point of order is saying that if a person is in Grand Cayman—I cannot assume how the rates will increase because I cannot assume that the residential cost per month has increased—the person could have been making calls to Cayman Brac where the cost has now been reduced. My contention is that anyone who does not call Cayman Brac will certainly see an increase in their residential. The same way we can make assumptions that peo—ple will call to Cayman Brac, which will balance it out, I can make that same assumption that people do not call Cayman Brac and it will not be balanced out. I contend in those instances we have 200 per cent increase on the first three minutes and 100 per cent increase thereafter.

Madam Speaker, the third bullet head says—

The Speaker: Honourable Elected Member, you have 1 hour remaining according to the Clerk's calculation.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, "On the 1 December Cable and Wireless business line rental will increase to $30 per month. At the same time all international call charges will be reduced on average by at least 40 per cent for residential and business subscribers". That is very nice, that is the intent of deregulation. It must be reduced. Madam Speaker, but again in the event someone does not . . . how many calls does the regular person make overseas? My contention is that the effect is going to be negligible – whatever it is (40 per cent) on a few calls overseas for residential people. The greater effect is going to be the increase on the rates in the residential sector.

Madam Speaker, on the 1 January 2004 (in six months) Cable and Wireless residential line rates will increase from $6.25 to $9 per month. As far as my little arithmetic can work that is 44 per cent increase on line rental. At the same time Cable and Wireless is going to introduce a light-user scheme with a line rental charge of $8 per month and a rebate of up to $3 per month on the cost to local fix telephone. Three dollars in rebate, Madam Speaker, let us look at that rebate. A light-user scheme (because I do not have the details of this) which the Minister said he was not going to provide at this time. What it says to me is—and they have a right to stop me—that anyone who wants to go on that light-user scheme can apply to do so. It is for only $8 but that is an increase of $1.75 on the line rental. When we say there is a $3 rebate it is not really a $3 rebate; it is really only $1.75 rebate.

Madam Speaker, when we look at April 2004, 9 months after the main agreement was signed – The monthly line rental will increase from $9 to $12. That says to me that there is a 92 per cent overall increase – just to have a phone in your house. The difference between $5.75 and $12 is certainly an increase of 92 per cent. I . . .

The Speaker: Do you have a point of order, Fourth Elected Member for West Bay?

Point of Order

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: Yes, Madam Speaker. I hate to do this, but the Member is misleading the House again and maybe it is just a mathematical mistake, but $5.95 to $12 would have to be a bit more than 95 per cent.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, I recognise the mistake, as I made it.

The Speaker: Is this an appropriate time to take the afternoon break?

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Yes, Madam Speaker, it is an appropriate time.

The Speaker: 10 minutes.

Proceedings suspended at 5.40 pm

Proceedings resumed at 6.10 pm

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

Continuing the Budget Address, the Elected Member for East End with a remaining time of 55 minutes.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. When we took the break I had made a mistake in my explanation on the 92 per cent increase on residential monthly line rentals on Cable and Wireless. I should have said that it has increased. It will increase by April 2004 by $5.75 which is 92 per cent of what it is currently. It is being increased from 1 January which is $6.25. Just to make sure that everyone understands that I understand, and it was just a slip, for the benefit of the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

One of the things the Minister said in his progress report was that this would certainly make business easier to do in the country. I totally agree with him because the overseas calls will be reduced by 40 per cent. However, the object of deregulation is hopefully to reduce and everyone saves. Certainly the residents who make overseas calls will benefit as a result of that. I am sure they are looking forward to that. My contention was always the rebalancing locally in the residential sector and the Minister has said that if the charges were not more closely aligned with cost they would act as a significant barrier to the introduction of competition in the domestic telecommunication service.

Well, Madam Speaker, I find it kind of ironic Cable and Wireless has been here all the time with it and now we are going to allow other people to come in and not be required to provide local services at cost that Cable and Wireless has been doing all this time. Someone has been paying for it. Cable and Wireless has been paying for the cost of operating the local by other places they have been taking the money from. I see that the objective of Government was to try and rebalance it so that that would pay for itself. However, there are other things in the ICT Law, which will assist with that, for example, the universal fund, et cetera. When we did the ICT Law I spoke of not allowing one company tap into the services that was most lucrative, that they all had to share by providing services to this country. But of course we will wait and see how it works out with Government.

Madam Speaker, I listened to the Minister of Education and how he talked of record and his plans. However, ever since I have been a Member of this Honourable House I have asked for improvements to the East End school as well. Again, I see nothing of significance in the Budget. There are a number of improvements that are needed at the East End school and I have not seen anything of significance to do what is necessary at the East End school. Certainly when Finance Committee comes around we will address that one.

Madam Speaker, I noted that the Honourable Third Official Member spoke of policing and $800,000 for additional community policing, and an additional $100,000 for criminal investigation work. While the police and the country have to be grateful for $800,000, from the word 'go' when I entered this Honourable House I supported the police force. The Government needs to go further; we need to provide the tools for the police force. I have called for planes, boats and helicopters (maybe a helicopter and a fixed wing plane) go give to the police force). The Government has always complained that these things were going to cost too much.

Recurrent expenditure! Well, we are seeing what has, in my opinion, translated into what is now increasing crime. We are putting more police on the road but maybe they are not giving them the tools to do the job. We need to ensure that the police get the tools. Maybe the Leader of Government Business will provide more tools for the—

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker?

The Speaker: Yes, Honourable Leader, please state your point of order.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: The point of order is that the Member is misleading the House. He said we have not provided any tools. No! The Member is saying that and he says that I should provide it and the fact is that provisions have been made in the Budget. What he should now say is what he desires the Government to do.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End, would you repeat what you said for clarity?

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, I said the Government needs to provide more tools!

The Speaker: Are you saying that the Government has provided tools but you would wish to see more tools being provided? Is that your contention?

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, I went on to say I called for a helicopter and a fixed wing plane, more tools. Police certainly do not have a helicopter nor a fixed wing plane. I said in the absence of these necessary tools it is my contention that we now see what it results in – more crime.

The Speaker: Thank you. In light of what you said the Chair does not find that you are misleading the House, in that, you are not saying that the Government has not provided tools. In fact, you have said that the Government has provided tools but you are extending the additional tools that you would like to see. Please proceed.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker, for making the Leader of Government Business understand what I said because he . . .

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End, Member for East End.

An honourable Member: The day that she can do that, give her a medal.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Because of time constraints I am going to go on.

An honourable Member: He must be tired.

[Laughter]

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, the Minister for Health spoke of insurance quite extensively in his debate and how insurance companies seem to be anticipating every time he speaks in this Honourable House to new measures or whatever the case may be. I know the troubles the Minister for Health is going through with these insurance companies. I recently brought to his attention that I heard the insurance companies were sending out letters informing clients they were reducing their policies to the basic policy.

The Select Committee, of which the Honourable Member is chairman, has been working for quite some time whenever we get a quorum (I have always been there). We need to review, revamp that whole Law and ensure insurance companies play their part in this country. We hear too many complaints of our people being taken advantage of. Then it came to my attention that the other side of the insurance companies (motor insurance) are now refusing to insure anyone under 21 years of age. For instance, it appears that some are still insuring at 17 of 18 years of age but their parents would have had to be clients prior to them coming of age.

Madam Speaker, the Government needs to look into this. By law we give our young people the privilege right now to drive at 17 years of age. I am not arguing whether that is too young or not; one year following that we say that those young people have reached the age of majority – 18. Then we as politicians go out and ask them to make a responsible decision and action and come to vote for us. The insurance companies may say that these young people's premium will be higher than yours or mine but it unfair to refuse them insurance! That is not fair. The Government needs to look into this seriously. These are the types of things that cause disillusionment with the young population in this country.

[Inaudible comments]

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, I did not say this is the thing; I said these are the types of things that are causing it when you do not give them their equal rights. I wonder what is going to happen when the Bill of Rights comes in play.

Madam Speaker, I find Government lacking in these regards. I find that they do not pay attention to these very serious matters. They are more concerned with FMI, PFI and we could very well be selling our country to one or two or a few individuals.

An honourable Member: It is time for you to go back to East End!

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, I note that the Leader of Government Business tried to get political coverage again by speaking at length about the new Roads Authority and outlined the district road programmes, traffic improvements and the likes. I take note that of the $1.3 million only $150,000 has been allocated to road works in East End. The Minister responsible for Roads knows that the road from mid East End into Colliers is heavily used, even by himself. He knows that the reason the repairs were postponed is because the Water Authority was putting in the main lines to Tortuga Club for the Minister responsible for the Water Authority. It appears that $150,000 in my opinion may not be enough to properly rehabilitate that complete road.

Madam Speaker, the Minister for Social Services once said that the responsibility for the distribution of government's resource falls with the Ministers. How they are going to distribute it is entirely up to them but they must understand the needs and they must see where it is most needed. We have the biggest time share establishment in this country being accessed by that road and it is in a serious state of disrepair. It needs repair and it needs it badly. I know the Minister has indicated that he will make his rounds this time in July and maybe he will come, maybe he will not but like always, if I am invited to join him to show him the needs I will. I again call on the Minister to ensure that that road is repaired in its entirety this year.

Madam Speaker, I have not seen anything in the Budget concerning the dock in East End. So, I take that to mean that the Government has now decided that this is not a good idea like the people of East End have indicated and they have withdrawn that. I am sure the Honourable Leader of Government Business has ensured that it was not placed in the Budget. So, I guess that has now fallen by the wayside, or the Minister is so busy with his dock in West Bay and the one in George Town that he has forgotten that he was planning to put one in East End. Well, we have not forgotten and we know on record there are a number of signatures with the Governor's office right now.

I notice no provisions have been made in here so I suspect they have now dropped that, which is good. They have dropped the idea because they knew it was impossible—

The Speaker: The Honourable Leader of Government.

Point of Order

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, on a point of order. The Member is misleading the House when he says we have dropped the idea of the dock in East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: I never said that, I said they may have now dropped . . .

The Speaker: Order.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Well, Madam Speaker, if the Member is going to say one thing one minute and say another thing another minute then I cannot raise the point of order.

The Speaker: Does that mean you do not wish to elucidate Honourable Leader?

[Inaudible response]

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Maybe the Minister was not listening while I was saying it but what I said was that I did not see any provisions in the Budget. Therefore, it appears to me like the Government may have not dropped the idea, which is good. I respect that. If he wants we can stop and get the Hansard and then go until midnight.

Madam Speaker, I am not going to go on much more but I must say that I know the Second Elected Member for West Bay said that we will all get up and talk about how we did not have sufficient time to review the Budget and what have you. I do not want to disappoint the Second Elected Member for West Bay—because I really respect that his debate was much better than it used to be—I must say that it is quite surprising and it is unfair that the Government decided not to give the Opposition more time to review the Budget. I respect the time constraints but that is not my fault and the people of this country should not be punished as a result of the Government's inefficiency or inability to get the Budget ready in time.

Madam Speaker, the Government must respect that we are here on equal grounds with equal responsibility to represent our people the best we can. It is only fair. Everyone on the Government Bench would have had access by some way or the other to the Budget process. There is nothing wrong with that that is the way it should be, Madam Speaker. However, when the Opposition has to rush to try and do a response within less than 48 hours that is not fair. Forget about us, if we had to stay up all night and use match sticks in our eyes to keep them open . . . we are secondary and the people of this country is first.

The Government, in particular the Honourable Leader of Government Business, must respect that we too are here to represent people. It is not only the people in East End that I represent; it is this whole country. If I cannot have the time which should be afforded me, then I will not go any where near doing the job that I am asked to do. However, that is legacy of this UDP Government. They have crossed and destroyed everything that was pure and conventions and the likes. They do as they please. I do not know how long that will go on but certainly time is not as long as it has been. I can assure them of that and all of us will have to face the public and give account for our stewardship. I hear many of them talk about they are going from one constituency to the other. I do not think any of us will have any time to leave any constituency, not in this next election. However, we will be around too. The People's Progressive Movement will be available for the people to make a choice.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, you have 27 minutes remaining.

[Inaudible interjections and laughter]

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, my last point which I would like to deal with, although I had not planned on it but since I have twenty-seven minutes left I can get through that so that the Minister of Communications can get up out of his seat.

Madam Speaker, finally I would like to deal with Cable and Wireless. We talked about that earlier. Maybe for a second we need to look at CUC too and as to who is responsible for that. Not for a second am I defending CUC. When I worked for them I was loyal to them. I now work for the people of this country and I am loyal to them. That is how it works. However, much has been said about that too and how much it cost for electricity. There is no denying that, everyone in this country knows; but let us think about it, and no offence to CUC.

CUC's contract was executed in January 1986, the supplementary licence which reduced taxes on the engine they were bringing in then was done in October 1989 and an application of 10 per cent of duties on anything thereafter was applied. Duties on fuel, up to 1990, were 13 cents per gallon. In July 1990 the then Government increased it to 25 cents – 12 cents added. Then in October 1991 there was another increase, just over a year, by 25 cents making it 50 cents to where it is today. Now, if the Government is interested in assisting the poor people of this country, yes, renegotiate CUC's contract too but more importantly is the fuel cost on CUC's bill range around 20 per cent of the cost. Let us reduce of that, eh, since the same Minister who put it there is here now. We can take the 12 cents off or we can take the 25 cents off. Look at their contract.

There has been a lot said about how it should be; there should not be a ceiling on profits. I heard that it should be reduced. Maybe all of those can work if we can get to negotiate it properly. CUC just made a statement saying that since July last year they have made a proposal. I have not seen that proposal; it is not for my eyes, Madam Speaker, but I will soon ask a question in this Legislative Assembly on it. Then it will be for my eyes. Or maybe I will be refused again like I was recently but that is fine. That will not stop me from doing what I have to do. We are talking about whether or not we keep on the cap and whether or not it is too high. I am here to tell this country that I believe that it is too high but I believe the cap has to stay on. Enough said, Madam Speaker. A cap needs to stay in place and I will stand and support nothing else than a cap on profits being in place.

Madam Speaker, I warn this Honourable House. I give the Minister my support but I ask of him—he may not need that, that is true—to negotiate around a cap. We currently have 15 per cent ceiling on depreciable assets, —a cap on the return on the capital investment. I implore the Minister to make sure some kind of arrangement along that line stays in place. As much as he says I do not give him suggestions, that is one right here and it is a good one.

Madam Speaker, I shall sit and I note that the Minister for Social Services is here but I think my other colleague will deal with him appropriately when the time comes. The other thing I ask the Government is, in their response, not because I did not touch on it, they should at least respond to the Leader of the Opposition and his debate. They may not reply but the fact is that he says they were facts and the Government can refute it they need to do that because he has said they have laid the facts out on the Budget. Now, the Government needs to refute anything that the People's Progressive Movement has put forward.

I thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Thank you. Does any other Member wish to speak?

The Fourth Elected Member for the district of West Bay.

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: Thank you, Madam Speaker. It is getting late and I will try to make my comments as brief as possible. After having such a good Budget presented on behalf of the Government that I am proud to be a part of (the United Democratic Party Government) I sure that I would not find it necessary to get up. I expected that we would have had good, constructive debate from the Opposition and if they were genuine they would have recognised, even with their limited abilities, a good budget. However, Madam Speaker . . .

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town, please state your point of order.

Point of Order

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Madam Speaker, on a point of order. The Honourable Fourth Elected Member for West Bay is suggesting that the Opposition is not genuine. I am not sure what he means by that but if he is imputing any improper motive or characteristic to us . . . he is imputing that we are not genuine from which I understand he is imputing that we are dishonest.

An honourable Member: No, no, no.

The Speaker: Order!

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: I ask you Madam Speaker, to rule on the point of order and ask him to withdraw that remark.

The Speaker: Thank you. The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay, were you stating that to be a matter of fact or was it was respected and considered opinion?

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: My respected and considered opinion, Madam Speaker.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: The Member is misrepresenting what he said. He said, 'if we were genuine.'

An honourable Member: In my opinion

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: If we were genuine, he did not say that in his opinion we were not genuine. That is a statement of fact.

The Speaker: Thank you. The Chair rules that the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay is not in a position to state as a matter of fact that anyone in the House is not genuine. The Chair will permit an opinion. That is my ruling.

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I want to clarify that no ma'am, I do not know that as a matter of fact and it is strictly my humble opinion.

Madam Speaker, looking at such a good Budget prepared under very difficult circumstances it was very disappointing to see all the uproar that was referred to as a storm in a tea cup that was made over the limited time that was given for the Members to debate. Even today some 75 hours the Member that just got up also made mention of the fact that he had limited time to prepare. I could understand the first Member that got up to debate saying he had limited time but even today, 75 hours later, we are still talking about limited time. I guess next week if some of the Members continue . . .

Mr. V. Arden McLean: On a point of order, Madam Speaker

The Speaker: Please state your point of order.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, I did not say that I had limited time. I said the Government gave us limited time to respond.

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: So, what were you doing? Were you not responding?

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, the response first came from the Honourable Leader of the Opposition.

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: I referred to your response.

The Speaker: From what you said, Elected Member for East End, it is my understanding that you were speaking from your personal perspective that there was limited time. Was that what you said?

Mr. V. Arden McLean: No, Madam Speaker, I did not say that. I said__

An honourable Member: But you had time.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: The Government should ensure that the Opposition gets more time to respond. There was limited time given to the Opposition and to the country before debate was started in here. There was much more limited . . .

The Speaker: Let me just make sure I understand what you are saying. When you referred to the Members of the Opposition in that particular statement, is it your intent to include yourself in that statement?

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Madam Speaker, how I see this is that the Leader of Government Business do their policy statement, the Honourable Third Official Member does the Budget Address and as soon as that is over the Opposition responds at the next Meeting. That is the time that I am talking about. That is the limited time that we were given. Those of us who are further down the line than that is a different matter but whomever gets up from the Opposition respond to the Leader of Government Business's policy statement and the Budget Address – there was limited time compared with what has been the norm over the many years.

The Speaker: Can you please respond to my question? Are you saying that you have included yourself and not having sufficient time or is that a broad statement to the Opposition excluding yourself? I am not quite clear, Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: It was to all of us, Madam Speaker. We had to work together for two nights straight to be able to respond to the Budget Thursday morning. That was Tuesday from 12 o'clock or thereabouts, to Thursday.

[Inaudible interjections]

The Speaker: In listening to both sides it is my understanding that the Member is saying that the Opposition proper had limited time, however, I cannot take it that that is the situation for subsequent Members as more hours have elapsed. I sought to get a clarification as to whether he was saying that he himself today did not have enough time and I think it is clarified that he has not concurred that that is the position.

The Speaker: The Honourable Leader.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, this is very important. Is the Member saying that he did not have sufficient time to do his debate that he just did?

The Speaker: Honourable Leader, from what I understood he said, the Leader of the Opposition speaking generically to the Opposition Members. On the day that he spoke did not have sufficient time but he as the individual Member for East End obviously had sufficient time. If that is not correct then he can clear it up at this time, otherwise, please let us move on.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Can he clear it up, No.

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Since we have clarified that I would assume that all Members of the People's Progressive Movement should be competent representatives of the people. If the Member is now admitting that he has had enough time the whole issue of the Opposition not having enough time for response should go by the wayside because they have now admitted that they did have sufficient time. Maybe not for their first speaker and maybe that is why his presentation was so lacking. We would give him excuse for that but their other four Members as equal representatives of the people admitted that they have enough time. So, we should not hear any more discussion concerning the limited time that they had. Hopefully, whatever mistakes or lack of time he had they were able to compensate for now with their adequate time to prepare.

Madam Speaker, I am not sure exactly how we got to the position. The Member just mentioned that they laboured together for the period of time. We all laboured in here as well listening to the response and I had a good idea of how confusing the response of the PPM was going to be when in his third sentence (19 June 2003 Unedited version of the Hansard) . . .

The Speaker: When you refer to his are you talking about the Member for East End or the Leader of Opposition?

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: The Leader of Opposition during his response. I am sorry.

The Speaker: Thank you for the clarification.

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: Its says, "As we laboured deep into the night over the last 36 hours to prepare for this debate. . .". That was really a concern for me because we were debating a budget and the Budget is obviously the financial document, which leads the country for the year. When we have a Leader of Opposition who jumps to his feet to give a response on behalf of the PPM . . . he refers to the last 36 hours. That would have been 10 o'clock on Thursday.

I am not a qualified accountant either but if the Budget was delivered at 1 o'clock, we adjourned at 1 o'clock on Tuesday, 1 o'clock on Wednesday would have been 24 hours and 1 o'clock on Thursday would have been a total of 48 hours and were in here at 10 o'clock. That, to me, would give a calculation of some 45 hours. He is talking about only having 36 hours. That is 25 per cent error, Madam Speaker. Only 36 hours we are talking about and they have 9 wrong out of that. I realised very quickly that we were in for a long and laborious time.

[Laughter]

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: It was going to be a long day with many errors, even though they had more time we heard a little while ago the Member for East End with the errors that he was giving in his percentages as well. So, I really do not think it had anything to do with timing, Madam Speaker. They may have been using the same wrong calculator but really nothing to do with timing.

While we are all listening and we are tired, I guess we can find it humorous, but it is bothersome to know they are offering themselves up as the alternate government, the government in waiting. We have such disappointing debate from those Members. I guess I cannot be too critical of the Members that followed because they were only following the level at which their leader left.

In quoting from his debate he said, “It is amazing how the Leader of Government Business had made a deliberate effort to apparently to copy and adopt all the negative aspects of governance in other countries. He has adopted this system of providing a one-day break between presentation of and debate on the budget from at least two Caribbean nations namely, Barbados, St Kitts and Nevis. What he has not said, however, is the low debts to which the standard and quality of debate in those parliaments have deteriorated as a result of that practice”. Madam Speaker, why I find that statement so hypocritical again is that in one statement the Member is saying how low the quality of debate in those parliaments are. If he is using the example to say the Government does not give enough time it would mean that the Government is not giving enough time to the Opposition so it means that the Opposition debate is of low quality. Why that is so amazing is because the People’s Progressive Movement has used the Leader of Opposition of Barbados as their main advisor. So, if the Member is saying here that the quality of debate is so low in those countries why would any responsible government or leaders want to use that country as advisors to the Government in waiting for the Cayman Islands?

Madam Speaker, now I understand because in his statement he has told me that the opposition debates in those countries have fallen to a low level. We all know who their advisor is and now we know why their level of debate has dropped as low as well. That is scary again, while they offer themselves up for the alternate government, the government in waiting. They are getting advice from a country which they have acknowledged has a low level of debate.

Madam Speaker, I could go on with the many, many errors that were made during the debate of the Leader of Opposition. He talked about not being here for one-upmanship. He also said in his statement on page 2 that, “When you deny the Members a chance to get information from local and overseas . . .”. Madam Speaker, it is evident to me that is their big problem, not that they did not have enough time to prepare for the reply. What happened, as in the past, the needed enough time to get to their overseas consultants and because that did not happen the statement was derogatory remarks of those consultants in Barbados. I can understand why they are upset with the limited time because if he had more time to look over their speech I am sure he would not have allowed them to get up here and make those kinds of statements about the Parliament of Barbados.

The Speaker: Is that your opinion Honourable Member?

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: Strictly my opinion, Madam Speaker.

In yesterday’s newspaper there was reference made to a headline. They feel their real job is to tear down the Government. They were quick to jump up and talk about the headlines in the paper—

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Madam Speaker, I wish to bring it to your attention that there is not a quorum in the House.

The Speaker: Thank you.

[Pause]

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: Thank you very much, Madam Speaker. It was so interesting that the Second Elected Member for George Town would bring that point that the House did not have a quorum when there is no Member besides himself on the Opposition who has decided to stay and listen to the Government’s debate on the Budget. It is really disrespectful that the Members would have expected the House to sit here to listen to—what was difficult at times—debate from their side but not willing to offer the same respect to the other side. However, I know, Madam Speaker, that you really have no control over that. That shows the people of the Cayman Islands how interested those Members are in doing their business when they get up and talk about how much interest they have in the people.

Madam Speaker, when the Leader of Opposition got up and was so quick to jump on the housing issue that the newspapers decided to run and are trying to make into a negative issue; they made reference to the headlines and concerns of the public. A little later on the Leader of Opposition talked about the low morale and the problems in the Health Service Authority with regards to staff leaving. It was disappointing to me that the same article of that newspaper reference was made to a procedure being performed at the Hospital – the installation of a pacemaker at the Cayman Islands Hospital, a procedure that has never before been done in the Cayman Islands. That is the same low morale on the budgeted hospital that the Member referred to.

Madam Speaker, I think that the indications are—even though everyone might not be happy, and we know that change never comes easy—that the changes in the Health Service Authority, when we look at it from a financial position as well as the new services that are being provided, I think that we do have a long way to go but we have come a long way as well. Again, in my opinion, if those Members were genuine in giving the right impression to the country they would have acknowledged the positive measures and improvements that have been made in the Health Services Authority and not only try to find areas to criticise.

One of the reasons for finding the need to make a contribution to this debate even though the time is late, is that the Member for East End who debated just before me went to great details to try to show that the Government . . . and he made a good point in saying that not only this Government but also prior governments (of which he was a part of in 2000-2001), had done nothing to try to encourage or stimulate small businesses and to allow Caymanians the opportunity to enter into businesses. He made a specific issue of the Caymanians who go overseas to become professionals in their respective categories. Many of them are deciding not to only go for one degree but to go for a second degree, and in many cases, a master's degree.

Madam Speaker, in credit to that Member he did give acknowledgement to the Government for spending significant sums in this Budget to attract foreign investment. However, he was concerned about the $350,000 for small business and he thought that was not enough. What that Honourable Member seems not to understand is that United Democratic Party Government has made provisions in all their budgets for the small businesses. To prove that point I go back to 2001-2002 Budget, the first budget of the United Democratic Party increased and placed fees in many of the professional categories. When I look at the Trade and Business schedule we see a very specific exemption that was made for accounting firms, law firms, other professional categories where any of the companies with 1 to 5 professional members pay no trade and business licence.

Now, Madam Speaker, that in itself is a very big incentive for a government that is finding themselves financially challenged. However, they have taken the time to make provisions in their budget to encourage those young professionals who come back to be entrepreneurs and to start their own businesses. Not only have they been given assistance in the form of Development Banks and the Investment Authority but they have also been given exemption in fees where it was possible to encourage business. While the Member has brought up a very good point as a young businessman in Cayman I know the difficulties with the cost of doing business. The Government is cognizant of that fact and it has represented that in its policies to show this Government does give some to small businesses.

Madam Speaker, when the Member said that those who want to start their own businesses have no chance, I would say to all of those out there that they can be thankful that the United Democratic Party Government has seen it possible, even in these difficult times, to make exemptions for those people. I can remember when the policy was being prepared and when we had objections from the Members of this Honourable House some of whom are in those same professions. There was great exception to the fact of the whole staggering of the increase in fees. The reason for that is that the fees start to stagger after it went from 5 professionals because at that point in time it is hard to still see that as being a small business. However, even so we do not expect those small businesses to start off and be as large as the large businesses. We have created a graduating scale that I am sure you remember, Madam Speaker, took much criticism from the Opposition. Now we come back and hear them saying that more should be done to assist small businesses. However, a short time ago the graduating scale was not the correct way, it should be one fee across the board, large and small, give no exemption. It is funny how time passes and those positions change. It is obvious to see that while the PPM is full of flowery talk when it comes to the substance they are lacking, in my opinion.

Madam Speaker, I fully recognise that some of the difficulties . . . and I know that the other speakers will clarify. Maybe it was that calculator again that caused the difficulty with understanding where the $22 million came from the bond issue – they referred to that as being a loan. I will leave other colleagues to clarify that position. I take note of the Hansard when the Leader of Opposition said, “Mr. Speaker, the indebtedness of these and all other government authorities and companies certainly have not taken into account by the government in the preparation of this year’s budget so the debt service ratio of 5.3 per cent of which the Honourable Third Official Member has boasted about really does not reflect the true picture when you take those into consideration. I submit that this picture would not have been so pretty had the indebtedness of these companies been taken into account.”

Madam Speaker, the point that needs to be made in this is that what the Member was saying is that the 5.3 per cent of debt service ratio would have to be wrong if we used the indebtedness. He used before that a few examples; the Civil Aviation Authority, Cayman Airways, Health Services Authority, Cayman Turtle Farm. He says, “Mr. Speaker, so that it is absolutely clear I am not suggesting that any one of these entities are bordering on insolvency or anything like that”.

Madam Speaker, if we had to take into account the indebtedness we will also have to take into account the revenue that those companies generate.

[Applause]

An honourable Member: And their assets.

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: . . . And their assets. Now, Madam Speaker, if the Member is saying that they are not insolvent he would be saying that their cash position is in a positive. So, if their position is a positive why would those debts as liabilities change the 5.3 per cent? If anything they should be making the 5.3 per cent less.

Madam Speaker, when we look at the strength of the Water Authority we have been getting options, people have been trying to buy it. We talk about the strength of the Port Authority, the Civil Aviation – all of those Authorities. However, in this cloud of confusion that the Members of the PPM try to paint to the public; they would like to include the debt but they do not want to include the revenue or the assets. That again is why when we talk about these sounds bytes we see that it is either creative accounting or, like my colleague, the Second Elected Member for West Bay said; maybe the Leader of Opposition should do accounting 101. He could come over and get some advice from the Government Bench. When you look at the Budget you see that there is a lot of good resources on this side. If they were not so proud they would come over and ask for some advice and save themselves much embarrassment.

An honourable Member: True! Preach, brother, preach!

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: Madam Speaker, it is the good to hear the Second Elected Member for George Town says he is coming. I knew it would not be long before he saw the light.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: And if he would come maybe we could make something out of him.

[Laughter]

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: Madam Speaker, I want to send a little warning out to the people. We are still a distance away from the election and all indications still show that the PPM has not been successful in misleading the majority of the public. It really scares me as a resident and a member of this community and a Caymanian; to know it is possible that those Members on the other side are actually willing to offer themselves up in a leadership position when they express and show so much lack of leadership.

When the Member for East End spoke a little while ago he talked about how much . . . He basically gave a wish list, he talked about how he needed more work done on the roads in East End, he has been asking about school buildings in East End and then he went on to say that we need to give our police more tools. He made references to planes, helicopters, boats. Madam Speaker, he had a real long and expensive wish list. If in the year that his Leader of Opposition was leader he had a budget where he admittedly brought a $19 million tax package – we increased the tax package by $19 million to $20 million and we increase our public debt with borrowing of $56 million. That is $76 million in increased revenue. You know, Madam Speaker, even with all of that money coming in ($76 million increase, $56 million as loan and increased taxes to $19 million) we still did not get all of those planes, trains and things that the Member from the PPM is asking for now. If we could not get them with those kinds of tax increases and borrowings and the Member is going to get them when the PPM comes into power what is this country to expect our public debt to be at that point? It has to be paid for from somewhere so we know it will be more taxes or more borrowing. It is scary to say that we have such irresponsible Members in the PPM.

Madam Speaker, hopefully the country will continue on in this same position with those Members sitting on that side criticising and asking their questions. However, when it comes down to making the real prudent financial decisions we need a government like the UDP.

An honourable Member: Here, here.

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: That is evident, Madam Speaker, when we see a good balanced budget like the one we currently have in comparison to their budget. They were still short of all the things that they felt were necessary.

Madam Speaker, the point that I need to get to is the point that the Member for East End tried to make pertaining to telecommunications. I intentionally used the phrase ‘tried to make’ because as you would remember we found ourselves in a very confusing position. At the end we found that he may have been using a broken calculator for his calculations and so we have a flawed contribution. I would give him the benefit of the doubt to say that it was a flawed calculator and not his lack of ability.

Madam Speaker, I will now try to clarify the true position of the proposed heads of agreement that has been reached with Cable and Wireless. All Members, and even the general public, are aware of the long negotiations that have been ongoing with Cable and Wireless. There was a situation with a company that had a monopoly on telecommunications here who provided us with good service over the years. They had a remaining eight years on their exclusive contract and the government entered into negotiations to try to terminate an exclusive agreement to liberalise telecommunications.

The intention was not only to reduce prices but also improving the quality and the rate of time in which we get new services on the market. The agreement reached with heads of agreement states that, “On the signing of the main agreement which is expected to happen around 10 July, applications for all types of telecommunications licences may be issued including the resale of Cable and Wireless International Services. Competition for the provision of domestic telecommunications may commence. A new entrance licensed to provide other services such as mobile may begin to construct their networks”.

Madam Speaker, a fundamental flaw in the understanding of this agreement with the Member for East End is that when he talks about residential rates; as soon as Cable and Wireless is given permission to increase rates at the same time competition can begin in the domestic market. So if the price increase that he is referring to consistently is so significant and the profits will be so good in that market, the fact that the market will be liberalised will mean that we will have competition which will significantly reduce those prices. If we do not find competition in those markets . . . and it is all a matter of opinion at this point in time as to who feels that Cable and Wireless rates are high or low or who feels that they make a big margin of profit. I have never heard anyone yet complain about domestic rates except the people who live in the good Islands of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman who have to pay the high rates to call Grand Cayman or even between those two Islands.

As far as the people in Cayman are concerned the domestic rates were never an issue. The rates that people have complained about were the data rates, the international rates and the mobile rates. The reason people complained about those rates and not the domestic rates were because our rates were actually below cost. We did a comparison with the US and their estimated domestic rates are around 3 cents per minute. The increase that Cable and Wireless has been allowed under this agreement is from 1 cent to 2 cents per minute. While that is an increase within the Cayman Islands, because we are going to a flat rate, it is actually a decrease overall. Like the Member for East End said, the cost to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman was some 27 cents per minute and that has now been reduced to 2 cents per minute. I know it would be difficult for him with his faulty calculator to calculate percentage reduction so I would not ask him to do that, but obviously the reduction would be a significant one.

Madam Speaker, if he is correct in saying that the increase in rates are significant but at the same time that they have permission . . . actually prior to them getting permission. On 10 July when we signed the agreement so we can have competition coming in and offering lower rates in the domestic market. Cable and Wireless does not have permission to increase until November. So, we are giving competition the opportunity to say, 'Listen what they are saying is wrong, their 2 cents a minute is a very profitable and lucrative business and we want to come into the market.' Now if that happens we can be assured that Cable and Wireless in their smart business sense will not increase their business. If we do not get competition in the domestic market that will be a very clear indication that the 2 cents per minute is not an exorbitant increase, it will show that rate is close to cost and it is not a profitable business for anyone else to come and challenge Cable and Wireless.

Madam Speaker, I see the Members over there looking a bit confused. . . I hope that if there is any point they need clarification on, I will be sure to give way, as the Member for East End asked me to do, which I have found it necessary to do. That is the whole intention on this because obviously they were a bit confused about the agreement.

Madam Speaker, we have a line rental increase. I note the Member said—when he touched on the $30 per month for business—they were going to reduce international by 40 per cent. So he thought that was the way rebalancing should go. It is interesting that being in the business he was in that he would think rebalancing would only go one way. The reason for rebalancing is that for the liberalisation process to work we need to get the services being provided closer to the cost of providing those services.

So, the way of finding that out is to increase . . . he said that someone has been paying all along, Cable and Wireless has been subsidising their local rates by charging high international rates. Well, now they want to be competitive and they are going to reduce the international rates by 40 per cent on average and they are also making the reduction and just so everyone will know, to simplify the rate structure instead of having off peak times. Basically the reduction will be 40 per cent for all times. When we have calculated that it works out to be about 50 cents to just about anywhere in the world at any time of the day. When we go from the average call of being around $1.20 per minute . . . or even if we use a dollar as average and a reduction down to 50 cents we are talking about a savings of 50 cents on every minute of international time.

The reason I had a great difficulty with the Member when we . . . and let me explain, it is going down to 50 cents because I said on average we have some calling areas that are up to $3 per minute. So the 40 per cent reduction average means that all rates would come down to approximately 50 cents. I think there are about 6 countries that are not included but that is due to difficult arrangements with them. but on a whole the places that are called the most the reduction is around 40 per cent, to bring the rates down to 50 cents virtually to anywhere in the world that we call. Madam Speaker, if we look at a 50 cents reduction using a dollar as the existing rate even though it is closer to $1.20 if we had 50 cents—if we use a US as an example since that is where the majority of calls go—reduction on international calls. If I make 10 minutes of international calls per month times that 50 cents savings it would equate to $5.

On other hand, if I increase from 1 cent to 2 cents a minute and spend an hour on the phone before it would cost me 60 cents. Now if I spend an hour on the phone it will cost me $1.20. So, it is an increase of 60 cents for every hour of talk time that I speak within the Cayman Islands. If that is 60 cents increase in 10 hours time I would have increased my bill by $6. That is 10 hours of domestic calling and now that is 10 hours regardless of which Island or phone I call within the Cayman Islands, in some cases 27 cents per minute under the old system. Now we are going to an additional 60 cents per minute. Let us just stick to the Member's argument whereby we just stick within Cayman: I only make calls within Grand Cayman. Before my rate was 60 cents and now it is 1.20, an increase of 60 cents; 60 cents times 10 hours is an increase of $6 to my phone bill. That is 10 hours of talk time and I increase my bill by a whopping $6. For 10 minutes of international calls I reduce my bill by $5.

Now, Madam Speaker, when we looked at the average calls that are made in Cayman the majority of bills in Cayman have significantly more than 10 minutes of international calls, especially seeing that we are an Island and we are dependent on the other main lands for everything that is imported. Most of us have family overseas, we have students in schools so 10 minutes of international service would equate to 10 hours of domestic calls. In reality it is actually 12 minutes.

Now we know that those Members on the other side – when we look at those numbers and see that the Government has been able to reach that agreement . . . and that is prior to the introduction of competition. So upon the introduction of competition we are expecting even lower rates. I think the country owes this Government a debt of gratitude for being able to negotiate such a good agreement especially with a company that had an eight year exclusive licence remaining.

Madam Speaker, there was a reason for the rebalancing. Of course we would have preferred not to have an increase, but if the cost was subsidised by international rates and if we were demanding that international rates had to come down, and genuinely wanted the introduction of competition; if the cost of providing the service was below the retail price they were getting how could we then expect competition? Why would a company come into Cayman to compete in a market that was below cost? If it is not below cost time will tell because as competitive a market as telecommunications is we can guarantee that if there is profit to be made on the now 2 cents per minute then competition will come.

Madam Speaker, we also need to the point that we were able to negotiate a light-user scheme which was there for the senior citizens who do not use the phone significantly but need a form of communication with the outside world, family calling to check up on them, 911 free calls, and we wanted to make sure provision was in place. So the Member is correct. Anyone who wants to apply for that . . . it is a limited service there are no bells and whistles, you do not get data services, you do not get everything else but the folks who only want plain old telephone service they will have the ability for $8 per month to have their phone in their home . . . and Madam Speaker, I hope the Member realises what the $3 per month does, it is actually over 2 hours of call time. It is 2 cents per minute, 1.20 per hour; $240 will be two hours so it is more than two hours of time which would be included in their $8 per month.

Therefore, when he asked the question about the elderly folks, there was no provision in place before but this Government has once again taken into account and put a fixed . . . so they will not have to worry about a large bill at the end of the month, they will know that as long as they do not talk for more than two hours on the phone their phone bill, including line rental, will only be $8 per month. All the incoming calls that they want! So family can check up on them, and if they do go over that then it goes to the normal rates which is at 2 cents per minute. Again, an agreement that this Government has negotiated with Cable and Wireless for the people of the Cayman Islands!

Madam Speaker, I think it is important as well to recognise that this liberalisation process, as acknowledged by Cable and Wireless has been accomplished in the shortest time within the Caribbean region. The phase liberalisation process is the shortest process negotiated within the Caribbean and it is within three months of projection that the Minister, when he said we were hoping for July 2004, we were actually able to accomplish full liberalization by April. I understand that the Member whose responsibility it was to make the PPM's contribution concerning Cable and Wireless would have great difficulty understanding that type of arrangement because he is used to an arrangement at our other monopoly provide to CUC.

In my opinion that is much less satisfactory for the Government but we have made a commitment. The Minister has made it quite clear that we will be going after that monopoly agreement as well. It is very challenging within four years to take on two of the biggest monopolies in the country. The Member talks about not doing anything to encourage and stimulate business in the Cayman Islands and not doing anything for the masses, however we recognise that telecommunications and the cost of utilities like electricity is significant to the cost of the masses and to the cost of people who are interested investing in the Cayman Islands. This Government is committed to fighting those high costs and looking out for the people we serve.

Madam Speaker, I hope I have been able to clarify the confusion that the Member for East End or probably the Opposition had with that because I am not surprised. It is such a good agreement that they are not familiar with anything good like that for the people. They expected they would be able to come here and criticise it and tear it down and jump up and make noise about it but at the end of the day this is an agreement that can stand the criticism. We will see and hopefully now they will realise . . . I know the Member for East End talked about a question that he was going to ask before and he was refused. In all fairness I think it was a good thing that the Minister refused the question at that time because even with the additional information given to him he was still very confused, so at that point in time he would had a difficult time understanding it.

Even though we have a former senior employee of CUC who has admitted that the rates are too high, I do hope that when the pressures are put on we can depend on the support of the PPM. It is a bit concerning though, because once again I notice a little bit of loyalty or self-interest because when the Member talked about the possibilities, the ways of dealing with CUC he quickly jumped on that if Government wanted to do something they could reduce the duties that were being charged. As a representative of the people I would expect that he would have talked about a reduction in the profits of the company but instead of that he said that he thinks the Minister should offer a cap on the profits.

That is what currently exists. That is what we are trying to get out of – a cap, a 15 per cent cap. CUC (of which that Member in his former life) is the company that goes around and we tell people that they should get more efficient A/C units and we should do things like power-smart and we should reduce electricity. We reduced our power consumption this year and CUC makes less than their 15 per cent return and the next year they come back and say they made less last year because of the reduction so they have to raise the rates this time. That Member thinks that our way of dealing with them should be a profit cap or a reduction in the duties the Government charges? If we reduce those duties where is he going to get that money for all those planes, trains and things that he wants?

The Speaker: Honourable Member, you have 1 hour remaining.

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: Madam Speaker, I am winding up now, ma'am.

Madam Speaker, I know the Members that come behind me are more than capable of further expounding on a great budget. I just want to end by saying that this country recognised that we have to make difficult decisions. The first of those difficult decisions was a motion made on 8 November 2001. Which moved us from a government that was being led by an individual who felt that the way of balancing the Budget was going out and borrowing significant sums of money. To a more proactive, innovative type government led by the current Leader of Government Business; who has come out with very innovative ideas and ways that the Members of the Opposition seem to have a difficult time grasping.

That is why the people wanted us to be the Government and for them to be the Back Bench because they understood that they would never be able to grasp those innovative ideas. We could only continue so long borrowing to balance the Budget. When we changed the Government in 2001 and we had a short fall, (I was the Member of the Government) the same $55 million that the Government had to put a tax package on to balance. At that point, up until 8 November there was still no plan as to where that short fall was going to be made up. What we expected to happen is a similar thing that happened the previous year – $56 million in 2001 and then another $56 million again in November when the Budget was coming. I heard the explanation as to why that money had to be borrowed because there was no choice.

The Member said that when the Government took over the fees for January were already paid and they would not have had an opportunity. Well, Madam Speaker, when he was removed as leader on 8 November, it was there not sufficient time to do it by then, if his plan was to implement any fiscal measures? Or was he going to wait again to bring the Budget in March sometime and then come back with the same story: 'Well it is past January and everyone has paid their fees so we cannot charge them again.' The truth of the matter is that was the same way we were going to finance the Budget. That is why we took the difficult decision to put people in place who have the innovative ideas, who have the best interest of the country at heart and that is why the country is moving forward.

The main thing that the Opposition needs to understand is that (when they talk about the PFI and their confusion with that) now we have, even with all their stories of despair and when they get irresponsible and run around the streets with wheelbarrows trying to drive away investor confidence in the Cayman Islands, we have investors who have looked at the Cayman Islands and who have the trust and confidence in Cayman that they are willing and committed to make the private investments. It shows the confidence that they have in the Cayman Islands and this Government.

They need to understand that regardless of all their concerns about PFI and regardless of the fact that the Government has used that to present and prepare a Budget that makes the country proud and moves the country forward. The confidence has been rebuilt by the United Democratic Party Government of which I am proud to say I am a member. I look forward to the Government continuing on this good fiscal path, as long as the country continues to place their support behind a good government like the United Democratic Party.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Thank you. Does any other Member wish to speak? Does any other Member wish to speak?

[Inaudible interjections]

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?

Order!

Last call, does any other Member wish to speak?

The Second Elected Member for the district of George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Thank you, Madam Speaker. This is a national disgrace and a mockery of the democracy. The Government is attempting yet again to curtail the right and ability of the Opposition to properly debate this Budget. What have we come to in this country and in this Honourable House? Not only were we presented with 40 hours, or 36 or whatever the case may be, but too short a time to be able to properly consider this matter and to prepare our proposals and a response to the Budget Address but it is 10 minutes to 8 on Friday night and the Honourable Leader of Government Business and his Government is insisting that this House continue because he wants to curtail us, he wants us to grow weary, he wants us not to have a proper opportunity.

[Deputy Speaker in the Chair]

Point of Order

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, a point of order.

The Speaker: Please state your point of order.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, the Member has misled the House yet again and it seems like he wants to rile up and he begins that way because I am a good one for him for to pitch on as usual. The Business Committee said at its meeting that we would work between 6 and 8 o'clock and if we desire to go on we could until 10 o'clock. Yes we did.

An honourable Member: Nobody said that.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, that was what the Business Committee said. We have said now that we would continue until 8 o'clock. If at that time we feel like going on I will put it to the House and if the House says no, fine. However, the Business Committee of which that Member is a part (and also the other Members in this House) and who was at that meeting. He cannot say he was not at it – you the Member for George Town was at that meeting.

Point of Order

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: A point of order, Mr. Speaker. That is completely untrue! The Minister is lying.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, look the Member was at two meetings. He was at a meeting that we had, he missed one but the one that we said we would go on was the first one and then the second one we said we would go from 6 to 8 and we felt like going on we would go on until 10. And that meeting . . . the Member was not at that meeting but he was at the first meeting. We said we would go on. Maybe he was not listening but that was certainly what we said.

The Speaker: Honourable Member if we need to adjourn to get a decision, if the Business Committee who sets the business of the House has indicated that we will go on obviously there was an agreement to go on until 8 o'clock. If it is the wish of the House to continue then the House will continue.

However, if it was set in the meeting to say that we would go to 8 o'clock I cannot understand how the Member can say to this Honourable House that there has been an attempt to curtail because it is still 5 minutes to 8. So, for the Member to say that we have done something outside of what was agreed I find to be misleading.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Mr. Speaker, I will not get in an argument with you, Sir. I would simply ask that you adjourn and let us examine the minutes because the Minister does not have the truth in him.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, I have sat here and have heard that Member say these things and I am tired of it. What he is doing, Mr. Speaker, is trying to kill time and he knows that is what he is doing and that I have to stand on my feet. He knows that and that is why he is doing it. But you know what? We are going to have to continue.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, if there is a question as to whether it was stated in the Business Committee that they would continue later if necessary, is that what you would want to check the minutes for or is it your attendance at the meeting. I did hear the Minister say that you were not at the meeting but if you want to confirm . . .

[Inaudible comment]

The Speaker: What he said is that you were not present at the meeting where that decision may have been taken. However, if the Members of that committee cannot confirm that that was the decision taken, then your presence (while we can confirm whether you were there or not) is not the issue. It is whether the decision was taken at that committee. Is that what we are adjourning for?

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Mr. Speaker, if I might explain, Sir. The Business Committee of this Honourable House is made up of four Members of the Government and the sole Member of the Opposition is me. The meeting to which the Honourable Leader of Government Business is referring was a meeting called without notice when I was absent from these precincts. It was the same day that the Budget was delivered and we left as quickly as we could to try to prepare in the shortness of time that was provided for. Therefore, for the Government who were the only Members present during the meeting, to take that decision unilaterally and then to come here and try to say that I have agreed or the Opposition has agreed to go beyond 8 o'clock is completely untrue. Now, if the House will do as it wishes—

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker—

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Mr. Speaker, I am on my feet on a point of order. The Honourable Minister has no right to stand now! He has no right to stand!

The Speaker: Honourable Minister—

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: On a point of order.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: You cannot have a point of order when I am dealing with a point of order!

The Speaker: Order, Members.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, the Second Elected Member is making his point of order. Could we allow him to continue his point of order?

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: He is going to debate the point of order?

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Mr. Speaker, the point that I am asking is if they have taken that decision they have done so without my knowledge and without my approval. Now, if that is the case we will have to be bound by whatever they want to do because the House will do what it wants, it does it all the time. I am used to unfairness but they will have to demonstrate by virtue of the minutes that that is what the Business Committee has decided because I do not know about that.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, when you say what the House does what it wants; the House is doing what the majority of Members want. Now, if the Business Committee, which runs the affairs of the House have decided that the meeting will continue your presence there or not, like you rightly said, would not make a difference. It is a majority decision and if the majority of the Members have decided that the House will continue and if it is the will of the House at this point in time to continue and if it is the will of the House at this point in time to continue then the House will continue.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Mr. Speaker . . .

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: I rise as a member of the Business Committee on a point that the Second Elected Member for George Town is as usual, insistently, consistently, misleading this House. Mr. Speaker, that Member knows that before November 2001 the sole Member of the Opposition at that time was the current Honourable Minister of Health. He gets up at every opportunity and leads this House to believe that because he the sole Member of the Opposition now, it is so unfair and is so contrary to practice.

He insistently and consistently does it and I have heard for the last time. He misleads this House at every opportunity and it is my submission that if anyone in this House does not have the truth in him as he said about the Leader of Government Business, it is him! Mr. Speaker, I would say that the Member is again misleading this House by saying he had no knowledge of it because if he had no knowledge of it the Clerk of this House lied because she informed the Business Committee that he had been contacted on two occasions.

The Second Elected Member for George Town has said that the meeting was called without notice. The Clerk informed this Committee and when I was at the meeting that he was give notice of the meeting. He may get up and say it was inadequate notice. However, it is a standard practice that while Parliament is in session we call the meetings as we need them. We know also that most Business Committee meetings are very short so for the Member to say that he had to leave to address the Budget is again misleading because he knows that the meetings are very brief. What were we going to put on the Business paper to debate the Budget? We also know that the Member is misleading the House because he now says he has no knowledge of the fact that we were going late. You said until we were going late and you said you had no knowledge of us going late or going beyond 8 o'clock. Those are the two things that I clearly heard you say.

The Speaker: Honourable Members . . .

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: However, you see Mr. Speaker, that arrogant Member also in his little haste he may have said that mistakenly but that is what he said. I sat here and calmly listened to him. Mr. Speaker, I say that the Member is misleading the House by continually inferring that because he is on the Business Committee that there is something wrong. There is nothing wrong! That is the standard practice. When he and his colleague, the First Elected Member for George Town were the Government, the Members were: First Elected Member for George Town, a government member, himself [Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr], a government member, myself [Mr. Rolston M. Anglin], a government member, the currently Leader of Government Business, the Honourable McKeever Bush, a government member and Mr. Gilbert McLean, the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town, the sole Opposition. So, nothing is different than it used to be.

Mr. Speaker, I say that the House is being misled because we have been informed that the Opposition knew as to what the decision was of the Business Committee. We know we have to get the Budget, Finance Committee and the supplementary Budget completed by 1 July. We did say at the meeting that if we needed to go late we were going to go until 8 and if we needed to go later we would have to do that because we needed to get through the Budget.

The Speaker: Honourable Members, the ruling of the Chair is, if there is an agreement, which there obviously was, that we would go until 8 o'clock, and this House has said we would go until that time, when the Second Elected Member for George Town made the statement that the Opposition was being curtailed in an attempt I do find that to be misleading. It was 10 minutes to 8 and there had been no indication of this House at that time that were going anywhere pass the hour of 8 o'clock and he has acknowledged that we agreed to go until 8 o'clock. So for him to say that anything unfair was being done at 10 minutes to 8 I find to be misleading and I request that it be withdrawn.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: To the extent, Mr. Speaker, that I said the ability of the Opposition (and me in particular) to debate this matter and properly prepare was being curtailed because we were going beyond 8 o'clock, at your order, Sir, I withdraw that remark. I just note Sir, that it is now 5 after 8.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, the Speaker is ready to return so at this point I will ask that we . . .

[The Speaker in the Chair]

The Speaker: Please be seated.

As I understand from the last few seconds of having the opportunity to listen to my deputy making his ruling it is now 5 minutes after 8 o'clock. If it is the intention to work beyond that then I would have to recognise the Member on the Floor for a motion to that regard. Otherwise, I will call for the adjournment.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, in an effort to help with the Budget to get us to Finance Committee stage I am going to move that we continue until 9 pm. However, before I do that I am going to ask that the exchange and the Member for George Town's remarks – that that Hansard be got and I reserve my right to deal with that on another day.

The Speaker: Madam Clerk, you have heard the Honourable Leader make the request.

Could you pass it on to the appropriate staff.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, the veracity of my statement has been seriously challenged by the Second Elected Member for George Town. I would like to challenge it at this point but I crave the indulgence of the House in order that I can get an absolutely clear verbatim what was said.

Having done that I move that we continue until 9 o'clock.

The Speaker: The question is that the Honourable House continues its business until the hour of 9 o'clock pm. All those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes and one No.

The Speaker: I believe the Ayes have it.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: May we have a division Madam Speaker?

The Speaker: Certainly Member for George Town. Madam Clerk.

Division No. 2/03

Ayes

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush
Hon. Linford A. Pierson
Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField
Hon. Samuel W. Bulgin
Hon. George A. McCarthy
Capt. A. Eugene Ebanks
Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.

No

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.
Mr. V. Arden McLean

The Speaker: The results of the division are as follows: 7 Ayes, 2 Noes and 8 Absentees. The Ayes have it.

The House will continue its business until the hour of 9 pm.

The Second Elected Member for George Town continuing with his Budget Address debate.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Madam Speaker, sadly by now I have grown used to the intimidatory tactics of the UDP Government and in particular the Leader of Government Business.

Point of Order

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: Please state your point of order.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: The Member is using insulting language. There is no one over here offering any intimidation to the Member.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town. I draw your attention to Standing Order 35(3), and I would ask that you would, in the way I know you can, refrain from being in breach of that Standing Order.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I do my best in difficult circumstances most of the time to follow standing orders and to behave in manner that is becoming of a Member of this Honourable House. However, I must say and perhaps it is because I take so seriously the job that I was elected to do that I become so impassioned, when I believe that my ability to carry out that sacred function is being compromised because of the way the Government behaves. That is what has transpired in relation to this matter, Madam Speaker.

They make light of how much time is necessary to properly prepare for something as important as this. They call Business Committee meetings when I am already engaged in the process and then complain that I am not here to participate in that. The Leader of Government Business up until today, in the Common Room, is making snide remarks that somehow we did not need time to prepare because there is somebody or some-bodies within the civil service who are giving us this information.

Point of Order

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: Please state your point of order.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: That is not in the Budget debate. That is not within the remit of this House to debate at this time and that was said in the Common Room and I have my opinions and when I rise I might just answer him. However, I said under the point . . . (in response to a comment) well, you go on the radio, you always do that.

Madam Speaker, the Member must stick to the Budget debate and I am going to watch my Standing Orders from hereon now.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town, as I understand what you were about to refer to from your admission, was a discussion within the Common Room. I am sure there is a more appropriate forum if you so wish to deal with it. However, within the precincts of this House I would ask you to refrain from referring to any statement that was made outside the regular sitting time of Parliament; if you would, please. Thank you. Please proceed.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Madam Speaker, I observe your ruling but this is not the end of the matter. I can tell the Honourable Leader that and if I have to take it up with the Governor I will.

Madam Speaker, we talk about open and accountable government, we talk about it so much these days that we forget what it means, if we ever did know – some of us. However, I am going to, with your permission, Madam Speaker, give some examples from this budget process and matters arising from it about how open and how accountable this Government truly is. They want to insist that I go on until 9 o'clock tonight, they will listen. They can go until 10.

Madam Speaker, page 8 of the Budget Address under the sub-head, Strategy and Key Policy Actions, other Outcome Areas. In relation to housing needs in 2003-2004 the Government will continue with the construction of low-cost houses. Two hundred houses will be built over the life of the project and the Government is establishing a new statutory authority called the National Community Housing and Development Trust to oversee the project and administer the low-cost housing scheme.

On page 220 of the Annual Plan and Estimates it deals with the section entitled Administration and Technical Support for the affordable housing programme. On Page 467 of the Annual Budget Statements makes provision for $168,185 to be allocated to that particular item. Now, I have searched these documents, I have had my colleagues searched these document, I see no provision in any of them that deals with the funding that is necessary for this initiative being undertaken, that is, the construction of these 200 plus houses. I see no provision whatsoever for anything over the course of the next year other than the provision of these administrative costs.

Therefore, in the interest of this open and accountable government of which we so fondly speak, I ask the Honourable Third Official Member, where is the funding provided for in the government Budget for the project that is well under-way? I have heard that there is something called an advance account that the Government runs for which it provides funding for certain projects. I cannot find any evidence of this account but I hear it being talked about. I would like to know, and I believe the country would like to know. Where is the money coming from to build the affordable homes which are under construction and for which 200 are scheduled to be completed over the course of the next year?

This National and Community Housing Development Trust, which sounds to me like a wonderful idea, what will it administer? Is it going to be involved in ensuring that this construction takes place? What about the award of the various contracts which are clearly necessary, and have clearly taken place? Some of them enabled the project to get to the present stage. Who is providing the necessary scrutiny and oversight of that? Certainly not this Parliament! Certainly not Finance Committee because we have not seen it, we have not heard about it. However, the project is going ahead and as I said in the interest of this broad outcome, open, efficient and accountable government, I ask please tell us this information.

Madam Speaker, if I may beg your indulgence to refer to the Cayman Net News, dated Wednesday, 18 June 2003 . . .

[Pause]

The Speaker: Thank you, Honourable Member, please continue.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Sorry, Madam Speaker, I was asking permission to refer to an issue of Cayman Net News, Wednesday 18 June 2003.

The Speaker: Certainly, please proceed.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: There is a headline article on the front page, "Cubans erect low-cost homes." I have selected excerpts from it and if you wish I could lay it on the Table of this Honourable House for Members to see, I will do so.

"At least nine Cuban nationals are working on the government's low-cost housing development and at least some do not speak English. The project is scheduled to build 200 two and three bedrooms homes that will be available for $50,000 or less. And yet the quality of construction is such that it could reportedly withstand winds of 145 miles per hour. According to project manager, Mr. Andrew Gibb. . . " and he is a very important fellow and his importance will become more obvious as I go through this section of my debate, " . . .the Cubans are here on a supervisory role because of their familiarity with the particular type of pre-fabricated homes being erected in the project. Mr. Gibb said that he did not know the names of the Cuban workers or any of the other details concerning them because they were hired by one of the chief contracting companies, Vetromeccaniche Investments.

Although it has been suggested that the Cuban workers are here only as supervisors, Cayman Net News witnessed Cuban workers providing hands-on labour when the project site was visited last Monday. It has also been suggested that the Cuban workers are only being $200 per month although benefits like food and housing are provided as well. When questioned about whether the Cubans had been granted work permits or had been screened in any way, prior to their arrival here, an immigration official said that all inquiries on the subject had to be referred to the Ministry responsible for Housing. Reached for comment about the situation the Minister responsible for Housing, Dr. the Honourable Frank S. McField said, "We are not allowing any news on this for a few weeks, we have nothing to impart".

Those, Madam Speaker, are really the relevant excerpts which I would like to read. So the mystery grows. I am going to deal with some very important matters arising out of that and out of other aspects of this project. However, I cannot help at this point but to reflect on the very erudite and impassioned debate of the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Culture and Employment Relations and ask if he is a member of this same Government that is reportedly privy to at least, if not party to, information on a major government project like the affordable housing project. We have imported labour who are earning $200 a month at a time when there are still people in the construction industry, Caymanian people, who are out of work.

Point of Order

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker . . .

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Services.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: On a point of order.

The Speaker: Please state it.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: It is my opinion that the Member is misleading the House because the Member knows since we have had the possibility to discuss this press release by the Net News that there is no evidence to support any of the claims that are being made in the paper.

I have decided to do a statement to this Honourable House, which I intended to do this morning. However, for the Member to now use this opportunity to mislead this House and the general public when there is an easy possibility to clarify the situation. Therefore, no accusations should be made against the Minister for Education who is also responsible for Labour. So, the point that I am making is that the Member is debating the article as if it is factual. I am here to say that it is not factual. Therefore to use the article as factual is misleading the House.

The Speaker: I have listened to both sides of the argument and it is the Chair's ruling that unless the Second Elected Member for George Town is in a position to say that what has been reported he has the requisite evidence to substantiate, the Chair would ask you to refer to it as a newspaper report in which you are unable at this particular juncture to substantiate, having heard what the Minister says. If after the Minister has made his statement, the Second Elected Member for George Town still has an inquiry there is provision under Standing Order 30(2) for short questions to be asked and there are other forums as well.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Thank you, Madam Speaker, I am entirely happy to do that. The Minister had a number of opportunities before I got up to say what his position was in relation to that and other aspects of his Ministry. So perhaps____

Point of Order

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: Please state your point of order.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: The Member is again, misleading the House. I have not had any opportunity, the Member just has the intention of trying to discredit and destroy the affordable housing scheme to help poor people.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town, I believe I would be correct in saying that the Member would have only usurped the opportunity to debate if he did not rise and the motion had been concluded with the question. Seeing that there is still remaining time for debate Members who have chosen not to speak still have that right. That right is not in any way susumed until the Motion is put on the Second Reading of the Appropriation Bill. Therefore it would not be correct to insinuate that the Minister had not taken an opportunity to speak because that opportunity is still available to him. I would ask that you continue on a factual basis and if you wish to refer to the newspaper item then you have to condition those statements.

Thank you.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: I am happy to do that Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: I should also add if you would indulge Member, that as all Members are aware, the Honourable Minister for Community Services did intend, as was stated on the order paper, to make a statement. We have all voted on the Motion that that statement would come at the close of the business day so there will be an opportunity to hear the contest as that stage as well. As I have indicated Standing order 32 will give Members the ability to ask short questions in relation to that statement so you would not have lost your right in that regard.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The Second point arising from the newspaper report—which I am quite happy to say I have no idea whether it is factual or not—is the issue as to the alleged immigration status of these workers on the site. The question is, and one which I do hope the Honourable Minister will address, whether these individuals have work permits or whether the requirement for their work permits has been waived or whether they are in breach of the Immigration Law. Those are the questions I would really wish for the Honourable Minister to answer.

Madam Speaker, there are other aspects of that project which I must, in light of the information that I have received, call into question. This is a project that is funded by the Cayman Islands Government and for which no provision is made in the Budget. However, as I said, contracts have apparently been awarded in relation to the supply of services and good to the site for the construction of that project. Principal among these is the clearing and filling of the site. Now, perhaps to avoid interruption by Members on various points of order, I should take it from the top and refer to what the requirements are in relation to the award of government contracts, particularly those which exceed $100,000. Then deal with the information which I have and again, I am sure the Honourable Minister will take the opportunity to refute, agree with or disagree with as he sees fit when he finally stands up to respond to the Budget Address.

The Public Management and Finance Law contains a savings provision—and if you wish, Madam Speaker, I can read the exact section but I do not think that I need to do so—from the former Public Finance and Audit Law which means that awards of contracts and tenders are still governed by the provisions—

The Speaker: Honourable Member, would you be so kind to state the section so I may follow your line of argument?

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Very well, Madam Speaker. The Public Management and Finance Law 2001, Section 81 (2), contains the savings provisions. It says, “The Public Finance and Audit Law (1997 Revision) and regulations made under that Law shall be deemed not to have been repealed, but to remain in full force and effect in relation to financial transactions relating to any financial year ending on, or before, 30 June, 2004”. The effect of that is that the provisions of the Financial Stores Regulations continue to apply in relation to government financial transactions in relation to any financial year up to 30 June next year.

The relevance of that is this: Chapter 8 of the Financial Stores Regulations is in the following terms: General principles, section 8(1), “The principal governing the purchase of goods, works and services for government departments and offices is that they must be acquired by the most economical means commensurate with quality and efficiency so as to obtain the maximum value for the public monies expended”. I will skip that next sentence. “Moreover goods, works and services must be obtained openly and competitively so that not only do all potential suppliers of the goods, works and services have an equal opportunity to bid for public contracts but the award of such contracts is seen by the community at large to be fair and equitable. To this end except for purchases not exceeding $10,000 in value all goods, works and services required locally by the government will be obtained by contract after public tender. In no circumstances may a purchase or project be broken down into smaller components for the purpose of evading tender or contract requirements.” That is the provision that applies to the award of government contracts.

Now, Madam Speaker, I crave your indulgence to refer to a number of pieces of correspondence which have been given to me by either the author or the receiver of those documents.

The Speaker: You may so refer providing it is laid on the Table and it does not contain any material that would be sub judice.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Yes, Honourable Minister.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: I crave your indulgence to perhaps, with the understanding of the Member, just mention a point with regards to the question of the sub judice issue.

The Speaker: It would be in way of an elucidation which would require the Member to give way but I would ask for him to consider if in fact he is going to be specific to a sub judice matter which would perhaps save some time.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Madam Speaker, perhaps the Member can say what is the sub judice . . . He seems to be able to anticipate what I am going to deal with.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, if you could confine your remarks as to what would place the comments into a sub judice category.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, I was not suggesting that the remarks would be in a sub judice category because I am not in a position to make that determination simply from my position. However, since the author of the letter appears to be the person who is aggrieved by the decision of my Ministry, I would think that if that person aggrieved no longer thinks that he has a legal position or a possibility to seek remedy in the courts, then I would think that the Member is correct in reading this information.

However, if he reads the information he is obviously depriving that person, perhaps, of the opportunity of seeking the remedy in court. He is a lawyer who knows this better than I do, so maybe he is just accepting the fact that the person has accepted that there is no legal ground for the complaint against the Government.

The Speaker: In order for it to fall within Standing Order 35 (1) "Reference shall not be made to any matter on which judicial decision is pending in such a way as might, in the opinion of the Chair, prejudice the interests of parties thereto".

Having reference to that Standing Order (35), unless given an indication from the Honourable Second Official Member, I shall listen carefully to the submission from the Second Elected Member for George Town to ensure that the Standing Order is not in any way contravened.

Please proceed.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In a telefax to Paul A. Bodden, Heavy Equipment Limited, on the letterhead of the Cayman Islands Government, Ministry of Community Services,

Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports, sent by one, Andrew Gibb, there appears the following—

The Speaker: Honourable Member, before you proceed to read can you just inform the Chair as to how you intend to make this relevant to the Budget Address, please? Would you connect it?

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I have said that we are dealing here with an expenditure that is referred to in the Budget Address, an expenditure, which clearly involves the award of contracts which will be paid by government money. There is no provision in the Budget, the documents themselves showing where this money is to come from, or indeed how it is spent. It is a matter of critical importance to this country and it is my duty to inquire into how the Government's money is being spent. That is part of my role.

I am concerned based on the information that I have as to whether or not provisions of the Financial Stores Regulations which govern the award of government contracts (which I have to vote money for) are being complied with. The information which I am reading is relevant to that and arises, in my respectful view, quite clearly from the Budget Address. There is a paragraph in the Budget Address which deals specifically with the housing initiative and the establishment of a Trust to administer it. If I cannot—

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker . . .

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Madam Speaker, I am addressing you.

Point of Order

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: On a point of order.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, if you could let him complete his address and then I will take yours.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: I am addressing her, I am not debating. If I cannot in the context of a debate on the Budget for the finances of this country enquire into this then I believe is something is very wrong.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town, the Chair has sought clarification because there is obvious potential for sub judice. I am unable to make that ruling until I have sought such a clarification. I also wanted to assure myself that there was relevancy in what you were saying and that is the only reason and motive to so inquiry and not in way, shape or form to infringe on any minority rights or such. So I just wish to clarify that.

The Honourable Minister, I now give way as he was responding to a question I had put to him. Thank you for your indulgence.

Please address the Chair if you so wish, now.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, at that particular time I thought I heard the Second Elected Member for George Town referring to the issue on the National Housing and Community Development Trust. I just want to make him aware of the fact that the Trust is not the issue that he is debating from the point of view of the tendering of contracts. So in referring to the National Housing and Community Development Trust he is not referring to the affordable housing initiative. Not at this particular stage. They are two different exercises.

Perhaps, if I am allowed to say rather than have him making a case for special interest perhaps he should wait to find out what the explanation we are going to make with regards to our statement. Therefore, rather than bringing this special interest into the Budget debate (when this does not form part of the debate) simply because there is not that particular initiative being spoken about in the Budget. If he has a problem with the fact that it was not included in the Budget I am quite sure that the Third Official Member will be able to answer him when he comes up. However, for him to be able to bring it into the Budget debate when there is no information in Budget with regards to this, I think is a mistake.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Madam Speaker, I wish to make this absolutely clear. I do not represent any special interest; I represent the people who elected me. My duty here is to question what appears to me, in my judgment, from the information I have before me, whether or not there has been a breach of the Financial Stores Regulations in relation to the award of a government contract which I have to vote money for this time around. That has nothing to do with any special interest. I just want to make that observation before you make your ruling, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Point taken. I would beg the House's indulgence and ask the Second Elected Member for George Town and the Honourable Minister if they would meet with me in Chambers for about 5 minutes.

Proceedings suspended at 8.46 pm

Proceedings resumed at 8.53 pm

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. I thank Honourable Members for their indulgence. Having had the opportunity to discuss the matter in a more intimate basis with both Members the Chair does not find that at this juncture that the matter is sub judice. I would ask the Second Elected Member for George Town to proceed to and ensure that it stays within the realm of relevancy.

I should also remind Members that it has almost reached the hour of 9 o'clock. If we are intending to stop then I will ask for the Motion of the adjournment. If not there will have to be another Motion.

The Second Elected Member for George Town. You have 1 hour and 30 minutes remaining, Sir.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Madam Speaker, I hate to anticipate but in light of your caution about relevance, I wish to indicate so that all Honourable Members understand, that the train of correspondence from which I intend to now read all relate to the same issue. As I understand you have ruled that this is relevant to the Budget Address and to debate thereon.

Madam Speaker, it is by my watch 3 minutes to 9. This is going to take me some time. I reckon this will take me 20 minutes to half hour to conclude this aspect of it and I would therefore ask, notwithstanding all that has gone on before, that perhaps it would be better if we deferred my commencement of that discussion until the House next resumes.

The Speaker: Honourable Leader of Government, you have heard the request from the Second Elected Member for George Town. Does the House so mind to continue until 9 o'clock or would you wish to make an adjournment motion at this time.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, if I was as bad as often as he paints me I would say let us take the remaining evening but we did say we would close at 9. He has certainly used up all that time talking all these things and he has requested that we adjourn. We will accommodate . . . Madam Speaker, you know the Member for East End ought to keep quiet sometimes because you can only take so much. The Holy Bible says you must be . . . anyway . . .

Madam Speaker, I do move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 am on Monday, next.

The Speaker: Thank you. The question is that this Honourable House be adjourned until 10 am Monday, 23 June 2003.

All those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

At 8.58 pm the House stood adjourned until Monday 23 June 2003 at 10 am.

OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT
MONDAY
23 JUNE 2003
10.29 AM
Seventh Sitting

The Speaker: I will invite the Third Elected Member for the district of Bodden Town to grace us with prayers.

PRAYERS

Mr. Anthony S. Eden: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady, Queen Elizabeth II; Philip, Duke of Edinburgh; Charles, Prince of Wales; and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office. All this we ask for Thy great Name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

Proceedings resumed at 10.32 am

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

READING BY THE HONOURABLE
SPEAKER OF MESSAGES
AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

Apologies

The Speaker: I have received apologies for the following Honourable Members: the Honourable Minister responsible for District Administration, the Honourable First Official Member and the Honourable Minister responsible for Planning.

STATEMENTS BY HONOURABLE MINISTERS AND MEMBERS
OF THE GOVERNMENT

The Speaker: I have received notice of a statement by the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs.

Affordable Housing Initiative

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, I would like to inform this Honourable House that on Wednesday, 18 June 2003 an article appeared in the Cayman Net News entitled "Cubans Erect Low-Cost Homes". This article gives the impression that the Government's Affordable Housing Initiative is questionable and in my opinion, the sub-text of this article suggests that it is not possible to build affordable homes that can withstand 135 mph winds.

The journalistic quality of the Net News article is poor, in that it states that houses will be available for CI$50,000 or less and yet we have repeatedly said that our most expensive unit will likely be priced at CI$59,500 and the smaller unit at CI$48,500.

The article which is in part based on conversations with the Project Manager, Mr. Andrew Gibb, a former employee of Public Works Department, gives the impression that the project is being built entirely by Cuban workers. Mr. Gibb informed my office that he was approached by the Net News for information and he was under the impression they wanted general information about the Affordable Housing Initiative and not specifically about the Cuban workers and or their ability to speak English.

I was not aware that Mr. Gibb had been contacted by the Net News nor that anything he said would have been printed. Therefore, when I was contacted by the Net News to make a statement with regards to the Affordable Housing Initiative, I assumed that the information being requested was about the general state and progress of the Initiative. I informed the reporter that we were not allowing any new statements for a few weeks, at which time I assumed we would have completed three model homes.

There has been so much said about Government's Affordable Housing Initiative that I did not think it was necessary at this time for any further comments, as I have generally kept the public informed. However, the Net News reported that the Minister said he had nothing to impart. The context within which my statement was published creates an impression that I had nothing to say with regards to the employment of Cubans by the main contractor for this project.

The engineering methods used by Vetromecaniche are new, therefore the Government accepted their request for some members of their Cuban workforce (whom they employ in Cuba) to be employed in this project. In keeping with section 28 (1)(b) of the Immigration Law (2001 Revision), Executive Council approved, on 15 April 2003, the exemption for the overseas construction team of Vetromeccaniche Invest Ltd., from the requirements of work permits. This exemption was subject to the following three conditions:

(a) A medical report to be completed on the prescribed immigration medical form with the lab/blood work being performed in the Cayman Islands.

(b) A police clearance certificate from the country of residence of the worker, valid for at least six months; and

(c) Medical and police clearance certificates to be forwarded to the Chief Immigration Officer for his perusal and records.

Similar exemptions have been given to other government entities and projects over the years.

It is worth noting that the Project Manager did report on Tuesday 17 June 2003 that the Member for East End and Member for North Side visited the project on Friday 13 June 2003 and made enquiries about the presence of Cuban workers. I am by no means suggesting that there is any connection between the Members of the Opposition's visit to the Windsor Park site and the front-page article in the Net News of Wednesday 18 June 2003. However, it must be said that, in my opinion, the Parliamentary Opposition and members of the People's Progressive Movement (PPM) have done all they can to frustrate and to cause delays to the Government's Affordable Housing Initiative.

Point of Order

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Madam Speaker, on a Point of Order.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town, please state your point of order.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: The Member is asserting that we have deliberately frustrated his Affordable Housing Initiative. There is absolutely no evidence that he has produced or otherwise to that effect and he is misleading the House. I would ask you, Madam Speaker, to cause him to withdraw that remark.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister of Community Affairs, I know you prefaced it to say that it was in your opinion. Do you have any evidence to take it to a level other than your opinion at this stage?

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, if I am allowed to read my statement maybe the Member will see that I have some evidence. Or maybe we should just turn it into a courtroom and I should bring some of the people to whom they have talked, to give evidence.

The Speaker: I do not think that would be necessary because it is two separate and distinct things. Continue with it and I will listen to satisfy myself whether it is evidence. The Members from the Parliamentary Opposition, I think will also be listening keenly and there will be room for further introduction if the evidence does not suffice.

The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Madam Speaker, if what the Honourable Minister has said is his opinion that is fine. However, he should not be allowed, in my respectful view, to continue down the train that he has started, where he has stated as a fact that we are frustrating—

[Inaudible interjections]

The Speaker: Order.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: —the Affordable Housing Initiative. That is a grave allegation.

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for the district of George Town, as I listened to it, I did hear the Honourable Minister of Community Affairs preface what he was about to say by saying that it was in his opinion, hence the reason I did not interject at that stage. Until it reaches a level where he wishes to state "as a matter of fact" that it is not his opinion, then I cannot consider it as misleading the House because his opinion can only match up to everybody else's opinion, including yours. The public will be the jury which is still out.

Member for Community Affairs.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, one member of the PPM is actively telling people in the district of George Town that they should have nothing to do with these houses.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Madam Speaker, again the Minister is—

The Speaker: One minute please. Minister of Community Affairs, that is a statement of fact and in order to make that statement you would need to be ready and prepared to substantiate that. Are you in a position to so do?

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, we could call, and I will call, the people who have told me which Member it is and I will bring them in here and they can make their statements to this House, but I stand with that as a fact.

[Inaudible interjections]

The Speaker: As far as the Chair is concerned, I cannot consider it a fact until one of two things. I either see a sworn affidavit or I have an opportunity in my Chamber to have both Members in with the person who told you that.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, I said one member of the PPM is actively telling people. I did not say the PPM, I said one member and I am willing to bring the sworn affidavit to your Chamber to prove that I have been told this.

The Speaker: Can you say Honourable Member, whether it is one Member of the Elected PPM or is it one member of the Party membership?

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: One member of the PPM, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Not the Elected.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Not the Elected. I made a difference between the Parliamentary Opposition and the PPM and I particularly singled out one member of the PPM because I can prove it. I would like to get the opportunity to bring it in this House to prove exactly which member it is at this time.

The Speaker: Thank you, Honourable Member. In light of the fact that he has made it abundantly clear that it is not an Elected Member of the PPM, I think it would be suffice to request the Member to, at his earliest convenience, supply the Chair with a supplementary sworn affidavit. At that time, we can deal with that. If, at any stage, any comments are directed to an Elected Member of the PPM or the Parliamentary Opposition, it has to be prefaced with "your opinion" or it has to be substantiated by evidence.

Please continue, Honourable Member responsible for Community Affairs.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, nevertheless, in spite of this and other door-to-door efforts by the PPM to disable the Initiative, approximately 800 persons have listed their names to purchase these homes. Government's Affordable Housing Initiative features advanced engineering systems, modular construction techniques, socio-economic support systems and contractual obligations. It is not a joke. It will be managed by competent, caring Caymanians who will comprise a National Housing Trust to ensure that the community will be vibrant, cohesive and sustainable. The fact that we can and we will, in spite of opposition, produce homes for families has much to do with our love of the people, our social conscience and our determination.

Madam Speaker, the Government's intention is to build 200 homes within a 14-month period (if God is willing). This cannot be done with the nine workers from Cuba that the Net News reported working on the site. We are monitoring Vetromeccaniche and ensuring that they are fulfilling the requirements of their contract to employ as many Caymanian subcontractors in areas such as: filling of lands, electrical, tiling and general erection of buildings. Presently the foundation slabs and preparation of the sites are done by Caymanian businesses. As a matter of fact, choosing which Caymanian company can produce its own challenges. That brings me to addressing a letter written to the Net News on 6 June 2003 by Mr. Paul Bodden, wherein he cast doubts on the Government's tendering process and the Affordable Housing Initiative.

The Ministry of Community Services, Youth, Sports and Gender Affairs has attempted to provide Mr. Paul Bodden with an explanation as to why the contract was not awarded to him, although he had been a successful bidder on the contract to fill lands for the Affordable Housing Scheme. He has voiced his dissatisfaction by asking his attorney to write to the Ministry. When this did not produce the desired result he wrote to the Cayman Net News making several unfounded allegations.

The Ministry called for bids in January 2003 for the supply, delivery, spreading and compaction of material to three sites under development by us as residential communities under the Affordable Housing Initiative. Bids were returned to the Central Tenders Committee on 17 January 2003. Five bids were submitted to the Central Tenders Committee, the lowest bid being that submitted by Paul A. Bodden Heavy Equipment Services Ltd. This bid, inter alia, quoted rates for supplying, spreading and compacting "shot rock" and "Cayman rock" material for the George Town sites at CI$15.76 and CI$16.76 per cubic yard respectively; and for the West Bay site at CI$17.76 and CI$18.76 per cubic yard, respectively.

The Ministry elected not to accept the bid submitted by Paul Bodden Heavy Equipment, as it was decided in the interest of reducing overall project costs, to try to negotiate with a contractor to supply and compact fill material at rates per cubic yard substantially lower than those submitted by Paul Bodden Heavy Equipment.

The Central Tenders Board Committee was informed of the Ministry's decision not to accept Paul Bodden Heavy Equipment's bid in terms of clause 8 of the notes and instructions to tenders. As accepted by the bidders (which provides for the Ministry not being bound to accept the lowest or any bid received by them for this contract) and was requested to inform Paul Bodden Heavy Equipment accordingly.

Negotiations were undertaken with Caristef Construction Ltd to supply, spread and compact fill material to the Windsor Park site at the rates of CI$12.90 per cubic yard for "shot rock" and CI$14.40 per cubic yard for "Cayman rock", reductions of CI$2.86 and CI$2.36 per cubic yard, respectively.

In voicing his concerns over Government's tendering process with regards to the Affordable Housing Initiative, Mr. Paul Bodden stated in his letter that his company's attorney had written to the Permanent Secretary at the Ministry of Community Services, Youth, Sports and Gender Affairs on the 5 February, 2003 and again on 28 February, 2003 seeking an explanation as to why their successful tender was withdrawn; to date they had received no response.

That statement forms just a small part of several of the unfounded allegations made by Mr. Paul Bodden against this Ministry. Our records show that the Legal Department wrote to his lawyer on 13 March 2003. The Legal Department explained as follows:

"I have been asked by the Permanent Secretary, Ministry of Community Services, Women's Affairs, Youth & Sports to reply to your letter to him dated the 5th February 2003 in connection with your client's response to Tender #AHI/03/002.

"It is essential to point out that until a contract in the form of the FIDC Conditions of Contract for Works of Civil Engineering Construction (1987 Edition) has been properly and duly executed between the Employer and any contractor responding to a Government request for bids (a "Tender"), no binding agreement exists in relation to any invitation to bid.

"The letter from the Central Tenders Committee ("CTC") dated January 21, 2003 makes it abundantly clear that there remained several conditions precedent to the execution of such a binding contract which contract has not therefore been executed.

"Nor is the letter from the CTC an "acceptance" of your client's bid, which your letter seems to assert in paragraph 4 thereof. Indeed, the letter from the CTC makes it clear that any acceptance of your client's bid would only come from the Ministry in accordance with the relevant documentation sent to Bidders. In any event an "acceptance" of a bid does not constitute a binding contract as the bid documentation makes clear and which your client acknowledged by submitting his Form of Bid. Therefore, contrary to your assertion, there has not been, as a matter of law and construction, a "successful tender" by your client even if it were accepted that a "successful tender" had any legal meaning. It does not.

"I am not quite sure what, if anything, your letter seeks to obtain from the Ministry. There appears to be no reason why your client's responses to Invitations to Bid in the future would be prejudiced.

"If you have any further specific question arising out of this Invitation to Bid I would be grateful if you would address all correspondence to me. I shall be happy to take instructions if necessary. You do not need to address copy correspondence to any other Government entity other than myself".

As can be seen by the above explanation, Mr. Bodden was given a reply by the Government's Legal Department on this issue. To the best of my knowledge Mr. Bodden has not pursued this matter.

The Ministry of Community Services recognises that the use of creative value engineering means that all issues are constantly evaluated or re-evaluated in order to find the most cost effective way of producing affordable homes for our Caymanian people. The fact that many suppliers of materials, as well as contractors, feel that their needs or desires to make money should be looked at before the interests of so many Caymanians who cannot afford homes being built by these same individuals, is well known. We do not condemn individuals and companies for displaying self-interest in a free enterprise system, nevertheless this Government reserves the right to develop strategies that will, within the realms of the law, make affordable houses possible for working people.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Madam Clerk.

The Appropriation (July 2003 to June 2004) Bill 2003

Debate on the Budget Address delivered by the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for the Portfolio of Finance and Economics on Tuesday 17 June 2003

(Continuation of debate thereon)

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for the district of George Town. Honourable Member, you have one hour and a half remaining for your debate.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

When the House adjourned late on Friday evening, I was dealing with that section of the Budget Address entitled, "Strategies and Key Policy Actions: Other Outcome Areas", which is expressed on page 8 of the Budget Address in the following terms:

"In relation to housing needs, in 2003/2004 the Government will continue with the construction of low-cost houses. Two hundred houses will be built over the life of the project and the Government is establishing a new statutory authority called the National Community Housing and Development Trust to oversee the project and administer the low-cost housing loans scheme."

I had expressed concern that although this statement has been made and although the work on this project is proceeding apace, no provision appears to have been made in the Budget to cover the substantial capital cost of this development. The omission of these costs is striking and alarming in a budget which runs to some 1767 pages and which virtually every Member of the Government who has spoken, has claimed that no prior budget has contained this degree of detail. They have also congratulated and applauded themselves on this basis as being an open, efficient and accountable Government. So, Madam Speaker, such an omission in a Budget that is so replete with detail gives rise to grave concern.

How can such a complete Budget omit from its provisions the funding of a multi million dollar project such as the Affordable Housing Initiative? The omission, in my respectful view, is grave and almost sinister because a number of questions arise from that omission. Where is the money coming from to fund this project? How much is it costing? Perhaps the most important question of all is why is this project not subject to Parliamentary scrutiny and to the scrutiny of Finance Committee in the way all other Government projects are supposed to be? As the Leader of the Opposition said — and this is just another example to prove the point — the statements that "this Budget is a balanced one and it is presented in the context of an open and accountable Government" are misleading and downright disingenuous.

I had expressed concern that, based on information I had received, it appeared to me that the requirements of the Financial Stores Regulations, which regulates the award of Government contracts, had been breached in the award or awards of contracts in connection with the Affordable Housing Initiative; in particular, in relation to the clearing of the site in Windsor Park and its subsequent filling.

On Friday evening when we adjourned, I had outlined the requirements of Regulation 8 of the Financial Stores Regulations which requires that all contracts for goods, works and services which exceed $10,000 be put out to public tender. I was going on to demonstrate, on the basis of that information which I had received, that this process had not been properly followed in relation to the clearing and filling of the Affordable Housing Initiative site at Windsor Park.

Now, Madam Speaker, it appears that those submissions, which I made on Friday evening, have motivated the Honourable Minister to deliver the statement which he gave to this Honourable House this morning.

Point of Order

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, a point of order.

The Speaker: One moment, Minister of Community Affairs. Second Elected Member for George Town, if Honourable Members would remember, a statement was to have been delivered last Friday morning. The Honourable Minister responsible for delivering the statement was not in the Chamber at the time, so at the will of the House and a Motion we all agreed that it would have come later that afternoon. We all remember what transpired; time got the best of us, hence it came on for this morning.

Honourable Minister of Community Affairs, did you wish to rise on that point of order for clarification or was it on a separate point you were rising to your feet?

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, it was on a point of order that the Member was misleading the House because the Member knew quite well that the statement was to be made this morning.

The Speaker: I believe I would be correct in saying that the Member knew, or all Honourable Members knew, that the statement was going to be made, but the statement was just distributed so it would not have been in any Member's remit to know the content of any statement. However, the Chair can say that the statement was not as a result of what transpired Friday afternoon because it was down for Friday morning.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I am happy to withdraw the statement that the submissions motivated the Honourable Minister to make the statement that he did.

The Speaker: Thank you.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: I will just observe, Madam Speaker, that it is a remarkable coincidence.

The Speaker: Honourable Member for George Town, I accept your withdrawal, but I will not accept a conditional one. The Chair can say, because I noted and read the content of the statement as it was on my desk and I have record to show when I received it on Friday morning. All Members voted for it to be put down. I cannot say the motivation that is left for the Member himself, but I can say it was not as a result of what you said Friday night unless by some ESP (Extra Sensory Perception) that Member had sight of what you were going to say in your statement before you made the statement.

Please continue.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

It appears that initially the procedure and process set out by the Financial Stores Regulations was followed in relation to the award of this contract or, at least, dealing with the tendering process involving this contract.

In his statement delivered this morning, the Honourable Minister has set out some detail in relation to this and I thank him very much for having read at least one of the pieces of correspondence because it will avoid me having to do so. However, I believe that because of the concern which I have raised in relation to whether or not the Financial Stores Regulations which have force of law by virtue of the Public Management and Finance Law have been breached or not, it is important that I set out quite clearly, not only the nature of the concern (which I have done), but the facts in relation to this particular case, so that all who hear my voice and have heard what the Honourable Minister has said (and will no doubt continue to say) will be able to judge for themselves whether or not the provisions of the Financial Stores Regulations have been complied with. Madam Speaker, if, as is my view, they have been breached, it is a matter for the Honourable Financial Secretary and for Executive Council to investigate quite carefully and to ensure that there is no recurrence of this type of action.

At the point where we adjourned on Friday evening I was about to start reading that particular train of correspondence, which starts with a telefax on letterhead of the Ministry of Community Services, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports, with the subtitle Affordable Housing Initiative addressed to Paul A. Bodden Heavy Equipment Services Ltd. from Andrew Gibb.

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for George Town, sorry for the interruption, but I wish to make a statement, which may help steer the direction of this correspondence and perhaps future correspondence.

The Chair is of the view that there should be the liberty to communicate between one's constituents and a Member of Parliament without any Member of Parliament feeling obliged to disclose it. I will view it similar to prejudice if that Member wishes to disclose in this forum or another forum. They may so do once they are fully cognisant of the fact that they then open that correspondence up to become a public document.

Thank you. Please proceed.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: I am grateful for that, Madam Speaker.

The telefax reads—

“Sirs:

Ministry of Community Services, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sport

Affordable Housing Initiative Phase 1

Site Clear, Fill & Grade: Issue of Bid Documents

We thank you for your interest in the above project work, and confirm receipt of your notice of intention to submit a Bid in this regard.

Bid Documents will be made available for collection by you by no later than noon on Friday 10 January 2003 and you will be notified accordingly. Please note that the return date for this Bid has been set out to Friday 17 January 2003.”

It is signed by Andrew Gibb, Consultant Project Manager for Ministry of Community Services, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sport. It is copied to the Permanent Secretary of the Ministry of Community Services, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sport. Madam Speaker, quite curiously at the top of it, it appears to have been faxed from a fax machine at Quarry Products, for their name appears on the top of it.

I intend to lay this and all of the correspondence which I am reading, on the Table of this Honourable House and I will do so in a compendium once I am through.

The Speaker: Accepted.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: The second letter faxed is again from Mr. Andrew Gibb on the Ministry of Community Services letterhead. It is addressed to all bidders, it is dated 10 January 2003 and is in relation to the same item, that is site clear, fill and grade—

“Please note the following information;

"1. Bid Documents will be available for collection by you from Reception, Ground Floor, Glass House on Elgin Avenue GT from 09h00 Monday 13 January 2003. You will be required to sign for receipt thereof.

"2. Bids are to be returned in accordance with Bid Instructions, to the Central Tenders Board c/o Department of Finance, 2nd floor, Glass House, Elgin Avenue GT by no later than 09h00 Friday 1 January 2003.

“Yours sincerely, Andrew Gibb, Ministry of Community Services, Women's Affairs, Youth & Sport.”

Again it is copied to the Permanent Secretary in the Ministry of Community Services, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sport.

This letter, Madam Speaker, does not indicate where the fax came from.

The next document is the actual bid submitted by Paul Bodden Heavy Equipment. It is in relation to three parcels described as property A, B and C.

Property A is Block 4C Parcel 86 West Bay.

Property B is Block 13E Parcel 38 Rem1 142-144, 147-150, 153-154 George Town.

Property C is Block 14E Parcel 329 George Town.

The price tendered for Property A was $552,524.80, Property B $161,885.98 and Property C $385,219.82 for a total price for all three sites of CI$1,099,630.60.

That bid was submitted on 17 January 2003 and there is a letter addressed to the Affordable Housing Initiative at the Ministry of Community Services on their letterhead signed by Mr. Paul Bodden, the owner and manager of Paul A. Bodden Heavy Equipment Services.

That letter of 17 January 2003, in the line of correspondence which I have, is followed by a letter from Mr. Joel Walton, Chairman of the Central Tenders Committee, copied to the Permanent Secretary, Community Services, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports and to the project manager, Mr. Andrew Gibb. It is dated 21 January 2003 and, as I said, it is marked "without prejudice", addressed to Mr. Paul Bodden and it reads—

"Dear Sir:

Re: Affordable Housing Initiative: Phase I
Site Clearing, Filling & Compacting Contract: 3 Sites

"This letter serves to advise you that, subject to the letter of acceptance from the Ministry of Community Services, Women's Affairs, Youth & Sport, the Central Tenders Committee agreed that the above-mentioned tender be awarded to you. The award is subject to the Project Manager calculating an adjustment downwards to your submitted tender of CI$1,099,630.60, for the works that have taken place by others, prior to or during the tender period.

"The Project Manager will contact you to complete the formalities relating to the contract and the adjustment of your submitted tender, as well as your agreement to this procedure, prior to issuing the above letter of acceptance."

Now, Madam Speaker, I pause here to note that it is clearly in the mind of at least the Chairman of the Central Tenders Committee that it is simply a matter of formalities to be completed to ensure that the award of this contract would go to Paul A. Bodden Heavy Equipment Services Limited.

Point of Order

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Point of order, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, please state your point of order.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Madam Speaker, the Member is building a case using a series of correspondence. For the comprehensiveness of the other Members' records, I would ask the Member to table that correspondence so that we may have a copy.

The Speaker: Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, the Second Elected Member for George Town, before he began sharing the documentation said that he would be tabling all documents which he referred to, but he would do so together.

Leader of the Opposition, did you have a point of order?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, perhaps I need not say anything more because I was just going to enquire what kind of point of order the Member was asking for.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for the district of George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

As I was saying, we were at a point, certainly in the mind of the Chairman of the Central Tenders Committee that it was simply a matter of formalities to be completed, the contract to be awarded and work to begin. A point I should also make which arises from some of the earlier correspondence is that the intention was that this job was to commence on 22 January, one day after the issue of this letter by Mr. Joel Walton, Chairman of the Central Tenders Committee.

Then we have a fax from Mr. Andrew Gibb, again on behalf of the Ministry of Community Services Affordable Housing Initiative. It is dated 1 February 2003 and addressed to Mr. Paul Bodden. It refers to the same Affordable Housing Initiative and to the same tender for site clear, fill and compact work with now a new subtitle, "Decline Acceptance of Bid".

"I refer to a letter to you from the Central Tenders Committee dated 21 January 2003 and in the above regard.

"Following a meeting held on 21 January 2003 with the Honourable Minister and the Permanent Secretary, it was decided not to make an award to you or any other Bidder for this work, as some of the Sites Identified for the Initiative are now under review, and that further value engineering of the Initiative as a whole, needs to be undertaken as a matter of urgency.

"In the light of the above, I have been instructed to decline acceptance of the Tender as submitted by Paul A. Bodden Heavy Equipment Ltd or any Tender submitted. In terms of Clause 8 of the Notes and Instructions to Bidders dated 13 January 2003 and as Issued to and accepted by you.

"Yours sincerely Andrew Gibb, Ministry of Community Services, Consultant Project Manager for the Ministry of Community Services, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sport" copied to the Permanent Secretary in that Ministry and the Secretary of the Central Tenders Committee care of the Portfolio of Finance.

Therefore, Madam Speaker, what we can derive from that correspondence is that the tendering process was put in train, it took place, bids were submitted — the Honourable Minister said in his recent statement that five persons or entities bid on it — Mr. Bodden's was the lowest bid and the Central Tenders Committee recommended that the contract be awarded to Mr. Bodden. That was followed by a meeting between the Minister and the Permanent Secretary at which it was decided that in fact the contract would not be awarded to Mr. Bodden or any other bidder and they were going to review this whole question and issue as a matter of urgency.

Up to this point I do not believe that anybody could have cause for a complaint. It is entirely within the remit and authority of the Minister to decide that he is not going to go on with a particular initiative. The persons may have been disappointed, but nobody could complain too strongly about it.

Mr. Bodden clearly felt hard done by and he went to see his lawyers, Quinn and Hampson who on 5 February 2003 wrote to the Permanent Secretary in the Ministry of Community Services in the following terms—

"We act for Paul A. Bodden Heavy Equipment Service.

"We refer to the letter from the Chairman of the Central Tenders Committee dated the 21 January, 2003, a copy of which is attached for ease of reference. We also refer to the letter dated the 1 February 2003 from Mr. Andrew Gibb directed to our client, a copy of which is also attached.

"We are instructed that Mr. Paul Bodden and his son, Andrew,—

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for George Town, one moment please.

Would the Chair be making the right assumption that the fact that you are reading correspondence which at some time or the other involved legal representation that it is no longer the intention of the client to pursue any legal remedies?

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Madam Speaker, these documents were handed to me by Mr. Paul Bodden himself. I spoke to him this morning again to tell him what I intended to do and to ensure that there have not been and there is no intention to bring legal proceedings in relation to this matter.

The Speaker: I thank you for the clarification. Please proceed accordingly.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: "... met with you on Monday the 3rd February, 2003 in relation to the above matter. You will appreciate that our client expressed concern at the contents of the letter dated the 1st February 2003 especially in view of the somewhat equivocal wording of that letter. We note that the letter states that "some of the sites identified for the initiative are now under review". We are instructed that not all the sites are seemingly under such review. Indeed, our client appreciates and understands certain concerns that have been raised in connection with the viability of the proposed West Bay site and the proposed George Town Courts site. However, this appeared not to be so with the Windsor Park site.

"You kindly indicated to our clients that you would review the situation with regard to the Windsor Park site. As clearly was expressed by the Chairman of the Central Tenders Committee, the bid for all sites individually submitted by our client were the ones accepted.

"Our client has residual concerns that, as a result of the perceived lack of feasibility of two sites, our client will be prejudiced in relation to the remaining site or indeed, in relation to proposed alternatives. Our client is most anxious that this will not happen. Our client has expressed to you such concerns and additional concerns in relation to conflicts of interest which we are instructed that we need go into no further in this letter but which we believe you readily appreciated.

"Accordingly, we invite your usual prompt response to our client's expressed concerns. Our client looks forward to the project manager contacting our client in relation to completion of the formalities relating to the contract that relates to the Windsor Park site as indicated in correspondence.

"If there are problems with the two other sites upon which our client successfully tendered, and if other locations have to be identified, then we would also seek reassurance that our client will have equality of bidding power.

"In view of the expressed concerns of our client, we have copied this letter to the Project Manager, Mr. Andrew Gibb and to Mr. Joel Walton, the Chairman of the Central Tenders Committee.

"With thanks for your assistance. Yours sincerely, Quinn & Hampson, Graham W. Hampson."

Now, Madam Speaker, the importance of that letter in the context of all of this is that it clearly demonstrates a certain disappointment and anxiety on the part of Mr. Bodden about whether or not he would be allowed to participate in the work if there was to be work in the future in relation to these sites or any other sites identified for the Affordable Housing Initiative. Further, it puts on record quite clearly his demonstrated interest in participating in those works when this whole thing had been reviewed and the concerns, which had been flagged up, had been resolved to the satisfaction of the Minister. That letter is 5 February.

On the 25 February 2003 Mr. Hampson again wrote to the Permanent Secretary referring to his letter of the 5 February and asking for an urgent response. Then, Madam Speaker, on the 28 February 2003 an urgent letter sent both by hand and by fax to the Permanent Secretary, again by Mr. Hampson of Quinn and Hampson, was in the following terms—

“We refer to our letters of the 25th February 2003 and the 5th of February 2003 copies of which are attached for ease of reference.

“We have today seen our clients and taken further instructions.

“Our clients are concerned to hear that employees, acting in the direct employment of or by way of subcontract to Quarry Products (or their agents), have been asked to mobilise with a view to transporting fill, starting early March 2003, to one or other of the affordable housing sights identified in our letter of the 5th of February 2003.

“We refer to the letter from Mr Andrew Gibb dated the 1st of February 2003 which was copied to you and in which it was stated “it was decided not to make an award to you or any other bidder for this work, as some of the sites identified for the initiative are now under review, and that further value engineering of the initiative as a whole, needs to be undertaken as a matter of urgency.

“You will recall that by letter dated the 21st of January 2003 our clients were awarded the tender for the site clearing, filling and compacting of the three sites under the affordable housing initiative.

“We are instructed that the consultant project manager for the affordable housing initiative still appears to be employed by Quarry Products Ltd, or at the very least is working out of their office at the present time. We cannot see how by any stretch of the imagination this consultant project manager can be regarded as independent and the award of any contract to Quarry Products (or their agents) in the light of previous correspondence smacks of the utmost bad faith.

“You can be assured that if the contents are true, our clients will be contacting their political representatives, and the press as a matter of urgency and considering all legal options. May we suggest that immediate action is taken to ensure that nothing is done to deprive our clients from the benefit of the tender previously awarded. You can be assured that if the contents of this letter are true, a substantial action in damages will be presented by our clients.

“We trust that we will now have the courtesy of an immediate response to our correspondence. With kind regards.”

The Honourable Minister, when he delivered his statement a little earlier, sought in my view, to give the impression that these claims of correspondence not having been referred to, were unfounded, However, the reality is that the letter which he read and which I have from Mr. Steven D. Hall-Jones, Senior Crown Council (Civil) on 13 March 2003 followed these three previous letters from Mr. Bodden's attorneys and, in particular, the last one which threatened legal action.

In the interest of time and everybody's patience I will not read the letter again (that is the letter from Mr. Hall-Jones which the Minister read when he delivered his statement) but it is included in the train of correspondence which I have. I will, however, read the response to that letter, which is dated the 10 April 2003 from Mr. Hampson. He writes to the Acting Solicitor General—

“Dear Sir,

“I thank you for your letter of the 13th March 2003 in relation to the above-referenced matter.

“With the greatest of respect to yourself and the Permanent Secretary, your letter fails to address the fundamental concerns of our clients contained in our letter of the 28th February 2003.

“The letter from Mr. Andrew Gibb (a former and/or current employee of Quarry Products Limited who also is the project manager of the Affordable Housing Project) dated the 1st February, 2003 clearly indicated “it was decided not to make an award to you or any other bidder (emphasis added) for this work as some of the sites identified for the Initiative are now under review and that further value engineering of the Initiative as a whole needs to be undertaken as a matter of urgency”. This appears now to have been a complete and utter misstatement of the truth. Indeed, our clients have photographic evidence which show that the work now being done at the Windsor Park site is being done with equipment that clearly belongs to Quarry Products Limited. In our letter of the 28th February, we indicate: “we are instructed that the Consultant Project Manager for the Affordable Housing Initiative still appears to be employed by Quarry Products Limited, or at the very least is working out of their office at the present time”. Earlier faxes sent by Mr. Gibb on the Affordable Housing Project letterhead were sent from Quarry Products fax machine.

“Are our clients correct in assuming that after Mr. Gibb's letter of the 1st February 2003, a contract has been awarded in relation to this matter? If so, we repeat our client's contention that there is more than prima facie evidence of bad faith in relation to this matter.

“Our letter did not in any way seek to debate legal niceties in relation to contracts but merely pointed out to the Permanent Secretary that a certain state of affairs had been represented to our client by the Central Tenders Committee in their letter of the 21st January 2003 and that Mr. Gibb, in his letter of the 1st February 2003 clearly indicated that no award was to be made to our client or any other bidder. This has proven to be totally untrue.

In view of the fact that our clients allege a complete lack of faith in the whole system surrounding the tendering for this project, we have been asked that an urgent explanation as to how this contract was awarded to a company by the name of Caristef, who were an original bidder on the project. It appears to our clients that Caristef is an "alter ego" or a company closely affiliated with Quarry Products Ltd.

We are sorry to say that the whole process surrounding the award of this contract "smells to our clients in a most unpleasant way".

Our client looks forward to receiving a more direct response to our letter of the 28th February 2003 and in particular, a full explanation of the circumstances as to how Caristef were awarded the contract in place of our clients contrary to the initial letter by the Tenders Committee and the representations of Mr. Gibb in his letter of the 1st February 2003.

Please rest assured that we have instructions to take this matter to the furthest extent. We have instructions to send a copy of this letter and the previous correspondence to Mr. Walton, the Chairman of the Central Tenders Committee. In all, our clients request a full and frank explanation.

Yours sincerely, Graham Hampson."

Then, as promised, Mr. Hampson also wrote to Mr. Walton, Chairman of the Central Tenders Committee on the same day, 10 April on the following terms.

"We refer to your letter dated the 21st January 2003, a copy of which is enclosed, addressed to our above-named clients.

We also enclose a copy of a letter from Mr. Andrew Gibb dated the 1st February 2003, which speaks for itself. Of particular interest, we note that this letter states as follows:-

"Following a meeting held on 21 January 2003 with the Honourable Minister and the Permanent Secretary, it was decided not to make an award to you or any other Bidder for this work, as some of the sites identified for the Initiative are now under review, and that further value engineering of the Initiative as a whole, needs to be undertaken as a matter of urgency".

It was with some surprise that our clients heard that despite their successful tender as indicated by your letter of the 21st January 2003, a contract was subsequently awarded to another bidder without any referral back to our client.

We wrote to the Permanent Secretary on the 5th February 2003 and we did not have the courtesy of a response. We attach a copy of our letter dated the 5th February 2003 together with a follow-up letter of the 25th February 2003 again, to which we did not have the courtesy of a response.

We wrote, again, to the Permanent Secretary on the 28th February 2003. We had no response from the Permanent Secretary himself. However, we received a letter from the Legal Department dated the 13th March 2003, a copy of which is attached. With the greatest of respect, this letter fails to address any of our clients concerns raised in our letter.

Our clients have been closely monitoring the work being done at the Windsor Park Affordable Housing Initiative site. It is with some distress that we have to report that much of the heavy equipment at the site appears to belong to Quarry Products Limited. We have seen pictorial evidence showing Mr. Dick Christianson, the owner of Quarry Products Limited, regularly attending the site.

It is clear from our letter that Mr. Gibb appears to have been employed (or indeed, still is employed) by Quarry Products Limited, and has been working out of their office. Faxes on the Affordable Housing Scheme letterhead in relation to the project have even originated from Quarry Products Limited's fax machine. As stated in our letter of the 28th February, we cannot see how by any stretch of the imagination this Consultant Project Manager can be regarded as independent and the award of any contract to Caristef (or their agents) in the light of previous correspondence smacks of the utmost bad faith.

It appears that further mobilisation is about to take place in relation to the West Bay Project and we assume that our clients will similarly be overlooked in relation to this contract as well. We are sorry to say it but there appears to be something "very rotten" with the way that this contract has been awarded and in the interests of maintaining public confidence in the integrity of the system, our client would demand a proper and full investigation and a frank explanation as to how this conflict of interest was allowed to prevail.

The integrity of the public tendering system is essential to the proper functioning of this community and we feel sure that you will do all in your power to immediately investigate this seemingly inexplicable state of affairs.

We look forward to your comments as a matter of extreme urgency.

Yours sincerely,

Graham Hampson."

That was the 10 April, Madam Speaker. On the 30 April 2003 Mr. Hampson again wrote to the Legal Department saying—

"I refer to previous correspondence in relation to the above-noted matter and, in particular, to my letter dated 10th April 2003. I would appreciate hearing from you as a matter of urgency."

There has been, Madam Speaker, as far as I have been advised, no response to those last pieces of correspondence.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, are you saying that neither the Legal Department nor the Chairman of the Tenders Committee responded?

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: To that correspondence, yes.

Now, Madam Speaker, we have had some sort of explanation this morning in relation to the rationale he employed in deciding how to deal with this matter.

The Speaker: Can I just ask then Honourable Member, are you now finished with your correspondence that it could be laid on the Table for circulation?

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Yes, Madam Speaker, thank you.

The Speaker: Member for George Town, can you proceed with your question to lay on the Table.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Madam Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table that compendium of correspondence in relation to this Affordable Housing Initiative Scheme, which commenced with a letter of the 8 January and ran through to a letter of 30 April 2003.

The Speaker: So ordered. I would ask that every arrangement be made for copies in circulation as soon as possible so that Members can have them for their perusal thereafter. Please continue, Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I was saying that the Honourable Minister, in his statement this morning, has given his rationale for taking the course of action which he did. It is not for me to say whether or not that decision is right or wrong, warranted or unwarranted.

The Speaker: Please do not then, Member.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: I will not. However, I am entitled to say this, the Honourable Minister did not seek to say that in taking the course of action which he did, that he had followed the Financial Stores Regulations, that there had been another bid process undertaken which would have given all the opportunity to bid again on this new configured project because if there are concerns—

Point of Order

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: Please state your point of order, Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, I think that the Member really is stretching it a bit and misleading the House. As a result, perhaps it is not deliberate when he is talking about the Honourable Minister taking a course of action. I read a statement that reflects the whole of the planning and decision-making process of the Ministry, including the Permanent Secretary and Project Manager. Therefore, for that person to have built an argument and now try to assist the general public in believing that the decision was the decision solely of the Minister, I think is misleading the House.

The Speaker: The Chair has listened to the point of order and technical though I find it to be, it is the ruling that the Minister himself at this juncture cannot be said to have made those decisions, unless there are other submissions from the Second Elected Member for George Town,. Please continue and refrain from that angle, Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Thank you, Madam Speaker, I am happy to do that. I was not seeking to blame him solely for it, but it was his Ministry.

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for George Town, as you are aware I listen quite intently to words that are spoken by Members and, although the English language is perhaps one of the most fantastic languages in making explanations, the fact that you have responded by saying that you have not blamed the Minister solely gives rise to the irrefutable presumption that there is some residuary blame to the Minister. At this stage, the Chair cannot accept that so I would ask you to make a statement to the effect that allocates no blame to the Minister until you are in a position to so do. Please continue.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Madam Speaker, perhaps I can avoid this argument if I simply read what the Minister has said, how he has described it and perhaps he should not be unhappy with what he has said in his statement.

The Speaker: You may so do, Honourable Member after you have cleared up what I have just asked you to do.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Yes, Madam Speaker, I am happy to withdraw whatever I said that offended the Minister.

The Speaker: The effect of which, at this stage, you are not in a position to put any blame at the Minister's feet.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Thank you. Please proceed accordingly,

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Madam Speaker, the Honourable Minister himself has described the situation thus, in his statement this morning on page 9.

"The Ministry elected not to accept the bid submitted by Paul Bodden Heavy Equipment, as it was decided that in the interest of reducing the overall project cost to try to negotiate with a contractor to supply and compact fill materials at rates per cubic yard substantially lower than those submitted by Paul Bodden Heavy Equipment."

Therefore, Madam Speaker, perhaps I would not offend the Minister if I use "the Ministry" since that is his language.

The point I am seeking to make is that the Ministry engaged in a course of action, as I have just read, to renegotiate this contract and to obtain terms which it believed were more favourable than those that had been submitted, vetted and recommended for award through the tender process and the considerations of the Central Tenders Committee.

Now, in principle, there is nothing wrong with that as long as the playing field remains level and the provisions of the Public Management and Finance Law and the Financial Stores Regulations which operate there under, are observed.

There is good reason for that - basic fairness to start with. However, as important is to ensure that Government does get the best possible deal it can and Section 8.1 of the Financial Stores Regulations is quite clear about that. It says: "The principle governing the purchasing of goods, works and services for Government departments and offices is that they must be acquired by the most economical means commensurate with quality and efficiency, so as to obtain the maximum value for the public moneys expended."

It goes on to say: "Moreover goods, works and services must be obtained openly and competitively so that not only do all potential suppliers of the goods, works and services have an equal opportunity to bid for public contracts, but the award of such contracts is seen by the community at large to be fair and equitable. To this end, except for purchases not exceeding $10,000 in value, all goods, works and services required locally by the Government will be obtained by contract after public tender. In no circumstances may a purchase or project be broken down into smaller components for the purpose of evading tender or contract requirements."

The Speaker: Honourable Member, could you oblige the Chair by supplying a copy when the Serjeant comes back in, as I do not have sight of one, and as it was read into the record verbatim. Thank you.

Mr. Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Yes, Madam Speaker, I am happy to do that.

The Speaker: Perhaps it would be best for it to be tabled when the Serjeant returns then all Members can have sight of it in addition to the Chair.

[Chapter 8 of Financial Stores Regulations laid on the Table]

Mr. Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: I am happy to do that, Madam Speaker. I beg that a copy of the Financial Stores Regulations chapter 8, in particular, be laid on the Table of this Honourable House.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Mr. Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Madam Speaker, in the otherwise comprehensive statement which the Honourable Minister has made, he has not explained why it is that this course, which is demanded by the Financial Stores Regulations, was not followed. He has not said how many other persons or if anybody else was given the opportunity to bid or even to negotiate on this particular contract. In my respectful submission there is the clearest of breaches of the provisions of the Public Management and Finance Law and the Financial Stores Regulations in the handling of the award of this contract of the filling of the Windsor Park Site.

What is particularly ominous about that is that none of us know how much that contract has been awarded for. The process has not been open and it certainly has not been accountable because there is not one single word about it in the Budget documents, which we have here and which I spent some time over the weekend going through very carefully to ensure that I would not be making statements which could be considered to be misleading.

There is no provision in there for this project at all, except for the administration of the office, which I dealt with on Friday evening.

One moment, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, I think the Clerk is trying to ascertain whether the entire chapter 8 had been read. Please proceed.

Mr. Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Madam Speaker, I wish to record the Parliamentary Opposition's grave concern at this non-compliance with such important regulations.

Actions like these undermine confidence, not just in the integrity of the tendering and award of contracts process, but in the administration of the finances of this country generally. It is bound to cause persons—and it has caused us on this side—to ask the question, can we trust the system to deliver equitably and fairly? Can we be satisfied that Government is getting value for money when contracts are awarded if the process which is stipulated is avoided and the Central Tenders Committee is not given the opportunity to review and consider which contracts are in the best interest of the Government and the people of the Cayman Islands, then something is fundamentally and radically wrong. It leads us, as we have said since we began this debate on Thursday, to question the validity of the figures contained in the Budget when they speak about a balanced budget.

We do not know how much this whole project has cost thus far because there is nothing about it in the Budget and we certainly do not know what this contract cost.

The money has to come from somewhere or has had to come from somewhere and will continue to have to come from somewhere. Where is it going to come from to fund this project? From general revenue, from money shipped shifted from one capital project to another to supplement the coffers of whichever account this money has been run through? Where is the accounting for it, Madam Speaker? I asked the Honourable Third Official Member on Friday evening and I ask him again: please tell this Honourable House and members of this community where this $4.5 million — or whatever the sum is that has thus far been spent on the Affordable Housing Initiative — where is it coming from and how is it being accounted for? Inquiring minds want to know and certainly the Parliamentary Opposition wishes to know.

Madam Speaker, in this context I would wish to refer to Part B of the Financial Stores Regulations entitled, "Responsibilities for Finance, Accounts and Audits" and, in particular, the responsibility of the Financial Secretary.

The Speaker: Permission granted, but please also proceed to lay it likewise.

Mr. Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: I would be happy to, Madam Speaker.

Paragraph 2(11)(i):

"As indicated in General Orders, Chapter 13, paragraph 1, the Financial Secretary is the senior financial officer of the Government and is the chief advisor to the Government on fiscal matters. He is responsible in matters of finance for the implementation of all policy decisions of the Governor and of the Executive Council and Legislative Assembly. He shall so supervise the finances of the Government as to ensure that a full account thereof is made to the Legislature and for this purpose he shall, subject to the directions of the Governor and of the Legislature, have the management of the revenue and expenditure of the Government and the supervision, control and direction of all matters relating to the financial affairs relating to the Government."

The next paragraph:

"The Financial Secretary shall give such direction and instructions as may appear to him to be expedient for the advantage economy and safety of public monies, stamps and securities, stores and other public property. He has overall responsibilities to the Governor for ensuring that all regulations, orders, direction and instructions relating to the receipt, disbursement, safety, custody and control of public moneys, stamps securities, stores and all other public property are brought to the notice of all persons affected thereby and are duly complied with."

Therefore, Madam Speaker, we say on this side of this Honourable House that the provisions of the Financial Stores Regulations have not been complied with and we call upon the Honourable Financial Secretary of this country to give a full and frank explanation to this Honourable House as to the reasons therefor and to the steps that have been or will be taken to ensure that further breaches of these Regulations do not occur.

The Speaker: Member you need to lay the document which you just referred to.

Mr. Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Madam Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House, Part B of the Financial Stores Regulations entitled, "Responsibilities for Finance, Accounts and Audit" and I would ask if the House could take the morning break at this point.

The Speaker: So ordered for the laying of the document. You have 30 minutes remaining and at this time we will take a 15 minute morning break.

Proceedings suspended at 11.54 am

Proceedings resumed at 12.24 pm

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed. Continuing the debate, the Second Elected Member for the district of George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Picking up where I left off in referring to the various duties of the respective organs of Government and of Ministers and Members of Executive Council, I would like to refer, with your permission, to chapter 2 of the Financial Stores Regulations entitled, "Financial Control part A General Power to Authorise Expenditure".

The Speaker: Certainly.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: This particular provision deals with the role of the Legislative Assembly in this whole process.

It reads, "It is a fundamental and inviolable principle of the control of public moneys that the exclusive right to authorize public expenditure, whether recurrent or capital expenditure is vested solely in the Legislature through the approval of annual Estimates of Expenditure and the enactment of Appropriation Laws and, except as provided in the Public Finance Law or under general or specific authority delegated by the Legislature it is not within the competence of any public officer to vary the pattern of spending approved in the Estimates or to initiate or incur public expenditure which is not covered by the prior authority of the Legislature.”

That sets out very clearly the role, which I and all Honourable Members of this Legislative Assembly have to play in scrutinising the expenditure of Government funds and the conduct of the Government in the award of contract which will be paid for by those funds. It is a duty which I and, I believe, all Members of this Honourable House take seriously and I know that I have caused certain Members of this Honourable House some discomfort this morning. It has been said that perhaps I am seeking to impugn their character. Nothing could be further from the truth. I may believe that there has been dereliction of duty; I may believe that Members or Ministers may have acted inappropriately, but I certainly am not seeking to impugn anyone's character.

Lest anyone should misunderstand me I wish to make it absolutely clear that the sense of duty which I have to this job to which I have been elected and which I hold sacred, requires me to disregard any friendships, any relationships or even any sympathy I might have for any Member or Minister of Government in the discharge of my sacred duty. I will do my duty and be blessed or do my duty and be damned, but I will do my duty. If the people of this country are unhappy or dissatisfied with how I have carried out my duty, how I have performed the functions of my responsible office then they will know what to do when the time comes. However, until that time comes, I look any Member of this Honourable House straight in the face and say, “I am going to do my job whether you are happy or unhappy about it”. When I sit down, those of you who wish to stand up and respond to me or to say that what I have said is not so—

The Speaker: Please refer to them as Honourable Members rather than as a subjective pronoun.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Yes, Madam Speaker, they are all Honourable Members. However, it will be their turn and their opportunity to show what is wrong with the case I have made; to show what holes there are in my arguments and to, I would hope, offer some explanation for what seems to be a course of action which is not in keeping with the provisions of either the Public Management Law or the Finance Stores Regulations.

Madam Speaker, there are a number of questions which must be answered.

Caristef Limited was one of the initial bidders. When the process was initiated they were unsuccessful and Paul Bodden Heavy Equipment was the lowest bidder. The Minister said that in his statement. The Ministry had concerns about the overall cost and decided to negotiate to obtain a lower price, but as best we know the only contractor with whom they negotiated was Caristef. If Paul Bodden Heavy Equipment had proposed the lowest bid in the first place and had been recommended for the award of the contract by the Central Tenders Committee, why were they, and others, not invited to participate in this second process? We would like an answer to that.

Who undertook the review to which the Minister has referred and where is the report on that review?

I am going to conclude with this: On behalf of the Parliamentary Opposition, I am calling on the Governor of these Islands to establish a commission of inquiry into this particular matter.

The Speaker: Honourable Member for George Town, before you proceed could you enlighten the Chair as to how you wish to tie that into the relevance of this debate as opposed to bringing it on a substantive motion.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Madam Speaker, the Commissions of Enquiry Law simply says this:

“The Governor may, whenever he deems it advisable, issue a Commission, appointing one or more Commissioners, and authorising such Commissioners or any quorum of them therein mentioned, to enquire into the conduct or management of any department of the public service, any public or local institution or the conduct of any public or local officers of the Islands or of any Island or district thereof, or into any matter in which an enquiry would, in the opinion of the Governor, be for the public welfare”.

I am hanging my submission on that penultimate line of subsection 2(1), “...into any matter in which any enquiry would, in the opinion of the Governor, be for the public welfare.”

The Speaker: Honourable Member, it is not the position of the Chair that the Law does not permit that. What I was trying to draw your attention to was Standing Order 35(7) which says that:

“The conduct of Her Majesty, members of the Royal Family, the Governor, the Presiding Officer, Members, Judges and other persons engaged in the administration of justice or of Officers of the Crown may not be raised or impugned except upon a substantive motion; and in any amendment, question to a Member of the Government or debate on a motion dealing with any other subject any reference to the conduct of any such person is out of order.”

I have allowed your debate based on your initial submissions and I found them to be relevant so far. Now that you have embarked upon your conclusion which I could not have foreseen, not having privy to a conversation with you or your debate which I am not obliged to have, the Chair would be very strained to interpret your submission as being relevant to what you have put forward thus far and not bringing within the Standing Order that I have. Hence, I was subtly suggesting to you that you needed to refresh your memory to that Standing Order so that you could have brought it on a substantive motion if that was the desire of the Parliamentary Opposition or from your personal perspective. In that vein, I will not entertain a submission or backdoor substantive motion at this stage.

For the abundance of caution, I would like to make it abundantly clear that the Speaker, nor the Chair, is infringing on any rights of Parliament, but merely carrying out the Standing Orders as have been laid down for generations. If any Member wishes to change it there is an appropriate course to so do.

Please continue.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Madam Speaker, I wish to make it absolutely clear again that I am not seeking to impugn the character of anyone in the context of all of this. I am not going to go down the road that you have told me not to go, but I just wish to make that absolutely clear.

The Speaker: I understand that, Honourable Member, but if you would look at Standing Order 35 (4), it deals with imputing. I am looking strictly at the interpretation of 35(7) which brings into question the conduct. Generally speaking, the Chair feels that it is the more appropriate avenue open to you and would not allow the Budget Address to be used a backdoor entry when a substantive motion is the more appropriate process.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Fine, Madam Speaker, that is the ruling and I am not going to argue about that.

Therefore, Madam Speaker, I have concluded my debate and my submissions on this matter. I regret very much that this course of action has been necessary. The matter, I believe, could have been handled much better otherwise. However, as I said, it is the duty of every elected Member of this Honourable House and particularly those of us on this side who are invested with the tremendous responsibility of scrutinising the conduct and actions of the Government, to ensure that when matters such as these come to our attention that we take the necessary action to bring them to the House's attention. For if we do not, confidence in the integrity of not just the tendering process, but the integrity of the administration of Government is called into question and the day that this country loses confidence in the financial integrity and the conduct of the finances of this country is the day that I think we might as well pack up our bags and say let us go somewhere else.

The Speaker: You have 37 minutes remaining.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Madam Speaker, it is in the interest of that and in the interest of our assuring the continued good stewardship and confidence in the system of government in these Islands generally, that these uncomfortable matters sometimes have to be raised and dealt with on the Floor of this Honourable House.

As I said before, it is done without malice and entirely in the discharge of the important function that I understand my colleagues and I on this side of the Honourable House have to discharge.

I will sit down now, Madam Speaker, and will not proceed to deal with any other aspect of the Budget. My colleagues, the Leader of Opposition and the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town and the Elected Member for East End have, I think, dealt rather comprehensively with other aspects of the Budget Address. I think all things considered, they have done a commendable job in discharging their function as well.

Madam Speaker, I sit down and I await the barrage.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Services.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, I had not intended to speak because we are pressed with time. It is unfortunate that there is a situation where we have to try to finish the country's business in order to make sure that we do not get bogged down and that we are, in fact, moving forward and progressing with very important issues that people are concerned about. However, I did feel that some of the issues raised by the Second Elected Member for George Town and put in some type of legal argument with regards to the tendering process, the Stores Regulations, affordable housing funding and questions with regards to the Financial Secretary, almost imputing improper motives on that Member's part ...

I believe that the Financial Secretary will have his opportunity to address many of these issues, clear them up for the general public and show again that the Second Elected Member for George Town is very good at trying to move the public's attention away from what is needed in the country and away from how this Government is working to make certain types of achievements and trying to get them to concentrate on his legal arguments about irregularities in the system. I am not saying that it is not important to observe the process but that Member (The Second Elected Member for George Town) needs to be more cognizant and concentrate more on results rather than delving always on how people do things or how things are done. I have not heard him say anything about the merits of the housing system; I have not heard him talk about how it could be done differently; I have not heard him talk about how we could use different materials or any way to deal with this problem.

When one listens to the Opposition one has the feeling that all we have in this country to deal with is basically looking at what they consider to be the mistakes of this Government. Everything that the Government does that is successful is conceived by the Opposition as mistakes. It is important that not one of the five Members of the Opposition got up here today to speak about the merits or demerits of the Government's Affordable Housing Initiative. Yet the Second Elected Member for George Town claims that he is from an un-privileged class in the society who is supposed to have great sympathy and understanding for those persons who are now and have been for many years, in a position where they could find no solution to their desire to own their own homes, and not just to own their own homes but to have some place that was adequate and affordable, whether or not it was by paying rent or by outright purchase. He has great sympathy for them yet he does not mention them in his debate. He spends his time talking about a dissatisfied heavy equipment operator, but he does not mention the normal, local grass root Caymanian that we are trying to build these affordable homes for. Not one mention has this person made in his debate. He spent all of his time . . . two hours he was allocated and he has left 37 minutes and he has not mentioned the people that have elected him. He has not mentioned them in this Budget. He has just mentioned what I consider to be special interest.

Madam Speaker, there is a question that was just asked by the Lady Member for North Side, but I would not want to say that over the microphone because I might be imputing improper motives on the part of Members of the Opposition and I do not want to do that.

The Speaker: Please do not embark on those high seas.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: ...because I can get sworn affidavits to prove certain points in here.

The Speaker: Order.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, the point being that the Opposition is concerned with getting into Government; they are not concerned with governance. They are two different things; getting the job and doing the job are two different things. What they do is that they try — especially with the housing project because it is important — they seriously believe that the Government that can deliver affordable housing in this country will win the next election. Therefore, they have to sabotage and work on finding ways to make that government's initiative look as if it is not an honest or credible one. Everything is questionable about the way in which we have done things, according to the Second Elected Member for George Town.

It is important . . . because I do not want to get into trying to somehow pretend that I understand the Government Finance and Stores Regulations, even as well as the learned lawyer, the Second Elected Member for George Town. However, as I said, perhaps my unfortunate position is as a result of the fact that I have been more concerned in doing things for the same poor people that this Member has not even mentioned in his debate. I have not had the time to read the tedious regulations that he now speaks about, but I am quite sure that my Permanent Secretary is familiar with it, and I am quite sure that the Financial Secretary is familiar with these regulations as well.

I, as Minister, know exactly what my job is: my job is to make sure that I develop policies; my job is to motivate those persons who are responsible for the implementation of those policies. The policy of the United Democratic Party Government is to try to develop as many affordable housing units for the people of this country so that they can own something and are not always denied by contractors, by heavy equipment operators and by all the people who have held a monopoly on those resources in this country over the years. It is about time that we begin to attempt to break this monopoly from that class of people that this Second Elected Member for George Town represents. They have done things solely in their own interests and it is about time that the interests of those persons that I hear them talking about . . .

Oh, yes we can talk about the drug users and the crime in society, but the drugs and the crime problems in society are created by other problems too. They are created by the fact that people do not have access to the jobs and to the resources that are necessary to pay for housing, training, and for other things that they need in the society. That is what they could talk about, but no one is talking about the need in this country for decent accommodation.

Did we hear one Member of the Opposition talk about the need in this country for housing? Yes, we will talk about the need for more police, but not the need for more housing. We talk about the need to give more money to the police, but no money towards trying to improve the ability of single mothers to mother their children in such a way that they will not become a need for policing at this particular time. These are people who are reacting to the crises that their class of people have created over the years. That is what they are doing. They are so hungry for the job that they forget the fact that to get the job they are going to have to be able to perform some things that will satisfy those people in this country that have been without representation for a very long time.

I hear them talking as if I am responsible for the social problems in this country—that I, and the little time that I have been in the Ministry, have really been responsible for the lack of social engineering in this country. They give one the impression that the crime in the country, the dysfunctional families, youth with problems in this country, must be blamed on Frank McField. However, I was just looking at an old copy of The Nor'wester, dated August 1979. It was sent by someone from North Side; and it was put on my desk this morning.. It speaks about: 'Ezzard's departure from government service'—

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, would you wish to read it into the record?

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, if I was allowed to read this into the record I think . . .

The Speaker: Please proceed.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: "Ezzard's departure from government service follows briefly after that of Dr. Frank McField, social development officer with the National Council of Social Service for two years. After some months of running dispute with the Health, Education and Social Services portfolio, it was announced that he had been dismissed by the Public Service Commission for breach of public service regulations. His contention was that secondment to the NCSS meant that he was subject to the regulations but the ruling went against him.

"Again, it seems a pity that a well-qualified young Caymanian's services are lost to government and again there is the conjecture as to the likelihood of Frank seeking a political role in the future".

This was 1979, and I can tell you that when I look at the picture therein, I get a little shock seeing that I had been young once.

The Speaker: Would you also wish to proceed with laying the document, Honourable Minister?

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Yes, Madam Speaker, I would like to lay a copy of that on the Table.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, I just want to make sure that everyone understands that I am not responsible for the social problems. I am not responsible for the fact that we have crime. As a matter of fact, had those persons that I was trying to give a message to back in 1979, not decided to shoot the messenger, we might not be here rowing about who is responsible for crime in the Cayman Islands. We might not be talking about the lack of affordable housing. Many of these problems might have been solved or, at least, there might have been some kind of genuine attempt to find solutions to these issues. Now, for Members to try to pretend somehow that this Government lacks a social conscience; that this Government does not care; that the reason we are having the types of problems we have now is because of our mismanagement.

It is not so Madam Speaker. We realised a very long time ago that there could be no serious social management without that management being proactive; without that management having strategies that would prevent certain types of behaviour from being created and being institutionalised and becoming part of a criminal sub-culture in our country. We realise that for there to be a sensible social management policy, housing would have to be one very important element of that policy. There was no point in me coming and talking about social engineering—like all the other geniuses on the other side talk about—without at the core of that social engineering, having houses being available to the people that we wanted to somehow impact and affect.

What kind of preventative programmes would we have where housing was not an important consideration? Where the supply of affordable housing was not an important consideration? What kind of policy would that be? That would be an empty policy. That is the kind of policy you hear coming from the Opposition. That is the kind of policy that we have had;—a policy that was empty; a policy that was impotent because it was not based upon considering what was absolutely necessary and essential from the very beginning which was proving shelter for people; providing an environment where they could begin to parent.

We are always talking about blaming parents, but at the same time when people work on jobs and are not being paid enough to create the conditions where there is not a living wage, where the people cannot afford the goods and services that are produced in the society, then at the end of the day we have issues. I decided not to concentrate now on the income, but on the outcome because sometimes the income can be small, but the outcome can be great. It means that I am not out there writing a minimum wage bill, but at the same time I am creating affordable houses to allow those people who might be earning the lowest wages in society to have access to something that they psychologically and physically need in order to improve their self-esteem and their parenting.

We have a whole strategy that we are developing and I am not in a position to come and speak about this all at once today because it is a complex thing and it is something that I believe does not necessarily have to be politicised. I think we really need to deal with it on an administrative level. However, there are social strategies and ways that we will have to deal with this housing issue that will make it work; that will mean that we will not be creating ghettos. People have been talking about it. We are creating a National Housing Trust and there are ways that we are going about selecting people, managing people, helping people with social issues, seeing the investment as a real social investment on the part of the Government. However, I did not come to argue with the Opposition about this because they know very well that otherwise they would have been talking about something else besides the breach of the Government Finance and Stores Regulations.

The Opposition would be talking about something else other than the fact that they do not see in the Budget any more money than $150,000 for the National Housing and Community Development Trust. Those $150,000 are administrative funds for that particular unit that is a part of Government's social investment. That is a definite expenditure that the Government has incurred.

I am not going to get into issues that the Financial Secretary is capable of dealing with, but I do understand from having seen other situations that there is such a thing as an advance account. I do understand that there have been advance accounts before that have paid for medical situations. I will not get into it since it is not my area, but I do know that we were allowed to pay out money from an advance account and not out of general revenue. It was a specific advance account marked for the Affordable Housing Initiative. The Financial Secretary, as far as I know, did that out of the goodness of his heart because he realises how difficult it has been in this country to break this cycle of trying to get affordable housing for people. It was time that the Government stood up and tried to do something to break this cycle. I thank him and thank his Christian beliefs. I know he is an honest and good man, and for the Second Elected Member for George Town to try to build a case to cast aspersions on the Financial Secretary for doing this is a shame!

The Speaker: Is this an appropriate time for the luncheon break?

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: We will reconvene at 2 pm.

Proceedings suspended at 1 pm

Proceedings resumed at 2.20 pm

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed. Continuation of the Budget Address by the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Services.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, I am a bit disappointed that the Members of the Opposition have not showed up here after the lunch break in order to be able to get an answer from me with regards to the many accusations and questions which the Second Elected Member for George Town brought before this House this morning.

I think that his concentration on the process represented, in my opinion, his involvement with special interest where he is trying to suggest somehow that the project manager acted out of a conflict of interest. I think that we need to look more at exactly how this particular process with the tendering of this contract for the fill of the affordable housing sites develops.

I was also upset by the fact that he tried to cast aspersions on what I thought was the good name of the Financial Secretary, the Third Official Member, who is a good person and who has shown more sympathy for this Affordable Housing Initiative than many Financial Secretaries have shown.

I think, Madam Speaker, that the Government's Affordable Housing Initiative has not only taken a very long time to get to this point — some thirty years — but it is a special project with special difficulties. The mere fact that the Opposition concentrates only on trying to find faults with the tendering process and the way in which Government is supporting this project, goes to show that the Opposition's main concern is not with the people and not with the results that this process will be able to achieve.

I would like first of all to bring to the attention of this Honourable House that the Second Elected Member for George Town seemed to have been representing Mr. Paul Bodden, one of his constituents — perhaps one of my constituents as well; I am not sure whether or not he does live in the district of George Town now or in the district of Bodden Town, but I know that he is a George Towner from birth. In bringing up that in all of the correspondence that was tabled in this Legislative Assembly, all of the accusations that were made this morning about the tendering process, the Second Elected Member for George Town failed to say, if he did know, perhaps he did not, that Paul Bodden Heavy Equipment's bid went into the Tenders Committee twenty minutes late and that bid should not have been entertained since two other bidders that were late were sent away. Mr. Paul Bodden was called back and his bid was registered.

I am in the position to prove to this Honourable House that the Deputy Financial Secretary, Mr. Joel Walton, Chairman of the Central Tenders Committee consulted with the project manager, Mr. Andrew Gibb and at the end decided to call Mr. Paul Bodden back in order to allow him to be included in the tendering process. The fact that the bid was already twenty minutes late, the fact that two other sets of bidders were sent away because they were late, the fact that Mr. Paul Bodden was accepted, goes to show special interest and favouritism from the very beginning.

However, the Second Elected Member for George Town who is a part of that class, who is a part of that thinking, who is a part of that network, did not come here to talk about that. Anyway, Madam Speaker, the bid was accepted.

The Second Elected Member for George Town seems to be accusing us of not going according to the Financial Stores Regulations, but, in fact, we did put the filling of the sites out to tender, we did receive bids, we did examine those bids and, as a result of examining those bids, we found that the prices that were being offered to us were not what would make our project affordable and the whole concept of the Affordable Housing Scheme had to be taken in to account.

Therefore, I had a meeting with Mr. Gibb who sought a meeting with the Auditor-General on Wednesday, 19 February to discuss the issue of the tendering of the Affordable Housing Initiative contract. Out of an abundance of caution, Madam Speaker, the project manager, Mr. Andrew Gibb, asked me to write to the Auditor-General explaining the Affordable Housing Initiative procurement concept. I wrote to the Auditor-General on 21 February 2003 and I shall read from this letter with your permission and I would like to table it as well.

The Speaker: Please proceed.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: “Dear Sir, following ratification by Executive Committee, the Ministry of Community Services, Women’s Affairs, Youth and Sport is now to embark upon the procurement stage of the Affordable Housing Initiative. I have retained the services of Mr. Andrew Gibb as project manager responsible for the procurement and execution of the assembly, erection and delivery of two hundred houses under phase one of the initiative and over a period of time not exceeding 14 months.

“The Ministry has embraced the concept of “value engineering” in order to achieve the procurement of these houses at the least possible cost and over the shortest possible time frame. As purchase prices for these houses are determined by affordability to purchaser rather than the sum of total input costs, we are committed to a dynamic process of cost/benefit analysis on an ongoing basis, and as such, have already embarked on a fast tract procurement programme that challenges traditional construction methodologies and related costs.

“I have directed the Project Manager to spare no effort in applying rigorous cost-reduction criteria to every stage of the procurement and delivery process. In achieving the cost and time targets that I have set for this project, he will have to ensure that everything procured for the initiative will have to be at the lowest possible cost within the shortest possible timeframe, and in so doing, will comply with Government’s requirement for best value for money.

“I thank you for your interest and co-operation in this exciting project, and assure you of our continuing adherence to best procurement practice in the execution of the Affordable Housing Initiative.

“Yours sincerely, Dr. the Hon. Frank McField, Minister.”

Madam Speaker, I would also like to table the note with regards to the meeting between the Auditor General and the project manager.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, it is fundamental for us in this Honourable House and the listening public to understand that it was not the intention of the Second Elected Member for George Town to look at both sides of the story here. We must understand that it was not the intention of the Net News when they published their stories to look at both sides, but to try and cast aspersions for what reasons I am not in the position to say.

However, we elected not to use any of the bids that came in because all of the bids, including the lowest bidder, were too high; it would make it more difficult for us to achieve our objective of building affordable homes. As a result, Madam Speaker, we were invited to discuss with someone who had been willing to supply us at a much cheaper rate - Caristef, as I said in my statement this morning. We are talking about more than $2.00 per cubic yard.

The fact that this company is referred to by Mr. Paul Bodden’s attorney as the alter ego of Mr. Dick Christensen from Quarry Products, is the opinion of the attorney. It is obviously the opinion of the Second Elected Member for George Town, but I am aware that this company is owned by one Steve McLaughlin who is a cousin of the Member for East End, who worked at CUC with that Member for East End and who has been trying to pay his bills to build a company and to create himself as a small Caymanian businessman.

We hear people saying that we do not want to help small Caymanian business people. In cases like this, he shows us how he can support us in our desire to build affordable houses; how he can fill and compact the site at a price which is well below that which we received in the lowest tender. What were we supposed to do? Send him away? Madam Speaker, we put the contract to fill and to compact the land out to tender and we received back that process and we did not go out and hire someone that was more expensive than the lowest bidder; we hired someone that was less expensive and much less expensive.

The point that the Second Elected Member for George Town is making is that this person is the alter ego of Dick Christensen from Quarry Products. I would just like to remind this Honourable House and remind the listening public that many people know Dick Christensen from Quarry Products and many people have received some support from Dick Christensen one way or the other. Many Members of the Opposition have received support from Quarry Products for projects that they have been doing in their communities and other things that they have been doing. If they say it is not true, then I would like to be given the challenge to go out and collect the proof.

The mere fact that we have known this man as an entrepreneur in the society—and many of those people have known him—does not necessarily mean that somebody has committed some kind of offence. Mr. Christensen seems also to be involved in many of these quarrying exercises in the Cayman Islands. So it appeared to me that what the Member is saying is that Mr. Steve McLaughlin from Caristef is the alter ego which means that he is getting a certain amount of support from Dick Christensen.

This might be true. In other words, Dick Christensen might be helping him, but that was not what the Ministry did. The Ministry made a contract with a young Caymanian from the district of East End who was trying to save his business, who was showing us that he could get fill and supply us with fill at a cheaper rate. Our job is to make sure that our project can be affordable, not to guarantee Paul Bodden, or any other Bodden, a livelihood or a job. Therefore, if I am being criticised by the Second Elected Member for George Town for getting things cheaper, for making the project successful and more affordable for the people to be able to have a house, then I guess I have to take that criticism.

However, I do not believe that members of my staff, members of my Ministry or the Financial Secretary, should be criticised and aspersions should be cast on them when the Deputy Financial Secretary, who as Chairman of the Central Tenders Committee, accepted Mr. Paul Bodden's bid late when it should not have been accepted in the first place. Perhaps all of this that is going on here today would not have had to go on had the Deputy Financial Secretary, a friend of the Members of the Opposition, as far as I know, not accepted this man's bid outside of the time.

Now what should have been cast on their friend is being cast on his superior partner in the Ministry of Finance, the Third Official Member.

The Speaker: Is that your opinion, Honourable Member?

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: That is my opinion, Madam Speaker, and I wish the Opposition were here.

Madam Speaker, I will go over it again because I think it is important in terms of my argumentation.

If irregularities took place, they must have begun with the way in which late bids were handled. The fact is as I have stated in the letter to the Auditor-General, I have proceeded with the concept of value engineering, continuously evaluating and re-evaluating costs, trying to save costs, trying to keep the project on an affordable course. I have heard the Second Elected Member for George Town say that—or people say that they have heard that it is over-budgeted. That means that we have to work even harder if that is the case to make sure that we bring down the cost. That should be our primary consideration, not the interest of one or two individuals in society who have always felt that they are members of the privileged class and that they should always be first and the people should be last.

We have signed, as a Government, an agreement with Quarry Products some time ago that Quarry Products would be allowed to pay Government back for a debt which Quarry Products owes Government because Quarry Products operated/quarried on Government land. That is a long story and Government has said, "Pay us back in materials". Thus, we have a contract with Quarry Products and that allows them to do that and that has been amended a few times.

However, I must say that long before this process went to bid for the fill of the land, that an agreement was signed between my Ministry and Quarry Products to allow them to pay that and it was also then signed by the Public Works Department. We agreed that, rather than go out and spend cash we would collect the debt by way of bartering, by way of materials. Therefore, it is not to disassociate our knowledge or ourselves with any particular individual here; we do not have to do that.

To accuse Mr. Andrew Gibb, the project manager, of having a conflict of interest simply because he worked with Quarry Products, that he left his job at Quarry Products to come to work for the Ministry as a project manager, does not necessarily follow because many people change jobs. We have a right to change jobs; many people have changed jobs. Does it mean that the Member for East End just because he left CUC and came to work for the people of the Cayman Islands in the Legislative Assembly is now going to have a conflict of interest? Does he have a conflict of interest when he is debating issues dealing with CUC?

At the time in which Mr. Gibbs was involved in this situation, he was not an employee of Quarry Products. However, he had access to Quarry Products' office and, at that particular time, because he had been an employee of Quarry Products we had not provided him with any accommodation. We were trying to move our projects ahead and so he regrettably faxed from that particular office, but he never tried to hide the fact that he faxed from that office. If he had something to conceal maybe he would not have faxed from that office, but from a different office. The mere fact that he faxed from Quarry Products' office does not mean that there is a conflict of interest; it does not mean that he is not aware of what the procedures are. The man worked with Public Works before. He is very aware of the Financial Stores Regulations and he has been very aware of the fact that he must protect his own position, his own reputation on the job and in this country and I do not think he is going to allow me or anybody else to involve him in anything that is not above board.

The mere fact that the Opposition is concentrating on what has been done wrong rather than trying to give the Government some kind of credit for what has been done right, just goes to show, Madam Speaker, exactly where their minds are at.

I notice that there are still Members of the Opposition absent, especially those from the district of George Town. Madam Speaker, I am not going on about this issue of tendering, any more, because I think I have explained it. I think the Financial Secretary can explain about the advance account and how these things are going. Thank God, again, something is going and they want to mash it up. They cannot say that we did not use the tendering process — that we have subverted. We used it as required by law! We used it but we were not satisfied with the lowest bid and we found that we had access to better value for money and that is exactly where we went.

As I said, Madam Speaker, the fact that Mr. Paul Bodden was allowed to register his bid when he was late like three other companies, and his bid was accepted, had to do with the fact, in my opinion, that he has contacts and was able to use his contacts to be included. When we can prove that his bid was twenty minutes late and should have been excluded, we should not be talking at this particular level in this conversation.

There are so many other points, but I am not going to deal with them because time is important and I believe that the Government needs to get into Finance Committee and the Government needs to get this Budget passed. We need to get back to our jobs of trying to create affordable homes and trying to create better conditions in the Social Services Department to allow it to work more specifically with families where we have a more holistic view of problem solving; where we do not just look at drugs, but we look at the causes; where we do not just look at bad parenting, but we look at the causes of poor parenting; where we do not just blame the parents, but also blame the governments that have over the years failed to help to support poor working people in gaining the conditions for decent Christian living.

The Second Elected Member for George Town is a thorn that has come not to assist, but to discredit, to show how superior he is because although he continuously says that he is not privileged, looks are deceiving. I believe that he is privileged, that he does view reality from a superior position, that if he were to see the need he would be out there working to try to make sure somehow that we can get those houses tomorrow; that we can get the social structures in place to be able to do this.

I have invited Members of the Opposition, Members of the whole House, you, the Governor and everybody to tour the Windsor Park site and the Fairbanks site with us tomorrow at 4 o'clock. I noticed that when I passed out the invitations the Member for North Side tore her invitation up, so that I could see that she was destroying hers. I guess she prefers to go there on her own, to ask her own questions rather than to go with us, to see what we have, what we need to do and where we are going.

I will be looking forward to seeing the Opposition joining the Governor, who they are calling to do a commission of inquiry, accompanied by the Financial Secretary and all those Members of Government that can be there, to see what has been done and what needs to be done. Let us see if we can push this project forward.

See, Madam Speaker, the Member for North Side just cannot take it.

The Speaker: Please continue with your debate, Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Perhaps North Side needs a few homes too, but I get the attitude that would not be appreciated.

Point of Order

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: Please state your point of order.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: The Honourable Minister seems to be a total female hater. Why is he always picking on me when I have said nothing? I am tired of it. He is misleading this House that I am leaving because he is speaking.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister—

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, why would I be a female hater simply because I am watching the reaction of the Member for North Side. I saw her tear up her invitation very aggressively. I have seen her aggressive posturing at the moment and I have brought it to the attention of the House and the general public. That does not make me a female hater.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, the Chair does not find that it is misleading. Please continue with your debate. Member for North Side, please contain yourself.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, I would like to end my debate by saying that I think that there would be other opportunities that I will have to debate. However, I would also like to remind the general public that because the Government did not go out to borrow a whole lot of money and because the Government has not brought taxes again on the poor people, it does not mean that the Budget is no good.

The Government, because of its social conscience, because of its prudent management has been able to avoid new taxes and massive borrowings. Since the Government has been able to do that, the Government has created a totally different reality by showing the people all that is wrong. However, All-to-All in the Kingdom of Everything could not do anything. Now All-to-All would like to come back to tell us all what All-to-All will do when All-to-All controls the Kingdom of Everything again.

This is not an all-to-all Budget, but it is for all the people and all the people will realise that the annual plan and estimates for the Government - whether or not the Opposition was given enough time to peruse it or not - is not an attempt to deceive the people or to deceive this Legislative Assembly; it is a rational attempt to try to manage the country's finances and to be able to give some of those people who need something.

The Government is going to spend $1,037,747.00 on policy advice and ministerial servicing support for the Ministry of Community Services, Youth, Sports and Gender Affairs. The Ministry will be spending $566,675.00 on the construction and maintenance of recreational facilities. It will spend $1,051,727.00 on public education and social issues; $519,878.00 on training and support for adults with disabilities; $1,689,166.00 on support for persons with substance abuse problems and $1,580,439.00 on sports coaching and community activities. The Government, unfortunately, still has to spend on prisons, but it will spend $7,174,764.00 on custody and escorting supervision of prisoners. It will spend $1,041,526.00 on prisoner rehabilitation programmes, $4,769,382.00 on provision of social services to families and $943,402.00 on supervision of offenders doing community services, and the beat goes on and on.

This Government, Madam Speaker, will spend $40,000.00 this year on the hosting of the Caribbean Regional Inter Primary Athletic Competition. We suggested to the Athletic Association that we would like to see competition in the primary schools raised because we know that is where we need to spend our money and where we need to raise our athletes. We will spend over $200,000.00 for the support of battered women and $1,600,000.00 on youth rehabilitation programmes. We will spend money on community development and beautification programmes, on after school programmes and on lunch programmes. The Government will spend $245,112.00 on school lunch and uniform programmes in this Budget and money on the management of the Pines Home, supervision of pre-school children and foster care. We will also spend $137,600.00 on attendance at pro-social youth events which is for football.

I noticed that they talked about the $150,000.00 to get the administration for the National Housing Community Development Trust, because the Trust needs to be about more than providing and maintaining houses; it needs to provide and maintain the social structure to make sure that people can achieve some of their human worth.

I said I was going to give over to other Members of this Honourable House because I do have other forums to make my discussions, but I think the position of the Second Elected Member for George Town, in particular, needs to be examined because when it comes to issues that are dealing with assisting poorer people, he always seems to want to tear it apart and to ridicule it. Had he looked at the issues objectively and seen that the person who he came in here to represent this morning, Mr. Paul Bodden from Bodden Equipment—

Point of Order

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: Please state your point of order.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Madam Speaker, the Minister, in his usual way, is misleading the House again. I have said on at least four occasions that I hold no brief for anyone. My concern was and remains the acknowledged non-compliance with the Financial Stores Regulations and the Public Management and Finance Law and he should withdraw his last allegation.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, I believe you have entered into the realm of speculation in order to specifically express what another Member's motives were and I would ask you as far as it relates to that specific aspect of your contribution, to please withdraw that.

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, no problem in withdrawing that. I would just like to make the House aware of the fact that I never admitted that there was no compliance with the Financial Stores Regulations. As a matter of fact, I have spent the last 45 minutes arguing that it has been complied with and that the Second Elected Member for George Town has tried to mislead the House by trying to say that there was not compliance with the Financial Stores Regulations. However, he was not here to hear that because he was not interested in hearing that from me.

I would like to finish up by saying that on 20 February 2003 Quinn and Hampson who are supposed to be the lawyers for Mr. Paul Bodden, did end their letter by saying: "You can be assured that if the contents of this letter are true, a substantial action in damages will be presented by our clients."

Before the Second Elected Member for George Town finished speaking, he said that there would be no action brought, so how is it that the lawyers can talk about the fact: ". . . you can be assured that if the contents of this letter are true, a substantial action in damages will be presented by our clients.”

That goes to show that the contents of the letter are not true; by the evidence which he has presented himself it cannot be true because if it were true he has the possibility to go to the Court for the remedies. Why is it that he came here to bring it? Because it could not be brought to court so he needed a place to wash the dirty laundry in order to make people feel bad; in order to cast aspersions on people.

The Speaker: Is that your opinion, Honourable Minister?

Dr. the Hon. Frank S. McField: Madam Speaker, I feel that is a fact. That is a fact. That is not an opinion any more. That is a fact; that is what he did. Why would he come here with stuff that could not stand in the courts and use it in Parliament? He is a lawyer. He knows that it could not stand up in court because he wants to accuse us of being in breach of the Financial Stores Regulations when we have said that the breach occurred when Paul Bodden Heavy Equipment was allowed to be entered into the bidding process when he was 20 minutes late and that is document and that was a decision made by the Chairman of the Central Tenders Committee, but they refuse others who were jointly late.

I rest my case, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? Does any other Member wish to speak? Last call, does any other Member wish to speak? If not, I will recognise the Leader of Government Business.

The Member for the district of North Side.

Ms. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, I rise on a matter of clarification. Is the Leader of Government Business contributing to the debate or is he winding up the debate on a Motion and the Appropriation Law that the Honourable Financial Secretary, the Third Official Member brought to Parliament? If so, on what grounds, what Standing Order?

The Speaker: Member for North Side, it is my understanding that the Leader of Government Business is doing exactly what he did last year, closing the debate.

Leader of Government Business.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I do not want to keep the debate longer, but I am much afraid that I will have to take my two hours.

The mark of a good budget is the amount of prattle the Opposition makes on it and no one can say that there has not been enough of that. One thing the Opposition has been good at since 8 November 2001 is blowing matters out of proportion and making it look genuine. However, they always fail when the Second Elected Member for George Town and the Member for East End speak. They somehow always give away their hidden intentions and strategies. The Opposition's claim that they or the public were not given enough time to review the Budget is baseless. I would like to ask this Honourable House and the newspapers as well, when in the history of budget presentations to this Honourable House did the public get the budget in between it being presented and debated in the House by the Opposition. When, except for the excerpts carried in the newspapers after delivery of the Budget? When?

Best of all was the East End Member's admission that he did not need more time to peruse and analyse the Budget, but his Leader needed more time. This is a clear example of why the Leader of the Opposition is the interim Leader and not the Leader substantive.

I want to ask the Leader of the Opposition when did he ever wait for the budget to be presented to get information? The Member remarked about efficiency and accountability. Madam Speaker, the truth is the Member does not know anything about being efficient and open and, as far as his accountability is concerned; he threw that out of the window when we elected him as Leader in this Honourable House in 2000.

The interim Leader of the Opposition referenced to an elected dictatorship and that one person should not have all the say is correct. We agree with that principle wholeheartedly. The way we operate as a government is that all government decisions are made by consensus or by a majority of the elected Members. There is no elected dictatorship, but surely the interim Leader of the Opposition cannot say that we should not have a leader.

Perhaps the reason why he seems to advocate this is because he cannot see himself in that leadership position or he himself is not in that leadership position now. I see that he said they would give more time, and I ask the question, how can anyone believe that when after eight years in Opposition and making all kinds of noises and promises he finally got the power to lead, but languished there for an entire year and went to sleep like Rip Van Winkle and when he awoke his gun had rusted and time had passed him by.

Now they wake up to find the 21st century facing them. Consequently, I now have to drag him and his four satellites kicking, screaming and making all kinds of funny noises in this 21st century. I make no apologies for the PPM's lack of foresight and understanding of the big issues. The United Democratic Party has made it a priority to tackle the big fiscal issues of this country. It was extremely pleasing, Madam Speaker, to hear the Baroness Amos publicly commend the United Democratic Party Government and my leadership for taking the very difficult decisions that were needed to balance the Budget. I say to the Opposition and to the interim Leader of the Opposition, face the reality, the old ways of doing business are gone and they must make a concerted effort to try and understand the big issues that are facing the country.

Whoever assisted the interim Leader of the Opposition in writing his speech did a good job of misrepresenting every thing he spoke about. I was unavoidably late and out of the House when the interim Leader of the Opposition spoke, but I have seen what he said. Anyone familiar with the present budgetary process as he is, should be able to take the Budget, analyse it within 45 hours and be able to create a position and debate it.

Since the implementation of the new budgetary procedures and the Public Management and Finance Law, we have had several meetings with all Members of the House to inform them about it. In fact, all Members were given a draft Budget so that they would be familiar with the format and be able to analyse it quickly. I also laid the strategic policy statement in December 2002 which laid out the procedures and the manner in which the new budgetary process would be handled, and also gave them an insight into strategies and priorities that would be taken by the Government in developing this year's Budget.

They also had Tuesday afternoon, Tuesday night, Wednesday and Wednesday night to further study the papers to be able to debate on Thursday morning. You want to tell me that the First Elected Member for George Town, the interim Leader of the Opposition is going to tell me and tell the public of this country that he did not have enough time? Nonsense! What more time did they need?

The Member for East End had until Friday and he was still complaining that he did not have time. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town—I see that they are gone out of the room—and the Second Elected Member for George Town had until Friday, yet they were still complaining about time.

Besides, as I asked the question before: When has the interim Leader of the Opposition ever had a problem in getting information? Unfortunately for all of us, the Budget could not be tabled before the 17th. If it could have been done, believe me, we would have done it. The Government, too, is handicapped for time because of all the other commitments we need to fulfil. According to the Law, the Budget must be passed before the 1 July.

The Opposition has nothing to do. The Opposition's main job, it seems is to criticise and when they get tired of that they spend time making up things to complain about. For example, one of them took an hour and a half on something that was already aired and publicly screened, and statements were made in the House in speeches about the process and the procedure because the Honourable Minister for Community Services and Housing had done that before.

Can you believe that the interim Leader of the Opposition would continue to try to accuse us of being influenced by politics in other Caribbean islands? Can you believe, Madam Speaker, that the Leader of the PPM would have the audacity and the bare-faced gall to say that? When the interim Leader of the Opposition was the one who dragged leaders from other Caribbean countries in the threes to advise his party to speak and advise them. I also understand that they have another one too. I wonder how much he is costing the PPM; $250,000? If anyone is learning tricks from other countries, if they exist, it is the Opposition, the PPM! I understand—and by the way they kept repeating that allegation (I believe what I have been told)—that they have been advised by their Caribbean advisor to always find something that they can accuse the United Democratic Party of and that is exactly what they have done and continue to do.

The truth is that none of us ever operated the way they are carrying on and the way that I see them operating politics. We might have had to have some demonstrations, but certainly you did not see us all the time on the television and radio running this, spreading this. You never saw more in your life. The way they oppose it is plain to me that they are the ones being advised by someone. Let me repeat: we have no advisor from outside these Islands other than the executive of the United Democratic Party—nobody! They have!

I wonder who this Hartley Henry is anyway. Can they answer? I would like them to get up and tell us where he comes from. What else does he do besides being advisor to the People Progressive Movement? Is he living here in the Islands? How much is he paid by the People's Progressive Movement. Since they have been accusing the UDP wrongly, they need to clear the air on this. I understand that Mr. Hartley Henry also ran in a general election in Barbados and got 38.7 per cent of the vote. He has been a consultant to Caribbean politicians including the Democratic Labour Party (DLP), and we know who led the DLP of which David Thompson was the leader and who lost the elections. He was also advising the PPM down here.

They have to stop being hypocrites, Madam Speaker; they have to stop employing these dirty tricks, like I heard here this morning, then accuse the Government of doing so. We have none; nobody from outside! You know what? I do not need any because I have won five elections on my own know-how, on my granny wits and the other Members have been returned time and time again. Why do we need anyone from the outside to advise us on whom to deal with? They are so pitiful as a party to call themselves a party. They do not have the conviction to run a country because they cannot take the hard decisions when hard decisions need to be made.

I was hoping, and I am going to encourage one of the Members there to go and look for the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, because there are a few things he needs to listen to. I would ask that he comes back in this House because I am going to refer to what he said. I want him to be present so that he can correct me if I am wrong. So, I will ask one of them, the Member for North Side, to go and fetch him.

[Inaudible comments]

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: No, Madam Speaker, we have business to conduct. Perhaps the Serjeant can ask the Member to come inside the House. I have had enough of him and of hypocrisy. I respect born-again Christians and I respect people who get saved, but by God you must come here and not be a hypocrite.

I want to deal, Madam Speaker, with the remarks made by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town and I want to agree with him on the statement that he made about impacts on our culture. However, I ask him — and he is in the Chamber now — did Batabano carnival bars selling liquor and ganja-smoking only start in these Islands since 8 November 2001? Where has that Member been all of this time? Were these things not happening when he was the Minister responsible for Social Services?

The truth is that during his years in managing social services I did not hear one squeak. I did not hear quey-hey about it from him in this Honourable House. His then colleague, Mr. Truman Bodden, who was here this morning in the gallery when the Second Elected Member for George Town was carrying on his tirade, would not even admit we had gangs in school. Now they get up here as pious as a pope. I ask the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town what happened to the family study that I commissioned and sweated over and left with him as the Minister responsible for Social Services in 1997. What are the results of the recommendations that were made in that report?

I cannot stand hypocrisy! Social development under my guidance as Minister of Community Development has begun to pay dividends. You know what? I faced the challenges, I took the licks from within Council and outside. I took the conniving and the back-stabbing within Council and suffered the fallout afterwards. Let us look at the record and look at theirs. The people asked for housing programmes and I delivered. I have much sympathy this morning because if I were not a big man perhaps I might have cried this morning when I heard the accusatory way that was being carried on by the Second Elected Member for George Town. Not only on an Elected Member of this House and the Minister of Housing, but on an honourable man; a man that I believe has an impeccable character, the Financial Secretary, the Third Official Member. I have some memories of that.

You cannot get housing in this country unless you would have done and had the nerve to do what the Minister of Housing has done. I remember what happened when I tried to get it. Everyone came down on me like a ton of bricks, “got to get the banks to do it, the banks must do it”. Well, what happened? A good programme was thrown out and we got the banks. The government-guaranteed scheme helped over 180 people all over the Island to get houses.

I was told the same thing, “You are stopping the local contractors and the local developer. You are hindering a Caymanian from getting it”, and in between 1993—ten years to date—you tell me . . .

This Honourable House should go to the Caymanian Compass and tell them how many real low-income houses this country got in ten years. How many and when were we ever going to help? As soon as they see the dollar sign, as I said, out of every six pounds made in George Town they want to get two shillings. That is the problem.

In my time, people asked for parks and they got them; the people asked for sport facilities and sports programmes and I delivered; the people asked for after school programmes and I delivered; the people asked for youth workers for the churches and we assisted (until the Member for North Side got in there and cut some of it); the people asked for benefits for the veterans and the elderly and for sports scholarships and I delivered when I was the Minister; and for the elderly in need, I delivered. The people asked for health centres in the district and I started that programme too. The people asked for half-way houses and I started that programme; the people asked for drug rehabilitation programmes in the prison and I delivered. I have nothing to be ashamed of. My record when I was Minister responsible for Social Development speaks for itself.

However, let me say to the Third Member for Bodden Town that no matter what Government does, care, protection and discipline learning begin at home for the elastic minds of children. Government cannot do that. Government must enforce the rules, but where are the rules? If people do not want curfews for the children and young people who are eight, 10, 11 and 12 years old who are out all hours of night, the Government cannot enforce it.

The UK took the strap out of the school; Government cannot reinstate it under the present Constitution. If the criminal can kill without fear for his own life because of the laws that the United Kingdom has forced upon us, then what can we do in the UDP but tell the police to chase the criminals, without guns, because that is what we have to do while the criminals have them. It makes no sense to me. We have given the police more cars. I heard them screaming out there. We have given them more equipment. We have given them more officers and even a boat to ensure that they perform their jobs to the best of their abilities. The police can catch some criminals — and they do — who may get off due to a legal technicality and if they get a sentence they are back on the road in four months or a year depending on what they did, all by the prerogative of his Excellency, the good Governor of these Islands.

What I need as Leader, and since my name was called, is a unified House in battling the criminal elements within our society. I am going — and I have not talked to any of my colleagues about this yet, this is just me at this time — to propose to the Governor that the law must be changed so that anyone found with an unlicensed firearm must be given a mandatory life sentence of hard labour. People who do not need guns should not have them. The so-called bad boys should be given a mandatory life sentence if they feel it necessary to use guns to threaten the society and safety of these Islands. The mandatory life sentence that I am going to talk to the Governor about, in my opinion, would also be extended to anyone convicted of rape or the importation and distribution of illegal drugs.

Criminals convicted of the same hard crime on more than one occasion should also be given the mandatory life sentence. The small drug sellers must also pay for their crimes. After all, they are the ones assisting the importers and distributors while selling their horrible drugs to this country.

Reading papers about what a pastor said cannot convince the criminal to behave. The pastors preach in church every week. That does not convince them to behave. Serious crimes deserve hard punishments and I will be suggesting to His Excellency the Governor that laws be enacted so that criminals receive punishments to fit their crime. Bad boys deserve a very good flogging and punishment every time they commit a crime. We cannot sit back and watch this country fall into the same problems that some of our neighbours have fallen into—and that is where we are heading. We must implement plans to protect the children from these criminal elements so that they can be productive citizens.

After all, they are the future of our country. I take this challenge personally as the Leader of Government. We have to make the Cayman Islands safe and secure so that visitors to our Islands can enjoy this country as a tourism destination. Visitors should be able to visit our restaurants, beaches, night clubs and tourism attractions without having to worry about their safety. Just as important, we have to implement the right punishment so that the housewife and the young girls who are being molested and raped and the small business owner whose business is suffering because of it, can sleep without fear. If I am a bad man for that, then tell me about it. Do what you have to do, but that is going to be my position to His Excellency the Governor.

Let us look at something, Madam Speaker. I have been a policymaker at times as I said, responsible for social development. I have heard some of the same bad boys from the 1970s and 80s talking about “Nobody not for me and nobody going to help me”. The truth is look at what this country has developed over the past twenty years, since 1984 when I was elected. Look at the things they have. Just this week the Rugby Club had their games; one thousand children in their programme. Little League has probably three thousand in their programme. Cricket has over a thousand in their programme. Swimming has probably over eight hundred in their programme. Therefore, there are things for people to do and there are things for older children to do, but the truth is, the fault lies in us as law-makers and citizens in this country.

Historically, Caymanians have been profoundly ambivalent about the goal of the criminal justice. They have wanted a criminal justice system that apprehends and visits harm upon the guilty, they want punishment, they make offenders more virtuous or, at least, more law-abiding, they want rehabilitation to dissuade would-be offenders from criminal pursuits (deterrents), to protect innocent citizens from being victimized by convicted criminals (incapacitation), and to invite most convicted criminals to return as productive citizens to the bosom of the free community (reintegration). They want the criminal justice system to achieve these multiple, vague and contradictory public goals without violating the public conscience (humane treatment), jeopardising the public law, you have to have constitutional rights, emptying the public purse; you have to have cost containment. Madam Speaker, Caymanians have wanted stern treatment of prisoners without any damage to prisoners’ rights and the reintegration of offenders into the community without any threat to public safety. There is no way to reconcile these conflicting public goals and mandates and that is where we have gone wrong.

What administrations over the years have done is to let the problematic pendulum swing with the public mood between liberal and conservative approaches to crime prevention and control. That is where we have gone wrong. Crime is rising and we must make a concerted effort to implement all of the available strategies to ensure that we stop it. We must spend, and we will continue to do that, but we have to punish too. We have to be strong when dealing with criminals and punishing them for their crimes. We have to bring the criminals to their knees and rid the Cayman Islands of their scourge. We cannot tolerate a liberal philosophy on combating criminal elements within these Islands.

If the United Kingdom Government, (or whichever government) wants to continue down that path then let them do so alone. That is why I am pushing for a stronger constitutional hand because we need it. As long as we are in the position that we are in they are going to dictate to us and those are some of the problems that we have today. No, Madam Speaker, we do not need another would-be born-again. That is good and I hope, Madam Speaker, you do not take umbrage to this because I know that you are a born-again Christian. That is not what I am saying. Being genuine is another matter of course.

The Member for Bodden Town should realise that no matter whom he brings in to boost tourism we do not know who is a ganja smoker. I was not there so I do not know if anyone did. I do know that His Excellency the Governor was at that event and he did not make any complaint to me about the event at Pedro Castle. I know the Governor left early, but that is usual. Others leave early too, but that is usual too. I make no excuses. He did mention that the concert (some kind of blues) which was held in May of this year was promoted by the Department of Tourism as a sound bite to the larger R&B jazz event next year. That Member declared that this is not the type of entertainment that Cayman needed because the lyrics of some of the songs were obscene and encouraged violence. The Member also mentioned that he heard that there was public ganja-smoking at the concert. As I said, I do not know who was doing it and I do not know where he heard it.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, on a point of clarification, this was an editorial I read. It was not that I commented and I was not present there.

The Speaker: The Leader of Government.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, that editorial was read into this House like a Bible leaf and that is why they should understand that not every editorial is correct. They might not have accused us, but the way that the Member spoke you could draw from that that Government was responsible.

I do not know because I was not there, but I did not have any complaints from His Excellency the Governor nor did I have any from my Permanent Secretary who was there. The bad thing about this, if it is being a bad influence, it is that the majority of Caymanians can go on the internet any day of the week, any hour of the day and download these songs for themselves. I do not think we can isolate the population as he was suggesting. That would be living in the Dark Ages. This is the technological age. Boundaries are becoming less relevant in today's world. I would want him to understand about this kind of music; there is nothing wrong with it, not a thing wrong with R&B and Jazz. Now, if it were some hip hop music being played there, I do not like it. I love to dance and I like to dance when I dance, not when somebody is hitting me in the back of my leg with a piece of pine.

I would like to take this opportunity to point out to him and others that, during the weekend of some kind of blues concert, we had some very influential and wealthy executives from major US corporations on the Island for the concert. These are the people that we would like to attract to our shores as investors and many of them have since expressed an interest in doing so here.

What I do know, Madam Speaker, is that the tourism industry needs all the help to ensure that our product remains competitive and I have and will continue to implement strategies to ensure that happens. It is not in my nature to just sit back and wait for help. I am planning to have another musical concert next year on an annual basis in May and I am hoping to attract world-class talent like Aretha Franklin and George Benson. The concert will also include local band, After Dark, and other Caymanian bands and performers.

I say to the Elected Member for Bodden Town, "find something positive to talk about to help the country". Madam Speaker, they need to stop finding fault and start proposing solutions. The Medical Director the Member complained about was hired under his leadership. I think he admitted that. He was hired under his leadership, but just as the new government came in not under his time and we did take the decision to remove him—the Minister did that before Friday as I understand it.

The Health Insurance Law that he complained about was also implemented by him when he was the Minister responsible for Health. He said that he was taking the politics out of it. Maybe that is what he tried to do, but how can you say that when you were the person responsible for implementing something, that has not worked. The only thing that he accomplished in that was to calm the nature of the beast—the insurance companies. Has that helped the masses or the man on the street? I do not think so. So, he left the mess that we found. I am not saying that I agree with all that was done recently in the Health Services because I do not. The Minister responsible also agrees with this and, as a result, has now taken some drastic steps to solve these problems.

Now he mentioned my support for a lottery. I am not a hypocrite: I support the lottery here because of the money that the country is losing. The country is losing well over $50 million a year and this is money the country desperately needs. I do not support taxes so where will the money come from to do the things that are integral to ensure the success of the country; things like proper education for our youth and good social and medical services. Madam Speaker, this is one that I have to grapple with personally because I do respect many people who do not support the lottery. I still have old Sunday school teachers who are alive and pastors whom I know respect and genuinely care for me. This is something that I have to personally grapple with before I make the final recommendation. Having said all of that, I still have to balance all my feelings against what this country is facing and how to fulfil its needs.

Therefore, the Opposition can make all the hints that they want. They can go and whip up the public if they believe that that will help their politics with this lottery thing. However, what I have to do I will do if I have the support, and once I make up my mind. The money from the lottery will go to improve health services; it will help education; it will help social services; it will give our veterans and elderly an additional $200 or maybe $300 a month more and even put additional money into our general reserves.

As far as I am concerned, Madam Speaker, when I make up my mind, that is me, I will put it before my colleagues to see if we have support or not. However, I do not believe that the money should be going out of the country the way it is today to build up another country. Try as they may, the law enforcement arms and agencies in this country are not going to stop it because everyone is playing it. If you stop the lottery on the basis that it is un-Christian-like to do, then what about all the raffles that you are having? What are you going to do to the community? What are you going to do to the Lions? What are you going to do to Rotary? What are you going to do to the Kiwanis? What are you going to do to the schools and the sporting associations? As I said, I do not cry down anyone's religious belief because I have mine and I respect certain pastors and the Church and I will do anything I can to help them, but what we have to do for the country we have to do.

I would like to move from that. It is very obvious from the Leader of the Opposition's comments that he would not recognise a fiscally sound budget if he saw one. I say this because he has seen one - the 2003/2004 Budget and did not recognise it. The 2004 Budget is the second fiscally responsible budget to be brought to this Honourable House in as many years and I am proud to say it is the UDP that has done it both times. I am not going to repeat what has already been said by the Financial Secretary or my other colleagues. They have all done an admirable job in explaining the Budget. However, I want to explain to the listening public and the Leader of the Opposition and the rest of his team, in simple terms, what fiscal responsibility is.

Fiscal responsibility is preparing a budget that runs an operating surplus; one that can be financed without creating a level of public debt that ruins our children's future. The Opposition can get as technical and as nit-picky as they like. They can try to confuse the people and cloud the waters as the interim Leader of the Opposition did. It does not matter at all because it will not change the facts about the Budget. The fact is that it is a fiscally responsible budget; this Budget creates an operating surplus and we are budgeting to spend less than we earn—we are not borrowing it. The fact is that this Budget reduces public debt. The fact is that this Budget ensures that the Government has $50 million, or thereabouts, in cash sitting in its bank account that it can access in times of real emergency. The fact is that this Budget has been financed without excessive borrowing or new revenue measures. The fact is that this Budget promotes and supports economic growth. The fact is that this Budget supports the education and future development of our people. The fact is that this Budget provides unprecedented levels of social support for those in our society that need it and the Minister of Community Affairs named many of them.

This is a budget that is good for this country. It is a budget that charts a new course for this country and it is a budget that the country can afford. If that is not a responsible budget then I do not know what is.

As the Honourable Member clearly does not know what fiscal responsibility is, I am happy to explain it to him as it was explained to me. Any working person knows that he can only spend what he earns. He also knows the wisdom of building up some cash for a rainy day in case of emergencies and paying off his mortgage and credit card debt as soon as he is able to. We all know that we should only borrow what we can afford to pay back. Although the numbers are bigger and the process is more complex, managing the finances of the government is much the same as managing a family budget and that is what this budget does.

I would specifically like to address the comments of the Leader of the Opposition with regards to reserves. I take his comments as a great compliment. It means we have reserves to argue about, which is totally different from how it was when the UDP became the Government. I would like to make it clear to the Opposition and the country that the cash reserves required by the Public Management and Finance Law are quite different from the old notion of reserves we have traditionally used. The requirements of the Public Management and Finance Law reflect the move to accrual accounting and the abolition of the old method of keeping cash in little jars, if you may, for different purposes. That is very old fashioned and perhaps a silly way to manage the government finances. You and I, Madam Speaker, would not do that with our personal finances and the government should not do it either.

The new accounting system quite deliberately abolishes this archaic way of doing things. The new Law requires that the government maintain a level of cash balances which it can use in times of economic or physical emergency. A dollar is a dollar and it does not matter which bank account it is held in or what it is called. Cash is cash! I am sure the country understands that if there is a significant emergency in these Islands the Government is going to use all the cash available to minimize the sufferings of our people regardless of what bank account the cash is sitting in or what label it has been given. We are certainly not going to say; we cannot use money in the Environmental Protection Fund or the Student Loan Reserve Fund if our people are without food our shelter; if we have a real emergency. The average householder faced with an emergency, such as a hole in his roof or a medical emergency, would use the cash in the account he has available regardless of whether it was earmarked as a college fund, vacation fund or a new car fund.

Government is no different. This is what the rest of the world, whether in private companies or government, thinks about cash reserves and it is time we do that here, too. In fact, the new Law and its requirement to use Generally Accepted Accounting Practice, means we must think about it this way.

Therefore, it is the Opposition, not the Government that is misleading the country by their pretence that a dollar is not cash, as I have explained it.

The Government has nothing to hide about the Budget. It provides more information about government finances than any other in the history of this country. We have been very open (although he is saying we are not) about what our operating result is, how we are financing the budget and how we have built up the cash reserves. Rather than trying to mislead the country, the Leader of the Opposition should have read the Budget more carefully. If he had read page 293—and I am sure he did—of the Annual Plan and Estimates, he would have seen that the Government has explained exactly how the cash reserves position has been improved. He knows that. So that the listening public is clear I would like to quote this short extract from page 293.

The Speaker: Please proceed.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: “The net proceeds from the bond issue were used to increase General Reserves by $22.5 million in 2003 (Half-year budget). The net proceeds equated to the difference between the level of Public Debt at the time the refinancing package was first developed and the level of public Debt existing at the time the Bond was actually issued. The $22.5 million put in the General Reserves was the amount of debt that had been repaid but not replaced during that period because of the Government’s tight fiscal policy. The increase in General Reserves was therefore a direct result of the Government’s expenditure control policy.”

In other words, we paid $22 million out on the loans, let us say from January 2002 until December 2003. When we received the bond payment we took that $22 million and put it back into government’s savings. Is that wrong? That is what happened!

[Inaudible interjections]

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Yes. I am only giving a year, I am not saying that was the year. I am just giving an example to support what I am saying.

The forecast for 2003/2004 provides for the general reserves to be maintained at existing levels. In other words, they have not been used to finance government activity. The Leader of the Opposition referred to the debt ratio of 5.3 per cent of the false figure because it does not include the borrowings of the statutory authorities and other government owned companies. That is true, but that is not new to this country or to the Government. However, while it does not contain the borrowings of those authorities, it also does not include the revenue or assets of those authorities. Therefore, how can you make a claim that the figure is false?

Madam Speaker, this Budget has been for core government spending only, as with all other budgets in the past. This is what governments have always done. Never has there been included any statutory authority budget. There is nothing unusual or surprising in this, so whoever informed the interim Leader of the Opposition has certainly done a good job of misrepresenting everything he spoke about. The Government wanted to be sure that everyone understood, so again the Budget states quite clearly what the reporting entity is. Again, for the benefit of the Honourable Member and his team and the public, I would like to quote from page 283 of the Annual Plan and Estimates: “A full set of forecast financial statements for the government of 2003/2004 is provided in Part C of this document. The forecasts are for the core government sector only”.

Fully explained, the Leader of the Opposition is clearly trying to misrepresent this to the public to give the impression that we have significant expenditure out of the Budget. You know what? All the others that spoke followed him. This is not true and he knows it even if they do not know it. Nothing has been left out of this Budget. Everything that Government is doing is in the Budget and everything that statutory authorities and government companies are going to do is also reported. This includes the roads programme to be undertaken by the new National Roads Authority and how it is to be financed. No previous budget has ever been this open before. When I came here in 1984, until the new procedure, the only things contained in the budget of expenditure were the amounts and a one or perhaps a two-line sentence saying what they were doing. Now you have all kinds of information. Yet they are saying we are not being open and accountable.

As the Honourable Financial Secretary has said in his Budget Address, this Budget sets the course for the future of the Cayman Islands. It is visionary; it is responsible and it has been put together by a government with a proven record in good fiscal management. The Leader of the Opposition can try as much as he likes, but he cannot change those facts.

Much noise and conjecture was thrown into the debate about how we propose to fund schools and roads. When I received my mandate in November 2000 from the people of the Cayman Islands, I did so and partly I pledged to deliver vastly needed national infrastructure that we believe is central to our collective goals of nurturing a better quality of life here in the Cayman Islands. I know that mandate was given to other Members who are now Ministers and those on the Opposition Bench too. They had the same mandate. So much of our infrastructure was in disarray or was overburdened by the needs of our citizens___

The Speaker: Honourable Leader, sorry to interrupt, but you have one hour remaining.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I might have to ask for more time. My colleague, the Minister of Telecommunications says I can get some of his. He is sure the Opposition would not complain about that.

Thank you Madam Speaker.

So much of our infrastructure was in disarray or was overburdened by the needs of our citizens; schools were overpopulated in terms of numbers of children per room and under-equipped in terms of new technologies of the 21st century. Roads were in need of upgrade and simply had too much traffic pressure to withstand normal maintenance schedules. Routes throughout Grand Cayman became very congested at peak traffic periods and throughout the day and night. Port facility assets simply could not keep up with vast increases in cargo and cruise ship volumes. The seat of government, that is, the Glass House and the Tower Building are not fit and cannot keep up with the administrative capability, and the efficiency of government suffers because of it.

As a result of people cramped into small quarters with entire departments being spread over numerous buildings in the downtown core, these are some of the problems we faced in 2000 and some of them we are still facing. Our Government heard the people's call for action on those challenges and recognised these issues to be a national priority. In meeting these challenges, one would be tempted to simply call on our Public Works Department to order some new schools, build new roads and build new government administration buildings.

Tempting? Yes. Prudential? No.

As guardians of the public trust and as the maintainers of the financial system, we must be extremely mindful of our overall public debt and with it the cost of servicing the national debt. Adding infrastructure puts a demand for capital, requiring significant external jobs are internally increases in cash flow from fees, licensing, duties and so on. We are restrained from spending at will by our legal regime which limits the upper amount of our external debt measured in terms of debt servicing costs to revenue interest and repayment. The so-called 10 per cent debt service ceiling.

The UK would have to sign any loan that impacts their contingent liability. We had to do the agreement with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO), especially after the Leader of the Opposition borrowed US$66 million.

[Inaudible interjection]

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Well, we told you there was another route, but the Leader of the Opposition went that way. I think he made mention of that in his Budget reply. We did say he could put on the taxes that we increased, but he did not do that. He borrowed. You borrowed. You cannot say you did not borrow. You were the Leader of Government at the time. Just as well as you point fingers at me now you have to take the licks then.

It is worth noting that the debt ceiling is sensitive to the market rates of interest. So debt within interest rates that float, and we have had some of them, could actually increase the burden and use up the ceiling test if interest rates as widely expected, began to increase later this year. This is one of the main reasons why this Government chose to refinance all its current account floating rate debt earlier this year on a 15-year fixed rate basis so that we would eliminate any risk and negative implications of a spike in interest rates. We are committed to keeping our debt below that. Madam Speaker, what then is the Government's choice? How then would we face the dilemma? How does Government answer the people's call to deliver what is needed without unnecessarily burdening current and future generations with debt load and without contravening our debt ceiling limits. That is what the Opposition Leader should have done. He should have examined that position.

The approach is that the first part of that answer lies in developing the difficult set of national strategic priorities among all the possible and the competing calls for development, investment, expenditure and for delivery of assets and services. This is a detailed and collaborative process involving numerous discussions, planning and information sessions, meetings and consultation with the private and public sectors. In our strategic policy statement, we set out the results of this process and established numerous key policy initiatives, focusing solely on initiatives that have a development capital component. These priorities include:

1. build new primary and secondary schools;
2. construct new government administration building;
3. develop new port facilities;
4. improve road networks.

The policy contemplated a three-year context for implementation of these initiatives. The next step is to assess capital expenditure and delivery cost versus anticipated benefits. A difficult analysis process then determines which projects come forward and in what priority. Due to this Government's commitment to limiting further use of its public debt capacity, we embarked upon several alternative approaches to move the financing obligations to the private sector. Under an approach developed in the early 1980s—and the United Kingdom called it the private finance initiative—private sector interest with access to capital markets are willing to step into government's shoes and develop, maintain and own assets and provide them to government under strict guidelines as a service contract.

While the cost of capital is marginally higher than government's own resources, the UK experience is that overall delivery costs are significantly lower given the private sector's competitive interest and determination. Here is the truth: the Public Works Department went out to tender for a high school. We needed a Spotts school for 500 children. They tendered it for 300 yet at $9 million and we have had a proposal to get it for much less. Therefore, Madam Speaker, what I am saying is correct. We are employing the PFI process currently in the development of the government administration building project and that is not yet finalised. The Minister is moving forward and getting his plans and the plan is not even before Council, but it takes a much longer time to get done, but he is moving in the right direction with it. We have four maybe more groups competing for the right to construct, deliver and finance sufficient new office space to meet the current and future needs of government. As government is not in the business of developing and owning assets as such, but rather in the business of providing essential services to the public, we feel the benefits of the PFI process. For that the administration buildings are significant beyond the potential cost savings and that is in the fact that government is not financing their development nor are we carrying the debt on our books.

Another technique we are employing to gain the benefit of improved capital assets and our infrastructure programme; is in aligning the commercial interest of third parties in the private sector with our needs for new facilities. I am speaking specifically of the improvements currently underway at the George Town Port where we have received undertakings for a third party financing for $26 million of capital improvements to the cargo and cruise ship terminal and a West Bay facility, without making any direct investment. Is this not good, I ask the Leader of Opposition? What is bad about it? This was accomplished by allowing the facilities provider to receive an additional $1 per head tariff on manifested cruise ship passengers in exchange for the delivery of this needed infrastructure. Does this not make sense?

This scheme does not in any way impair government's revenue base nor add to our public debt load. Madam Speaker, rather it is a creative and mutually beneficial arrangement between the parties where the government receives the new port facilities and the provider gains improved handling and aesthetics in its core business with users paying the modest cost per passenger on a broadly based collection system. Again, no use of our public debt capacity was required nor was any further burden placed on our debt service ceiling nor operating expenditure made for these improvements. Therefore, we are getting schools in Spotts and West Bay and a secondary school in Frank Sound. Four strong proposals I understand were received and after analysis an initial proponent was selected to deliver the Spotts school.

I know that I have to cut short, so I am trying to move in that direction. Let me take a minute to say how we are going to do this work and how it differs from directly borrowing the funds. So that the Member from George Town, the interim Leader, understands, these are leases not increases in public debt. The Government determines the precise standard of delivery and the private sector designs, builds and finances these facilities in accordance with these rigid requirements. Government then enters into a long-term lease for their use. A direct loan would require the necessary parliamentary and foreign office approvals which we expect would take six to 12 months; that is, if the Foreign and Commonwealth Office agrees with us.

As we are committed to having the Spotts school fully operational for the commencement of the September 2004 school year, we were impressed by a solution which will deliver all funding in August of this year along with the capital for the immediate commencement of the road works programmes. The cost of funds of the programme, less than six per cent, is in line with what our direct bond alternative might be. It is slightly more expensive than bank borrowing, however it is important to recognise that the term over which these funds are provided is 25 years with interest costs fixed, with global interest rates at its historical lows. We are strongly of the view that it is a low risk and prudential move to be in the market now.

[Inaudible comments]

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: I hear you saying that you agree. I thought that was what you were saying.

I might add that timing is everything. There has never been a better time in the long-term capital markets than now. I note that had we been able as a Government of the then party Leader (opposite) to deliver similar financing in 2001 to meet Government's stated commitment to deliver schools, roads and other infrastructure, the higher interest rates of that day would have committed the Government and the people of the Cayman Islands to an additional $23.5 million in cost over the life of the financing, approximately 80 per cent of the total cost we are budgeting. That is solely because long bond rates have declined by 3.25 per cent since January 2000. While this Government is not taking credit for the favourable conditions in the long-term capital markets, we are taking advantage of them in the context of delivering our national priorities.

The financing arrangements we negotiated with the proponents of the schools and road works programme is to enter into a long-term lease of the facilities being developed. As we know the capital and interest components of cost, we are comfortable that we are receiving the most value for money. We are following the prescribed accounting conventions and are being advised by two national accounting firms on the appropriate treatment to ensure conformance to these strict standards. We are advised that the lease arrangements we are using will not go on the balance sheets.

We believe that we have effectively met the challenges of responding to the public's call for improved national infrastructure while guarding the security of our economic means to service the cost of providing these assets and services in the short and long-term. We will not hand down to future generations a legacy of bills to pay for today's infrastructure needs. Choosing instead a path of prudential and lowest cost delivery, this Government believes that investing in our children's education and in our essential national infrastructure, is a wise, timely and necessary initiative and we respectfully seek the support of Members opposite and those who share in these objectives.

Perhaps we could take a break Madam Speaker. Before that, I am going to refer to the claim from the wild rantings of the Member for East End. They claim that nothing was done for the masses. Records show that since we took over as Government from January 2002 until 18 June 2003, we assisted the small Cayman business people with funds, some of which was to either start a business or expand business operations, such as purchases of charter vessels, livestock and so on. We did this in the amount of $4,115,965. If this is not helping our people—small business people, the masses—in the 18 months that we have had control, then tell the Member for East End what is!

As far as I am concerned, this is just another example of the PPM misleading and misinforming the public that made the mistake of electing them. He talks about us not helping people. I can call one name: look at Chester's Woodworks, a good, small Caymanian business. Let us look at some of them: purchased a trencher, completed a laundromat, purchased a bus, purchased a motor vehicle for a water sports operation, equipped a computer teaching centre, purchased stock for local retail business, establishment of a laundromat, refinancing of a bus loan and acquisition of a charter vessel, purchase of supply for business, purchase of parts and repair of vehicle, purchase of equipment and working capital—$4,115,965 in 18 months, Madam Speaker. Yet that Member does not have the common sense to see what is good; talking nonsense about a price cap.

Let me say that this Government could not have lent out over $4 million to small business, middle-class Caymanians, had I and other Members, not aggressively pursued and brought in the foreign investment that he was complaining about. Not only would there not be the funds, but there would exist no opportunity for our people and then he would have had something to make noise about. That is why we need foreign investors.

The action taken with Cable and Wireless is for the benefit of the masses, but he does not recognise that. We must and will deal accordingly with Caribbean Utilities Company which must benefit the masses also. We are not going to do what he, the Member for East End, suggested, that is, a price cap, because it would continue a virtual monopoly with no significant benefit to the masses. That is the PPM for you. They have no idea about running a country. I can tell the people of this country one thing: if we put them in office, dog eat their supper. If they believe they have it bad now, put them in office and you will be running for the hills.

The Speaker: Honourable Leader, is this an appropriate time for the afternoon break or would you wish to continue until we reach 4.30, the hour of interruption?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker . . .

The Speaker: I take it that you are going to 4.30.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Sorry, yes.

Building blocks of democracy is not just about telling the Opposition or giving them information; it is also about the Opposition being able to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth. The Opposition has not done that in this Honourable House.

The Leader of the Opposition inquired in his contribution to the Budget debate what is being done to prevent a repeat of the FRU and Euro Bank fiasco. Can you imagine that he would come here saying that when they were the ones out there trying to give some back up support to the Attorney-General of the day? Can you believe that? Can you believe that they would come and talk about this when they were the ones who sat in the House and passed each other paper so that I could be ridiculed? He said that Government was not doing anything about it. You know you are really slipping.

It should be recognised that the problems leading up to the collapse of the Euro Bank trial were a result of weaknesses in the system and also a problem with the personal conduct of individuals. The Government is moving very swiftly to correct the weakness of the system and also to ensure that the right personnel are in place in the old Financial Reporting Unit. The Government recognised very early after the collapse of the trial that there was a need to restore confidence and integrity in certain departments of government. To this end the anti-money laundering steering group under the chairmanship of His Excellency the Governor, comprising the Honourable Financial Secretary, the Honourable Acting Attorney General, the Commissioner of Police, the Managing Director of the Monetary Authority, the Collector of Customs and the Assistant Financial Secretary have been working diligently on legislation to restructure the financing reporting authority and to give it legislative recognition.

The anti-money laundering steering group has met with members of the private sector, including major players in financial industry, in fashioning this piece of legislation. The input from the private sector has been very meaningful. Following from these consultations and the deliberations of the steering group, a Bill for a law to restructure the reporting authority has been approved by Executive Council and is due to be dealt with in this Honourable House during this meeting. The law is aimed at more than just a change of name for the Financial Reporting Unit. It is aimed at, among other things, ensuring transparency and accountability and I hope that somehow we can stop the UK from spying on us. It will ensure that we maintain the very delicate but necessary balance of maintaining the competitiveness of our financial industry while honouring our international obligations in the global fight against money-laundering and terrorism. Members of the Honourable House will have an opportunity to debate the provisions of the Bill and make constructive suggestions on who is to preserve what is so dear to all of us—our financial industry.

Therefore, the Leader of the Opposition again was talking nonsense and once again is proven wrong. However, Madam Speaker, what the Opposition should have done was to stand with the Government in our fight against that situation rather than going off to see Mr. Ballantyne in their professional capacity.

Someone mentioned immigration and hiring practice. I would like to say that the Government has been understanding when it comes to work permits. We need to build our financial industry, but we cannot leave our people behind. Our people who are able, willing and qualified cannot be left to languish behind without opportunity and upward mobility. Therefore, the Government has taken a very strong stand on the permits. Work permits are down probably by 1500 if not more. We are not going to see our people hurt when we can assist them. In all ways, the Government has been doing that.

Hour of Interruption—4.30 pm

The Speaker: We have reached the hour of interruption. Can I have a motion, Honourable Leader of Government Business for the suspension of Standing Order 10? I believe it is the House's intention to sit beyond the hour of 4.30 pm.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, we intend to sit beyond the hour of 4.30. We will go until 8 o'clock and after I am finished I think there is a statement by the Financial Secretary, the Honourable Third Official Member, after which we intend to move forthwith into Finance Committee.

I move the suspension of Standing Order 10(2) in order to meet until 8 o'clock.

The Speaker: Thank you. The question is that Standing Order 10(2) be hereby suspended to allow the House to continue its business until 8 pm. All those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed. Standing Order 10(2) suspended to allow the House to continue until 8 pm.

The Speaker: We will take the afternoon break at this time. The Leader of Government Business has 32 minutes remaining.

The Members were inquiring as to the duration of the break. I should wish to reconvene within the 10-minute framework.

Proceedings suspended at 4.29 pm

Proceedings resumed at 4.58 pm

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Can I just make one statement first, Leader of the Opposition?

Leader of Government, you have 32 minutes remaining.

I recognise the Leader of the Opposition.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. This is just to advise the House that the Member for East End, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town and the Member for North Side all have to leave early because they have to attend graduation exercises for primary schools in their various districts. I think the Minister of Education also has had to leave because of a similar commitment. Given the fact that we did not know that we were going to begin Finance Committee this evening, it will not allow these Members an opportunity to participate in the process.

We were not trying to delay anything but genuinely not knowing. We understood that the House was going until eight o'clock, until the debate on the Budget Address was completed, but not by extension that if the Budget debate ended in the middle of an evening beyond eight o'clock, that we would commence Finance Committee immediately. The Government has the numbers and, if they so desire, they will have to do that. I was only making note of it and asking for consideration, so that Members who have other commitments would have an opportunity to participate in the process. If they do not wish to allow that, there is nothing we can do.

The Speaker: Thank you. I recognise the Leader of Government.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, once again the Opposition is complaining that they did not know, but they knew that we would go on. We said we would continue in the evening until eight o'clock. Now, if other Members had spoken we would have gone on. I do not see the relevance of that complaint. I do understand that some Members have to go to commitments in their constituency. Be that as it may, the House has to continue and that is what we propose to do. Many of us gave up commitments so that we could proceed with the Budget.

The Opposition, in particular the Leader of the Opposition, has misled this country by its oversimplification of the issues facing our tourism industry. While I try not to pander to every criticism, which is either, I am aware that when untruths are frequently repeated they have a way of being mistaken for fact. I fear this may be the case regarding the supposed correlation between the increase in cruise tourism and the moderate decrease in our air arrivals. I wish it were that simple: that by simply reducing cruise arrivals we would spontaneously increase our air arrivals, but it not that simple.

Following 11 September there was silence in the skies above the United States. For days all planes were grounded, international flights suspended and the public grappled with the harsh reality that more than 2000 lives were lost in the air-related tragedies. Almost two years later, the travel industry is still struggling to overcome the fear that took root in the minds of US travellers and to further complicate this matter there were wars, a weak US economy, a falter in the US stock market and rising US unemployment. Amidst that backdrop, the travel industry has suffered tremendously. In particular, the Caribbean was seriously impacted as the region relies heavily upon air arrivals from the United States. In the immediate year following the terrorist attack, of the total of 30 Caribbean countries reporting to the Caribbean Tourism Organisation, a clear majority of 18 countries experienced a decrease in stay-over tourists in 2002 compared to 2001. Of the remaining 12 countries which experienced only a moderate increase, it should be noted that none were mature tourist destinations like the Cayman Islands which receives more than 300,000 air arrivals per year. In other words, within our category of destinations, the Cayman Islands are doing as well as our competitors regardless of whether they also offer cruise tourism or not.

Therefore, it is simply untrue to suggest that our dip in air arrivals can be directly and solely attributed to the increase in cruise arrivals. The facts simply do not support such a conclusion. Let me add that I have been very open in representing our tourist statistics, regardless of whether or not there was positive news to convey. The Opposition always tries to make a whole heap of noise and big speeches with flowery language about democracy because they do not get to have their way and about no time.

Tourism statistics: as far as this Government is concerned we are more open than any other government because I do not try to take the figures to juggle them to make them look good. They all go out and, even before I see them, they are on the Web and the stakeholders, legislators and others have access to those numbers.

Tourism statistics are now automatically published on the Website, so, as far as I am concerned, this is being very open government. What I find hard to tolerate is the blatant over-simplification and misrepresentation which has occurred in the debate, which is a most dangerous way to treat discussion on what is a very important area of our national economy. They might not realise the damage they are doing, but they are doing it. Perhaps they say, "Well, others are doing it too", but there is no reason why the Opposition should jump on the bandwagon, when they do not know. Just because it is a fad—because there are people saying, "Oh, well you do not need all these cruise passengers".

In terms of the growth in cruise arrivals, it is worth noting that cruise tourism remains a significant element of the overall Caribbean industry. In fact, the Caribbean is the leading destination region, accounting for 48.5 per cent of the total cruise capacity marketed out of North America in 2002. It should be noted that the growth within the cruise industry has been experienced within the region as a whole and not just in the Cayman Islands, however, generally speaking, within the Caribbean cruise tourism has grown faster than land-based tourism, thereby increasing its relative importance. Therefore, the challenge we are facing is hardly unique.

Within the region cruise tourism accounts for 60,000 jobs both directly and indirectly. I am mindful that this element of our business must be managed and I have taken decisive steps to ensure that, unlike other territories, the Cayman Islands make the most of the opportunities cruise tourism presents by launching an aggressive cruise conversion programme entitled, "Welcome Back".

That programme, Madam Speaker, was launched in March and we are already receiving evidence of positive consumer interest. A wide cross-section of the private sector has come on board with 18 hotels and condo properties, 11 water sport companies and the national carrier having joined the Department of Tourism in its targeted campaign to have the cruise visitor return as an air arrival. In this regard, the Cayman Islands are ahead of our competitors. We are in the testing stage of our "Welcome Back" cruise conversion programme.

Much talk has been on-going about what the cruise passengers spend. While cruise passengers spend significantly less on average than air arrival visitors, the total contribution of cruise visitors within the region was an estimated $1.6 billion in 2001. The Cayman Islands cannot afford to simply turn its back on this industry when every incremental dollar helps to fund land-based attractions, the transportation sector, taxis and tours and retail shops. Let the Second Elected Member for George Town and his partner, the First Elected Member for George Town, go and tell all those shops in George Town stores, "We are going to cut back on cruise tourism". Let them go and tell their supporters that. This works for tour operators and other dependent sub-sectors on the cruise tourism.

It should be noted that the key to sustaining our tourism industry is striking a managed balance and this is the position that I have long advocated and which is supported in the tourism management policy. I will not, however, support short sighted, simplistic solutions which misrepresent the truth and threaten to depress this fragile industry. That is one good thing we have going in a world of uncertainty. Why should I now try to destroy it? That is what the Opposition would like and they would be the first ones coming back to this Honourable House asking questions about "why you never do something about the cruise industry". As I said, it is ironic that those people who burned down the fire station are the ones who stand on the side-line saying, "Why in the world government not doing something about that". So I understand quite well their modus operandi, but I am not paying them any mind.

The other thing that is so evident is there are people who are criticising all the cruise passengers, yet they are the ones trying to get into the business, trying to get buses and trying to bring in boats. Shame on them, they are a bunch of hypocrites! We are beginning to see signs of right-sizing occurring within the cruise industry as I forecasted early in 2002. Our records indicate that in 2004 we can expect approximately 1.4 million cruise tourists as opposed to the approximately 2 million which was forecasted for 2003. This modest decrease is as a result of numerous factors, including better planning by the Port Authority on the number of ships scheduled to visit on a particular day; an element of repositioning as anticipated once cruise lines were better able to mitigate against the restrictions of war and terrorism; and an increasing element of home porting occurring within the United States. Therefore, as predicted, we are seeing a natural adjustment to the cruise figures without imposing heavy-handed measures which were likely to damage the mutually beneficial relationships which are being forged within the cruise lines over recent times. I wish the First Elected Member for George Town had stayed in the room.

Our air arrival figures have not returned to the level prior to 11 September 2001 but again this is consistent with other major tourism destinations. We will continue to strive to accelerate the rate of our recovery, however, we are mindful that we live and work in a time of unprecedented challenges.

The Speaker: From my calculation, Honourable Leader, your time will be up at 5.30.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, as I said, the country has heard from the Opposition and I venture to say that they too were disappointed just as I was. The Opposition charged that Government's Budget for 2003/2004 did not tell the true story and it was not balanced. That is their usual same old song: blame, criticise, spread propaganda, but never offer any solutions. I do not expect anything else from them. Madam Speaker, that is the cut of their jib, as the old people would say. Blame and criticise. They should be last ones. He took one year to try to get an elevator fixed in the Glass House when he was Minister of Works. One year. Madam Speaker, he came in there, left and it still was not fixed. The new Minister had to fix it, so I do not expect any better out of them.

First, the Opposition has stated that the Budget is not balanced because it is nonsense to talk of a balanced budget in the context of an operating surplus of $5.7 million, projected for the year-end 30 June 2004 when there is an expected overdraft position at 30 June 2004 of $10.8 million. Madam Speaker, the Opposition is once again confused and it certainly has no depth to its argument. The reason why the 2003/2004 Budget, which shows an operating surplus of $5.7 million, is associated with an overdraft at the end of June is that the Government has taken that surplus to invest in the Island's infrastructure, such as schools, maintenance. This is, as far as I am concerned, the right thing to do.

The Opposition's faulty logic and argument means that if we were talking about an individual, that individual would not invest in acquiring a home because the excess of his salary over his expenses - that is, his savings - would not be able to pay for the home. Thus on the PPM's faulty logic a person could not invest in acquiring a home because his savings could not pay for the home outright. Does that make sense? They must be building in the baby houses that they, but certainly not in the real world. In other words, the PPM would conclude that even though a person had acted responsibly and saved some of his salary, he should not buy a home because when the mortgage is subtracted from the person's savings a negative position occurs. This is the kind of ridiculous conclusion one would arrive at using the PPM's decision-making model.

However, you cannot run a government like that and you know that. I ask each and every one of us here in this House today and the public at large, and indeed the entire world, how many people would apply the PPM logic to our own lives and refuse to acquire a home simply because our savings could not buy the home outright. The Government's responsible action of producing a surplus is associated with an overdraft because the Government is investing in the people's and Islands' infrastructure. I need to direct the Opposition to Table 1, page 283 of the Annual Plan and Estimates (AP&E) and Table 7, page 291 and pages 310-312. The references I made to the Tables and the pages illustrate that the Government is investing its surplus wisely.

Another ground on which the Government was attacked was that we did not have 60 days of tax reserves. Again, the basis for this conclusion is faulty. When we talk of the need for the country to have 90 days of cash reserves, we are really preparing ourselves to deal with a drastic situation should it happen. The intent behind this provision of the Public Management and Finance Law is that government should be able to finance 90 days of its normal expenditure levels from its cash balances. In the event of all of government's revenue sources drying up for 90 days or three months, this is the kind of scenario, but it is a drastic scenario. If that were to occur, the government would be in dire straits. The provision of the Law intended that cash balances from all sources would be utilised to deal with such catastrophes. In such an instance, the government would convene an emergency meeting of the Legislative Assembly and get the House to approve the use of cash balances. The government cannot use cash balances without the approval of the legislature. Therefore, is the PPM saying that in such a drastic situation, if they were in power, they would only use certain accounts but not others while the country suffers? That is the conclusion you would have to draw from what they say.

Madam Speaker, I certainly like to use simple examples that ordinary people can understand. What the PPM is saying is if a person's life is threatened that person should not use funds he had set aside for home improvements to pay for an operation that might save his life. That is the kind of logic that they are using and this is the kind of small mindedness that is characteristic of the PPM. They cannot see that using our operating surplus to help finance our investment in the country's infrastructure is a sensible approach. Would he have preferred us to keep the operating surplus and then borrow US$66.6 million like he did in 2001? That is what he is saying, "Do not use your operating surplus, go somewhere else".

The Government also got criticised because of the source of the planned $22.5 million injection in the general reserves. I repeat this, but it bears emphasis because it was repeated by them. I gave one scenario earlier, let me give another one: the vast majority of this comes from the remaining proceeds of the government's bond issue, after virtually all public debt loans have been repaid. The note issue was originally intended to be finalised very early in 2002 and the proceeds were to have been used predominantly to pay off public debt loan balances that existed at 31 December 2001.

The Government was advised that if it waited a bit longer, we would enjoy a decline in the interest rate that government would have to pay on the note issue. Indeed this stands out to be the case. Of course, Government had to continue to meet its public debt obligations during 2002 and this was done using operating revenues. It is a testament to Government's good management that it was able to do this. The much criticised source of the transfer to general reserves simply results from reimbursement of operating revenues that were used to pay certain public debt loans during 2002.

The Speaker: Honourable Leader you have 10 minutes remaining.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Government has retained the note issue proceeds as part of the operating revenue bank balances. Instead the Government plans to remove the entire remainder into general reserves. Is this not responsible management? If the Opposition had taken the time to look they would have got this explanation from page 293 of the AP&E. The Government has also been criticised about hiding expenditures and debt and statutory authorities and again it is nonsense. Government's relationship with statutory authorities is clearly spelled out in the document called Purchase Agreements for Statutory Authorities Government companies and non-governmental output suppliers. There is no hiding. His document was given to all Members and it is, someone said, 631 pages long. How could the Opposition have missed it?

Madam Speaker, the much talked about National Roads Authority is clearly outlined on page 611 to 617. Statutory authorities have to be audited either by the Auditor General or an auditing firm acting on his behalf. Those reports have to be tabled in this House. Thus, how can things be hidden? What they are talking about is nonsense. The part of the new Finance and Management Law which requires statutory authorities and government corporations to table ownership agreements in this Honourable House gives a time frame of up to 2004/2005 for said authorities and corporations to table the agreements. Some were ready when the Budget was ready to be presented. Therefore, to be seen as open and accountable as possible, those that are ready are here for all to see. Some are still not ready and will be compliant according to the time frame given by the Law. We are not trying to hide anything as the two Members sitting opposite would make the public believe.

The AP&E includes $800,000 to pay for professional fees in connection with the possible new office accommodation building. I say "possible new office accommodation building" because part of that $800,000 will be used to pay for professional services as to whether the building is affordable. We are addressing that aspect. If we go ahead, that money is coming back to government and, if we do not, then we will have a good report as to why we should not go in that direction. We cannot continue. I am not exaggerating when I say this: to have a situation where the roof falls in while the Minister is sitting in his office working. Nor can we have the same problem happening to civil servants with a government accommodating staff in buildings which do not comply with fire code requirements, and where the air quality is poor. People are getting sick and that did not start with this Government nor was the situation with the schools our doing. The people that you all are trying to court now to get in power with, they are the ones you must remember all the hell you gave them. Not true? True yes! Very true! I know it is true. The bunch of you are always talking.

The Speaker: Please pass the comments through the Chair.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I am not courting anyone and I hope I have a few minutes to deal with that before I finish because the truth is I am not looking for anything else but new candidates. I will take time out to say this: I will not be in coalition with any one of them. None of them! Not me. If anyone else wants to do that . . . but I will sit on the Back Bench.

The Member for George Town thinks that I am a little bit like him. I hope that I am not giving the Opposition or the public the impression by commenting on the points made by the Opposition that those points are credible. No, I believe that they are filled with faulty logic and that is why I choose to speak from those feeble points raised by the interim Leader of the Opposition and his satellite there grinning like a Cheshire cat.

Having disposed of the Opposition's hollow points, I want to refocus our attention on the soundness of the 2003/2004 Budget. It is a sound Budget because it embraces the wishes of the people of these Islands as documented in Vision 2008. This Budget proposes legislation for the forthcoming year and outlines proposed expenditures that will give those wishes a real fighting chance of becoming reality. It is a sound budget because we have produced a surplus on our day-to-day activities before turning our attention to capital projects. It is a sound budget because we will use our existing and expected cash balances to finance those capital projects. This will keep the level of borrowing to a relatively small amount. It is a sound budget because we expect our general reserves balance to be $28.3 million. This will be the highest level achieved in the 20 years that I have been in this House. Not since 1984 when general reserves stood at $18.2 million have they been anywhere remotely close to the $28.3 million that we expect.

It is a sound budget because we are planning to invest heavily in capital items while at the same time reducing the overall level of public debt. If we did not already have a name, I would christen the UDP's management as being "Unflinching Dedication to Prudence" (UDP). That is part of the sum total of the United Democratic Party's management.

Madam Speaker, we have managed wisely and I believe I have demonstrated that the UDP Government inspires confidence; unemployment is down, people are coming in, we are giving local people money to spend, local people can start new businesses. This is good at a time when the world is so badly off. The UDP inspires confidence. The country knows where it stands with us at the helm. We cannot rest on our numerous past accomplishments. Challenges do lie ahead and we need captains, not sleepyheads, at the helm that run the ship ashore. Captains who are not afraid of storms! We do not go looking for storms, but when they come we will stop at nothing to save the good ship, Cayman Islands.

Madam Speaker, if we close our eyes many of us can transport ourselves back to primary school days and if we open them again we are in the present. For many of us that simple opening and closing of our eyes spanned 30 to 40 years plus.

The Speaker: Honourable Leader, the Clerk has informed me that you have only three minutes remaining.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you. Time is precious and we must grasp the opportunity now to improve our beloved Cayman Islands. No one else is going to do it for us. We have done our part; we have provided the good ship Cayman with an even keel budget in the form of the 2003/2004 Budget.

Madam Speaker, let me say I hear them talking over there and I know the rumours that they spread, but I am old enough and have been in here long enough for it to roll off like water off a duck's back. What people will understand is the truth; what people will understand is the kind of pronouncements and the hard decisions that I am willing to take as Leader of Government. That is what people understand. People understand if I am willing to take the hard decision against crime and perhaps stand the wrath of some of them because they are likely to be in the midst cursing me for what I am suggesting, but we are going to deal with it. This country is going to be safe. Those that will not stand with me will stand against me. If I stand alone, so be it! Madam Speaker, as to their leadership, I do not think that they can stand the test.

Let me say that in a world of turmoil, this is the worst that I have ever seen it, probably since World War II, as I said in the opening of my Budget statement. The Cayman Islands have much to be thankful for. It is no use us going around making people believe that the Cayman Islands are dropping to pieces. We have got problems, but, thank God, we are able to face those problems. We are attacking every critical issue that we know will benefit the people of this country: Cable and Wireless, CUC, no borrowings, schools, needed infrastructure, social programmes. The one problem we have that we must meet head on is crime. If we allow it to rise none of this would be any good. Therefore, I trust that this Honourable House is going to support me when that time comes. As far as me running with any one of them or anybody to do with the previous Minister of Education, I will never do that!

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I will allow you to complete that statement as your time is up.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I thank you for your indulgence and I am asking and I hope that you will allow this. I am asked about the former Member for East End. I hope that he runs and that he beats the present Member because that Member did a whole lot more than the present Member is doing who is attached to the People's Progressive Movement.

Madam Speaker, thank you very much.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill shortly entitled the Appropriation (July 2003 to June 2004) Bill, 2003, be given a second reading. All those in favour, please say Aye.

Ayes.

The Speaker: Those against, No.

Noes.

The Speaker: I believe the Ayes have it.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Can we have a Division, Madam Speaker?

The Speaker: Certainly, Madam Clerk, please call the Division.
